Tobin Sees 'Economic Boom'

By TOM HENSHAW

Midway through his second term in the front office, Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has embraced the tax revolt of 1980, forecasting a possible "rebirth of self-government for our local municipalities and the greatest economic boom in our city's history."

Tobin, in a mid-term address that stuck strictly to economic issues, called the tax constraints imposed by Proposition 2½ "a challenge to all elected officials to bring forth new and innovative approaches to the administration of governmental affairs."

He proposed a few "innovative approaches" of his own and challenged the City Council to join him in implementing them and others "to provide for the economic and social welfare of our city."

"Working together," he said,

Highlights:

Here are the new developments for downtown Quincy that were announced by Mayor Tobin in his mid-term address:

- A $14 million, 10-story office complex on Chestnut St.
- A $20 million office-retail complex on Hancock St. next to the Bargain Center.
- A $29 million retail mall, including three department stores, more than 40 specialty shops, two restaurants, a cinema and a bank on the John Hancock Park Area.

Here are Mayor Tobin's proposals for updating the city budget to meet the challenge of Prop 2½:

- Streamline budget for presentation to the City Council.
- Consolidation of various departments.
- Alternative funding for municipal services.
- Consolidation of services under self-supporting accounts.

Here are Mayor Tobin's proposals to skirt the restrictions of Prop 2½ by setting up fee accounts outside the budget:

- A self-supporting Quincy Junior College, incorporating additional programs now paid for elsewhere in the school budget.
- Self-supporting Water and Sewer Departments so the systems can be modernized with federal and state funds.
- An enterprise account for City Hospital, which will be managed under contract by Hospital Corp. of America.

"we can leave a legacy to the City of Presidents for future generations to enjoy."

The Mayor announced three new developments for downtown Quincy, which, he said, will cost $63 million "and will create $1.5 million in new tax revenue to pay for needed municipal services."

Already, he said, his economic development program has produced more than $57 million in new office space and nearly $30 million in new housing units, which will generate more than $2.1 million a year in new tax revenue.

He estimated that every $2 million in new tax revenue means "we can support 100 municipal employees who provide for the needs and general welfare of the citizens of Quincy. This is the importance of economic development."

All three of the new developments that he announced had been previous hinted at or leaked out in part.

One of them is a $14 million, 10-story office complex across Chestnut St. from the South Shore Bank. The bank has already announced that it plans to acquire the property, now occupied by the Scott Gordon Furniture Co., for expansion.

Tobin told The Sun that he already has a commitment for construction and permanent financing for the project from Coldwell Banker, the largest commercial brokerage company with 47 offices across the United States.

"The South Shore Bank is no problem," said the Mayor. Bank President William Austin said earlier that the bank was willing to join forces with a developer to put up an office building on the site.

Another development calls for a $20 million office-retail complex on Hancock St. adjacent to the Bargain Center on land currently occupied by the Elks Home and a block of stores including Gina's Sub and Sandwich Shop.

The proposed developer is Edward Rappaport of Baltimore and Miami and the new building would extend from Faxon Ave. next to the Bargain Center to

First Candidate

McCauley Hat In Mayoral Ring

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley announced Tuesday night that he is running for mayor of Quincy.

He told an invited gathering of businessmen, neighborhood leaders and politicians that "too many important decisions have been made for short term political considerations in the city."

"They are not being made in the best interests of the city," he said.

McCauley, a 51-year-old banker from Houghs Neck, has served seven years on the City Council in two split terms. He also was a member of the School Committee for six years.

He told the group at the Neighborhood Club that he "suspects there will be at least one more candidate in the race," indicating he feels Mayor Arthur Tobin will run for reelection.

(Tobin told The Sun that he doesn't really care who the candidates are in the 1981 fall election.

"Whether I run for a third term or not depends solely how I am perceived by the people of Quincy in the job that I am doing," he said. "Are they happy with what I am doing?" (He declined to say when or if he would become a candidate.)

McCauley said that he for one was not satisfied with the way Tobin was doing the job in the front office.

He noted that when Tobin took over the mayor's job in January, 1978, he immediately floated a $7 million bond issue to catch the city up on its budget and revenue shortfalls.

"In September he announced a 60-cent drop in the tax rate," said McCauley. "I examined the figures and called it an election year tax rate based on short term political considerations.

"I was called wrong but the proof that I was right came a year later when the $27.40 tax rate increase was announced. This has got to stop."

McCauley said he started to give serious consideration to running for mayor last October but did not reach a decision until one night in December when he was looking at clippings in a scrapbook.

"There was one clipping from

Arcade License Requests Continued To Jan. 13

A request from DIBOW Corporation, 119 Parkway, for arcade and Lord's Day licenses was postponed at the request of the applicants to Jan. 13, at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

The request, which has been postponed three times since Dec. 2, has already received opposition from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

In a Jan. 5, letter sent to the License Board, the association stated the request was not compatible with plans for development of the city.

Applicants for the licenses are Ronald G. Bowers of 25 Barry St., Randolph, and Robert J. DiCarli, 233 Poquanicut Ave., North Easton.

At Atherton Hough

'Dingy Basement' Now Dental Clinic

The "dingy basement" of the Atherton Hough School has been renovated into the newly reopened Serpos Dental Clinic of Houghs Neck.

Mayor Arthur Tobin, chairman of the Elizabeth Serpos Fund Directors, recently officiated at ceremonies marking the reopening of the clinic.

The clinic provides dental services to Houghs Neck residents at about one-third the normal rates.

The ceremony opened with blessings by Rev. James Hart, pastor of Blessed Sacrament Church, and Rev. M. Alicia Corea, pastor of Houghs Neck Congregational Church.

Tobin praised City Solicitor Robert Fleming, and Dr. James Will, Clinical Director, for their efforts in the renovation project.

The mayor presented Mrs. Eleanor Will with a corsage and bouquet of roses, "for her dedication to the redecoration of this clinic and for transforming this dingy basement into an attractive and friendly area."

Evarant Serpos, a Turkish-born candy manufacturer, left a house in his will to provide medical services to residents of Houghs Neck. The home was later sold and proceeds were used to establish the Elizabeth Serpos Fund.

"Houghs Neck is indeed fortunate to have had a man like Evarant Serpos in its midst to bequeath this facility to the residents of the area in memory of his wife Elizabeth," said Tobin.

Dr. Stephen Black will be the clinic dentist.

Kelly Re-elected City Council President

The first and largely ceremonial meeting of the City Council for 1981 produced, as expected, little in the way of heavy lifting.

Leo J. Kelly was re-elected to a second one year term as Council President, probably his last since starting in 1982. The Council President will serve a two-year term and cannot succeed himself.

Kelly, as president when the rule was changed, can be elected to a second successive term but he has said that he will not seek one.

Mrs. Jeanne Reardon was re-elected to a second one year term as the Council's clerk of committees.

The only item of new business passed by the Council in its traditionally brief Monday morning session was an order that apparently had been pending for 35 years, ever since it was overlooked by Mayor Charles A. Ross in 1946.

The order conveys a piece of city-owned land on Faxon Lane off Water St. to Henry M. Faxon and thence to Leo and Richard L. Darr and soon to the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

The land was abandoned by the city in 1926 when Faxon Lane was relocated and it was deeded over to Faxon in 1946 by Mayor Ross but without the necessary authorization from the City Council.

It was part of the parcel that Faxon sold to Leo and Richard L. Darr, who built the Quincy Motor Co. on the site.

Now the land is to be sold to the Quincy Cooperative Bank as the site of a new headquarters and lawyers from the bank discovered the oversight, which was rectified by the Council on Monday, in time to meet the bank's Jan. 5 deal-closing deadline.

Two items were sent to the Council's Downtown and Economic Development Committee:

- An order authorizing the Mayor to file for a $7 million federal Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) to build a parking garage for an office building planned by Forge O'Connell Properties in North Quincy.

- An order authorizing the Mayor to file for a $2 million UDAG to loan to Dickinson Development to build a parking garage over the air rights to the North Quincy MBTA parking lot.

William McDonald was re-elected to another term as a member of the Adams Temple and School Fund and John McGowan was elected to fill a vacancy on the fund.

Councillors Joanne Condon and Stephen J. McGrath were re-elected to the Board of Supervisors of City Hospital.

Dr. Lurlene Anderson was nominated to a second term on the Board of Managers of the Woodward Fund and Property but, under the rules, the nomination must lay on the table for a month before a vote is taken.

New Hospital Era, But Mayor Still In Charge

By TOM HENSHAW

A bright new era dawned at City Hospital Monday - but there still appeared to be a few strings attached to the old.

In rapid fire order:

• Anthony DeFalco, 55, of Needham retired from the $41,600 post as hospital director, was named by HCA as interim director for at least the duration of a temporary six-month contract.

• Hospital Corp. of America of Nashville, Tenn., a $1.5 billion company that operates 191 hospitals, was chosen by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin to run the hospital for $400,000 to $460,000 a year.

• Michael D. Kitchen, a 34-year-old West Virginian with eight years hospital experience, was named by HCA as interim director for at least the duration of a temporary six-month contract.

• Donald E. Strange, HCA's group administrator for the northeast, identified one of the firm's goals as a new hospital facility, possibly within five years, costing some $50 million.

Mayor Tobin, appearing before a special meeting of the City Council's Hospital Committee Monday night, assured councilors that the days of "politicizing" the hospital are over.

"If it will set your mind at ease," he said, "we're going to let the hospital run the hospital."

The promise evoked applause from the audience, made up largely of hospital personnel.

Later, however, under questioning by Councillor Francis X. McCauley, City Solicitor Robert Fleming asserted that the mayor still "has sole authority to hire and fire ... and make all other administrative decisions."

"Under the city charter," said Mayor Tobin, "the mayor is responsible for the hospital. But I don't intend to interfere as long as the decisions are made in the best interests of the city.

"If I appointed Hospital Corp. of America to run the hospital, don't you think I have the intelligence to let them alone?"

Interim Director Kitchen said it is the goal of the HCA management team to make the hospital self-sustaining ... "although we can't guarantee it."

But he told Councillor Stephen J. McGrath that there is a possibility that at some future date the Council may have to pledge the city's credit to a bond issue for plant or equipment.

The meeting with the Council's Hospital Committee was strictly informational but Tobin will need future Council approval to set up a special enterprise account to make the hospital self-sufficient.

McCauley questioned the folks from HCA closely and he read to Fleming portions of the letter that the Solicitor had sent to the Board of Managers on June 26, 1979.

"The mayor," said the letter, "has sole authority to hire and fire, make contracts for services and purchase and make all other administrative decisions, except where the authority is expressly limited by statute."

"The Board's authority is only advisory with all final decisions to be made by the mayor."

"I don't think that the authority of the mayor has changed at all from the date that we wrote that letter," said Fleming.

"Is it possible that they (HCA) could have trouble with a mayor?" asked McCauley.

"Let's say somebody comes to him and needs a job. This fellow has been pretty good on the battle lines at election time. It's happened in this city before. The mayor decides to send this individual up to the hospital. Would the mayor be able to make that move?"

Board Continues Strand Roller Rink Request

A request from owners of the Strand Theater, 12 Chestnut St., for a license for a roller skating rink on the premises was continued to Jan. 13, at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

Board members voted to continue the request so that Building Inspector Allen MacDonald, who was unable to attend this week's meeting, can review the plans.

City Clerk John Gillis also suggested Anthony and Louis Delpidio of The Strand consult with members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association which sent a letter to the board opposing the roller rink.

In the letter, Bernie Reisberg, vice president of the QCBPA, wrote that the rink would not be compatible with plans for development of the city.

The Delpidios explained the roller rink would be on the building's lower level, and a 300 seat theatre would be located upstairs. Separate entrances to the two facilities would be established by partitioning the existing entrance.

The theatre currently has 1,700 seats.

Senior Citizens Collect Canned Goods For DOVE

The Quincy Federation of Senior Citizens Clubs has raised more than $350 worth of canned goods and various other articles for DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended).

DOVE maintains a "safe house" to give refuge to women who have been beaten by their husbands or boy friends and have no other place to go.

The "pantry drive" has been a special holiday project for the Federation which has also been engaged in making lap robes, socks and exercise balls for City Hospital.

The Federation was founded in 1968 by Marion Andrews, the present director of the Council on Aging, who invited six organized senior clubs to join.

The main purpose was to bring the seniors into a closer relationship with the Council and provide social activities to fill leisure time.

The Federation began to undertake individual fund-raising projects as early as 1970.

For many years it has sponsored "Nites Out for Nursing Home Patients," in which the patients are taken out for an evening for entertainment, refreshments and prizes.

The first "Nite Out" was attended by 50 patients in 1970. Last spring, it drew more than 200. It is believed to be the only function of its kind in the state.

The Federation presently has a membership of 21 clubs representing some 3,000 senior citizens. It is independent of the Council on Aging but the Council coordinates many of its activities.

The Council also uses it as a means to get information to senior citizens on a grass roots level.

Federation officers are Mrs. Mary MacLean, president; Mrs. Helen Andrews, vice president; Mrs. Margaret Campbell, secretary; Mrs. Edith Anderson, treasurer; Mrs. Edith Henshall, chaplain; and Mrs. Kay Bamford, chairman for special projects.

QJC Registration For Saturday, Evening Courses

Registration has begun at Quincy Junior College for an Early Saturday Program with courses such as basic mathematics, beginner's typewriting and scuba diving as well as for all evening courses.

Hours for registration are 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. through Friday, Jan. 9; 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. Jan. 12 to 14; and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Jan. 19 to 20.

Registration forms can also be mailed prior to Jan. 9.

Three credit courses in Basic Mathematics, English Composition I, and Fundamentals of Accounting I will begin Saturday, Jan. 31, 8:30 to 11:10 a.m.

Beginner's typewriting, a non credit course, begins Saturday, Feb. 21, 8:30 to 10:30 a.m.

A nine-week, three credit scuba diving course begins Saturday,

April 4, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Saturday courses are designed for students who want to accelerate their program, people who have never attended college and want to try a course, as well as those unable to attend at any other time.

They were developed in response to a survey last spring conducted by the college which indicated a significant amount of people thought Saturday classes were a good idea.

Richard Mula, Dean of Continuing Education said of the Saturday courses, "There is a very different attitude in the classroom when the students are bright and fresh for learning, instead of having spent a whole day working."

For more information on early Saturday programs, call Dean Mula at the Division of Continuing education, Quincy Junior College, 786-8741.

Suggestions for additional courses are welcome.

HOUGHS NECK DAY proclamation is presented to John Nigro, president of the Houghs Neck Community Council, by Mayor and Mrs. Arthur Tobin Sunday. The council celebrated the 345th anniversary of Houghs Neck on Jan. 4 with a party at the Houghs Neck Community Center.

Happy Birthday, Houghs Neck

By FRANK MORTIMER

About 150 Houghs Neckers braved icy paths and biting winds Sunday afternoon to reach the Multi-Service Center on Sea St. and throw a party for their beloved peninsula community.

And if you think "beloved" is just a word tossed in to be nice, then you weren't there.

Mayor Arthur Tobin declared Jan. 4th "Houghs Neck Day" to honor the 345th anniversary of a 600 acre General Court land grant to Atherton Hough. The mayor appeared before the assembly and congratulated all for coming on such a cold day. Shirley Tobin, his wife, read the proclamation and added, "Once a Houghs Neck, always a Houghs Neck."

Mrs. Tobin grew up in Houghs Neck.

City Council President Leo Kelly read a council resolution citing Houghs Neck for being a community of "religious, hard working and God-fearing citizens who have been one of the main arteries in a great city."

But it was the local residents themselves, both young and old, whose words and actions showed that the citations meant something. Atherton Hough 4th, 5th and 6th graders told of their affection in an essay contest sponsored by The Houghs Neck Community Council. Dorothy Laing, council member, read eight essays and presented the writers with cash prizes and poinsettias. Plants were donated by Roy's Flowers Inc.

Kathleen Ryan of 93 Rock Island Rd., Grade 6 first prize winner, seemed to hit the keynote when she described the Neck as being "like one big family." She said her father (Peter Ryan) went to Atherton Hough Elementary School just as she does now. She said the Manet Health Center, the Serpos Clinic and the nearby fire station serve vital needs on short notice. She singled out Houghs Neck Senior Citizens and Louis Cafe for their recreational value. The latter observation filled the room with laughter.

Lilabeth Mandawe, 56 Sea Ave., took second prize with an essay praising the Neck's "nice old folks and kids" and "the fresh air in the morning."

Suzanne Rich, 112 Stoughton St., was first in the Grade 5 competition. She said she's proud of the "excellent school system."

Kerri Lynn Magee, 22 Charles St. won second place, mentioning good bus service, clean air, a local fire station, and "a library I can walk to." She said her family grew up here, adding, "I want to live here always."

Michael Pacetti, 83 Darrow St., said the Neck has the best flounder fishing in the United States, as evidenced by busloads of fishermen coming from out-of-state. He also likes the beaches, and hikes out to Raccoon Island at low tide. Michael won third prize in the Grade 5 section.

Mary Beth Keeley, 55 Pawsey St., was first in Grade 4 with an essay that spoke of close-by health facilities and concluded, "I feel safe in Houghs Neck."

Mary Lynne Calhoun, 75 Babcock St., wrote, "Almost every day I go to the beach to look at the water." Mary Lynne won second prize, Grade 4.

Rosa Peggionaj, 803 Sea St. said Neckers are friendly: "Once when my sister burned her hand badly, people came to her aid."

About 20 honorable mention stories were mounted on colorful backing and displayed during the party.

slides of turn-of-the-century photos were shown and narrated by Jerry Caldwell of 208 Rock Island Rd. Caldwell also displayed four albums of photos. He explained that most of the shots were taken by the MDC when it surveyed the area prior to installing the sewer pipe to Nut Island.

Older residents talked knowledgeably about the scenes in the photos. Norman Marsolini of Manet Ave. stood in the crowd at the album table and pointed to a picture of a tall ship anchored near Nut Island. He said, "It must be the Thomas W. Lawson." Mr. Caldwell said yes, it is. Asked how he knew, Mr. Marsolini pointed out that "It was the only 7-master in the world. It was built up Fore River in 1902."

"And was lost off Italy in 1907," said Caldwell.

Alice Nugent, 81, and her sister Elizabeth Kinsley, 85, especially enjoyed the slides. They moved from Cambridge to the Neck in 1910, when their father winterized their summer home at 44 Turner St. Alice still lives in that house. Her son Bill Nugent now lives next door with his wife Madeline and children Kathleen, 17 and Patricia, 6.

All three generations attended Atherton Hough, but only Alice remembers waiting for the schoolhouse to be built. Her father would not let her ride all the way to Cranch. He was afraid she might be injured by the trolley that ran down Sea and Babcock Sts.

Alice remembered how, in her late teens, she and Elizabeth danced the waltz and fox trot at Taylor's Ballroom and The Bungalow. Their sister, Grace, played piano in Taylor's, and Elizabeth was employed as an exhibition dancer.

Now, more than a half century later, Alice touched her sister lightly on the arm and said, "You were a very good dancer, very graceful."

Alice met her husband at Taylor's and settled for good in the Neck. "I loved Houghs Neck and the dance halls so much I never wanted to leave — and I didn't. I love it."

Refreshments were served after the slide show.

Fruit punch was prepared and served by Sandra McCauley while her husband, Frank McCauley reminisced with friends about the days when the DeAngelis family ran a merry-go-round and outdoor movies.

Margaret Radcliffe presented a homemade cake decorated with red roses and an inscription reading, "1636-1981 Happy Birthday Houghs Neck."

Board To Rule On Kelly's Pub Expansion Jan. 13

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board will vote Jan. 13, on whether or not to approve extension of the common victualer - all alcoholic license for Kelly's Pub and Grub from 25-27 to 21-27 Billings Rd.

The matter was continued Tuesday to allow input on the placement of entrances from Building Inspector Allan MacDonald who was unable to attend this week's meeting.

Fire Chief Edward Barry also said he has "strong reservations" about the expansion because of parking problems in the area.

Atty. Richard J. Barry had explained at the Dec. 16, meeting that owner Peter Kelly would like to expand the business to two vacant stores.

The new area would be a cocktail lounge which would increase the establishment's capacity from 49 to 106, according to Barry.

At this week's meeting, Barry told the board 47 businesses in the area are in favor of Kelly's plans. Barry then addressed some of the concerns that had been evidenced at the earlier meeting.

Barry said parking is available to the rear of a building across the street and stressed that Kelly's peak hours are after 99% of the businesses in the area are closed.

However, Chief Barry countered that the alley leading to the parking area is extremely narrow. He also said that the natural inclination of people is to park their cars as close as possible to their destination.

Barry also addressed the concern of Joseph Doran, of Doran and Horrigan Realtors, that the door to the new area would be within close proximity of a five unit apartment building being established by the realtors.

After recessing to discuss the matter, Barry said Kelly agreed to move the door away from the apartments. However, Chief Barry disagreed with the move saying he preferred the door in its original location.

Chief Barry suggested the Building Department be consulted

A Ring Of Optimism

The so-called economic experts, many of them self-proclaimed, have painted a pretty bleak picture of the state of the city in the first year of Proposition 2½.

It is heartening to note that the mayor will have none of it.

Mayor Tobin's midterm address had more than a ring of optimism to it as he accepted Prop 2½, not as a calamity, but as a challenge to bring forth new, innovative ideas of government.

It appears that we're not the only ones who think so.

Less than 24 hours after the speech was delivered to the City Council requests arrived at the mayor's office for copies of it from the office of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and from the mayor of Revere.

Tobin's acceptance of the Prop 2½ challenge was not composed of empty words, not just whistling through the fiscal graveyard.

He backed it up with the announcement of three new major developments in downtown Quincy, totalling $63 million and estimated to create $1.5 million in new tax revenues for the city.

It indicates that Quincy, unlike some other communities, is not throwing in the sponge and sinking into self-pity in the face of Prop 2½.

That's good.

It also indicates that developers have not lost faith in Quincy, that they will consider it a good place in which to invest their future.

That's good, too.

The one disappointment in the midterm address was Tobin's failure to identify the three anchor stores that will be in the John Hancock Mall.

Downtown merchants would like to see details like that before they can lend their wholehearted support to the East-West Connector, which is vital to Quincy's future.

When the mayor makes that announcement, it will be even better.

Morrissey Commended

House Speaker Thomas W. McGee (D-Lynn) has commended Rep. Michael Morrissey for his 100 percent roll call record in the 1980 legislative session.

"When you consider the fact that there were 438 roll calls in the regular and special sessions of the House in 1980, it is quite an accomplishment indeed," said McGee.

"I think it is also indicative of the total commitment that Rep. Morrissey has shown as a legislator.

"There have been 2,072 roll calls in the Massachusetts House since 1977. In that time, Rep. Morrissey has missed only four roll calls. That is quite an achievement."

"Morrissey, who was first elected to the House at the age of 22 in November, 1976, was one of the youngest men to serve in the Legislature at that time."

He is currently House Vice Chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Urban Affairs.

Things You Won't See In 1981

Well, it's that time again when all the so-called experts fall over one another trying to tell you what to expect in the year ahead.

But, of course, I'm not going to even try to because I'm no expert even though some people insist I'm a know-it-all.

However, I'm pretty sure I can safely predict what won't happen during 1981. Like:

You won't see Public Works Comms. Pete Ricciuti praying for snow.

You won't see City Treasurer-Tax Collector Robert Foy telling taxpayers to take their sweet time paying their tax bills.

You won't see City Councillor James Sheets without his moustache.

You won't see Arthur Tobin with an arm around Joseph LaRaia.

You won't see Joanne Condon running for mayor. (Not this year, anyway.)

You won't see Lawrence Creedon bringing in a plan for a new school.

You won't see Dr. Robert McKeogh conducting a tag day.

You won't see Building Inspector Allan MacDonald opening a used car lot.

You won't see anyone as young-at-heart as Quincy Furniture store owner Max London. He's 99, puts in a full day's work, exercises and will dance up a storm if a pretty girl asks him.

You won't see Ruth Gordon mispronouncing Quincy.

You won't see a day without cars parked illegally between "No Parking" signs on Chestnut St. all the way from the Strand Theater to the Quincy District Courthouse. (I still think they should change the name to Nut St. Can be done easily and cheaply simply by painting out Chest.)

With the possible exception of the Celtics you won't see any Boston winners.

You won't see the Bruins win the Stanley Cup.

You won't see the Red Sox win the pennant.

You won't see the Patriots make any sense.

You won't often drive up to the gasoline pump and tell the man, "fill 'er up".

You won't hear Howard Cosell confess: "You know, folks, there are times when I really don't know what I'm talking about."

You won't see Joe LaRaia's book replacing Dallas on TV.

You won't see Cong. Brian J. Donnelly in anything but a three-piece suit, even when he's touring the provinces in his 1969 Dodge Dart.

You won't see City Clerk John Gillis congratulating the U.S. Census Bureau on the accuracy of its 1980 head count.

You won't see Sheriff Clifford Marshall urging Judge Kramer to send him weekend prisoners for his jail, especially those convicted of drunken driving.

You won't see 18 elementary schools in the city by mid-year.

You won't see too many people who can remember their (new, nine-digit) zip code.

You won't see anybody in city government looking for new things to spend money on.

You won't see too many people satisfied with service on the MBTA.

You won't see Governor Ed King dressed up as a clown again.

You won't see Mike Dukakis ordering lobster for lunch.

You won't see Tom O'Neil with a peace pipe and a pound of peace pipe tobacco.

You won't see a more exciting football game than the 1980 North Quincy-Quincy game — even in Schaeffer Stadium.

You won't see many people who have figured out City Hall's Constitution Bicentennial sculpture yet. Maybe it will start to make sense in 1982.

You won't see a public speaker as stirring and impassioned as Frank Anselmo (especially on Proposition 2½).

You won't see any members of Ronald Reagan's family endorsing a new brand of beer.

The price of anything you are now drinking, eating wearing or just thinking about won't go down.

And, of course, you won't see 1980 again. Never.

Quincy Quiz

There were a number of correct entries in the Quincy Quiz this week.

Winning Quincy Sun T-shirts are Mary Megnia of 9 Brockton Ave., Germantown and Fran Jackson of 73 Willet St., Wollaston. Quincy Sun bumper stickers go to George C. Smith of 16 Anderson Rd., Wollaston and Charlotte Coates, 23 Rice Rd., Cambridge.

Numerous other correct entries were received, however.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the name of the chairman of the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers?
2. What building is located at 300 Granite St.?
3. What is Quincy's tax rate for 1980-81?
4. In what section of the city is the Snug Harbor School?
5. What is the nickname of the Quincy High School sports teams?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz

1. The city auditor is Charles Shea.
2. The John F. Kennedy Health Center stands at 1120 Hancock St.
3. St. Mary's Church is located in West Quincy.
4. Peter Eley succeeds the late Patrick J. (Sonny) McDonough as governor's councillor.
5. Arthur Tobin was first elected mayor in 1977.

McCauley Candidate For Mayor

the Herald American that said, "Mayor Blasts Two City Councillors in Tax Struggle," he said.

"Mayor Tobin called Councillor McCauley 'a hatchet man' who should have run for mayor if he thought he could do a better job."

"I decided then that I was going to take Mayor Tobin's advice and run."

McCauley, who is president of the Presidential Cooperative Bank, said he discussed the possibility of his running for mayor, which is a full time job, with bank directors.

He said plans to continue in the bank post while he campaigns, taking some vacation time near election, but that he will resign the presidency if he is elected mayor.

"We never discussed leaves of absence," he said. "If it works out and I am elected I would plan to stay a while. I could not ask them to hold the job open at the bank."

McCauley said his options were to retire from politics, run for re-election or run for mayor.

"I have been in public life for 14 years," he said. "I gave some consideration to retirement but I decided that public service is still a good way to get out of working around the house."

He added that he had not yet reached the point where he was tired of the City Council.

"It was a heavy decision," he said. "I expected to make the decision in November but it was tougher than I expected."

McCauley said his campaign slogan will be "Frank McCauley is the right man for the right job at the right time," a consideration that outweighed the fact that he still has three children in school.

Melissa 20 is a sophomore at Northeastern, Julie 17 is a senior at Quincy High School, and Jennifer 14 is a ninth grader at Central Junior High School.

Sons Michael 25 and Robert 23 work for banks, Michael for the Shawmut Bank and Robert for the Quincy Savings Bank.

McCauley, who lives with his wife, Sandra, at 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck, is a graduate of Boston College High School, Boston College and Bentley College of Accounting.

He also studied at the Indiana University Graduate School of Banking. He served in the Navy after World War II.

McCauley lost in his first bid for public office, a run for the City Council at large in 1959, but he was elected to the Council from Ward 1 in 1963 and re-elected in 1965.

He lost again for the Council at large in 1967 but came back to win a seat on the School Committee in 1971. He resigned from the School Committee in 1978 after winning an at-large seat on the Council.

He was re-elected in 1979, topping the at-large ticket.

McCauley was appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson to Quincy Draft Board No. 27 in 1968; and he was named to the Quincy Housing Authority by Gov. Francis Sargent in 1969. He was chairman for one year.

He is a Republican in a heavily Democratic city, having served as treasurer of the Republican City Committee from 1967 to 1972. However, city elections are non-partisan.

BILLY DEWOLFE

MRS. MURGATROYD

DORIS DAY

Remembering Billy DeWolfe

By ED SPARGO

In an effort to keep green the memory of a Wollaston-born talent who passed away back in 1974, I recalled Billy DeWolfe's memorable scene in the movie "Blue Skies" with Bing Crosby in a letter to the "Looking Hollywood Way" section of that popular magazine of happy memories - "Good Old Days."

Imagine my delight when an abbreviated version of my tribute to the much-admired Quincy native (who gave many command performances for royalty) appeared in the January, 1981 issue. Thanks to Harry Wilkinson of Marblehead, who authors endless pages of intriguing movie nostalgia in each and every monthly edition, just as he's done for 14 years. The articles are profusely illustrated with autographed photos crammed with personal messages from his close friends - the stars who've scintillated in the Hollywood firmament as far back as the Roaring Twenties.

Because of space limitations Harry was obliged to "kill" bits of my bombast and hyperbole. Including the section about Billy DeWolfe's admirers having trouble locating his final resting place in Mt. Wollaston cemetery, Quincy, because his family name - Jones - appears on the front of the monument. The inscription "William Jones, a/k/a Billy DeWolfe," is "buried" on the reverse side.

Also crowded out of my piece was my mention of the former long-time society editor of the Patriot Ledger, Mabelle L. Fullerton, who, along with Doris Day, was one of Billy's dearest friends. Never did he fail to contact her when in the area. Alive and well, Mabelle still makes her home in Quincy.

In his "What Readers Have Written" column, Harry Wilkinson quoted me thusly: "A dear friend of the late talented song-and-dance man Billy DeWolfe was Doris Day who several times visited Quincy to place flowers on his grave. How can we ever forget Billy's virtuoso performance as Mrs. Murgatroyd in Bing Crosby's hit movie 'Blue Skies'?"

"I chuckle whenever I think of the hilarious scene when, dressed as a woman with a lonely pout protruding from her bonnet and holding a shopping bag with stalks of celery sticking out, she sat on a stool imbibing at a cocktail bar. She kept reminding herself and all within earshot that she simply must rush home and get dinner for her beloved Chesley, but with each succeeding drink became jollier and more reluctant to depart. Until finally she blurted out 'To hell with Chesley' and settled back to toast another.

While attending Quincy High young Billy Jones ushered at the old Kincaide (later Quincy) theater along with his chum, Eddie Scolameiro, destined to become "The Yankee Clipper" due to his tonsorial artistry. Billy later performed there and adopted the manager's name - Billy DeWolfe - as his stage moniker. I often visit his grave at Mt. Wollaston. As one of the nation's most historic cities, Quincy, as you know, produced two U.S. Presidents, the Adamases, father and son. Also Ruth Gordon, Lee Remick, Bill (Szathmary) Dana who played the role of 'Jose Jimenez' and Billy himself. Harry, since I spent my entire working life on newspapers, you can well imagine how captivated I am with all your writings that preserve the cherished past for posterity."

Harry, a spy 72, wrote me that "all my articles for 'Good Old Days' magazine are done at my 1740 house here in 1629 Marblehead where I reside in a four-room pad on the waterfront with my pet cat Heather. I see you keep busy with your Health Plan which is good stuff. I read it all the way through and tell others about it. I have loads of friends who need to be told...too much chain smoking and beer with wine on top of it. So good hearing from you...write me anytime now that you have my post office box - 1105 Marblehead, 01945."

Donnelly Offers Auto Buyers' Guide

A buyers' guide to new automobiles is available free of charge from Cong. Brian Donnelly's Quincy office.

"The Car Book" was compiled by the U.S. Department of Transportation. The 68-page book evaluates current car models for safety, fuel economy, maintenance and insurance costs, comfort, and convenience.

"The government isn't trying to sell anyone on a particular kind of car, but it is giving the consumer a way to make an intelligent choice conveniently," Donnelly said.

"This book brings together a lot of research that has been done on new cars. The full-color charts make it easy for the shopper to compare the many makes and models that are available," he said.

Free copies of "The Car Book" can be obtained from Donnelly's office at the Quincy Post Office, 47 Washington St., Quincy Center, telephone 472-1800.

McIntosh Bows Out Of 'Plan E' Dinner

Mayor David S. McIntosh and Mayor Francis X. Collins of Salem were to have been the featured speakers at a dinner honoring City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. at the Masonic Temple.

But McIntosh withdrew at the last minute, saying that while he had nothing against Deegan, he suspected that the dinner would be little more than a rally for the controversial Plan E.

"I have every reason to believe that this will be a testimonial, not to the city manager, but to Plan E," said the Mayor. "I am against Plan E."

MODERNIZE CENTRAL

Rudolph Lofgren, assistant school superintendent for maintenance, suggested that three major changes could be made in Central Junior High School to make it usable for the next 15 years.

He listed the changes as additional toilet facilities on all three floors, moving the cafeteria to the basement, and replacing the 47-year-old boiler.

COST OF FENCING

Henry F. Nilsen, superintendent of engineering, estimated it would cost $64,000 to fence in the Quincy quarries and the fences would not be effective in keeping out youngsters.

The city owned 24 quarries and was considering the purchase of Field and Wilde Quarry, where the body of the long-missing Danny Mattson was found recently.

Nilsen said it would cost between $115,000 and $160,000 to fill in Field and Wilde.

NORTH DUMPS BRAINTREE

Al Elkhill and Joe Crowley scored 12 points apiece as the North Quincy High School basketball team ran up a 34-14 half-time lead and coasted to a 62-45 win over Braintree.

The North lineup included Deneen, Crowley, Ames, Rizzo, forwards; P. Higgins, Gilbody, R. Higgins, centers; Elkhill, Breingan, Densmore, guards.

BRADFORD REJECTED

The School Committee, citing a long-standing policy against naming buildings for living persons, declined to name the newly enlarged Trade School for former Mayor William A. Bradford.

But City Historian William C. Edwards pointed out that the Willard School in West Quincy was named on March 28, 1855, six years before its namesake, Solomon Willard, died.

Herbert Panoff Elected Jewish Chautauqua Chancellor

Herbert L. Panoff of Wollaston was recently elected Chancellor of the Jewish Chautauqua Society and First Vice President of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods at the Biennial Convention held in Cleveland, Ohio.

Panoff has been an active member of the Executive Board of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods for the past 10 years. He has been the past president of the New England Conference, the regional organization comprising the Reform Temple Brotherhoods of Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

The National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods comprises 780 Reform Brotherhoods in the United States and Canada and represents the lay leaders of the Reform movement. The National Board through many committees, establishes policy and guidelines, formulates direction for its Brotherhoods.

It publishes "Brotherhood" magazine and a variety of manuals on every phase of Brotherhood operations, holds conventions every two years and board meetings twice each year. Delegates from Canada and the U.S. attend.

The NFIB sponsors the important interfaith project, the Jewish Chautauqua Society which has promoted understanding of Jews and Judaism for more than 85 years. Its motto is "When One

HERBERT L. PANOFF

Understands They Cannot Hate.

The Jewish Chautauqua Society sponsors rabbinic visitations to colleges; established to date more than 117 resident lectureships in Judaism on campuses across the country; it has produced films on themes of Jewish interest for use by religious schools, Temple organizations; also for showing on public service TV. JCS has donated more than 90,000 volumes of Judaism to college libraries and has recently established special institutes for Christian Clergy.

Panoff is a member of Temple Israel, Boston; its Brotherhood. Also a member of the Board of Trustees of the Congregation and an Honorary Board Member of the Brotherhood.

Inter-Faith Feast Of Lights At Sacred Heart Sunday

The fifth annual ecumenical Epiphany Feast of Lights service will be held at Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy, Sunday, Jan. 11 at 7:30 p.m.

The event is under the sponsorship of the Inter-Church Council of Wollaston and North Quincy, which now has nine member congregations.

Open to the public, the service will feature several choral works performed by the Eastern Nazarene College A Cappella choir, under the direction of Professor Greg Larkin. The college's Brass Ensemble, directed by Prof. Robert Howard, will also share in the service.

The Rev. Kenneth Lehman, president of the council, and co-pastor of the United Methodist Co-operative Parishes of Quincy, will deliver a brief homily. Clergy and laity from all member churches will participate. A social hour will follow the service.

A candle-lighting ceremony is a central feature of the event, representing the light of Christ entering the world and "gradually spreading through time and space," according to the Rev. William D. Underhill of St. Chrysostom's Church, one of the council members. "The candle-lighting ceremony climaxes with each worshipper holding a lighted candle to carry forth into the world," he said.

The members of the Inter-Church Council now include Atlantic Memorial Congregational Church, Sacred Heart (Roman Catholic) Church, Union Congregational Church, First Church of Squantum, Atlantic United Methodist Church, Wollaston United Methodist Church, Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, and St. Chrysostom's (Episcopal) Church.

The committee planning the service note that this Feast of Lights is for the entire community and is open to the public.

Squantum Church Begins 'Encounters With Jesus' Series

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor of the First Church of Squantum, preached on the topic "Stronger Than Demons" at Sunday's morning worship service.

The sermon was the first in a series of nine "Encounters With Jesus" which will run until the beginning of Lent. The series will recall nine instances in which people in the gospels were changed by their encounters with Jesus.

Four young children from the church helped the pastor dramatize the story of Jesus healing Simon's mother-in-law. Participating were: Bonnie MacRitchie as the mother-in-law; Jason Deary, Simon; Amanda Young, Simon's wife; and Melissa Meyers, Jesus.

The Chancel Choir sang a paraphrase of the 23rd Psalm, "My Shepherd Will Supply My Need" arranged by Marie Pooler.

Greeters for the morning were Grace Holmes and Doris Longmire. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Barbara Frazer, Katherine Hansen, Sandy Ahearn, Kathryn Kelly and Marie Reister.

Next Sunday at 9:15 a.m. Cinnamon Toast will sponsor a New Year's breakfast of French toast, juice, ham and beverage. Profits are used to help send young people to camp in the summer. Reservations may be made by calling the church office at 328-6649 in the mornings.

The sermon for next Sunday's service at 10:15 a.m. will be, "Are You The Christ?"

Bethany Church To Hold Overnight Retreat

Bethany Congregational Church, Coddington and Spear Sts., will hold an All-Church Overnight Retreat Saturday, Jan. 24, at 9:30 a.m. to Sunday, Jan. 25, at 3 p.m.

The retreat will be held at the UCC Conference Center, Framingham, and theme will be, "Bethany Bound" a look toward the future.

Leadership will be provided by William Arnold and Elden Zuern. All members age 18 and older are welcome to attend.

Due to limited sleeping spaces, only the first 28 persons who sign up can be accommodated.

Cost of the trip covers four meals, bed and bedding, and rental of the Edwards House facilities.

The reservation list is in the church office or call 479-7300 to reserve a spot.

March Of Dimes Mothers March Jan. 25

Women and men, adults and teen-agers are needed for the March of Dimes Mothers March on Birth Defects to be held in Quincy and 17 other communities Jan. 25 to Feb. 1.

Volunteers will solicit door-to-door in their own neighborhoods and proceeds will go towards programs in birth defects research and prevention.

According to A. Marjorie Aaron of the March of Dimes, volunteers have already signed up to cover about 75% of Quincy, but more individuals are needed.

Miss Aaron commented that Quincy was one of the communities selected for the march because "the city has been very supportive in the past" with projects such as the Haunted House and Bike-a-thon.

"We hope to do well again," said Miss Aaron.

The Mother's March was begun nationally about 1950. Prior to that President Franklin D. Roosevelt helped raise funds for the cause by asking Americans to turn on their porch lights to signify their willingness to contribute.

To join the Mothers March, call the Massachusetts Bay Chapter at 329-1360.

Allan Holmberg Joins Navy

Allan Holmberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Holmberg of Essex St., Squantum, is taking part in training at the U.S. Naval Training Center, San Diego, Cal.

Upon completion of training, Holmberg will attend Machinist's Mate Class A School at the Great Lakes Naval Training Base, Illinois.

Holmberg is a 1975 graduate of Weymouth Vocational Technical School.

Bible Study Begins Jan. 9 At Sacred Heart Church

A five-week New Bible Study Series will begin Friday, Jan. 9 at Sacred Heart Church.

The weekly discussions will be held each Friday at 7:45 in Our Lady's Chapel of Sacred Heart Church, 400 Hancock St., North Quincy, and all are invited.

Discussions will be led by Father Thomas A. DiLorenzo, associate pastor. Fr. DiLorenzo asks "Do you want to know what the Bible says about the inner confusion and turmoil which every person experiences? Does God tell us how to conquer our unruly minds and emotions? God truly gives us the answers and the five-week Bible Series will be devoted to these subjects."

FOREWARNED IS FOREARMED. BE PREPARED. THINK AHEAD.

Wisdom from the past invites us to prepare for the future. There are many important life events that we should and do prepare for. Some, like weddings, or buying a house are pleasant and we eagerly look forward to gathering information and planning for them. Others, like death and funerals are more difficult to think about ahead of time. They are no less important! There is information that we can provide so that you can plan ahead. Death is a major event in all of our lives. Funerals and visitations are designed to help us cope with death. If you'd like more information about funerals for yourself, your church, or civic group, call or write us. We'll gladly assist you. Taking time to get accurate information about death now will help you deal with the actual event.

Complete Text Of Mayor Tobin's Mid-Term Address

Here is the text of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin's mid-term address, as prepared for delivery Monday to the City Council and the people of Quincy:

On a blustery, wintery day in December 200 years ago, the people of Massachusetts struck a blow against oppressive taxation by littering Boston Harbor with tea leaves, sending forth a message across the ocean to a king and his court that they were no longer going to be subjected to arbitrary and oppressive taxation.

And it was on a chilly fall day in November, 1980, that the people of Massachusetts, amidst great controversy, once again struck a blow against oppressive taxation and sent forth a message to another king and his court, the General Court of this Commonwealth, that they will no longer stand for any more oppressive taxation.

The message was sent through every city and town, to Mr. King, the General Court, and to every elected official in this Commonwealth, that Massachusetts property taxes are the highest in the nation; the people don't like it; they will not stand for it; and that the citizens of Massachusetts still run this government and they are still opposed to oppressive taxation.

The message was clear. The citizens of Quincy, by an overwhelming majority, threw down the gauntlet of challenge to all elected officials to bring forth new and innovative approaches to the administration of governmental affairs.

Proposition 2½ has produced the greatest challenge to public officials, a challenge to provide a new and broader revenue and tax base, and a challenge to reduce government spending while still providing the maximum of municipal services.

REVITALIZATION A PRIORITY

Three years ago this very week, as I entered my first term as mayor, I stated in my inaugural address that "the revitalization of Quincy's business and retail activities as well as its industrial potential will be a must priority of this administration." Little did I realize on that morning three years ago how important that statement would be with the advent of Proposition 2½. It was the initial step in the broadening of Quincy's tax base by a new administration.

Since becoming mayor, our economic development program has produced over $57 million in new office space, either completed or presently under construction, and close to $30 million in new housing units, either completed or presently under construction. This new office and housing construction will generate in excess of $2.1 million annually in new revenue for our city. $2.1 million in new revenue for our city will accomplish the following:

It will help to support the municipal services which the citizens of Quincy require and deserve. It will pay for 20 firefighters, plus 20 police officers, plus 20 school teachers, plus 20 nurses, plus 20 librarians, or any combination thereof, including clerical workers and laborers. That totals 100 municipal employees. Let me stress this point. For every $2 million generated in new tax revenue, we can support 100 municipal employees who provide for the needs and general welfare of the citizens of Quincy. This is the importance of economic development - the creation of jobs in both the private and public sectors, plus the providing of necessary municipal services.

The results of our economic development conferences have motivated and encouraged developers to come to Quincy to explore our potential. My office and the office of Planning and Community Development are actively engaged in preliminary discussions of eight site locations which will generate $215 million of new commercial construction and $141 million in new housing construction. This new construction will create over $8 million in new tax revenue to pay for needed municipal services. As negotiations are finalized, I shall share with you the eight site locations, four of which will be for new office construction, two will be new housing construction, and the remaining two projects will be a mixture of both new commercial and housing construction.

In addition, $6.1 million in federal community development funds have been applied for and received during my administration. I have directed that these funds be applied to beautify and upgrade our residential neighborhood homes, streets, and playgrounds.

BROADENING TAX BASE

With all due respect for previous city administrations, the total neighborhood and economic development programs of my administration for the past three years totaling $93.1 million have done more to broaden Quincy's revenue and tax base than has previously been accomplished in the entire history of our city.

These programs for progress could not have been accomplished without a spirit of cooperation. I would indeed be remiss if I did not express my appreciation to all of good will on the City Council, to our department heads, municipal employees, the radio and press of our community, homeowners, rentpayers, young and old, who have promoted the positive goals of this administration to move Quincy forward.

This spirit of cooperation becomes even more essential if we are to continue our growth and meet the mandate of Proposition 2½. The message from the ballot box of November last mandating tax cutting measures will call for great sacrifices by both municipal employees and by the citizens of our city. In order to minimize the hardship upon those who will be most adversely affected and to maximize and save to the greatest extent possible existing municipal services, I shall recommend to the City Council favorable action on the following proposals:

No. 1. I hereby recommend the establishment of a self-supporting tax free account for the Quincy Junior College to enable this excellent educational institution to be self-supporting at no expense to our taxpayers. No longer can the citizens of Quincy bear the burden of the deficit of the junior college. Quincy Junior College is the only municipal junior college in the Commonwealth providing an opportunity for higher education.

As mayor and chairman of the School Committee, I am extremely proud that during my administration Quincy Junior College has become fully accredited for the first time in its history, making it eligible for additional federally funded programs.

I shall share with members of the City Council at budget time additional recommendations made in discussions with the superintendent of schools, that the operations of the junior college be expanded to include those educational programs which may otherwise be lost to our school system due to mandated school cuts because of Proposition 2½.

No. 2. I hereby recommend the establishment of a self-supporting tax free account for the operation of our Water and Sewer Departments to insure the continued maximum delivery of these municipal services so essential to the health and welfare of the citizens of Quincy. This proposal will make possible the modernization of our sewer and water systems by obtaining 90 per cent federal and state funding which will also reduce the impact of Proposition 2½ on our annual municipal budget.

FEE STRUCTURE NEEDED

Once again I shall ask the City Council to vote favorably on a fee structure necessary to accomplish this. Failure to act on this proposal will mean the loss of eligibility of federal funds and the lay-off of approximately 160 additional city employees whose jobs could be saved by favorable council action. The loss of an additional 160 employees would jeopardize the delivery of much needed municipal services.

No. 3. I hereby recommend the establishment of a self-supporting tax free account for the successful operation of our municipal hospital. Based upon an in depth investigation and research by the Mayor's Hospital Advisory Commission and upon the recommendation of the City Council Blue Ribbon Commission and the recommendation of the Hospital Medical Staff, the Hospital Board of Managers, and the nursing staff, I have directed that Quincy City Hospital be operated by a private business firm with professional expertise in hospital management. With council approval of necessary legislation, our municipal hospital can become a viable self-supporting modern first-class health care facility second to none. I hereby announce this morning that I have chosen Hospital Corp. of America to be the hospital management company.

No. 4. I hereby recommend consideration of a proposal presently pending before the City Council which would generate additional revenue at our sanitary landfill site location. The existing landfill operation could be phased out and a modern technique for solid waste disposal can be implemented, new revenues can be generated, and in addition, vast acres of vacant land can be developed for more tax revenues.

Our municipal budget has not been updated since the early 1950s. I have instructed staff budget coordinators to undertake the following course of action:

- To modernize and streamline the July 1981 fiscal budget for council presentation.

- To consolidate various departments into more simplified categories.

- To explore alternatives for providing municipal services without assessing the taxpayers of Quincy.

- To consolidate similarity of services into self-supporting tax free accounts.

The taxpayers' mandate of Proposition 2½ was directed to both state and local officials. The message went to all local officials of Massachusetts to cut municipal spending. The message also went to all state officials of this Commonwealth to stop mandating laws and programs for the cities and towns without proper funding. No longer should the cities and towns be the orphans and serfs of the legislature. No longer should the state tell the people of Massachusetts that "we are giving you a new program" and then force the cities and towns to pay for it.

ADDRESSING STATE WRONGS

In addressing some of the wrongs done to local governments by the state, I have filed a legislative action package consisting of 20 bills for 1981 and urge our Quincy legislative delegation to actively support its passage. Among the legislative package of 20 bills are:

- Legislation to require the state to reimburse cities and towns for loss of excise tax revenue.

- Legislation to permit cities and towns to keep all receipts from traffic and parking violations.

- Legislation to require the state to absorb the total costs of the annual MBTA deficit.

- Legislation to require the state to pay for all state mandated public health programs.

- Legislation to require the state to pay for increased costs in the retirement system.

The problems facing our city for the past three years have been challenging. Upon assuming the reins of leadership as mayor, Quincy's reputation was clouded and its economy stagnated. Today the image of Quincy is positive; it is positive because we are moving Quincy forward with clean and efficient government; it is positive because our economic development program is taking on a new look for the future.

DEVELOPMENTS ANNOUNCED

I have shared with you this morning the amount of new development presently under construction. I also shared with you the programs which are in the preliminary stages of negotiations. I now announce three new developments for downtown Quincy which are in the advanced stages, and request the wholehearted support of the City Council to make these proposals a reality.

- Development number one will produce a $14 million, 10-story office complex on Chestnut St.

- Development number two will produce a $20 million office-retail complex on Hancock St., adjacent to the Bargain Center.

- Development number three is a proposed retail mall replacing the former Sears-Roebuck facility and encompassing the present Hancock Municipal Parking Area. Phase One of the proposed mall will consist of a minimum of two major retail stores and approximately 35 to 40 specialty shops, two restaurants, a cinema, and a bank.

Phase Two will consist of a third department store and additional specialty shops.

The construction costs of these three developments will amount to $63 million, and will create $1.5 million in new tax revenue to pay for needed municipal services.

A look back in history shows that out of every great challenge comes great opportunity. As we look back now to that first tax revolt 200 years ago, we realize that it resulted in self-government, not only for this state, but for our entire nation, and there flowed forth from that "single event a revolution, the formation of our government, the formation of the greatest nation on earth."

And out of the tax revolt of 1980 could come the rebirth of self-government for our local municipalities and the greatest economic boom in our city's history. United, the elected officials and the citizens of Quincy can meet the challenge to provide for the economic and social welfare of our city.

Working together we can leave a legacy to the City of Presidents for future generations to enjoy. The challenge and the opportunity is ours. It will happen only if we make it happen.

Tobin Puts Accent On Development, Living With 2½

Huntly Rd., wiping out part of the intervening Saville Ave.

The developer is currently negotiating to obtain the parcel between Saville and Huntly from the Quincy Lodge of Elks, who are scheduled to move their home to a site on the Quarry St. hill recently acquired from the city.

Tobin said a proposal also will be presented to the Bargain Center to "dress up" its exterior with a new facade.

The third development involves the long discussed shopping mall in the John Hancock Parking Area, the designated developer of which is Stephen Weiner of L.atherbee and Co.

"Phase one of the proposed mall," said Tobin, "will consist of a minimum of two major retail stores and approximately 35 to 40 specialty shops, two restaurants, a cinema and a bank. Phase two will consist of a third department store and additional specialty shops."

He declined to identify any of the stores by name.

"I will need the cooperation of the City Council for eminent domain proceedings," he said, "since Cottage Ave. and Chestnut St. will have to be widened."

Tobin urged a spirit of cooperation among the City Council, department heads, city workers and residents "if we are to continue our growth and meet the mandate of Proposition 2½."

Tobin suggested that some of the unsatisfactory features of Prop 2½ can be circumvented through the use of special fee accounts, particularly for Quincy Junior College, the Water and Sewer Departments, the City Hospital and the City Dump.

Such an account for the junior college, he said, would "enable this excellent educational institution to be self-supporting at no expense to our taxpayers. No longer can the citizens of Quincy bear the burden of the deficit of the junior college."

Sometime in the future, he said, he will make other recommendations for expansion of the junior college "to include those educational programs which may otherwise be lost to our school system due to mandated school cuts because of Proposition 2½."

In other words, those fringe programs now provided by the school system out of its budget may in the future be available for a fee at the junior college.

Once again, Tobin brought up the subject of the controversial sewer use charge, which was turned down three times by the City Council during the past four months.

"This proposal," he said, "will make possible the modernization of our sewer and water systems by obtaining 90 per cent federal and state funding which will also reduce the impact of Proposition 2½ on our municipal budget."

"Failure to act on this proposal will mean the loss of eligibility of federal funds and the layoff of approximately 160 additional city employees whose jobs could be saved by favorable council action."

To the surprise of no one, Tobin announced that he had selected the Hospital Corp. of America to manage City Hospital for the city.

"With Council approval of necessary legislation," he said, "our municipal hospital can become a viable self-supporting modern first class health care facility second to none."

A favorable vote of the City Council is needed to set up a special enterprise account for receipts from which the hospital administration can draw to pay expenses without going through the municipal budget.

Tobin also came down squarely on the side of a "modern technique for solid waste disposal" to replace the City Dump, which is about to enter its last phase as a sanitary landfill in the old quarry area west of the Southeast Expressway in West Quincy.

It would, he said, generate new revenues and liberate vast acres of vacant land to be developed into taxable properties.

One such modern disposal technique has been proposed by DGS Associates in the form of a $100 million incinerator which would produce electricity by burning more than a half million tons of trash a year and return $1 a ton to Quincy.

Kelly Pledges 'Reasoned' Course By Council

Here is the text of the speech by City Councillor Leo J. Kelly accepting a second one-year term as President of the City Council:

As this City Council enters its second session as an elected body, and as this city enters its second year of a new decade, we confront new challenges and constraints upon the operation of this city government.

Such things as the voted mandate of Proposition 2½, 100 percent evaluation of school autonomy, and classification, are all items which this city, and more specifically, this City Council, must deal with in the coming session. These elements portend a new budgetary constraint which must manifest itself.

This Council and this administration will take the mandate of the people and go on to shape a new future for the city of Quincy. I pledge to the people of this city that our future course will be reasoned and not reactionary. Our actions will be well thought out and not spontaneous. Our concerns will be to preserve for the people adequate services in those areas which are most important to them — public safety and education.

Over the past year the Council has had the foresight to adapt itself to better meet the challenges of the coming decade. Upon my initiative, the office which I hold, that of City Council president, will no longer remain in the domain of one person. We have changed the rules; the president will no longer succeed himself, and thus, from this leadership position, there will be opportunities for new and fresh ideas in each Council session.

Neighborhood meetings by the City Council committees were reinstituted during our last session. During this very critical time, I will seek to encourage more of this activity.

With the mandate of 2½, the people have sought a larger voice in government. This Council will seek to give them that voice and that forum for legislative participation.

Government will change in the 80s, and this Council will set the tone and the pace. The status quo is no longer acceptable. The decade is new and our approach to the fiscal challenges must be new.

I would like to close with a quote from an individual for whom I have the utmost respect, President Harry S. Truman: "Each period of our history has had its special challenges. Those that confront us now are as momentous as any in the past. Today marks the beginning of a period that will be eventful and perhaps decisive. The initiative is ours."

Cold Keeps Burgin From Midterm Festivities

The presence of three ex-mayors — James R. McIntyre, Walter J. Hannon and Joseph J. LaRaia — was acknowledged at Mayor Tobin's midterm address Monday.

It was also noted that the fourth, Thomas S. Burgin, was ill at home. He was wished a speedy recovery.

"It's nice to be missed," said Burgin, who will turn 79 on April 15, and rarely misses an inauguration or a midterm.

"It's nothing serious," he said. "I've been kind of laid up with a cold. Discretion was the better part of valor. I've been noticing the cold weather more this year."

Burgin, who served as mayor from 1935 to 1942 and again in 1950-51, said he listened to Mayor Tobin's midterm address on WJDA and he thought it had "some good points."

"I was particularly impressed with what he said about Proposition 2½ and its effects," he said, "plus the accomplishments of his administration in getting new valuation for the city."

Fall To Cambridge Rindge 93-59 Presidents Host Weymouth N. Friday

Quincy's basketball team took a 5-2 record into Tuesday's game with Waltham and Friday night will host Weymouth North at the Vo-Tech gym.

The Presidents will play at North Quincy next Tuesday night. The varsity games start at 8 with the junior varsities playing at 6:30. Joe Amoroso's Quincy team hit undefeated state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin, rated by many the best team in the country, on one of its better days last Friday and absorbed a 93-59 defeat at Boston College.

Cambridge again was sparked by its brilliant 7 foot center, Pat Fwing, whom Amoroso rates as the best schoolboy player he has ever seen.

"In 20 years of coaching, he's the most outstanding schoolboy player I've seen," said Amoroso. "He is everything Lew Alcindor (Kareem Abdul-Jabbar) was in school and maybe even a little bit more. If anything is within 15 feet of the basket, he's going to get a finger on it.

"Alcindor did nothing but dunk, but Fwing uses all his tools. He can hit from 15 to 18 feet, block shots, and play defense. He plays defense the way Bill Russell did in some instances. I honestly don't think he can be stopped."

If Quincy's offense has been clicking it would have been a close game. "A couple of players we count on to score didn't come through, they just were off," Amoroso said. "We had early success with our defensive game plan, but after a while they're going to get you. You can't defend against the alley oop or dunk."

The Warriors held a 45-26 halftime lead and extended it to 68-41 after three periods. All five starters scored in double figures with Tracy Crayton scoring 22, Fwing 21, Kevin Headley 13, Latin Adair 12 and Rick Jarvis 10.

For Quincy Shawn Burnes scored 11 and Kurt MacDonald nine.

Earlier in the week Quincy had suffered its first loss after four wins in a row as it bowed to Winnacunnet, 82-70, in the Portsmouth, N.H. holiday tournament.

Winnacunnet hit on nine of its first 10 shots to open the game, but Quincy came back to trail by two, 22-20, after a period. The winners, however, continued their hot shooting and pulled ahead, 63-52, after the third period.

Paced by Steve Priscella (19 points), the Presidents cut the gap to 64-60, but Priscella and guard P.J. Fay fouled out.

MacDonald scored 16 points and Pete Papile added 14 for Quincy.

The Presidents came back to defeat Oyster River, 59-56, in the consolation game as back-to-back baskets by Jim DePietro and Papile brought Quincy from behind and a free throw by Fay and a basket by MacDonald clinched the victory.

Priscella led the scorers with 12 points and MacDonald had eight.

Run Out Of Gas Against Cambridge Raiders At Waltham

North Quincy boys' basketball team went into Tuesday's game at Waltham with a 4-2 record.

Friday night the Raiders will play at Waltham and Tuesday will host Quincy. Both Suburban League games will start at 8 with the junior varsity games starting at 6:30.

Ed Miller's North team, which had dropped a two-point decision in the finals of the Mayflower holiday tournament at Plymouth to end a four-game win streak, last week gave undefeated state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin its toughest game of the season before bowing, 56-44, at Boston College.

The Raiders did a great job against probably the number one team in the country and the country's top player (7-foot Pat Fwing), but ran out of gas in the final period after trailing by only a 38-34 score at the end of three periods.

The outstanding Cambridge team proved you can't beat it simply by stopping the brilliant Fwing. North held him to 13 points, low for the year, but him teammates took up the slack.

Kevin Headley scored 18 points, 11 of them coming on a variety of shots in the second half.

North led by 8-2 and 10-4 counts in the first period but Cambridge came back to tie it at 12. The Warriors began to pull away in the second period but the Raiders battled back and tailed, 26-22, at halftime.

North ran out of gas at the start of the final period and the well-balanced Cambridge team, picked by many as the top team in the country, gradually pulled away.

"I was pleased with the way the boys battled today," Miller said. "We had a couple of cold spurts but I think we showed them we had a fine defense, which has been our mainstay all season. These were the most points scored against us, but don't forget, they usually score about 90 points a game." (Three days later Cambridge scored 93 in pounding Quincy).

Mark Millane led North Quincy's scorers with 14 points.

North Girls Seek 3rd Straight Win

The North Quincy girls' track team will seek its third win in a row Friday when it faces Waltham at 6:30 at Northeastern University.

The Raiderettes will face Weymouth South next Wednesday at 5 o'clock at Newton North High School.

Lou Tozzi's North team rolled over Newton North, 61-35, last week for its second straight impressive victory.

The meet was highlighted by the performance of junior Kara Crehan in the high jump. Her 5-5 jump broke all existing records for a girl in the Quincy school system either indoors or outdoors. Her previous best indoors was 5-2 and last spring she jumped 5-4 outdoors. Mary Kate Kennedy finished third in the high jump.

Sheila Barrett won the two-mile in 12:12 with Deirdre Corrigan third, Linda Kennedy won the mile in 5:36, Deirdre Donovan won the 600 in 1:35.5 with Nancy McCarthy second, Karen Lindenfelzer won the 300 in 42.7 with Mary Gannon second, Michelle Millane won the shot at 39-5½ with Caryn Smith second, Mary Kate Kennedy won the 50 in 6.7 with Kathy McCarthy second, Maria McGurl and Siobhan Corrigan placed 2-3 in the hurdles and the relay team of Linda Kennedy, Donovan, Laura Coughlin, Dan Gorczyca won in 4:29.1.

NUMBER ONE — Quincy's Pee Wee players skate triumphantly down the Youth Arena ice following their double overtime win over Scituate to win the division crown.

North Quincy K. of C. Tourney: Quincy Wins Bantam, Pee Wee Crowns

Quincy teams won two of the three division championships and the other went to the finals in last week's third annual North Quincy K. of C. youth hockey tournament at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The tournament, for B teams, attracted 40 entries in the Bantam, Pee Wee and Squirt Divisions.

Quincy's Bantam B No. 1 team won the championship with a 4-0 victory over Newton in the final game.

Quincy had defeated Stoneham, 5-1; Neponset, 8-1, and Quincy No. 2, 9-5, en route to the championship.

Quincy No. 2 team had defeated Weymouth, 5-1, and Melrose, 8-4.

The Quincy No. 2 team was coached by Marty Tolson and Phil

Quincy's Pee Wee team edged Scituate, 3-2, in double overtime to win the division championship.

Billy Murphy scored the winning goal for Quincy, which won five straight games to win the title.

Quincy had defeated Stoneham, 7-2; Holbrook, 5-1; Plymouth, 3-2, and Milton, 3-1, on the way to the championship.

Playing for Quincy, coached by Dennis Furtado and Tom Benson, were Kyle Robertson, Joe Straughn, Michael Benson, Paul Connolly, Bob Furlan, Matthew Furtado, Jon Hays, Dave Kraunelis, Mark McCabe, Adam McGregor, Bill Murphy, Bill Roche, Bob Salton, Peter Schofield, Peter Schuerch, Tony Scola, Mark Zimmerman, Tim O'Brien, John O'Connell and Tony Orlando.

Quincy's Squirt team went to the finals before being defeated by South Boston, 4-0.

Quincy had lost its first game to South Boston, 5-1, in the double elimination event, then defeated Weymouth, 5-1; Bridgewater, 9-1, and Marshfield, 4-3, to make the championship game.

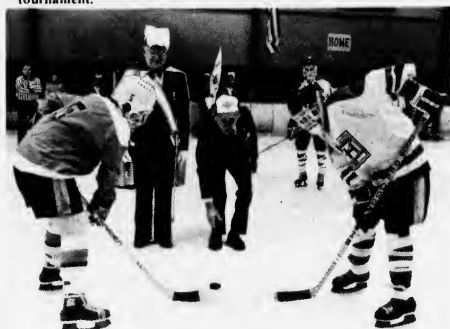

Playing for Quincy, coached by Charlie Chambers, were Scott Cunningham, Ed Ryan, Wayne Chambers, Michael Cronin, Mark Dwyer, Rich Golden, Terry Hack, Bob Kene, Paul Leman, Kirk MacDonald, Kevin Marston, Jeff McClory, Michael McClory, Hank Miller, Tony Pecce, Ralph Richardson, Mike Toland, Steve Connelly, Bill Dineen and Darren Simonelli.

Working with the North Quincy Council in sponsoring the six-day tournament, in which more than 700 youngsters took part, were Stoneham, Braintree, Milton, Hull and Hanover Councils and Crusader Council of Holy Cross College.

Grand Knight Charles Doherty of North Quincy Council thanked all who supported the tournament.

Christiani Junior Baseball MVP

John M. Cristiani of 39 Sturtevant Road, Quincy, was awarded the George Richards MVP Trophy of the Quincy Junior Baseball League for the 1980 season.

The award, given at an award ceremony at the Bryan VFW Post, symbolizes the Most Valuable Player from both divisions of the Quincy Junior Baseball League.

John, an eighth grade honor student at Central Junior High School, played for the Burgin-Platner team and had an outstanding season. He led the league with a .687 batting average and pitched a no-hit game. He was one of 12 players to be voted an all-star on the 1980 Quincy Invitational Tournament team.

Lisa McBirney On Stetson Basketball Team

Lisa McBirney of Quincy, a freshman walk-on, is a member of the Stetson University (Deland, Fla.) women's basketball team.

The former Abp. Williams star sat out her senior year with an injury. She will see action at guard and forward.

Edge Cambridge 7-6

North Icemen At Brockton

North Quincy's hockey team, which snapped back from two straight losses to Suburban League powers Brookline and Weymouth North, to top Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 7-6, last Saturday, took a 3-2 league record and 4-2 overall mark into Wednesday's game against Waltham.

The Raiders will play at Brockton Saturday at 6 p.m. and next Wednesday will host Weymouth South at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Bobby McHugh's third period goal gave North Quincy its wild victory over Cambridge as the Raiders rallied from a 3-3 deficit in the second period.

Dean Phillips, who also scored in the first period, Paul O'Sullivan and Mike McNeice scored in the second period.

Mike Cullen and Tom Lester also scored first period goals for Kevin Lewis' Raiders.

Earlier in the week North Quincy bowed to Weymouth North's league leaders, 5-2, as the Wildcats scored three second period goals.

O'Sullivan had given the Raiders a short-lived lead with an unassisted first period goal. Lester scored the only other North goal. Raider goalie Danny Newcomb turned in another excellent game despite the score.

Quincy Ties Weymouth S. 3-3

The improving Quincy hockey team took a 2-2-2 record and a four-game unbeaten streak into yesterday's (Wednesday's) game against Brookline.

Quincy is idle Saturday and next Wednesday will play Newton North at 8 p.m. at the Watertown rink.

The Presidents came from behind with two goals in the final 1:45 of the game to tie Weymouth South, 3-3 last Saturday.

Quincy coach Bob Sylvia pulled his goalie and Frank Reynolds made the score 3-2 with 1:44 left and Ken Ryan tied it with just 26 seconds to play. Both goals came off scrambles in front of Weymouth goalie Jim Stenson.

Earlier in the week Quincy pulled one of the big upsets of the Suburban League season when it handed Brockton its first loss of the year, 5-4.

Kevin Craig, whose brother Robby was one of the league's top scorers the past two years, had a great day as he scored four goals and assisted on the other.

"It was poetic justice that Kevin had such a day," Sylvia said. "He hit the post three times against North Quincy and he missed a break-away against Waltham with the score tied."

"But the breaks always even out in the end. The kids played a hard-working game and we put all the pieces together."

Craig scored twice in the first period but so did Brockton. In the second period the Presidents jumped out to a 5-3 lead with two more Craig goals and one by Flynn, on which Craig assisted.

The Presidents held off the Boxers with a strong four-man defense and the continued excellent work of goalie Paul Sarno. The senior goalie played his third straight strong game and stopped a break-away by Brockton all-star Ken Holzman.

"This was a solid effort," said Sylvia. "We had nothing to lose as we certainly weren't the favorites. We killed the penalties and played fine positional hockey."

Roche, Supple Shine For Track Club

The Quincy Track Club was busy during the school vacation week and Maureen Roche and Liana Supple did well in the Beverly Invitational Meet.

Supple took third in the 50 in a club record 7.4 seconds and took third in the high jump at 5-4. Roche, only 14 and a freshman at Abp. Williams High School, took second in the 300 in 41.2, her best time ever. Later she lowered that time to 40.6 in a high school meet.

Also at Beverly, Kathy Stevens took second in the 50 and Coach Jeff Hennessy placed third in the open 600. Georgia Traficante cleared 5-0 but finished only fourth in the high jump and she looked impressive in running her first hurdles ever.

At the Holy Cross Women's Pentathlon, Supple and Roche took on six college women and turned in outstanding performances.

Supple came in third with 3099 points and Roche placed seventh with 2455 points.

Supple covered the 50 meter hurdles in 8.2, did 5-4 in the high jump, 15-2½ in the long jump, 21-6 in the shot put and 2:34.1 in the 800.

Roche did the hurdles in 10 seconds, did 25-10 in the shot, 4-8 in the high jump, 14-9½ in the long jump and 2:48.2 in the 800.

Both girls, together with several other QTC girls, will compete this weekend in the Dartmouth Relays.

Valentine Hockey 'B' Tourney At Randolph

Quincy teams will be entered in a Valentine Hockey "B" level tournament Feb. 16 through 22 at the Randolph Ice Rink.

The tournament has been formulated for Squirts, Pee Wees and Bantams. All teams must be AHA-registered. All teams will be guaranteed a minimum of two games and a maximum of five.

Individual trophies will be presented to the division winners and runnersup and all players will receive a tournament patch. The cost is $150 per team.

Further information can be had by calling 963-4589 during the day or 963-9559 at night.

Awards Presented At North Girls Soccer Banquet

The North Quincy girls' soccer team wound up its season recently with an awards banquet at Valley's.

Head table guests included Principal Peter Crisom, Assistant Principal Eileen Feeney and bus driver Al McLain, one of the team's staunchest boosters.

All varsity and junior varsity players and managers received warmup suits and certificates, the varsity players also received trophies and the seniors were awarded jackets.

Jackie Thayer and Debbie Kiley received gift certificates for Colman's Sporting Goods for being the top fund raisers.

McLain awarded a plaque from the squad. "Al was our best fan and real great person," first-year coach Rick Hutchins said. "We wanted to give him something for all his kindness and for all the help he gave the team. He did an awful lot for the girls and even came to our games on his days off. The girls really appreciated his support and friendship."

Principal Peter Crisom was presented a jacket for his help and support of the high school sports.

Kim Alberti was the team's high scorer and Debbie Kiley received the sophomore award, Maureen Berry the junior award and Maggie Ladas the senior award.

"It was impossible to give an MVP award or Most Improved Player award, as all the players contributed," Hutchins said.

Goalie Lisa Cavanaugh and sweeper Lauren Appollo were named to the Suburban League all-star team. Appollo also was a Patriot Ledger all-scholastic choice.

"Despite our record, this was a successful year for girls soccer," Hutchins said. "The Suburban League is an outstanding league and we were very competitive. Although North Quincy had a small squad compared to the Newtons and Brocktons, the girls played excellent team soccer and never gave me anything but 100 percent effort. It was a great group to work with."

"We are losing 10 seniors, including eight varsity players, but we have a good group of sophomores and juniors returning and things look good for next season."

Next year's captains will be Elva Reed and Maureen Berry.

This year's varsity team included Co-Captains Sue Cahill and Marge Ladas, Kim Alberti, Lauren Appollo, Maureen Berry, Lisa Cavanaugh, Mary Costa, Becky Holcomb, Debbie Kiley, Elva Reed, Caryn Smith, Jackie Thayer, Lisa Welby and Janet Zdanowski.

The managers were Helena Bradley and Maureen Feeney.

Quincy Wrestlers To Get Tested By Norwood

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy wrestling team continues to run wild over all opposition and went into yesterday's (Wednesday's) meet against Stoughton with a 5-0 record.

The Presidents, who have outscored the opposition by an amazing 300-22 margin, will face their first test Saturday when they host Norwood, an Eastern Mass. power, and Springfield Classical at 10 a.m. at the Vo-Tech gym. Next Wednesday Quincy will face one of the top Suburban League teams, Weymouth North, at Weymouth at 5:30.

"Norwood is a well-balanced, well-coached team and it will take a strong effort on our part to beat them," Coach Carman Mariano said. "We also have league powers Weymouth North, Brockton, Newton North and Waltham as well as strong non-league opponents Nashua, N.H., Milford and state champion Lowell still to face."

"Everything we have accomplished to date can be directly traced to the amount of time, energy and commitment which my boys have been willing to give in terms of practice, making weight and getting in shape. If such a commitment continues (and if we stay healthy), our success will continue, as well."

The Presidents outlasted Needham, 50-9, and Randolph, 63-0, last Saturday after having rolled over Brookline, 56-9; Cambridge, 72-0, and Weymouth South, 59-4.

In the Needham romp Quincy lost only two matches, Paul Silcox losing an 8-2 decision at 100 pounds and Jamie Gravalese being pinned in the heavyweight bout.

Al Costigliola won by pin at 107, Joe Madden won by forfeit at 114, Mario Venturilli won by pin at 121, Kevin McCormick won by pin at 128, Shawn Wynn won by forfeit at 134, Joe Souza won, 10-4, at 141; Al DiVincenzo won, 9-1, at 147; John Herald won, 22-1, at 157; Mike Monahan won, 7-0, at 169, and Mark Picot won, 10-3, at 188.

Against Randolph Silcox won by forfeit, Costigliola won by pin, Madden won by pin, Gerry McSharry won, 16-6, at 121; Mike Miller won, 16-1, at 128; Greg Oriola won by pin at 134, Souza won by pin, DiVincenzo won by pin, Herald won, 6-1; Monahan won by pin, Picot won by pin and Gravalese won, 12-10.

Following are a list of statistics involving the major contributors to the team's early success:

Sophomores — Paul Silcox, 3 wins, 1 loss, 18 team points; Bill Marston, 1-0, 3 points; Costigliola, 5-0, 30 points; Madden, 5-0, 30 points; Venturilli, 2-0, 12 points; Wynn, 1-1, six points; Miller, 2-0, 11 points; Glen Oriola, 4-0, 24 points; Gravalese, 1-1, three points.

Juniors — Picot, 3-0, 15 points; McSharry, 2-1, 10 points.

Seniors — Herald, 4-0, 18 points; Monahan, 5-0, 25 points; Ed Mackey, 2-0, 12 points; Jim Silcox, 3-0, 18 points; DiVincenzo, 4-0, 22 points; Greg Oriola, 2-0, 12 points; Souza, 3-0, 17 points; Ed Ryan, 1-1, 4 points; McCormick, 1-0, six points.

"These are not the only boys who have helped us do what we have done so far," Mariano said. "There are many kids who have not yet wrestled at the varsity level whose daily perseverance at practice has been as valuable to us as have the points scored by the varsity wrestlers themselves."

North Girls Roll By Avon

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, off to its best start ever, went into Tuesday's Suburban League game against Newton North protecting a 5-1 record.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes will be home to Waltham Friday at 3:30 and next Tuesday will play at Quincy at 3:30.

The North girls held previously undefeated Avon to four points in the second half en route to an easy 51-12 non-league victory last week.

Sophomore guard Debbie Kiley scored 12 points and Lauren Appollo had six points and nine rebounds. The Raiderettes also received strong games from Julie Watts, who had six points and eight rebounds, and Simone Koch, who had four points, four rebounds, four steals and three assists.

Earlier in the week, the North girls suffered their first defeat, 49-28, to unbeaten Cambridge Rindge and Latin.

Over 500 Compete In Foul Shooting Contest

The Quincy Recreation Dept., in co-sponsorship with the Quincy Lodge of Elks, recently hosted the Quincy competition of the Elks National Foul Shooting Contest.

More than 500 boys and girls took part in area competition at selected Recreation Dept. centers while the Elks ran the city finals with Ed Miller and Joe Gills as co-chairmen.

Boys 8-9, Chris Noble, winner; Paul Flynn, runnerup; boys 10-11 - Chris Higgins, winner; Jim Phelan, runnerup; boys 12-13 - Erick Pulsifer, winner; Mark Solan, runnerup.

Girls 8-9 - Erin Murray, winner; Cheryl Coberia, runnerup; girls 10-11 - Nancy Barrett, winner; Ann McQuiggan, runnerup; girls 12-13 - Sue Adamchek, winner; Christine Zupkafaks, runnerup.

Batts Team Holds Koch Women's League

Susan Batts and her teammates have a comfortable lead with time running out in the first half of the Koch Club Women's Bowling League.

Batts and her combine have a 64 win and 16 loss record to lead the Koch League and are followed by Claire Fitch, 50-30; Kay Donelin, 48-32; Charlene Josephs, 39-41; Barbara Lombardi, 38-42; Ellen McAdam, 36-44; Maureen Robertson, 28-52, and Barbara Donelin, 17-63.

Debra Koch is still the league's top scorer with an average of 95.9. She is followed in the top 10 by June Hillier, 93-9; Pat Murphy, 93-3; Gerry Cavicchi, 93-0; Edie Maher, 91-7; sisters Susan Batts and Maureen Robertson, tied with 90-0; Lorraine Carpenter and Adele Foley deadlocked with 89.9, and Denyse Nolan, 89.5.

Gerry Cavicchi has the high individual three string total of 321 and has the most strikes with 9. Lorraine Ryan has the best single string of 125 and Susan Batts has the most spares with 52.

Barbara Lombardi and her team have the high single string of 470 and the Susan Batts combine hold the best three string total of 1354.

I BET
YOU DIDN'T

Brought To You
By ROBERT COLMAN

It's amazing how many of the biggest college football games of 1980 were won by the VISITING team — destroying the myth of the home field advantage . . . For example, Notre Dame beat Alabama AT Alabama . . . Michigan beat Ohio State AT Ohio State . . . Oklahoma beat Nebraska AT Nebraska . . . Pitt beat Penn State AT Penn State.

Here's the story of one of the most incredible fights in the history of professional boxing . . . It happened in Paris, France, on April 17, 1909 when Sam McVey met Joe Jeannette . . . Jeannette was knocked down 49 times in that fight — but despite being knocked down all those times, Jeannette — amazingly — won the fight! . . . McVey was so tired, he failed to answer the bell for the last round.

Who was the youngest quarterback ever to start a Super Bowl game? . . . Answer is Joe Namath who set the record when he started the 1969 Super Bowl at age 25 . . . Surprisingly, no younger quarterback ever started in a Super Bowl, before or since.

I bet you didn't know . . . you can beat the cold with COLMAN'S help. At COLMAN'S you will find all the cold weather wear your entire family can use to beat the cold . . . and at prices that will save you money.

In the weekly "325" Club scoring, Shields again showed the way leading with 385 while John O'Malley had 330 and Peter Alibrandi, 329.

Men are invited to join and participate in the second half competition and may contact President Mike Shields, Secretary Joe Keenan or Treasurer Bob McLaren for further information or may attend to observe any of the weekly matches.

Casey Team Adams Heights

First Half Champs

Jack Casey's team won the first half of the Adams Heights Men's Club Bowling League with an 80-40 record to Pete Neitz' 72-48 mark.

Casey's team defeated Bill Norton's team, 6-2, on the final night of the half, while Neitz' team came on to win six points to overtake Norton's team and nail down second place. Both Casey and Neitz are assured two of the four playoff spots at year's end.

Tom McKinnon rolled a personal high three of 378 and took over as the top bowler after Ritchie Collins had dominated the top position for many years and had held down first place for 12 weeks.

McKinnon rolled the weekly high single of 148, Collins had 140 and Casey 132.

Collins had the second high three of 359 and Reno Giudici had 356.

Frank Anderson's team rolled the weekly high team single of 552, Casey's team had 533 and Charlie

Neitz' team had the high team three of 1521, Anderson had 1513 and Buckley 1501.

Reno Giudici has the season's high single of 157, Collins has 153 and Sal McLeod 152.

Anderson has the season's high three of 402, Collins has 394 and Neitz 387.

Neitz' team has the season's high team single of 581, Anderson has 575 and Norton 547.

Neitz' team also has the season's high three of 1590, Norton has 1569 and Casey 1561.

The final first half standings: Casey, 80-40; Neitz, 72-48; Norton, 69-51; Bob Lee, 58-62; Buckley, 58-62; Don Cahoon, 52-68; Anderson, 51-69; Archie Fulton, 40-80.

The Top Ten: McKinnon, 112.3; Collins, 112.1; John Giudici, 110.3; Norton, 109.1; Fulton, 109.1; Reno Giudici, 108.3; Casey, 107.8; McLeod, 104.9; Anderson, 104.6; Al Landry, 103.5.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

A SLIPPERY DEATH

The most widespread cause of accidental death next to auto accidents is the accidental fall. Last year over 20,000 persons were killed in this manner. And with the added hazard of winter, a good percentage of these fatalities occur from falling on ice. Fortunately, a little prevention can save a needless tragedy.

Make sure all snow and ice is removed from your walks and stairs. A bag of salt will cut down on the shovelling efforts. Also, when the walk is clean, sprinkle more salt to prevent formation of an icy glaze.

Leathersoled shoes are a hazard on winter ice. You get more traction with rubber or sponge ribbed soles or by wearing rubber boots. Strips of abrasive tape on the soles of shoes also provides some anti-skid gripping power.

TOP MONEY RAISERS at the skate-a-thon held by the Houghs Neck Teen Organization were Jane Reynold, (center) who raised $380, and Jonna Dondoro, (right) who raised $230. The money was presented to Pat Zona, director of the Ronald McDonald House which provides overnight accommodations for families with children receiving cancer treatments at Children's Hospital and the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute.

CHECKS for more than $2,000 were presented by members of the Houghs Neck Teen Organization to the director of the Ronald McDonald House, Brookline. Funds were raised by the 35 member group at a nine hour skate-a-thon at the Blessed Sacrament Church parking lot. From left, are Pat Zona, McDonald House director, Michael Preble, 14; Maria Burke, 16; Michelle Bythrow, 15; and Maureen Bythrow, 16.

State House Tours Arranged By Cerasoli

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli reminds local school and community groups he is available to set up tours of the State House to learn the legislative process.

"I welcome the opportunity to arrange a tour and video presentation for local groups interested in learning about government," he said.

"I am of the opinion that visiting the State House and learning about the legislative process is an educational opportunity for all.

State House tours are available year around Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Anyone who would like to arrange a tour should call Cerasoli's aide, Janice DiPrizio, at 727-8215.

William Green Presented Jacket

William Green of Quincy was presented a monogrammed fire jacket at the South Shore Shrine Club's annual Potentates and Ladies Night recently at the Ridder Country Club, Whitman.

Green received the jacket for his outstanding efforts with the Shrine Club's antique fire truck and brigade. Roy Bestick of Braintree and Ralph Bassett of Norwell also received jackets.

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted transfer of the hackney license for City Cab from Albert S. Bradish, who has operated the cab for 31 years, to Joseph Flynn of Weymouth.

- Granted a one year, second hand license to the Boston Harbor Marina Antique, Craft and Flea Show. Walter J. Hannon of the Marina commented the flea market will not be a permanent thing as condominiums are to be built in the area.

- Continued one week at the request of the applicant a request from Boston Harbor Marina Inc., 542 East Squantum St., for noon openings on Sunday. The board requested plans for handicapped toilet facilities at the establishment.

- Granted Frank G. Richards of Tri Town Stamp & Coin, 55 Franklin St., a license for buying and selling all types of old gold and silver, rare coins, stamps and collectibles.

- Police Chief Francis Finn was opposed.

- Continued for one week a request from Morey Pearl

Restaurant, 572 Southern Artery, for a video game, pending a floor plan of the machine's placement.

- Continued for two weeks a request from Ralph D. Zammit for a common victualer license for Maggie's Luncheonette, 228 Water St., pending floor and parking plans.

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the Quincy Men's Softball League, Inc., to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Saturday, Jan. 24, 7 p.m. to midnight, at the Fore River Clubhouse.

- Took no action on a request from William Chiaramonte of South Shore Coins, 322 Washington St., for a license to buy and sell old gold, silver, coins and other metals.

- A motion to grant the license died when board members voted 2 to 2. Fire Chief Edward Barry and City Clerk John Gillis were in favor of granting the license. Police Chief Francis Finn and Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh were opposed.

The applicant can re-apply.

- Granted James J. Sherman of Shermans Auto Repair, 305 Quincy Shore Dr., an auto repair mechanical license for light work only.

- Granted the Quincy High Hockey Boosters a one day all alcoholic license to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Friday, Jan. 9, 8 p.m. to midnight at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall, Houghs Neck.

- Took no action on a change of manager for Sherry's, 579 Southern Artery, when no representative from the establishment appeared at the meeting.

- Denied Washington Tap, 609 Washington St., a 2 a.m. closing after opposition from St. Joseph's Church, the Ward 2 Civic Association and Rep. Robert Cerasoli.

Police Chief Francis Finn explained there has never been any problems at Washington Tap but that it has taken the area five years to improve to the level it is at now.

Finn said the community isn't willing to go back an inch, not even "for fine business people" like Mr. and Mrs. William Minichello, owners, of the establishment.

Thayer Publications Win New England Honors

The Thayer Academy student newspaper and literary magazine, both edited by Quincy students, recently won third and second place respectively in an All-New England competition.

The competition was sponsored by the New England Scholastic Press Association. Thayer Academy competed in Class Three, which includes 164 schools of 500 students or less.

The Tiger's Eye 1979-80 newspaper, edited by Kathryn

Chamberlain of Quincy, was recognized by the association for the third consecutive year, having previously won second and first place awards. The newspaper is printed by The Quincy Sun.

The winter issue of "Prologue," the literary magazine, was edited by Nicholas Lahage of Quincy.

WEEK OF JANUARY 8

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19

Vitality is at peak, and you look wonderful as you feel. You might not have much time for mingling, however, as responsibilities increase through week.

PISCES - February 20-March 20

Keyword now is "update." Review ideas, correspondence and wardrobe. Avoid recklessness, especially in money matters. Visiting proves one of your best entertainments.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

Accounting tasks take more time than expected, but don't opt for any shortcuts. Friday's panic is short-lived. Weekend may include some sumptuous entertainment.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22

Outdoor fun is accented. You could sense an undercurrent of tension among friends and are urged to speak up. In fact, take initiative in any situation now.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21

You become increasingly active with professional or volunteer work as the new year gets under way. Don't be so eager to spend—especially if funds aren't your own.

CANCER - June 22-July 22

People react favorably to your ideas, despite your own skepticism. Brighten up environment with old-fashioned touches. Don't be so eager to allow others to volunteer your services.

LEO - July 23-August 22

Recognition comes your way, along with an increased workload. A friend surprises you with his/her newfound independence and you surprise everyone with some curious new interests.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22

More logic, less gut feeling, brings in results now. A giving week—pamper a loved one, spend more time with ailing relative. Best activities happen at home.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22

Friends in need decide unanimously that they can count on you. A new face brightens up your own life. Think twice before declining an invitation or missing a class.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21

Prepare to adapt fast to changing circumstances. Speculation, in modest way, can make this a winning time. Self-styled perfectionists are sure to get in your hair.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22

Casual acquaintances made now can become life-long friendships. Imagination is at peak. You're highly creative, but also, you might read too much into harmless comments.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20

Make "specialization" your current byword and learn a lot about one or two things. Travel planning is accented and you should let imagination wander far and wide.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You have a dry sense of humor and your feet are very much on the ground. Lost without a plan, you should spend even more time than usual—perhaps as much as the next six months—developing a blueprint for 1981.

BORN THIS WEEK

January 8th, singer David Bowie, 9th, singer Joan Baez, 10th, singer Gisele MacKenzie, 11th, actress Eva Le Gallienne, 12th, actress Patsy Kelly, 13th, actor Charles Nelson Reilly, 14th, singer Loretta Lynn.

Lindsay Tait Elected Chamber President

Lindsay Tait of Braintree, formerly of Quincy, was recently elected president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce for 1981.

Tait, president and chief executive officer of the Braintree Savings Bank, succeeds Paul MacElhiney.

Other officers elected are Peter O'Connell of Quincy, O'Connell Brothers Construction, vice president for community development; Eugene Roundtree of All Stainless, vice president for program of work; D. Currey Pettus, Armstrong World Industries, vice president for budget and finance; John Doody, Arthur Doody Insurance, vice president for membership development; Ralph Rivkind, Rivkind, Baker and Golden, vice president of public affairs and William Swofford of North Terminal, vice president of business and transportation.

Tait and his fellow officers took office Jan. 1.

Tait attended Quincy public schools, Brown University and the University of Massachusetts, and served in the U.S. Army in Korea. He has served in numerous capacities with the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks and the Savings Bank Association of Massachusetts.

Among his civic and community activities are vice president of the South Shore Economic Development Corporation, past president and trustee of 1000 Southern Artery, former moderator and chairman of the executive committee of Quincy Point Congregational Church, treasurer of the Masonic Temple Association of Quincy.

He and his wife, the former Elaine Cunningham, live with their two sons in Braintree and Brownfield, Maine.

O'Connell, a graduate of Northeastern University, is a director and past president of Quincy Taxpayers Association, the Quincy Master Builders Association, the Quincy Rotary Club and Granite Cooperative Bank. He is a former member of the Quincy Planning Board.

He and his wife, the former Marcia MacKinnon, live with their four children at 40 Hatherly Rd., Wollaston.

QUINCY AVENUE ELEVATION

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF remodeled Quincy Motor Company Building at 85 Quincy Ave., Quincy, to be used as a headquarters for The Quincy Co-operative Bank. The building is expected to be ready for occupancy in the fall. The new facility will feature a triple drive-in facility (shown at right) plus parking for 95 cars. The bank's present quarters in the Monroe Building on Hancock St. will be operated as a downtown branch.

Hancock Group, Inc. Increases Dividend 30%

Hancock Group, Inc., Quincy-based parent of Hancock Bank, at year end will increase by nearly 30 percent the regular dividend on its common stock.

President William E. Kelley said the quarterly dividend will increase 10 cents from 35 cents to 45 cents and a year-end extra dividend of 20 cents will be paid. This regular dividend, plus the extra, will be issued Dec. 31 to holders of record Dec. 22, 1980, he said.

With the up-coming 65 cents per share payout, total dividends for the year 1980 will be $1.70 per share.

Kelley pointed out that the decision to raise the quarterly dividend substantially, plus the 20 cents extra at year end, reflects the best-ever year for Hancock Bank in profitability and growth. As of Dec. 1, 1980, the book value of the bank's common stock had risen to $33.20 per share.

Hancock Bank, Norfolk County's largest independent bank, maintains 16 banking offices throughout the county.

3rd Hike This Year

Multibank Announces 12.5% Dividend Increase

The Board of Directors of Multibank Financial Corp. announces a 12.5 percent increase in its quarterly cash dividend.

The new rate is 36 cents per share compared to 32 cents per share in the prior quarter. The dividend is payable Jan. 20, to shareholders of record Jan. 9, 1981.

David B. Lynch, Chairman and President, said:

"We are very pleased to report this most recent dividend increase. It marks the fifth dividend increase since December 1978 and the third increase in the dividend rate during 1980. In addition, a special five percent stock dividend was paid to shareholders in August 1979. The trend of increasing dividends is a reflection of the continuing progress in Multibank's financial performance and strength, as well as its future potential. The Company had record net income in 1978 and 1979, and we have achieved record net income for the first three quarters of 1980."

The company previously reported record operating earnings for the first three quarters of 1980 amounting to $4.31 per share, up 30% over the $3.32 per share earned for the first 9 months last year. The company has also reported that as of Sept. 30, Multibank's total assets exceeded $1 billion for the first time.

Multibank Financial Corp. is a registered bank holding company with seven member banks — Durfee Attleboro Bank in Bristol County; The Falmouth National Bank in Barnstable County; First Agricultural Bank in Berkshire County; Mechanics Bank in Worcester County; Northampton National in Hampshire County; Security National in Hampden County; and South Shore Bank in Norfolk County; as well as other affiliated divisions and subsidiaries.

Presidential Cooperative Shareholders To Meet

Shareholders of the Presidential Cooperative Bank will hold their annual meeting Monday, Jan. 19, at 4:30 p.m. in the bank's offices, 1

Granite St.

They will elect directors and a shareholders' clerk and act on any other business requiring their attention.

Hub Safety Acquires

Brockton Medical Supply Co.

William Cole, president of Hub Safety Equipment, Inc., 121 Liberty St., South Quincy, announces the acquisition of Gold Medical Supply Company of Brockton and the formation of Hub Medical Supply Co.

The new division will enable Hub Safety to service the medical and safety needs of its customers. It will handle industry, schools, hospitals, physicians and health centers.

Robert Gold of Sharon, formerly of Gold Medical, has been appointed general manager of both divisions.

"I can't speculate on what any mayor is going to do in the future," said Fleming. "I assume that if there is that kind of political interference, their (HCA's) hands are going to be tied and they would not be able to do the job."

"But I can't state that the mayor's authority has been diminished at all, because it has not been."

McGrath was interested chiefly in the manner in which HCA plans to attack the problem of hospital plant and equipment, for which it has had little or no capital outlay budget in recent years.

"Will we still be in a position where the City Council will end up voting bonds for large purchases of capital outlay?" asked McGrath.

"We hope," said Kitchen, "that the city will not have to put in additional funds at a later date for capital equipment. Our goal is to make the hospital self-sustaining, although we can't guarantee it. That's the idea of the enterprise fund."

"Our short range goal is a replacement facility. We hope that can be accomplished with revenue bonds, obligated against the revenues of the hospital, not the general obligations bonds for the city. It can be done. It has been done in other places."

"When you say replacement facility, do you mean a new hospital?" asked McGrath.

"Right," said Kitchen. "Let's suppose your projections are a little too optimistic," said McGrath. "Could the City Council be pledging the credit of the city for a bond?"

"I am not familiar with the legal ramifications," said Kitchen, "but I would assume that would be the case."

Strange told the Hospital Committee that HCA plans no changes in personnel at the hospital.

"We will make assessments over the next several months," he said. "If we find that there are deficiencies in the management area, we're going to, first, work with these individuals to improve their skills so that they can do the job."

"Would you agree with the mayor that nobody is going?" asked McCauley.

"Yes," said Strange, "I agree with the mayor based on our assessment of the hospital operation."

Strange had a good word for current personnel at the hospital.

"You have the blessing of having a number of very fine people who really care and are competent in key positions of management and you have a work force that has some of the best morale despite awesome problems."

Strange ticked off a litany of problems that the HCA study team found at the hospital and he warned that "it is only getting more serious by the week. I've only touched the top of an ice berg."

"It precludes the ability of one executive officer and one chief financial officer, separately or together, to successfully address these problems," he said. "It's going to require for a protracted period of time a number of highly skilled and experienced technical experts."

HCA will have only two fulltime administrators at the hospital under the interim contract -- Kitchen and Michael T. Dooley, chief financial officer -- but Strange said HCA has some 500 specialists immediately available for consultation.

Some of the problems discovered at the hospital, said Strange, include:

An aging physical plant; a seriously declining patient count; a dire need for replacement of the most basic hospital equipment; a competent but often discouraged medical staff; an acute need to recruit more physicians.

An "incredible" lack of management information; insufficient controls to maximize revenues and contain costs; lack of inventory control; a declining public relation image; a governing board that clearly lacks the authority to effectively manage.

The hospital plant, he said, "has horrendously long traffic routes, making it difficult to accommodate a productive work force and causing overstaffing because of the poor layout. Heating, lighting, ventilating and air conditioning equipment is energy inefficient and beyond its normal life."

"There is in our estimation the clearest need to replace the physical plant in the next five years."

Kitchen, the new interim director, holds a masters degree in hospital administration from the Medical College of Virginia. He joined HCA in May, 1973, soon after he obtained his degree.

He has served in administrative posts in hospitals in Salem, Va.; Tamarac, Fla.; Aiken, S.C.; Blacksburg, Va.; and Martinsburg, W. Va.

His last post for HCA was as administrator of the Greater Laurel-Beltville Hospital, a 236-bed hospital in Laurel, Md., which is county-owned.

He and his wife, Judy, have one son, Kenny, 6.

Hospital Corp. of America is a 12-year-old company, based in Nashville, Tenn., that operates 191 hospitals in more than 30 states, plus Australia, Panama, Saudi Arabia, and a health maintenance organization in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

It used to operate the Brintree Hospital but the relationship ended after 14 months.

"We were retained to help the hospital achieve a strong financial position," said Strange. "We achieved it in 14 months. We are happy with what we achieved in Brintree."

Ernest Broadbent, president of the Brintree Hospital, said he found HCA's work "excellent."

"They were here for 14 months," he said. "We gave them 10 projects to do, ranging from finances to patient care. We certainly were in favor of HCA with regard to Quincy."

"They are the only management firm I'm aware of that is aggressively going after contracts in the northeast area. They have an office in Wellesley, the only one I know that do."

HCA is on board in Quincy under a six-months interim agreement while a longer contract is being negotiated. The final figure in the contract, said Strange, will be between $400,000 and $460,000.

"It should be fully funded from receipts," he said.

DeFalo, who was director for a little over four years, retires on a pension based on his years of city and state service, including a term as commissioner of administration under Gov. John A. Volpe.

City Auditor Charles L. Shea said that the city will pay DeFalo's unfunded pension and the state will reimburse the city for its share.

Mayor Tobin thanked DeFalo "not only for his services but for the way he conducted himself these past months" while the city was entertaining management firms, one of which would succeed him.

"Because of the circumstances," said Tobin, "it could be embarrassing to him and I don't want that to happen."

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

On January 22, 1981, the Massachusetts Port Authority ("the Authority") will hold a public hearing at the Authority's executive offices, 14th floor, 99 High Street, Boston, Massachusetts. The hearing will commence at 10 A.M.

The subject of the hearing will be the minimum daily use charge regulation set forth in Part B Article II, paragraph D, subparagraph 1 of the "Airport Rules and Regulations for Logan International Airport and Logan Executive Airport and Laurens County, Hanscom Field", including an emergency amendment thereto promulgated by vote of the Members of the Authority on November 6, 1980, pursuant to Section 3 of Mass. St. 1956, c. 465 as amended.

In substance, the minimum daily use charge regulation and emergency amendment establish certain aircraft fee structures for Logan Airport. As originally promulgated, the minimum daily use charge regulation imposed a minimum daily fee of $50.00 on all persons operating aircraft at Logan as a means of allocating the costs of providing the airport facility as well as improving the efficiency of its utilization among various users. The emergency amendment is to further refine this allocation by: (1) decreasing the minimum charge from $50.00 to $20.00 per day for persons operating relatively small aircraft on an infrequent basis at Logan outside the following hours: Monday through Friday - 8:00 A.M. to 8:00 P.M., and (2) to impose a minimum charge of $10.00 per day for operators of rotary wing aircraft.

Alternatively, the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA) proposes an increase in the minimum landing fee from $5.00 to $10.00 during certain off-peak periods together with a minimum fee of $25.00 during certain narrowly defined peak periods, which fee shall be further limited to operations on runways being utilized by larger aircraft operated by certificated air carriers.

An information packet containing the express terms of the minimum daily use charge regulation, including the emergency amendment, together with certain background information is available on or after January 5, 1981 for public inspection at public libraries in East Boston, South Boston, Chelsea, Revere, Winthrop, Jamaica Plain, Quincy, and Milton, as well as at the office of the Authority's Director of Aviation, 18th floor, New Tower Building, Logan Airport, East Boston, and at the Authority's executive offices, 14th floor, 99 High Street, Boston, Massachusetts and at the office of the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission located at the General Aviation Terminal at Logan Airport. The information packet will also include materials relative to AOPA's proposal. In addition, the records of the October 6, October 16, and November 6, 1980 meetings of the Authority will be available for inspection at the executive offices of the Authority upon prior request.

The public is invited to make oral or written comments relative to the minimum daily use charge. The Authority's proposals may be revised to reflect comments received from the public. Written submissions should be presented at the hearing or delivered or mailed to Massport's executive offices, Massachusetts Port Authority, 99 High Street, Boston, Massachusetts 02110. Written submissions should state that they are intended for inclusion in the record of this public hearing and must be received prior to the completion of the hearing. The Authority shall maintain a register of written submissions at its executive office which shall be available for public inspection.

Persons desiring to make statements and presentations at the hearing are invited but not required to advise the Authority in advance in order to assist scheduling. This may be done by contacting Nick Lamberti, at 482-2930, ext. 243.

Revolving Account To Bring QJC Tuition Hike

By BERNIE O'DONNELL
Quincy Junior College students can expect a tuition increase in 1981-82, due to the city-wide fiscal problems.

A revolving account now in the works for QJC and other school programs will probably result in a tuition hike, according to School

Supt. Lawrence Creedon.
"At this point, it's too early to say how much it would be,"

Creedon said Tuesday. "But I can tell you that we're looking to make up a half million (dollars)."

Full-time students who are Quincy residents pay $660 annually. All others pay $770 annually. Rates for summer and evening courses are $21 per credit for Quincy residents and $24 per credit for others. Most courses are three credits.

Tuition increased by 10 percent in 1980 after staying the same since 1971.

In his mid-term address Monday, Mayor Arthur Tobin recommended the establishment of the revolving account to enable QJC to be "self-supporting at no expense to the taxpayer."

"No longer can the citizens of Quincy bear the burden of the deficit of the junior college," Tobin said.

A revolving account would allow the college's operating expenses to be paid directly from tuition and other receipts, eliminating the need to appropriate money in the tax rate.

Under the present system, the school's entire budget must be raised through property taxes and tuition receipts go to the city's general fund.

According to Creedon, over 80-percent of the school's $1.59 million budget is now returned to the city in receipts.

In his address, Tobin also asked that "operations of the junior college be expanded to include those educational programs which might be otherwise lost to our school system due to mandated school cuts because of Proposition 2½."

According to Tobin and Creedon, a bill will be filed in the state legislature to allow the city to establish a revolving fund not only for QJC but for other endangered school programs.

Creedon said the "omnibus" account would probably include both adult and community education programs. The account would require the approval of both the School Committee and City Council.

'Horror Story After Hi

Release Of Mentally Ill Defendants Hit

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The defendant heard "messages from God" telling him to kill his girlfriend, his mother and father.

Brought into court after threatening the girl, the defendant was judged to be mentally competent by psychiatrists. His sentence was five years probation, with the provision that he undergo psychiatric treatment during that time.

"Two years later," said psychiatrist Mendel Cohen, "he killed the girlfriend. He went to the nursing home where she worked, he stabbed her to death and then he sat there."

Cohen, chief of psychiatry at Massachusetts General Hospital and a faculty member at Tufts and Harvard, joined Superior Court Judge Henry Chmielinski in an indictment of how this state deals with mentally ill defendants at Monday night's meeting of the Quincy Bar Association at Mr. Kelly's.

Traditionally, defendants who are judged to be insane, or "not competent" to stand trial, may be sent to a state mental hospital.

That practice is being jeopardized, Judge Chmielinski said by the state Department of Mental Health (DMH) efforts to phase out the state hospital system and place defendants in community homes.

And complicating the situation, he said, is the fact that "there is nothing exact about the so-called science of

50 Million Gallons Dumped At Nut Island Job Vacancies Blamed For Sewage Spill

By TOM HENSHAW

The MDC and two of its frequent critics in the State Legislature have joined forces for an assault on a bureaucratic bottleneck that threatens to prevent the Nut Island Sewage Treatment plant from doing its job.

The critical nature of the understaffing at the MDC's Nut Island facility was underscored on Christmas Day when it was disclosed this week, some 50 million gallons of partially treated sewage had to be released into Quincy Bay for want of a diesel operator.

Joel Barry Chase, director of the MDC's Sewage Division, and Reps. Thomas F. Brownell and Michael W. Morrissey said the bottleneck is Edward Hanley, commissioner of administration and finance.

"We are trying to get Hanley to free up the money to fill the vacancies at Nut Island," said Morrissey, who is a member of the Urban Affairs Committee which handles MDC matters.

"We appropriated the money and he is sitting on it."

Brownell said he has been on the state government's "tail" since last October to fill what was said at the time to be 19 job vacancies at Nut Island.

"We cited the critical need for diesel operators there three months ago," he said.

Chase said that since the Christmas release of the sewage, which occurred between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m., he has once again impressed upon Hanley the critical need to fill the Nut Island openings.

He said there are 18 unfilled positions in the Sewage Division which he identified as "critical" and 11 of them are at the Nut Island plant.

Chase said there are 26 "critical need" letters being held up in Hanley's office and he is "pushing for the most critical 18 every Monday morning at staff meeting. I won't stop until I get them."

The rationale for not filling the positions immediately is a freeze on state hiring.

Winthrop B. Wade of the Health Department said there was little danger to public health from the sewage release since the extremely cold water and icy conditions made human contact with the area unlikely.

But had it occurred in the summer time there could have been problems.

"It will eventually mix with sea water and flow away," said Wade. "There is not much in the way of solid waste in the sewage by the time it reaches Nut Island."

Chase said the released sewage had been chlorinated, the first step in the treatment process which kills bacteria.

"It was not untreated sewage," he said.

Chase said the sewage was dumped because retirement, illness and death had left the Nut Island facility with only one diesel operator to cover some 21 shifts.

"Since then," he said, "I have created a pool of people who may hold other titles but are qualified to operate heavy diesel equipment. We will draw on the pool when needed."

One of the operators recently retired and his replacement has been held up. Another was in the hospital. The third was in Italy attending the funeral of his father who died in the earthquake.

'Semi-Final' Census Shows City's Population At 84,068

Quincy, which has been fighting a losing battle with the U.S. Census Bureau, got the semi-formal figures for its 1980 head count Monday -- and won a minor skirmish.

There are 164 more people in the city than was thought last September.

But there are 3,898 less than there were in 1970, and 7,410 fewer than there were in the state census in 1975, and some 11,000 less than the wildly optimistic projections made in July.

The official population of Quincy is 84,068, a figure that the Census Bureau warns may be subject to slight change when the final report is issued in the next few months.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin said he is "disappointed" by the figures, adding, "I still believe the count is off but there's not very much we can do about it."

But, even though the city lost some 4,000 people, it still moves up from 12th to ninth in rank among the 351 communities in Massachusetts, which, as a state, showed a scant increase of 39,118.

Sometime during the decade of the 1970s it passed Lynn, Newton and Somerville.

The top eight cities in Massachusetts are now, in order, Boston, Worcester, Springfield, New Bedford, Cambridge, Brockton, Fall River and Lowell. Then comes Quincy.

The Census Bureau also released its 1980 count of housing units which shows that Quincy has gone up from 29,173 in 1970 to 34,417 in 1980, which means fewer people are living in more houses.

John Barron, aide to Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, said it is several months too early to determine the effect of the population loss on the city's eligibility for federal funding.

But it's not too early to tell that the low count in Massachusetts, compared to the burgeoning populations of states like Florida and Arizona, will cost the state a congressman.

Donnelly's 11th District, which went down from 475,789 people to 463,158, is faced with a radical expansion.

Strand Theatre Withdraws Roller Rink Request

Owners of the Strand Theatre, 12 Chestnut St., Quincy Square, have withdrawn their request from the City License Board for a roller skating rink on the premises.

The matter had been scheduled for Tuesday's License Board meeting but the request was withdrawn Jan. 8, following opposition from the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

In a letter sent to the License Board, QCBPA vice President Bernie Reisberg had said the rink would not be compatible with plans for development of the city.

A request from DIBOW Corporation, 119 Parkway, for arcade machine and Lord's Day licenses also scheduled for Tuesday's meeting, was postponed to Jan. 27 at the applicant's request. That venture is also opposed by the QCBPA.

A request from Morey Pearl Restaurant, 572 Southern Artery, for a video game was postponed to Jan. 20.

Mayor Asks $205,000 Library Budget Cut

The $205,000 cut requested in this year's Thomas Crane Public Library budget will "cut us to the jugular vein," says L. Paul Marini, chairman of the library board of trustees.

And Library Director Warren Watson adds, "I don't know how we would make such a cut. We're not even close yet."

Mayor Arthur Tobin has asked the board of trustees to make the cuts to make up for a $205,000 increase in salaries and benefits, negotiated after the budget was put together last spring. The cuts must be made in this year's budget, which has five months remaining.

At a meeting Monday night, the trustees voted to send a letter to Tobin, asking him to reconsider the cut.

"We don't know how in hell we're going to do it," Marini said Tuesday. "There's absolutely no where to cut."

Watson said he has been meeting with the library staff to plan the cutbacks, with no firm results yet.

"We run such a stingy operation over here that we've saved some money this year," he said, "so we actually only have to cut $166,000."

That represents about 11 jobs, said Watson, which coincidentally is the number of full-time jobs at the three branch libraries.

While it's too early to say which, if any, branches would be closed this year, Watson said, "a reduction of hours is inevitable."

Meanwhile, Marini hopes that Tobin will reduce the requested cut.

"They whacked us hardest of any city department when it came to making up the budget last year," Marini said.

The budget was first cut 10 percent by Tobin and then another 10 percent by the City Council.

"And now they're asking us to cut another $200,000," said Marini. "Books and employees are the only place we can cut. All our other costs are fixed."

"They're asking us to take a 40 percent cut within one year," Watson said. "I have to think they don't really mean that."

"I can appreciate Mr. Watson's and Mr. Marini's position," said Tobin Tuesday. "But we are in a deficit position all over the city. Other department heads are having the same problems."

"Where's the money going to come from? Do Mr. Watson and Mr. Marini want to take the money out of the police and the fire department accounts?"

"I've the problems but no one is giving the solutions. Pointing the finger of blame isn't going to find the $200,000."

$25,000 Donation Eases Prop. 2½ Strain On Library

Leonard Wirtanen, who would prefer that a big deal not be made of it, has his own way of combating the inroads of Proposition 2½ on his favorite municipal service — the public library.

Wirtanen, through his attorney, John Coreoran of Quincy, presented a $25,000 check to the Thomas Crane Public Library to maintain the financial reading area in the main library.

"He has used the materials in the financial reading area for some time," said L. Paul Marini, chairman of the library trustees, "and I guess he made some pretty good investments from it."

Rent Board Meeting

The Rent Grievance Board was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber to hear four cases of rent increases that have been appealed to the board.

"I hope this donation will stimulate others to help subsidize library service which is going to suffer under Prop 2½. We will need endowments to keep the library going."

Marini said the income from the $25,000, which he estimated at about $3,000 a year, will be used to purchase financial periodicals and similar materials for the library.

A plaque acknowledging Wirtanen's gift will be placed in the library area, he said.

Wirtanen, who is in his mid-60s and a Quincy resident all his life, is a retired machinist at Boston Gear Works.

90-Day 'Grace' For Installing Smoke Detectors

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Fire Department has granted an unofficial 90-day "grace period" for installing smoke detectors in all residences.

But, warns Deputy Fire Chief Carl Valenti, the smart property owner won't wait that long.

The city ordinance requiring all homes and apartment buildings to have smoke detectors by Jan. 1 is in effect, Valenti, said, although the fire department will not be making inspections until April 1.

The extension, granted by Fire Chief Edward Barry, was to give owners of the larger apartment buildings time to shop around and install the more complex systems required for their buildings, Valenti said.

"It won't take owners of one- and two-family homes three months to install a smoke detector," Valenti said. "It only takes 15 minutes."

City property owners have had over a year to prepare for the city ordinance, passed by the City Council in December, 1979 to go into effect on Jan. 1, 1981.

Homes of one to five units must have some sort of smoke detector, either battery operated or wired to the building's AC power source.

Dwellings with six or more units must be equipped with detectors in each apartment as well as in each hallway floor. Detectors in those buildings must be wired to the building's AC power and interconnected, so that, in case of a fire, all detectors will sound off.

"Otherwise, it's no good," Valenti said. "If all the smoke detectors in an apartment building were battery-operated, if the one in the cellar went off and you lived on the fourth floor, you wouldn't hear it."

Buildings of 25 or more dwelling units must be connected directly to the Fire Department's municipal alarm system.

The department will begin inspections in April, Valenti said.

"We will definitely be checking apartments, especially the large ones, to make sure their system is installed and operating," said Valenti. "We will definitely be going into them."

"As far as the smaller residences, we'll be spot-checking them, too," he said.

But, he added, the ordinance is in effect now, and property owners shouldn't wait until April 1.

"Suppose we responded to a fire and inspected the place and found there was no smoke detector. We would have to put that on the fire report."

"Now, the insurance company would look at that and say there is a law in the city, effective Jan. 1, 1981, requiring smoke detectors."

"I can't say definitely, but it's very possible you would have trouble with the insurance company in that instance," Valenti said.

Since Jan. 1, the department has received "a steady barrage of calls" seeking information on the new law, Valenti said.

"If everybody who's called has installed a smoke detector, then probably 40 or 50 percent of the people in the city have them now," Valenti said. "Hopefully, by the spring, we'll be up close to 100 percent."

Persons with questions about the smoke detector law should call the department's Fire Prevention Bureau or Fire Alarm division at 773-9800 during office hours.

Planning Dept To Hold 3 UDAG Hearings

The Planning Department will hold a public hearing Wednesday, Jan. 28, at 6 p.m. in the City Council Chamber on federal Urban Development Action Grants (UDAG) for three planned developments in the city.

The big one is a $5.5 million UDAG request to build a 792 space parking garage for a nine-story, $33 million office building proposed for the State Street South complex.

It would be the third and largest of the office buildings erected and financed by Forge-O'Connell Properties, an alliance of OBC (O'Connell Brothers) Inc. of Quincy and the Monarch Insurance Co. of Springfield.

The second hearing involves a $2.4 million UDAG in the form of a loan to erect a 223-space parking garage over the MBTA tracks to accompany a $14 million office-apartment building on Dimmock St.

The third is a $2 million UDAG to build a 370-space parking garage over the small North Quincy MBTA parking lot on Newport Ave. Extension to serve a planned six-story, $10 million office-retail building.

School Committee Looks Gift Hats In The Mouth

Troubled as they are by financial matters, the School Committee seldom turns down any sort of gift.

But at least two members objected when Midas Muffler asked permission to give knit caps to each of the city's 650 first graders.

The catch is that each of the black-and-gold winter caps features the word "Midas" in three-inch-high letters.

"I don't think the public schools should be used as a form of advertising," said Joan Picard. "What happens next week when three more companies want to use our first graders for advertising?"

"I don't think it's going to hurt at all," disagreed Mary Collins.

Mrs. Picard motioned to deny the company permission to distribute the caps and was joined by Patricia Toland. Mrs. Collins was joined by Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy in opposing the motion.

The 2-1 vote meant that Mrs. Picard's motion failed.

Mrs. Toland tabled the matter until absent members John Sullivan and Francis Anselmo could have their say on the controversial caps.

$172,171 Energy Grant For 4 Schools

A $172,171 energy conservation grant has been received by the school system for improvements at four schools, announces School Supt. Lawrence Creedon.

The funds, approved by the state Executive Office of Energy Resources, will be used for work at the Montclair and Adams Schools, Lincoln Hancock Community School and Central Junior High School.

Improvements at the schools will include new radiator and steam control valves, ceiling, window and skylight insulation and a pool cover for the Lincoln

Hancock pool, to reduce evaporation. The Lincoln Hancock building will also be tied into the North Quincy High computer, which monitors room temperature and energy use.

Savings from the work are estimated at $79,871, meaning a "pay-back" period of just over two years.

North Quincy Couple Guests At Inauguration

Richard and Mary Powers of North Quincy will be guests of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and Cong. Brian Donnelly at the Jan. 20 inauguration of Ronald Reagan.

Mrs. Powers won first prize, a trip for two to Washington D.C. for the inauguration, in a Sept. 12 promotion drawing conducted by the QCBPA.

She and her husband, a Boston firefighter, will be guests of Donnelly at the inauguration and at breakfast with him in the Congressional Dining Room.

The trip, includes transportation, three nights at the Howard Johnson Motor Lodge in Washington and $100 spending money.

Mrs. Powers' name was drawn by Donnelly from among coupons deposited at 28 QCBPA members during their Constitution Sale Days last September. Her winning coupon was deposited at Casual Concept.

"We're very excited about going," said Mrs. Powers. "We're looking forward to it very much."

Mrs. Powers, a registered Democrat, wouldn't say which candidate she voted for in last November's presidential election.

The Powers will be making their second visit to the nation's capital. They visited Washington last summer with their children, Mary Beth, 10, and Richard, 8.

Simon Fireman Named To Inaugural Committee

Simon Fireman of Quincy has been appointed vice chairman of the 1981 Presidential Inaugural Committee, in charge of volunteer and donor acknowledgement.

Fireman is responsible for insuring that each of the over 4,000 individuals, companies and organizations that participated or contributed to the inaugural festivities receive official letters of gratitude.

He was appointed to the post by Robert K. Gray and Charles Z.

Wick, co-chairmen of the inaugural committee.

President of Aqua-Leisure Industries of Randolph, Fireman has served in a number of civic posts, including Chairman of the Quincy Ball celebrating the 80th Birthday of Ruth Gordon and member of the Boston Youth Commission.

He was recently appointed by President Carter as an advisor to the Secretary of Commerce on International Trade.

Women's Commission To Sponsor Parental Stress Workshop

The Mayor's Commission On The Status of Women will sponsor a Jan. 21 seminar on "Parenting and Parental Stress" in the conference room of the City Hall Annex at 7:30 p.m.

The program will feature speakers from the Coastline Council For Children and Parents Anonymous.

"Parenthood touches every aspect of our life in a major and permanent way; yet we are not trained or prepared in a formal way for it. It is normal to feel overwhelmed and concerned about the responsibility of raising children, yet we are often afraid to express such feelings. This program is designed to help parents understand their feelings towards their children and to help foster better relationships between parents and their children," said Deborah Ormon, commission chairperson.

The program will begin with a representative from the Coastline Council for Children discussing their program and experiences. This agency offers comprehensive services to children and their families and also provides referrals and advocacy.

This discussion will be followed by representatives from Parents

Anonymous who will focus on parental stress and means of coping. Children, often unnecessarily, become the target of the parents' frustrations and it is important that the parents understand their actions toward their children. Parents Anonymous offer support and self-help groups with parents.

The program is free and open to the public.

Two of the three surrounding districts experienced large gains -- Margaret M. Heckler's 10th District up some 45,000 and Gerry E. Studds' 12th District up about 108,000.

Rep. George Keverian (D-Everett), who will likely chair the legislative committee that will do the redistricting, said his guess is that the new districts will have some 530,000 people apiece.

The old ones were pegged at about 475,000, with a variation of a high of 479,000 to a low of 469,000.

"The first standard that we are required to meet," said Keverian, "is one-man, one-vote and the deviation from that cannot exceed 1 per cent, or, in this case, probably 5,300."

That means Donnelly's 11th District will have to pick up between 61,000 and 72,000 people, from either or both the 10th and 12th Districts.

"The new districts must be contiguous," Keverian said. "They should also be compact, although that is not a constitutional requirement. We should also recognize their communities of interest and tradition."

The current 11th District has traditionally been composed of parts of Boston and the south-eastern suburbs.

"We are not concerned," said

Barron. "We'll have to take whatever they give us. But it's reasonable to assume we'll keep the three cities we have (Boston, Quincy, Brockton) and pick up a few of the surrounding towns."

Keverian declined to speculate on possible changes in the districts, saying that he has not yet been named to chair the committee that will make the decisions.

He is an overwhelming choice for chairman since he headed the group that redistricted the state legislature after the 1975 census and is considered the legislative authority on the subject.

Last week, the state House of Representatives passed an order setting up a redistricting committee of 11 reps and six senators to be appointed by the speaker and the Senate president. The order is now before the Senate.

"We still need to get from Washington the number of congressional seats we will have to work with," said Keverian. "I have asked an aide to check on it."

Keverian said he expects that the redistricting will be done by the current session of the Legislature so that candidates for Congress in 1982 will know which district they're running from.

Quincy Baby Receives White House Letter

Two month old David Kabilian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kabilian of Hyde St., Quincy Center, hasn't been in the world very long but he's already made his presence known at the White House.

David, who was born on election day Nov. 4, 1980, received a letter Jan. 12, from President-elect Ronald Reagan's director of scheduling and advance, Charles Tyson.

The letter was in response to a note written by David's grandmother, Mrs. Andrew Ruggiano of Water St., South Quincy, informing the President-elect of her grandson's special birthday.

Mrs. Ruggiano wrote, tongue in cheek, that David could grow up and become president himself and so would be keeping his eye on the Reagan administration.

A Reagan supporter, Mrs. Ruggiano also extended an invitation to meet the baby.

Tyson related the president-elect's gratitude for the letter and added, should scheduling permit, David might have an important visitor some day.

psychiatry."

Chmielinski, a Weymouth resident and former Quincy attorney, said he had experienced "horror story after horror story" in his courtroom involving supposedly competent defendants.

"I have asked the Department of Mental Health for records of persons who went on to commit some serious crime after having been deemed safe," said Chmielinski. "There are quite a few — literally scores."

"I have records in my office of 55 or 60, and I am sure that is merely the tip of the iceberg," he said.

"Deciding the mental competence of a defendant is one of the most difficult tasks that comes before us," Chmielinski said. "The sad fact is that I have absolutely no confidence in the diagnoses given by Bridgewater State Hospital psychiatrists or by the Department of Mental Health."

"I can have two or three learned people before me, who have examined the same patient and had access to the same patient's history and come up with opinions that are diametrically opposed," said Chmielinski.

"Occasionally, someone will have the honesty to come before me and say, 'I just don't know.' That's refreshing, too."

"The Department of Mental Health is determined to empty and close every state hospital," said Chmielinski, "with little thought to what happens to these people on the street."

"They (DMH) look upon this as a calculated risk," Chmielinski said. "If one of these sick individuals kills someone, rapes someone or commits some nefarious offense, their attitude is 'well, that's one we lost.'"

Cohen called the phasing-out of the state mental hospitals "a most horrible step into the dark ages."

One reason behind the move, he said, is that DMH feels that disturbed individuals shouldn't be locked up if they're not violent.

And, he adds, civil rights questions have been raised on occasions when relatively harmless persons have been locked up for years.

Cohen called this "a built-in excuse for neglecting sick people" and "hiding behind civil rights."

"For every person who has been locked up unjustly, there are 500 cases of persons who should be protected for their own good, and for the public's."

Moving such persons from state hospitals to community homes, "neglects the patient, slanders the judges and the district attorneys, cheats the patients and lowers the quality of medical care," Cohen said.

"The problem is there, it's acute," said Chmielinski. "We're going to see a lot more violent crimes, by people who are not responsible, if we don't do something about it."

Southwest Quincy Meeting On New Housing Program

All residents and property owners in Southwest Quincy have been invited to a meeting Thursday, Jan. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln-Hancock School Community Room to learn about the new Neighborhood Housing Service Program.

The program, which could begin as early as April or May, enables homeowners with low or moderate incomes to qualify for low interest loans and counseling on home improvements.

Some $250,000 in Community Development Block Grant money and $50,000 from the Neighborhood Housing Service Program will be put into the program over the next three years.

Southwest Quincy roughly encompasses Ward 4's Precincts 2, 5 and 6, bounded by the South-east Expressway, the MBTA tracks and Common, Quarry and School Sts.

All properties within these boundaries are part of the neighborhood selected for the initial rehabilitation area.

Harold Reports

'Adams Chronicles' Top Billing In India

By TOM HENSHAW

What's the most popular show in the repertoire of the International Communications Agency (ICA), the propaganda arm of the United States government in India?

The Adams Chronicles, that's what.

Sen. Paul D. Harold, just back from 2½ weeks in India, reports that the story of Quincy's renowned Adams family, which was shown on American television five years ago, is running for the second time in Bombay.

Not only that, but it gets top billing on the ICA's programming in Calcutta as well.

Due to the vagaries of air travel to and from around India, his plane landed at Logan International Airport at midnight, Tuesday, Jan. 6, only 11 hours before the State House ceremony.

The homeward flight on Air India, from Calcutta by way of Bombay, Kuwait, London and New York, took 48 hours, thanks to delays between flights. The delay in Bombay was 12 hours.

"I met one fellow in the airport there who told me he had been waiting two weeks to get home," said Harold. "I nearly panicked."

But waiting for a flight home was nothing compared to waiting for flights to New Delhi, Calcutta or Katmandu.

"They don't fly the plane unless it's full," said Harold. "You have to get to the airport an hour ahead of time and usually the plane is an hour late taking off. You keep losing hours."

Harold did just about everything you would expect a visiting legislator and politician to do in a strange country.

He visited with the mayor and municipal corporation (city council) of Bombay, who threw a reception for him. He renewed acquaintances with the Bombay sewer and water commissioner, whom he met during the Great Cities Conference in Boston last summer.

He met with the Redevelopment Authority in Calcutta, which plans to spend the next 10 years building a subway, and he had an audience with Mother Theresa, the Nobel prize winner who runs a series of orphanages and homes for the distressed.

He made a side trip to Katmandu, the capital of Nepal, to visit a friend, Peter Burleigh, who is deputy ambassador. Burleigh gave a dinner for him, attended by members of the Nepalese National Assembly.

"They questioned me very carefully about political campaigning," said Harold. "I was curious about it until I learned that they were appointed by the king but, under the new constitution, they will be elected next spring. They didn't know what campaigning is all about."

One of the Nepalese legislators, a woman, invited him to dinner but had to cancel out at the last minute for an unusual reason.

"She told me she had forgotten that it was the day she didn't have electric power," said Harold. "From 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. the power is shut off in Katmandu and every other day there is no power at all in residential areas."

Katmandu was also the place where he was taken for a tour of a Hindu temple and the guides carried a supply of rocks to fight off the hundreds of monkeys who made their homes there.

Harold was in India for Christmas, which is still observed as a tradition left over from the days of British colonialism despite the fact that the country is only 2 per cent Christian.

McCauley's Early Entry Livens Political Scene

Councillor Frank McCauley's early entry into this year's mayoral ring has livened the local political scene.

McCauley kept 'em guessing right up until the final moment when he made his announcement at a gathering at the Neighborhood Club. Even his wife, Sandra, didn't know what his decision was until she heard it.

McCAULEY

Arthur Tobin hasn't announced yet whether he will seek a third term. He is expected to run, but nothing is sure until it is official. As the incumbent, he can take his sweet time making the announcement — one way or the other.

TOBIN

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa who served the longest (12 years) as mayor (eight under Plan A, four under Plan E) used to wait until his birthday (July 31) to announce.

If Tobin does run, political observers see a hard-hitting campaign. Bare-knuckle, they're calling it. Neither Tobin or McCauley has the reputation for ducking questions or holding back. They're not shrinking violets. They'll tell you the way they think it is. Period.

If Tobin goes for a third term, there's little likelihood of another big name stepping into the ring.

Former Mayor Joseph LaRaia has already said he won't get in but reveals he was seriously thinking about running before McCauley made his early bird announcement.

Councillor James Sheets, frequently mentioned as a possible candidate, looks like he will sit this one out.

So, unless some lesser light decides to make a run, there will be no preliminary mayoral contest. Tobin and McCauley would both be automatically nominated and have to wait until November for their showdown.

This would save them some money (advertising, circulars, cards, etc.) but could work to their disadvantage. Neither would get a true reading on their weaknesses and strengths without a preliminary election. And when they did find out in November, it would be too late for one of them.

McCauley's mayoral bid, of course, opens up an at-large seat on the City Council and this could bring a good turnout of candidates.

One certain to run in Richard J. Koch, Jr. who two years ago in his first try was nosed out by LaRaia by only 198 votes.

Young Koch has a fundraiser set for Feb. 13 at Morrisette Legion Post. He already had tickets printed for it before McCauley's announcement so he evidently was going to run whether there was an open seat or not.

KOCH

Ron Iacobucci, president of the Lincoln Hancock Community School Council, is among those being mentioned as a candidate for the McCauley seat. Iacobucci has worked for Lt. Gov. Thomas O'Neil and campaigned for Senator Edward Kennedy's in the latter's unsuccessful bid for President.

There may be a flock of others getting in. An open City Council seat is too much of a political temptation to resist.

IACOBUCCI

MIDWAY THROUGH his announcement for mayor last week, Frank McCauley was interrupted by his wife, Sandra, who whispered to him that Senator Paul Harold was on the phone from India.

"Put him on hold," said McCauley, "until after the announcement."

SANDRA

Actually, Harold, who had been in India, was calling from Kennedy Airport in New York, and, instead of putting him on hold, Sandra chatted with him for so long that she missed her husband's announcement.

Quincy Quiz

There are four winners this week in the Quincy Quiz.

Winning Quincy Sun T-shirts are George H. McDermott of 26 Chestnut St., Quincy Center and Joseph F. Cortese, 48 Ellerton Rd., Quincy Point.

Earning Quincy Sun bumper stickers are Blase DeLollis, 1025 Hancock St., Quincy Center and Kendall Mills, 91 Independence Ave., South Quincy.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. The Parker School is named for Francis W. Parker. Who was he?
2. In what section of the city is the Myles Standish Cairn?
3. What is the name of the chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority?
4. Houghs Neck recently celebrated its anniversary. In what year was the area granted to Atherton Hough?
5. A shopping mall is in the works for the area at McGrath Highway and Chestnut St., Quincy Center. What is now located at that site?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. John Cheney is chairman of the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers.
2. The Lincoln Hancock School is located at 300 Granite St.
3. Quincy's tax rate for 1980-81 is $242.60.
4. The Snug Harbor School is in Germantown.
5. The Quincy High School sports teams are nicknamed the Presidents.

Inauguration Day Cancellations At Milton

Special Inauguration Day cancellations will be available Tuesday, Jan. 20 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Milton Post Office, 499 Adams St., East Milton.

Milton is one of nine cities and towns that will have the special cancellation available. It was selected because it is the birthplace of Vice-president elect George Bush.

There will be a limit of 50 cancellations per customer. Items submitted for cancellation must bear uncanceled postage amounting to at least the first class rate.

Postal cards at the current rate can also be submitted.

7 Plans To Consider

Task Force Looks At School Closings Jan. 20

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

About 40 community leaders will take the first step in helping to shape the school system of the future at a Jan. 20 meeting with the School Committee.

The new citizens task force will advise the committee on which of the seven reorganization plans before it should be put into effect for 1981-82.

These plans, prepared by School Supt. Lawrence Creedon and school administrators, were presented to the committee Dec. 10.

Drawn up in response to Prop. 2½, the plans would close between five and 14 schools.

Letters were sent by the committee last year to dozens of civic and community groups, inviting those groups to appoint representatives to the task force.

Representatives of the over 40 groups which have responded will be briefed at the Jan. 20 meeting by Creedon and other school administrators on the seven options.

While some of the plans would leave the school system virtually as today, but with fewer schools, others would alter the structure and grade structure drastically.

"The seven plans are not of equal merit," said Creedon. "Some of these plans I can look at and see they're just not the thing to do. But we're looking for money."

The plans would result in budget cuts of between $7.2 million and $8.5 million, depending on how many schools are closed. Each plan includes $6.1 million of various budget-cutting "constants," including an increase in the pupil-teacher ratio layoff of 226 teachers and elimination of jobs for dozens of others.

Mayor Arthur Tobin has told the School Committee that the school system's share of the $15 million cut due to Prop. 2½ will be at least $8.5 million.

"It seems more realistic that it would be $10 million," said Creedon, who said the committee should be prepared to cut as much as $11.6 million from this year's $34.2 million budget.

The School Committee is scheduled to begin the budget-cutting process at a Jan. 28 special meeting.

Changes In Alien Registration

Aliens required to report their current United States address this January may find the procedure more difficult because of changes made by the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The INS has eliminated several thousand postal facilities from its distribution list for Alien Address Report Cards and reduced the number of cards that will be sent to remaining post offices.

Only postal facilities in cities with a significant number of aliens reporting in 1980 will receive cards for 1981, the Postal Service said. Postal facilities which do not receive the cards will not participate in the 1981 program.

Registration cards may be obtained at the nearest Immigration and Naturalization Service office if they are not available at a particular postal facility. The Boston area INS office is located in the J. F. Kennedy Federal Building in Government Center, Boston, MA 02203.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Bills Seek Partisan Elections, Bigger Council

Bills were filed in the State Legislature that would permit Quincy to hold partisan municipal elections and increase the City Council to 17 members, two from each ward and five elected at large.

Neil McDonald, chairman of the Republican City Committee, filed the partisan election bill with the explanation:

"By requiring party nomination all subsequent actions could be attributed to a political party instead of a small group whose activities are only responsible to their own particular clique."

The bill for a larger Council, filed by a group of citizens, was seen headed for a clash with another move afoot that would establish a seventh ward in the northern section of the city.

QUINCY LOSES

Jepsen and Swartz led a last period rally that almost closed a five-point gap but the Quincy High School basketball team bowed to Newton, 24-22. Swartz had 10 points, Jepsen six.

The Quincy lineup: Jepsen, Swartz, Reinhalter, forwards; Follum, Kroesser, centers; Sass, Haynes, McArthur, forwards.

MAYOR'S ECONOMY MOVE

Mayor Thomas J. McGrath, in his first economy move of the new year, directed that some 200 laborers in the water, sewer and sanitation departments be placed on a four-day week.

"The city is faced with a situation that demands drastic action," said the mayor. "I have no alternative but to enforce this measure of economy now."

Meanwhile, the School Committee was considering a wage cut for its employees that would enable the schools to achieve a financial condition to build an addition to North Quincy High School.

JUDA MOURNED

Students at the John Hancock School were mourning the death of Juda, a 13-year-old Collie dog, who had not missed a day of school in the past six years.

Juda had once been given a diploma and promoted to South Junior High School but he soon returned to join the boys at recess play in the John Hancock school yard.

STUDENTS LAUDED

City Councillor William M. Edmonston, speaker at the Quincy Temperance Federation's observance of the 12th anniversary of the Prohibition law, praised 200 Quincy High School students who signed a pledge not to drink liquor or smoke cigarettes.

Obituaries

Services Held For Two Firefighters Killed In Boston Blaze

Separate funeral services were held Saturday for Boston firefighters Paul Lentini and James Gibbons, both of Quincy, who died Jan. 6 while fighting an eight-alarm fire in Boston's Back Bay.

The pair were trapped when the third floor of a building at Arlington and Newbury Streets collapsed.

A funeral Mass was said for Lentini, 32, at St. Brigid's Church, South Boston.

A funeral Mass was said for Gibbons, 31, at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, Merrymount.

Lentini, a former resident of South Boston and Brockton, had been a Montclair resident for three years.

He was a Marine Corps veteran, serving in Vietnam. He was also a graduate of Boston State College, where he was a member of the varsity hockey team.

He had been working towards a master's degree in urban planning and development.

A member of the Boston Fire Department since 1971, he became a lieutenant in 1977.

He was a member of the International Association of Firefighters, Local 718, and the Society of St. Florian.

He is survived by his wife, Paula M. (Sampson) Lentini; a daughter, Kara, 8, and son, Keith, 5; his mother, Anne E. (Mason) Lentini of South Boston; a brother, Louis F. Lentini Jr., of South Boston, also a Boston firefighter; and two sisters, Patricia A. Holloway of Ohio and Elaine J. Audette of Pennsylvania. He was the son of the late Louis Lentini.

The funeral Mass at St. Brigid's was celebrated by Fire Department Chaplain Msgr. James J. Keating. Burial was in Knollwood Memorial Park, Canton.

Gibbons, also born in Boston, was a Merrymount resident.

Named to the Fire Department in 1974, he was a member of the Boston Fire Department Drill Team, International Association of Firefighters, Local 718, and Society of St. Florian.

He was working towards a degree in fire science at Bunker Hill Community College in Charlestown.

He was a coach in the Quincy Youth Soccer League and also active in the Salvation Army Gym Hockey League and the Merrymount Association.

He is survived by his wife, Marie (Foley) Gibbons, two sons, Sean, 8, and Dennis, 5; his parents, James J. and Mary (Granville) Gibbons of Hyde Park; and three sisters, Joan Gibbons of Quincy, Barbara Crawford of East Bridgewater and Maureen Devin of Somerville.

Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Dr. Edward Lamb, 81, Santa Barbara Pediatrician

A funeral Mass was said Dec. 27 in Santa Barbara, Calif., for Dr. Edward J. Lamb, formerly of Quincy, the first health director of Santa Barbara schools and chief of pediatrics for many years at three California hospitals.

Dr. Lamb, 81, died Dec. 24 at St. Francis Hospital, Santa Barbara, after a long illness.

Born in Quincy, he attended the Willard School and was a member of Quincy High School's Class of 1916.

He graduated from Tufts University School of Medicine and went to California in 1923 for his residency at Los Angeles Children's Hospital.

In 1924 he established the Children's Medical Clinic in Santa Barbara and later started well-baby clinics at the Visiting Nurses Association and East Side Social Center.

He was appointed by the Santa Barbara Board of Education to initiate a health department in Santa Barbara Schools, which he served for 20 years as part-time medical director.

He was chief of pediatrics at St. Francis, Cottage and County General Hospitals in Santa Barbara and also assisted in the founding of several free dental clinics in the city.

Husband of the late Mrs. Louise (Thibodeau) Lamb, he is survived by two daughters, Marie Carly and Ann Kistler of Santa Barbara; two sisters, Lora Mannex of Long Beach, Cal., and Ann L. Bough of Milton and seven grandchildren.

Another sister, former Quincy elementary school teacher Grace Lamb, of Milton, died Jan. 10.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at Our Lady of Sorrows Church, Santa Barbara and burial was in Calvary Cemetery.

Grace M. Lamb, 91, Former Schoolteacher

she was a graduate of Quincy High School and Simmons College. She retired from teaching 25 years ago.

She was a member of the Quincy Teachers Association.

Daughter of the late Thomas J. and Laura E. (Wood) Lamb, she is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Ann L. Bough of Milton and Mrs. Lora

L. Mannex of Long Beach, Cal.; and several nieces and nephews. She was the sister of the late Dr. Edward J. Lamb, who died Dec. 24 in Santa Barbara, Calif.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave. Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

George Whittum, 72, Quincy Attorney

Funeral services were held Monday at Atlantic Methodist Church for George H. Whittum, 72, an attorney and long-time resident of Quincy.

Mr. Whittum died Jan. 9 at Milton Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in St. Louis, Mo., he was a Wollaston resident for 70 years.

He was a graduate of Quincy High School and Northeastern University, where he was a member of Sigma Delta Fraternity.

He was a member of the Massachusetts and Norfolk County Bar Associations, Atlantic Masonic Lodge, Atlantic Methodist Church and Northeastern University Alumni Association.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Marion (Purchase) Whittum; two sons, Frederick Whittum of Duxbury and Arthur Whittum of Manassas, Va.; three daughters, Eleanor Jones of Madison, N.H., Sarah Parker of San Salvador, El Salvador and Mary Warner of Halifax. He was also the husband of the late Mrs. Ruth (Purchase) Whittum.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Brothers Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Squantum Church Celebrates Life Of Dr. King

The life and ministry of Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was celebrated in a special service at the First Church of Squantum Sunday.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, spoke to the children about the slain civil rights leader as a Christian hero.

"Dr. King was our brother even though his skin was a different color. He did hard work for Jesus. He had committed himself to making our country a better place to live. He worked for just laws that would treat everyone fairly. Like Jesus, he preached good news to the poor and for them he gave his life. Dr. King was a modern Christian saint, a good example for us."

Dr. Langevin picked up the same theme in his sermon, "Are You the Christ?" The Chancel Choir sang a special anthem dedicated to the memory of Dr. King: "Precious Lord, Take My Hand" with words by Joyce Merman and music by Allen-Ringwald.

Greeters for the morning were Lester and Claudia Young with their children Amanda and David.

Ushers were Tore Wallin, Richard Williams, Paul Paulson and Mark Paul. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Joan Hansen, Mary Scott and Cecilia Stamos.

Sunday's service was held in Fellowship Hall rather than in the sanctuary. After the service, the congregation unanimously approved continuing that practice during cold weather to conserve energy.

"It is not just to save fuel costs either," Dr. Langevin explained. "I think people realize that the fuel we are using to heat the whole sanctuary might better be used to heat people's homes. All of us have to learn to conserve. It is just good Christian stewardship."

Dr. Langevin also mentioned that the congregation of the First Church of Squantum is engaged in a recycling project.

Sunday's service will be held in Fellowship Hall at 10:15 a.m.

Tribute To 2 Fallen Comrades For 3,500 It Was The Toughest Duty Of All

By FRANK MORTIMER

They came not in polished red trucks with sirens shrieking, but in a seemingly endless file of slush-spattered buses.

They came not in high boots and helmets, but in regulation visor caps, black uniforms and dress shoes.

They took their posts not on the run, but walking.

For 3500 firefighters who came to Our Lady of Good Counsel Church on Sea St. Saturday afternoon, it was the toughest duty of all.

No further act of skill or courage could save their fallen comrades. Their duty, now, was to stand in tribute.

Two young Quincy men lost their lives Jan. 6 fighting an eight-alarm fire at 16 Arlington St. in Boston. Both men belonged to Engine Co. 37 in Boston. Both were fathers of two small children.

Firefighter James Gibbons, 31, of 39 Victoria Rd. and Lt. Paul Lentini, 32, of 180 Thimilton Ave. died after the third floor of a blazing five-story brownstone structure collapsed.

The cave-in came without warning. Six men were trapped. Rescue workers cut away fallen timbers, and debris for two hours before freeing Lentini's body. Gibbons' body was found several hours later.

In separate funerals held in succession, each received the biggest tribute to fallen Boston firefighters since the funeral for nine who died in the June 17, 1972 fire at the Hotel Vendome.

Firefighters from all over the state and as far away as Baltimore first paid their respects to Lentini at St. Brigid's Church on East Broadway in South Boston.

Their formation extended two city blocks.

Lt. Lentini grew up in South Boston and part of his family lives there.

Rev. Msgr. James Keating, head chaplain of the Boston Fire Dept., eulogized the Marine Corps veteran who served in Vietnam.

Lt. Lentini lived by the corps motto 'Semper Fidelis,' Latin for 'Always Faithful.' Msgr. Keating said, 'Always faithful to God, always faithful to his beloved family, always faithful to society and always faithful to us.'

Lt. Lentini was buried in Knollwood Cemetery, Canton.

Following the service in South Boston, firefighters again boarded buses for the ride to Firefighters Gibbons' parish in Quincy.

One by one the buses stopped just east of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church. Firefighters wearing black elastic bands over their badges stood in rough formation on Sea St. facing the church immediately upon leaving the buses. By 12:30, a line five men deep stretched several hundred feet west of the church, preparing a path for the funeral cortege. Ten Quincy police officers detoured traffic.

As wet snow capped their hats and shoulders, firefighters stood in silence and waited. Others greeted old acquaintances with sad smiles and handshakes. The air was damp and cold. Organ music was broadcast through a speaker sounded thin unlike organ music.

A few feet away, firefighter Dan Duffy of Engine Co. 24, Grove Hall, supported himself on crutches and watched steadily for the hearse.

Asked why so many men have come so far, he said, 'If we don't turn out, we can't expect civilians to."

Behind him, Nora MacAvoy watched from the church steps, huddled in a knit hat, scarf, and a knee length coat.

She didn't know Jimmy Gibbons. But speaking in a quiet voice with a British accent, she said her own brother, a volunteer fireman, died in 1962 fighting a fire in their hometown of Stoke-On-Trent, England.

"He died in a way like this poor man. He fell through the roof" she said.

TV camera crews moved through the crowd. Fire and government officials gathered at the end of the line of firefighters, directly in front of the church doors.

Among the dignitaries were Mayor Arthur Tobin, Congressman Brian Donnelly, Congressman John J. Moakley, Boston Fire Commissioner George H. Paul, state Senator Paul Harold, Senate President William Bulger of South Boston and Sen. Joseph Walsh of Dorchester.

The loose formation of firefighters and civilians came to a sudden standstill as the slow drum beat in the Boston Fire Department honor guard came within earshot.

As the men of Engine 37 came into view, firefighters saluted and many civilians held their right hand over their heart.

Beside the drumbeat, it seemed like the only sound was made by the wheels of the hearse rolling slowly through wet snow on the pavement.

Friends and family were seated in the front pews of the church. The rest of the church was filled with row after row of men in dark uniforms.

Several hundred heard the service vis intercom in the downstairs auditorium.

Most remained outside listening to the loud speaker.

An officer in the church foyer distributed black and white memorial cards with the heading, "Last Alarm Box 8-1539," the box from which the fatal fire was reported. The card showed firefighter Gibbons in uniform and read, "Appointed July 17, 1974. Died in Line of Duty, Jan. 6, 1981."

It also contained the Second Access Road Sought To State St. South

Quincy and Milton are negotiating for a second access road into the State Street South office complex in North Quincy to take some of the traffic off heavily traveled West Squantum St.

The Quincy and Milton Conservation Commissions will meet Monday, Jan. 19, at 7:30 p.m. in State Street South to continue the discussions that were begun about a month ago.

One access route that is being explored, said Planning Director

James Lydon, is the former Old Colony Railroad right of way that runs through the marsh by the Neponset River.

The right of way, which extends from Granite St. in Milton to State Street South, is owned by the town of Milton and its partly in Quincy, Lydon said.

The meetings between the two towns were initiated by petition of Milton residents, headed by Hugo Sorgi, who lives in the area complaining about traffic on West Squantum St.

Squantum Community Center Schedule

Mary Gougian, coordinator of the Squantum Community Center, announces the center's schedule for Jan. 19-23:

Monday - drop-in day.
Tuesday - drop-in day.
Wednesday - 4-H club meeting, 2:30 to 4 p.m.
Thursday - Blood pressure clinic, 9:30 to 10:30 a.m. and Women's Club Board meeting, 9:30 a.m.

Friday - Women's "stretch exercises" begin today at 11 a.m. senior's day will be held from 1 to 4 p.m., featuring knitting, macrame and socializing.

FALLING THROUGH THE ICE

What would you do if someone fell through the ice while skating on a frozen pond? Perhaps it's more important to tell you what you shouldn't do first. Don't try to pull him out with your hands. You may break through the already weakened ice also. Then it's double trouble.

Get a pole or ladder or long board or similar object and crawl on the ice until you are close to the victim. Lie prone and inch forward. This distributes your weight over a larger section. Extend the pole or board so that the victim can grab it. Pull him slowly forward, breaking the ice if necessary, until he reaches a firm spot. Help him out when you can do so without breaking through the ice.

To prevent frostbite, keep the victim warm with heavy blankets. Bring him inside as soon as possible and give him a warm drink.

Always be wary of frozen ponds, lakes or rivers and never skate alone if possible.

Atlantic Center Seeks Home In Little Building

The five-year old Atlantic Neighborhood Center is casting its eyes on a new home—North Quincy High's now-vacant Little Building.

School Committee members seemed to favor the idea at last week's meeting and instructed School Supt. Lawrence Creedon to work out an agreement with center President and Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon.

Mrs. Condon told the committee that the center is now located at a store front at 245 Atlantic St. after previously being housed at another store front at 150 East Squantum St.

The five-year-old program has continued to expand, she said, "and we are now looking for something a little more permanent."

The little building, located behind North Quincy High on Hunt St., features "more than adequate space," is close to schools and the MBTA and is accessible to the handicapped, Mrs. Condon said.

The building, built in the early 1970's as an annex to North Quincy High, has been vacant since this fall, when renovations to North were completed.

Creedon told the committee that, although he could foresee some uses for the building in coming years, there is no present use for it.

"We have no immediate need for it now, obviously," he said. "It's empty."

Although the center is funded by federal Community Development Block Grants, it is operated through the city planning department, Mrs. Condon. Turning the building over to the center would merely require, "some sort of transfer, I suppose, of title and deed."

For 3,500 It Was
The Toughest Duty Of All

(Cont'd from Page 13)

Fireman's Prayer, which begins
"When I am called to duty, God" and ends,

"And if according to my fate

I am to lose my life

Please bless my your protecting hand

My children and my wife."

Marie Foley Gibbons, his wife, was in the church. His mother, Mary Gibbons, confined to a wheelchair, was also there.

His children, Sean, 8, and Dennis, 5, watched the salute to their father from the rectory across the street, according to Fr. Peter Martocchio, church pastor. He said the children were accompanied by Louis and Nancy Mazzini, friends of the family.

Fr. Martocchio said the children first were not going to watch the ceremony but then decided they wanted to.

Fr. Paul Curran, a first cousin of Mrs. Gibbons, was primary celebrant in the Mass.
Rev. Msgr. William Granvill, an uncle of James Gibbons, concelebrated.

Msgr. Keating again delivered the eulogy.

Bishop Thomas Daily, Vicar

General of the Archdiocese and Bishop Daniel Hart, Regional Bishop participated in the Mass.

Eighteen clergymen wearing white vestments were flanked by a red banner portraying the baptism of Jesus by John. The Holy Spirit descends upon
Jesus as a white dove.

Fr. Martocchio later explained that the banner had been displayed above the altar for some time, and undoubt-ably had been viewed by James Gibbons, a regular church member whose children sang in the Christmas choir.

The baptism scene was especially appropriate now, he said, because "a funeral Mass means a Christian has overcome sin and darkness by virtue of a baptism."

A single tall candle, another symbol of renewal, burned to the left of the white shrouded casket.

Speaking in a forceful voice,
Msgr. Keating said, "From Gibbons' initial assignment with Ladder 22, he developed an extraordinary desire to move to the front lines. Engine 37 was his hearts desire."

"He became a worthy bearer of the Maltese Cross, our profession's badge of honor which stands for prudence, justice, temperance and fortitude. Jimmy was a true Christian warrior, working at his post until the end, protecting the people of his city."

Fr. Martocchio closed the service by extending his personal condolences to the family. He affirmed Msgr.
Keating's homily with the simple statement, "Jim was a strong believer and a credit to his church and family."

After the service, when the church was empty, he said,
"What impressed me about Jim was his strong faith. He wasn't the sort of man who just sent his family to church. He gave them an example."

"The fire department feels a loss. We as a parish feel a loss too."

He added that a church family's sorrow can be forgotten in the midst of a vast pageant.

Marjorie Huntington, a member of a Protestant church, echoed the pastor's words a short time after in her living room at 238 Sea St., directly opposite Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Mrs. Huntington and her husband, Richard, a retired hand letterer, watched the funeral from their house. They saw the firefighters with out-of-state arm patches. They saw the Marine Corps color guard.
They saw the public officials, the TV crews, and the four horses of the Boston Police Mounted Patrol with their blue-helmeted riders.

They saw and praised the fortitude of so many who stood outside despite bone chilling cold and falling snow.

They saw the funeral cortege leave for St. Joseph's Cemetery in West Roxbury.

They heard a bullhorn voice blaring orders in an effort to unrattle 40 buses parked all across Sea St.

But turning from the window, Mrs. Huntington spoke not of procession, not of ceremony.

"The hardest part will be when it's all over and everybody goes home - when they're all by themselves."

She spoke of the grief in the Gibbons and Lentini families, which sympathy cannot heal.
And, time really won't either.

QUINCY JUNIOR COLLEGE

PETER PAPILE (33) of Quincy wins a jump ball against Weymouth North. Other Quincy players include P. J. Fay (10), and Sean Burke (30).

Quincy At Weymouth S. Friday Night

The Quincy basketball team is enjoying another excellent season and when it met cross-town rival North Quincy Tuesday it took a 7-2 record into the game (4-1 in the Suburban League). Friday night the Presidents will play at Weymouth South and next Tuesday will be home to Brookline at the Vo-Tech gym. Both games start at 8.

Steve Priscella scored 22 points and had 12 rebounds Friday night as Quincy defeated Weymouth North, 48-43.

The 6-4 senior forward had help from Shawn Burnes, who scored seven points and had four rebounds.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Waltham, 64-52, but lost Kurt MacDonald, a senior forward who was playing his best game, for a while with a sprained ankle.

MacDonald was fouled late in the game and sent crashing to the floor, his weight resting on his right ankle. He was taken to Quincy City Hospital for x-rays which showed no break, but a bad sprain.

"I always tape both of Kurt's ankles as a precautionary measure," Coach Joe Amoroso said, "because he is so aggressive and gets in big battles under the boards. I hope that helped minimize the injury."

"This was his best game of the year. He had come to realize that he had to do more for us and tonight he was doing everything. He was flying out there and wasn't hesitating up the floor. He was scoring (18 points), was a real force under the boards (11 rebounds) and led the break up the floor a few times. He was doing everything possible for us."

Winless Waltham was never in the game and trailed by as many as 21 points.

Priscella, enjoying another fine year, scored 12 of his 16 points in the first half but, still bothered by the flu, tired in the second half and that was when MacDonald took over.

Amoroso had words of praise for Jim DePietro, who had a fine floor game, had six assists, six rebounds and two steals; Kevin Riggs, a sophomore guard brought up from the junior varsity and was two-for-two from the floor, and Sean Burke, the 6-5 star end in football playing his first season of high school basketball, who had four points and four rebounds.

Raiders Face Brookline

North Quincy's basketball team is off to a fast start and took a 6-2 record (4-1 in the Suburban League) into Tuesday's game with Quincy, which is also 4-1 in the league and 7-2 overall.

Friday night the Raiders will host Brookline at 8 and Tuesday will play at Brockton, also at 8.

North, like Quincy defeated only by unbeaten state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin in the league, rolled over winless Waltham, 60-39, last Friday as Mark Millane scored 11 points and had seven rebounds.

Paul Mallory had a fine game with 10 points and seven rebounds and Bob Bolster contributed 11 points to the Raiders' cause.

Earlier in the week North defeated Newton North, 54-46.

Mallory had another strong game and scored 17 points, while Paul Gill, the team's "quarterback," had 15 points and Millane continued his excellent play with 14.

Beechwood Leads City League

Beechwood Knoll leads the Quincy Recreation Department's Senior High Basketball League with a 3-0 record.

Play continued last Saturday with four games at Broad Meadows Junior High School.

Montclair defeated Atherton Hough, 34-20, sparked by Frank Evans' eight points.

Sterling held off Wollaston to take a 45-53 decision in the closest game as Scott Hanson scored 18 points for Sterling.

Beechwood Knoll, led by Jim Brown's 15 points and Ken Mann's 13, topped Central, 43-27. Central was led by Marty McLaughlin and Kevin White.

Snug Harbor jumped off to an early lead and coasted over Squantum, 58-28.

Sports

Cunniff, Ferestien Win Racquet Club Doubles Title

Marcy Cunniff, of 96 Squanto Rd., Quincy, teamed up with June Ferestien, of West Newton, to win the doubles title at The Racquet Club's Girls 18-and-under Tennis Championships, recently in Natick.

Cunniff and Ferestien defeated Wendy Wood, of Lexington, and Debbie Kaufman, of Waban, 6-2, 6-2 in the finals. Earlier they downed Leslie Sheehan, of Reading, and Debbie Willing, of Winchester, 6-2, 6-2.

Cunniff was also a semifinalist in the singles division. She won both her first two matches 6-0, 6-2, then defeated Lisa Cuklanz, of Wilbraham, 6-3, 6-2 in the quarterfinals before bowing to Connie Yowell, of Southboro, 6-1, 6-3 in the semi's.

Cunniff is ranked 12th in New England in the Girls 18-and-under division by the New England Lawn Tennis Association, based on 1980 tournament play.

Quincy Matmen Win 9th

The undefeated Quincy wrestling team improved its record to 9-0 Monday night with an easy 49-8 victory over Scituate.

Last week the Presidents won three meets, rolling over Stoughton, 49-6; receiving their first test of the season in defeating Norwood, 28-18, and outclassing Westfield, 55-0.

The Presidents, who faced Weymouth North yesterday (Wednesday), will be at Dufree next Thursday at 6:30.

They will hold their annual fund-raising "sit-a-thon" all day Saturday at the South Shore Plaza starting at 9:30 a.m. The team will spend the day doing situps to earn pledges with which Coach Carmen Mariano and his wrestlers hope to further develop their program through the financing of YMCA memberships and scholarships to summer camp for team members.

Against Stoughton Quincy's Al Costigliola won, 12-1, at 107 pounds; Joe Madden won, 12-5, at 114; Jerry McSharry won, 7-1, at 121; Ed Ryan won, 18-2, at 128; Joe Souza won, 12-4, at 140; Al DiVincentis won by pin at 147, John Herald won by pin at 157, Mike Monahan won by pin at 169, Jim Silcox won by pin at 169 and Mark Picot won by forfeit in the heavyweight class.

In the win over Norwood, by far the strongest team Quincy has faced this year, Costigliola won, 2-0, at 107; McSharry won, 2-1, at 114; Mike Miller won by pin at 128, Souza won, 4-2, at 140; DiVincentis won 3-0, at 147; Herald won, 5-0, at 157; Monahan won, 4-0, at 169, and Picot won, 10-0, at 188. For the first time, Quincy lost four matches.

Quincy won its fourth shutout against Westfield as Paul Silcox won, 8-1, at 100 pounds; Costigliola won, 11-4, at 107; Madden won by pin at 114, Mario Venturini won by pin at 121, Miller won, 4-0, at 128; Glen Oriola won, 6-5, at 134; Souza won by pin at 140, DiVincentis won, 11-0, at 147; Herald won by pin at 157, Jim Silcox won, 8-5, at 167; Picot won by pin at 188 and Ed Mackey won by pin in the heavyweight class.

Eight Presidents remain unbeaten, Costigliola (8-0-1), Herald (8-0), DiVincentis (8-0), Monahan (7-0), Picot (7-0), Souza (7-0), Jim Silcox (6-0) and Miller (6-0). -- TOM SULLIVAN

S. Quincy Girl Represents Celtics In Hot Shot Finals

Eleven-year-old Siobhan Sheils of 4 Hillsboro St., South Quincy has advanced through local competitions to representing the Boston Celtics in the Atlantic Division Championships of the National Pepsi Cola Hot Shot competition.

Siobhan took part in the Quincy Recreation Department's local competition as a member of Faxon Park Playground. Hot Shot involves shooting baskets from five "hotspots" marked on one half of a basketball court. The competition tests a youngster's speed, shooting, dribbling and rebounding ability.

Siobhan's next competition will be Saturday, Feb. 7 when she will be challenged by the winners from New Jersey, Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

North Swimmers At Westwood

The North Quincy swimming team will be at Westwood Friday at 3:30 and will be at Waltham Tuesday, also at 3:30.

Bill Walker's Raiders lost to Brookline last week, 97-75, to drop their record to 2-2.

North swept the diving with Mike O'Toole winning, Scott Andrews second and Jack Leone third.

Other North winners were Bill

Feeney, who set a school record in the 100 backstroke, and the 400 freestyle relay team of John Buckley, Dave Riley, Peter Stockless and Tim Burke.

Earlier in the week North rolled over Blue Hills, 125-43, as it won every event.

Paul Phipps was a double winner in the 50 freestyle and 100 freestyle. Bill Boudreau also was a double winner, taking the 200 individual medley and the 100 breaststroke.

Burke won the 200 freestyle, Andrews the diving, Buckley the 100 butterfly, Riley the 500 freestyle, and Ralph Santuosso the 100 backstroke.

Both relay teams also won, Don Johnson, Boudreau, Sean O'Brien and Andrews winning the 200 medley relay and Boudreau, Buckley, Riley and Burke taking the 400 freestyle relay.

North's Chris Butler won, 9-0, at 128 pounds; Lester Gerry won by pin at 134, Gino Pillard won by pin at 140, Jim O'Hair won by pin at 147, Dave Hackett won, 13-8, at 157; Tom Morrill won by pin at 187 and heavyweight Steve Kallenberg won by forfeit.

North Wrestlers Pin Catholic Memorial

The North Quincy wrestling team had to forfeit the first three matches but rebounded to win seven of the next nine to defeat Catholic Memorial, 37-27, last week to improve its record to 3-4.

The Raiders faced Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday), will host Waltham Saturday at 6 o'clock and will be

First Ladies Host Weymouth S.

The Quincy girls' basketball team, which played cross-town rival North Quincy Tuesday, will be home to Weymouth South Friday at 3:30 and will play at Brookline Tuesday at 3:30.

The First Ladies made an outstanding comeback in the second half last week to defeat

Waltham 57-43, in a Suburban League game.

Trailing, 25-14, at the half, Quincy exploded for 43 points in the second half to win going away.

The First Ladies shot only 10 percent in the first half but were hot in the last two periods to take control of the game.

Nancy MacDonald, one of the leading scorers in the league with an average of more than 17 points a game, led Quincy with 16 points and added seven rebounds.

Ann McCarron added 13 points and Linda Brennan had 12. Mary Kamb took down seven rebounds.

Swimming, Diving Program To Begin

Registration is being conducted for free mini-courses in instructional swimming for adult non-swimmers and beginner diving to be held by the Quincy Recreation Department beginning Wednesday, Jan. 21.

The five week courses are part of the recreation department's swimming program at the Lincoln Hancock Community School pool and registration can be made at the pool office.

Instructional swimming will be held Wednesdays at 6:10 p.m. Individual attention will be given to adult non-swimmers.

The diving program will be held Wednesdays at 8 p.m. Participants should be ages eight to 12 and have had no previous diving instruction. Those interested in the course must be capable of swimming one pool length.

Registration for the courses is limited and on a first come, first serve basis.

For more information, contact the Quincy Recreation Department.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

One of the least-known rules in football would cause a sensation if it ever happened... Let's say a player is running down the field in the last few seconds of a game with his team behind by 2 points... He's about to be tackled and can't get out of bounds to stop the clock... So, he suddenly stops running, and drop kicks the ball through the goal posts for 3 points... and his team wins the game... Unknown to most fans, it's legal in the National Football League to drop kick the ball for a field goal from ANYWHERE on the field AT ANY TIME... behind, or IN FRONT of, the line of scrimmage... It hasn't happened because drop kicking went out of style years ago, but the rule is still on the books and a player could legally try it today.

Here's one hard to believe... but it's true... EVERY team in the National Football League has finished in last place in their division in one season or another in the last 20 years... Strangely enough, NO team in the NFL has escaped having a last place finish in their history.

I bet you didn't know... I hat the cold weather is still going to be with us. Shop COLMAN'S for all this cold weather wear you need for the entire family. At COLMAN'S you'll find everything you need at prices that will save you money.

Brockton Loss Heartbreaking For North

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy hockey team, off to its best start in years, suffered its most heartbreaking loss of the season at Brockton last Saturday and Coach Kevin Lewis was hoping the Raiders could rebound yesterday (Wednesday) against Weymouth South.

Saturday night at 7:50 North (4-3 in the Suburban League and 5-3 overall) will seek its second win over Quincy at the Youth Arena.

The Raiders appeared to have at least a 2-2 tie clinched at Brockton Saturday but, with 44 seconds left and North on a power play, a Brockton player intercepted a pass and scored to give the Boxers a 3-2 victory.

"This had to be the toughest defeat we have suffered since I've been coach," Lewis said. "Danny Newcomb, who had another outstanding game in goal, had no chance on the winning goal as the Brockton player went in on him all alone. I just hope the boys can bounce back from such a disappointing loss.

"Right now we are playing the best hockey since I've been coaching. Robby McHugh is flying and scored both our goals

(he has nine this year) at Brockton and Paul O'Sullivan played another outstanding game.

"Our big trouble has been too many penalties and we were hit with a lot more at Brockton. Our penalty killing units have been doing a great job, with O'Sullivan, McHugh, Tommy Lester, Mike McNeice, Bill Nee, Mark Andrews and Bill Bradley excelling in this department.

"Earlier I wasn't sure we could compete with the likes of Brookline, Brockton and Weymouth North, the league powers, but now I'm convinced we can compete with anyone. Every player has been doing his job and I'm very pleased with the way we have been playing."

Earlier in the week North bombed Waltham, 8-3 as McHugh and Mike Cullen each had a hat trick. McHugh also had two assists.

McNeice and Kevin Duff added goals for the Raiders, while sophomore Bobby Lynch and junior Lester each had three assists.

Rick Reinhardt had two assists and Andrews and Duff one apiece.

Newcomb played another fine game in goal with 32 saves.

Quincy, North Square Off Saturday

The Quincy hockey team (2-3-2), following its worst game in some time, played at Newton yesterday (Wednesday) and Saturday will face North Quincy at 7:50 at the Youth Arena.

The Presidents will host Weymouth North next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy had been unbeaten in four straight games (2-0-2) going into last week's game with league champion Brookline, but the team fell apart in every department and absorbed a 9-1 wallpaping.

The Presidents came out strong in each of the first two periods and took a 1-0 lead on Paul Flynn's goal at 2:26 of the opening session. But they let down and Brookline, with Joe McMahon scoring two of his three goals, took a 3-1 lead at the end of the period.

Quincy started strongly again in the second period and played the winners even for the first half with some solid defense by John Baylis and some fine saves by goalie Paul Sarno. But Brookline scored twice more and any hopes Quincy had were gone.

"We started out well," Quincy coach Bob Sylvia said. "Our first line had a good opening shift, we got the goal and then we broke down. Brookline's second goal was the key to the game. We had a power play going and they scored. After that we were unsure of ourselves.

"We have the highest esteem for Brookline. We knew we would have to be at our best but we weren't. It had to be our worst game of the year."

Brookline exploded for four goals in the last period to make a runaway of the game.

"We had a break in the schedule and didn't play Saturday, which should help us," Sylvia said. "We have a chance to regroup and make up for this game. It's a matter of pride. We know we don't have many big scorers and we've got to work that much harder to make up for it. But I think we have that pride."

Quincy will be trying to avenge an opening night 5-2 loss to North Quincy when the rivals meet Saturday.

101.6 and Steve Palumbo, 101.4.

Although Joe Keenan's team won the first half of the league competition with 67 wins and 37 losses, the Mike Shields combine took the remaining team honors with high three string total of 1583, high single string of 566 and best pinfall of 18,894.

The league is in its 31st season of competition and invites men interested to join and participate as a regular or spare bowler.

The league bowls Tuesdays at 7 p.m. at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowldrome.

Potential members are welcome to attend any of the Tuesday evening sessions and observe the league in action.

North Girls Setting Pace

The undefeated North Quincy girls' track team, which last week rolled over Waltham, 69-16, for its third win in a row, met equally unbeaten Weymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) for first place in the Suburban League.

The Raiderettes will face Weymouth North next Wednesday night at 6:30 at Newton North High School.

In the romp over Waltham Linda Kennedy won the 2-mile in 11:48, the second fastest in the league this year, with Robyn O'Donnell third; Sheila Barrett won the mile in 5:26.04, also the league's second fastest time, with Anne Gorczyca third; Mary Crehan won the 1000 in 2:53.2, the league's second fastest time, and Deirdre Donovan placed second in 2:53.7, the league's third fastest time.

Nancy McCarthy and Karen Lindenfelzer were 1-2 in the 600, Mary Kate Kennedy and Mary Gannon 1-2 in the 300, Kathy McCarthy and sophomore Donna Masciulli 2-3 in the 50; Maria McGurl and Siobhan Corrigan 1-2 in the hurdles; Michelle Millane and Caryn Smith 1-2 in the shot put, and Kara Crehan and Mary Kate Kennedy 1-2 in the high jump.

North's relay team of Deirdre Donovan, Lindenfelzer, Linda Morash and Mary Kate Kennedy won in 4:27.6, the best in the league this season.

QJC Upsets Pharmacy, 83-79

The Quincy Junior College basketball team returned from the vacation break and upset second place Mass. College of Pharmacy, 83-79, Monday night in a Greater Boston Small College Conference game.

The victory improved the QJC record to 4-4 in the conference and 4-6 overall and dropped MCP to 5-2.

The Jaguars played North Shore CC last night (Wednesday) and will play at Bridgewater State Saturday night at 7 o'clock. Their next home game won't be until Jan. 28 when they host powerful Hellenic at 7 at the Vo-Tech gym.

Quincy led most of the game against MCP with its biggest margin being 50-43, but MCP took a 75-74 lead late in the second half before Jim Holleran hit on two clutch free throws. Holleran finished with a game high 23 points including seven for seven from the line.

"I had been in a foul shooting slump and an old high school teammate helped me with my shot," Holleran said. The former teammate was Wink Phelan, who worked out with QJC during the holidays.

Also playing well for the Jaguars were center Gene Casper with 20 points, Jeff Marcel with 12, Paul Bandera with 12 and Ed Richard with 10.

The victory was especially pleasing to QJC Coach Brian Buckley.

"We lost to MCP three times last year, once in the playoffs, so this win is particularly satisfying," he said. "At this time last year we were 6-1 and the boys were flying, having won three games by a total of six points. This year we've lost three games by a total of six points and the team was down. They all showed character against MCP and now they are flying."

One of those close losses was to Emerson, 86-83, in which five QJC players fouled out. Dave Brooker explored for 45 points for Emerson, while Holleran led QJC with 21.

Track Club Shines At Dartmouth

The Quincy Track Club put on its finest performance ever in the Dartmouth Relays at Dartmouth College last Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Again the performance of Lianne Supple was the highlight as she placed third in the pentathlon Friday against a field of top collegians. Her 3198 points marked her best performance ever. She also took third in the high jump on Saturday.

Laurenc Andrews took third in the shot put with a 38-8½ effort, her best throw ever, while Michelle Millane finished sixth with a 38-1½ toss her best ever indoors.

The relay team of Maureen Roche, Ellen Regan, Caroline Mitchell and Supple teamed up for a 1:53.4 in the 4x220 and a 4:13.2 in the 4x440. Roche also turned in a fine 27.6 in the women's 200 meter race.

Kelly, Madden, 13, who will officially join the QTC in the scoring, ran a fine 5:01.1 in the mile for fourth place.

Coach Jeff Hennessy won his heat of the men's 800 in his best time of 1:59.9, the third straight year he has taken first in his section.

The QTC girls will compete again in the New England TAC meet at Harvard Jan. 25.

12 Parent Docents Visit Museum Of Fine Arts

A dozen volunteer parent docents representing five elementary Quincy public schools had a conducted tour of selected American and European paintings at the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, over the holiday.

The event was arranged by Mrs. Robin McGoff, elementary art teacher and scheduling coordinator of the Museum Infusion program for all sixth grade Quincy public schools' students, and Richard D. Ramsdell, coordinator of Arts and Humanities for the system and director of the volunteer parent docent program.

While at the Museum, the Quincy volunteer parent docents discussed special works of art with a trained Museum of Fine Arts' docent. The Quincy docents engage students in conversation about famous works of art, leading them to a higher level of appreciation.

The Museum of Fine Arts docent discussed artists' styles, relating them to the time period reflected by the art work as well as the known reasons the particular artist had for creating the specific work of art.

Among the artists' work seen by the Quincy docents were those by Degas, Picasso, Monet, Van Gogh, Renoir and Gauguin, all significant European artists. The Museum docent traced the painting styles over a 500-year span. The Quincy docents were able to see how artists reflected the particular time of history in which they lived, expressed ideas and thoughts.

The volunteer parent docent program was piloted three years ago by Ramsdell at the Merry-mount School with the cooperation of Katherine Norris, principal, and six willing parents. The parents became knowledgeable of selected famous works of art and reasons that motivate artists to express ideas via paint, canvas and brushes.

During monthly briefing sessions for the Quincy volunteer parent docents, Ramsdell points out historical data about each art work under study as a frame of reference for the parents to share with students. This helps the students comprehend artist's work from an intellectual and emotional perspective. The more knowledge the students attain, the better their ability to make a value judgement about that which is under consideration. This thought holds true in many instances and is especially true for some 1,548 kindergarten to sixth grade students from the five schools now part of the expanded volunteer parent docent program.

The 31 volunteer parents working in the program are:

Joanne Potter, Ann Wickberg, Karen Evans, Judi Swanson, Pat McGowan and Delores Rush from Merry-mount School; Claire Manganaro, Barbara Manning, Janet Riley, Priscilla Worley and Claire Rodriguez from Parker School; Barbara Morris, Barbara Foley, Berry Mayo, Beverly Dwyer, Lorraine Cazerare,

Children's Theatre Plays At Woodward School

Two Children's Theatre Workshop plays, written and directed by Diane Purdy, will be presented Jan. 17, 18, 24 and 25, at 7:30 p.m. at the Woodward School for Girls, Quincy Square.

"Cinderella Meets Cindy Ellen" will be presented both week-ends with two different casts. The story involves 20 fairy tale characters and the Sandman who wants children to do more reading.

"Commotion in Clown Castle", Jan. 24 and 25, gives a glimpse of what it's like to be an apprentice clown in a castle with two mischievous elves.

Diane Solander In Junior Miss Pageant

DIANE SOLANDER

Compound.

They will be the guests of civic and service clubs and will participate in a fashion show at Cape Cod Mall where they will model their own Simplicity creations.

Miss Solander plans to study at Boston University for a career in broadcasting.

While at Quincy High School, she has been active in student government, creative writing and gymnastics.

Diane Solander, a 17 year old senior at Quincy High School, is representing Quincy this week at the 1981 Massachusetts Junior Miss Pageant in Hyannis.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Solander of 22 Homer Rd., Merrymount, she is among 26 contestants competing for a share in nearly $2 million in scholarships to be awarded during state finals throughout the country.

Activities began Sunday and will culminate Saturday night with the crowning of the new Massachusetts Junior Miss.

Miss Solander's talent presentation during the program will be a dance gymnastic routine. Judging categories will be mental alertness and judges' conference, poise and appearance, youth fitness, creative and performing arts and scholastic achievement.

The winner will represent Massachusetts at the national American's Junior Miss competition in Mobile, Ala., this spring.

During her stay in Hyannis, Miss Solander and fellow contestants will take part in activities including a tour of Hyannis Port and the Kennedy

Boy Scouts To Hold Theater Party

Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts from Quincy and Milton will gather Tuesday, Jan. 20, at 7 p.m. at the Wollaston Theatre, 14 Beale St., to see Walt Disney's film, "Song of the South."

Families and leaders will join the scouts who are asked to wear their uniforms to the event.

There will be scouting exhibits in the lobby provided by Cub Scout Packs and Boy Scout Troops from the Blue Granite District of Quincy and Milton.

Scouts and their families should contact their scoutmaster or cubmaster for admission coupons, which unit leaders can obtain by calling party organizer Mrs. Mardie Petrosius at 328-8799.

Over 400 boys joined scouting in this district during the 1980 Fall Roundup of new members and more would have joined if there were more leaders.

Any man or woman wishing to become a scout leader or committee worker should contact George Wardle, district executive, at 522-4000.

WEEK OF JANUARY 15

AQUARIUS—January 21-February 19

An up-and-down week. Recent plan might backfire while budding relationship continues to develop. One caution: don't accept any blame too willingly.

PISCES—February 20-March 20

Added burdens are placed on your shoulders—to rest there all week. Someone new in your life can help in crisis. A personal goal appears within reach.

ARIES—March 21-April 20

Simplicity is present keyword—in language, entertaining and style. Don't hesitate to criticize if you have grounds. The longer you wait, the more difficult the job becomes.

TAURUS—April 21-May 22

Disappointment colors your mood; speak out if you feel you've been wronged. What should give you a boost is the favorable financial news you hear by Tuesday.

GEMINI—May 23-June 21

A week of temptations. Be particularly wary of someone trying to extract a secret. Consider novel touches if entertaining. Non-financial bonus possible by Tuesday.

CANCER—June 22-July 22

Good month to make financial plans for next three months. Relative or neighbor may start to nag and, unfortunately, you've little choice but to turn other cheek.

LEO—July 23-August 22

Setting the record straight is week's big job. An excellent time to run for an elected post. Opposing family factions come to an agreement after weekend.

VIRGO—August 23-September 22

Despite complications early on, week is favorable for career. Joint ventures prove profitable if partners listen to each other. In romance, take initiative.

LIBRA—September 23-October 22

A cheerful week for romance; longed-for commitment may be made at last. Rivalry can turn beneficial if it inspires you to go on to much bigger and better things.

SCORPIO—October 23-November 21

Expect to put in lots of overtime; jobs come back for revision meetings are endless. And yet, there is time to make new friend or renew old acquaintanceship.

SAGITTARIUS—November 22-December 22

CAPRICORN—December 23-January 20

Detours and small leaks are indicated till weekend. Sales are accented after Monday, and if that's your line of work you really excel. Week holds string of surprises.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Very traditional, very reliable and very ambitious. Some call you miserly, others call you prudent. Delays slow you down this month but, starting March, achievement is accented in a huge way. Some minor sacrifices may be unavoidable.

BORN THIS WEEK

January 15th, actor Lloyd Bridges, 16th, singer Ethel Merman; 17th, actress Betty White, 18th, actor Cary Grant; 19th, singer Dolly Parton, 20th, actor George Burns, 21st, actor Telly Savalas.

Kelly's Pub Granted Extension

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board voted 4 to 1 Tuesday to grant extension of the common victualer all-alcoholic license for Kelly's Pub & Grub from 25-27 to 21-27 Billings Rd., North Quincy.

Fire Chief Edward Barry voted against the transfer after telling the board he walked the area around the establishment last Friday night and "there wasn't a parking space on the street."

Barry said he was concerned with public safety and the effect of increased parking with the pub's expansion.

However, Building Inspector Allan MacDonald made the motion to grant the license maintaining the expansion would be an improvement over the "vacant blighted storefronts" currently there. MacDonald also said the building would be brought up to code and off street parking requirements would be met.

City Clerk John Gillis, Health Commissioner Dr. Robert McKeogh and Police Chief Francis Finn were also in favor.

The transfer request was continued from last week's meeting to allow input from the Building Inspector on the placement of an entrance for the new area.

Plans originally called for a door at the end of the expanded area. However, Joseph Doran of Doran and Horrigan Realtors, had said he was concerned that the door would be within close proximity of a five unit apartment building being established by the realtors.

A suggestion to move the door away from the apartments had met with objection from Chief Barry.

At this week's meeting, Atty.

Richard Barry, representing pub owner Peter Kelly, said the situation had been discussed with the Building Inspector and a decision was made to situate an entrance in the center of the establishment.

Barry indicated Doran & Horrigan was not enthusiastically in favor of the new entrance location but they were not opposed.

Area resident Roger Lyons told the board while he was in favor of Kelly's progress, he was concerned with the flow of traffic in the area. Alan Lassoff, owner of an apartment building in the area, said there were enough bar rooms in the neighborhood.

City Clerk John Gillis agreed there were parking and traffic problems in the area and that something must be done about them "but not by owners of small businesses."

Squantum, Baharian Decline Invitations

The Squantum Community Association has rejected an invitation by the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, for a private meeting to discuss rezoning at Boston Harbor Marina.

Such a meeting, said SCA President Maureen Mazrimas in a letter to Baharian, "could only serve to undermine the public hearing laws."

"It is our opinion," said the letter, "that such a meeting would only condone those practices which our association has long opposed, namely, the resolution of significant public issues by private meetings of selected individuals."

Instead, Mrs. Mazrimas said, the SCA's executive committee extends an invitation to the Rev. Baharian to attend a public meeting on the matter in Squantum at his earliest convenience.

The Rev. Baharian said acceptance of the invitation "is the last thing I plan to do."

"We had a good hearing on it," he said. "The Board will take action on the zoning changes at the regular meeting Tuesday. I don't know what the other members will do but I plan to vote to approve it."

Marina Industries is seeking to have 21.4 acres of land on the old Squantum Naval Air Base rezoned from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development (PUD) and 18.4 acres from PUD to Industrial A.

The switch would pave the way for conversion of the old hanger area into condominiums. A hearing on the proposal was held last Nov. 25.

"It would appear," said the SCA's letter to Baharian, "from your invitation that you believe the Nov. 25 hearing did not provide an ample opportunity for the community to express its concerns."

"The executive committee agrees with you that the public hearing was not conducted in a manner which permitted a fair and equitable forum for adequate

HN Center Renovations Start Monday

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin announces that renovations at the Houghs Neck Multi-Service Center will begin Monday using federal Community Development Block Grant Funds (CDBG).

The Multi-Service Center, built in 1979 using CDBG funds, earmarked for the Houghs Neck neighborhood target area, "has been so successful that we have had to enlarge the health care facility to accommodate the increase in patients and staff," Tobin said.

Dissident Stockholders Ask Multibank Meeting March 10

Dissident stockholders of the Multibank Financial Corp. have asked for a special meeting March 10 to decide who is going to run the $1 billion bank holding company.

"I assume the present officers will accept the date," said the Rev. Bedros Baharian, who is reported in line for the presidency of the subsidiary South Shore Bank if the group is successful.

The proxy fight pits the dissident Multibank Financial Corp. Stockholders Committee, headed by Abraham D. Gosman of Weston against the controlling group, led by President David B. Lynch of Dedham.

The Gosman group asked for the special meeting the same day as the Lynch group sent a letter to Gosman needing him for his frequent postponements of the request.

"The time for this matter to be brought before the stockholders is long overdue," said the letter.

Baharian, a member of the Gosman group and Quincy Planning Board chairman, blamed the delay on the Lynch faction.

"We would have asked for the meeting sooner," he said, "but Multibank has been suing us, hauling us into court for depositions and intimidating our potential directors."

He said he assumed that the March 10 meeting will be held in the Colonnade Hotel in Boston, where most Multibank shareholders' meetings are scheduled.

Gosman, who has already named a nine-member slate of possible directors, needs to elect 13 to the board to have a majority of two which would enable him to be elected chairman. He said the rest of the slate will be named next week.

The Multibank letter to Gosman said:

"We were interested to read in your Jan. 7 letter to Multibank stockholders that you now intend to request the calling of a special meeting to be held in late February or early March, 1981.

"Nearly five months have elapsed since you first stated your 'present intention' to call for a special meeting.

"On Aug. 30, 1980, the Worcester Telegram reported you planned to request a special meeting to be held in November, 1980.

"On Oct. 1, 1980, you were quoted in The Patriot Ledger, a Quincy-based newspaper, as stating that December, 1980, was your 'target date' for the special meeting.

"On Nov. 10, 1980, your colleague, the Rev. Bedros Baharian, said in a radio interview 'we're shooting for a Jan. 15 to 30 date for the meeting.'

"On Dec. 3, 1980, you issued a press release stating that you would request a special meeting to be held in February, 1981.

"Your threats of commencing a costly and disruptive proxy contest, and your repeated delays, are not in the best interests of Multibank, its stockholders, employees and depositors.

"It would be feasible to hold a special meeting of stockholders in early March 1981, if you make your demand within the next few days. As you know, it will take approximately two months to distribute proxy materials and afford stockholders an ample opportunity to cast their votes. We believe that Multibank stockholders should exercise control over Multibank and that the time for this matter to be brought before the stockholders is long overdue.

"We look forward to your prompt response."

Dunkin Donuts To Locate In Downtown

Dunkin Donuts will have a downtown Quincy location by spring.

Plans were approved by the City License Board Tuesday.

The board granted common victualer and Lord's Day licenses Tuesday for the shop to be located at 1462 Hancock St., a vacant store next to the old Spinning Wheel.

Atty. Richard Barry, representing owner Antonio Andrade of Braintree, told the board doughnuts would be delivered to the shop twice a day from the Southern Artery Dunkin' Donuts also owned by Andrade.

Barry said all deliveries would be to the rear of the building and that was made a stipulation of the license. The only "hot" items sold at the shop, open 5 a.m. to midnight, would be coffee and soup, according to Barry. Andrade told the board there would be no stools around the counter but rather tables and chairs.

Andrade said he expects to open in the Spring.

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association told the board by letter it had no opposition to the shop.

Theme At Quincy Service For Hostages: Think Of Peace And Free

"The plane carrying the hostages has not yet left Iran," said Rev. Keith Munson of United First Parish, host of the service. "That is not important — when it will, it will."

"What is important is that we are here, in the spirit of joy and celebration" he said.

The wait-and-see nature of the celebration was illustrated by Mayor Arthur Tobin's order not to raise the City Hall flag to full-staff "until every last American citizen in Iran is let go from that bondage of captivity."

Representatives of city churches, government and veterans groups asked the approximately 300 persons present to think of peace and freedom, not of revenge.

"Vengeance is mine," says the Lord," said Rev. Winston Clark of Quincy Point Congregational Church. "That means it is not ours."

To Hear Tobin At Special Meeting Money Problems, Layoffs On Council Agenda

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council will meet tonight (Thursday) in a special session amid an aura of secrecy to hear Mayor Arthur H. Tobin list the immediate financial problems that beset the city and what he plans to do about them.

Although no one in authority used the word publicly, there was talk of imminent "layoffs" of city workers to meet an anticipated budget shortfall that could run into the millions of dollars before the end of the fiscal year, June 30. "We have problems," said Mayor Tobin Tuesday. "But I can't enumerate them before Thursday night."

Both Tobin and City Auditor Charles L. Shea said they will ask the Council to discuss matters relating to city employees in executive, or secret, session because they involve labor relations and contracts.

"The advice of the Law Department is that if matters pertaining to collective bargaining are not handled correctly the city is open to an unfair labor charge," said Tobin, indicating that the matters will involve contracts.

In the past, Tobin has proposed that city employee unions might save the jobs of some of their members by foregoing benefits still due under existing contracts.

Tobin said Tuesday that he plans to take the matter to the Council first and then sit down with leaders of the city's labor unions later on.

Councillor Daniel G. Raymond, however, served notice that he may oppose the executive session, the first for the Council in several years, when it is called for a vote tonight.

"There is no way I'm going to vote for executive session," he told his colleagues Monday night when the suggestion was brought up by Auditor Shea.

Seeks $1 Million Borrowing Authority

Tobin Hopes To Free QJC From Prop. 2½

Mayor Tobin plans to set up an enterprise account for Quincy Junior College to free the school from the budget constraints imposed by Proposition 2½.

The plan is part of a package of proposals for the future of the junior college that the mayor is scheduled to present to the City Council tonight (Thursday) at a special meeting.

The Quincy Sun has learned that the mayor will also seek authorization for the college to borrow up to $1 million in anticipation of tuition fees to start each school year.

The package, put together with the aid of Senate Counsel James R. McIntyre as a home rule petition to the State Legislature, will include these points:

- The junior college would be permitted to spend money from its own enterprise account without having to go through the process of appropriation by the City Council.

- The account will be fed by tuition and incidental fees paid by students, except for student government fees, plus money received from the state in the form of school aid.

- The city treasurer will be authorized to borrow up to $1 million in anticipation of tuition and fees — but only if necessary — to make up for the lack of a budget appropriation.

Also on the City Council's agenda for tonight's meeting are a home rule petition that would authorize enterprise accounts for City Hospital and for the Water and Sewer Departments.

The enterprise accounts order was to have come up at Monday's Council meeting but it was postponed to give Palmer Dodge, the city's bond counsel, time to examine it.

City Auditor Charles L. Shea said that Palmer Dodge, which has handled the city's bond issues for many years, is usually called in to go over any legislation that might affect future bond issues.

Several councillors looked askance at Tobin's plan during Monday night's meeting.

New Development Planned For City's North Gateway

The Tobin administration has opened negotiations with a developer who would like to build an office-retail building in the northend of the city.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin declined to name the developer or disclose the site under discussion but he said it would "beautify the northern entrance to the city by cleaning up an area."

Negotiations, he said, have just gotten underway.

$159,000 In Gas, Plumbing

The city Department of Plumbing and Gas Fitting Inspection issued 221 permits for work costing an estimated $159,657 during December, according to its monthly report.

In 194 plumbing inspections, the department issued 116 permits for work costing an estimated $86,472 and collected $596 in fees.

In 151 gas fitting inspections, the department issued 105 permits for work costing an estimated $73,185 and collected $496 in fees.

MDC Gets Okay To Fill 11 Vacancies At Nut Island

The MDC has received approval to fill 11 vacancies on the staff of the hard-pressed Nut Island Sewage Treatment Plant, it was disclosed.

Included in the list of openings to be filled is the post of diesel operator, the lack of which caused some 50 million gallons of partially treated sewage to be released into Quincy Bay on Christmas Day.

Meanwhile, the Federal Environmental Protective Agency was scheduled to start an investigation of the Christmas incident yesterday (Wednesday) at the instigation of Cong. Brian J. Donnelly.

At least one official from the EPA, accompanied by Joseph Rowan of Donnelly's staff, was to tour the plant at the far end of Houghs Neck at 10 a.m. to kick off the probe.

"The EPA's job will be to find out what really happened and to decide how to enforce the federal Clean Water Act in this case," said Donnelly.

And Rep. Thomas F. Brownell filed legislation that would provide for an investigation and study of the plant by a special commission made up of legislators and state officials.

"For too long the citizens of Quincy have had to put up with air pollution, water pollution and tired excuses from the agency responsible for running Nut Island," he said.

"My legislation will uncover any and all existing problems now, before another crisis arises, whether it be manpower shortage or malfunctioning equipment."

The commission would be made up of two senators, four state reps, two appointments by the governor, and the commissioners of Public Works, Public Utilities and the MDC.

The 11 vacancies that were approved were among 18 that were identified as "critical" but were held up in the office of Edward Hanley, commissioner of administration and finance.

They were listed as two assistant treatment plant operators, one machinist, two equipment repair men, three plant attendants, one diesel power operator, and two skilled laborers.

The large number of vacancies at Nut Island was noted as long ago as October when Brownell toured the plant with MDC officials to impress upon them the need to fill the openings.

"I'm pleased that the vacancies are at last going to be filled," said Brownell. "I'm just sorry that it had to come about in this fashion under emergency conditions."

Sunday MBTA Service Saved

Braintree Station and Andrew Station in Dorchester and replace them with buses.

Prior to that, directors were talking about eliminating Sunday service altogether.

"We reviewed the original decision to eliminate all Sunday service," said MBTA Chairman Barry Locke.

The MBTA directors voted Tuesday to preserve Sunday service on the Red Line through Quincy, but in an abbreviated form.

Starting with the spring schedule March 22, trains from Braintree Station will run to Boston from 6 a.m. to 11:48 p.m. instead of the current 6 a.m. to 12:48 a.m.

Originally, directors considered discontinuing all rapid transit trains on Sunday between

Such a wide range of protest was raised against the total elimination of Sunday service that MBTA directors have been meeting to consider alternatives.

Sunday bus schedules for the MBTA have also been rearranged by trimming the operating times from 5:30 a.m. to 1 a.m. and replacing it with 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Would Mean $450,000 Tax Revenue

$24 Million In Development Hinges On UDAG Funds

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Completion of a $14 million apartment-office building at Dimmock St. and Hancock St. and a $10 million office building at 200 Newport Ave. would mean about $450,000 in taxes annually for the city, the City Council was told Monday.

And, they were told, approval of applications for $4.5 million in federal Urban Development Action Grants (UDAG) are the only way either project will be built.

The council took no action on the Planning Department's UDAG applications, although Planning Director James Lydon told them they must be approved before the Jan. 31 filing deadline for this quarter.

Figures are not yet available for a third UDAG sought by the city, Lydon said. However, the $3.5 million application for a 792-space parking garage for the State Street South Forge-O'Connell building, will probably be bought before the council before Jan. 31.

The two UDAG requests, discussed at an information meeting of the council's Downtown and Economic Development Committee Monday, are:

- For $2.1 million to construct a 223-space parking garage adjacent to "Quincy Towers," on the site of the Dimmock Building, at Hancock St. and Dimmock St.

The ten-story twin towers will feature 185 apartments and over 20,000 square feet of retail and office space. Developers of the $14.4 million project are George B. Macomber Company, Nat Martin and David Vagada.

"I think this is a good project for the city," Martin told the council, "it's good for the community, it's good for the people living here."

"Quincy Towers marks the rebirth of the downtown area as a viable residential area," said architect John Sheskev.

But, when asked by Councillor Daniel Raymondi if the project would be built if UDAG funding is rejected by the federal government, Martin said, "no way."

The site, which now raises over $37,000 in property taxes, would bring about $200,000 in taxes to the city if the project were completed.

- For $2.4 million for 200 Newport Ave., North Quincy, an office-garage complex adjacent to the North Quincy MBTA station. The building will be constructed "on stilts," Lydon said, over the existing parking area.

The $13.4 million building will be constructed by South Bay Shore Associates, Grossman Industrial Properties and Mark C. Dickinson.

The council was scheduled to discuss those two requests, plus the Forge-O'Connell UDAG request, at its special meeting tonight (Thursday).

STILL AT HALF-STAFF, the City Hall flag is saluted by a Quincy policeman looking on during Monday's ceremonies celebrating the imminent release of the hostages. Mayor Arthur Tobin changed an earlier order to raise the flag at noon, Monday "until every last American citizen in Iran is let go from that bondage of captivity."

West Squantum St. Problem

Heavy Traffic Draws Complaints

The Quincy and Milton Conservation Commissions met Monday night to listen to complaints by Montclair and East Milton residents about heavy traffic on West Squantum St.

It was the first time that the Conservation Commissions had met on the issue although other bodies had gotten together for informal discussions last month.

"We were not really the people to be called together on this for the first meeting," said Clara Yeomans, executive secretary of the Quincy commission.

"We should have a study made of the traffic before we start looking around for alternatives."

The heavy traffic has been generated by the State Street South office complex.

One of the alternatives that has been suggested is the use of the abandoned Old Colony Railroad right of way along the Neponset River as a second access to State Street South.

Milton residents who attended Monday's meeting indicated their concern that the land, which is now open space, could be used for a road.

Also in attendance were Judie Cullen of the Quincy Planning Department, Reps. M. Joseph Manning of Milton and Michael

W. Morrissey of Quincy, and Constance Cox of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council.

Houghs Neck Girl Discovers:

A Flying Nurse Gets Real Fringe Benefits

By KEITH F. WESTERMAN

For Susan Craig, a registered nurse (RN) from Houghs Neck, Flying Nurses, is not a second-cousin descendant of a defunct television show.

Rather, it is the means by which she travels and lives for free through-out the continental United States, Alaska and Hawaii.

One of 50 nurses working in the company, she chooses the city and state she wants to work in. She is flown there free of charge and lives in free or subsidized housing while earning an equitable salary at her destination.

Why does Flying Nurses offer this? Because it's business, big business. Flying Nurses is one of the few health care service industries which helps staff hospitals, on a supplemental basis, nationwide. It provides hospitals suffering with staff shortages with qualified nurses for a weekly fee of $135. Fees are paid by the hospital, not the nurses. What Flying Nurses offers the nurses it hires is a chance to travel while working at their career.

A lifetime resident of Quincy and a product of its public schools, Quincy Junior College and the Quincy City Hospital School of Nursing, Miss Craig returned recently to celebrate the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Craig at their Edgewater Drive home.

Last week, before she flew back to her present job at the Frank Sinatra Tower of the Palm Springs Hospital, California, she spoke about her wayfaring work and what it holds for her.

"I started with Flying Nurses because I thought I'd combine work and travel," said the pretty and petite blonde. "The job sounded too good to be true. The travel, the pay and the extras...all for working at a different hospital for four to eight weeks at a time. I love nursing and I love going places. It's great!"

She emphasized that Flying Nurses wasn't her life's career. She plans to work with the company for two years in order to learn about herself and the country.

"I am only 24 and where I can visit and the experiences I'll absorb make this job worth the moving around," she pointed out.

Some of her wanderings have already brought her face-to-face with the varied cultures and conditions in this country.

"My first assignment was in a town called Los Banos, California," she said. "It's 75 miles south-east of San Francisco. I saw a lot of poverty there and unfortunate situations you don't see in Quincy. Yet, I wouldn't call it an unpleasant stay. Maybe more of a social education."

From Los Banos, she requested her present hospital job in Palm Springs. She drove up (mileage reimbursed) and, rather than work the holidays, worked out a reciprocal agreement with the hospital.

"Originally I was supposed to stay my contracted four weeks during Christmas but I wanted to come back to Quincy," she said. "So, the hospital flew me home and back and I, in return, promised to work an extra four weeks, with pay of course," she said laughing.

Where will she go from Palm Springs? "They want me to work either in Hawaii or Alaska," she answered. "But, it's too cold for me up north now and I've been to the islands." Instead, she plans to transfer to San Diego, Calif.

As a child, she was not "squeamish" about biology, or so she said, and that's what led her into medicine. "I was always especially fascinated with sea life, living across from the ocean as we (her family) do, and this fascination somehow turned into a nursing career."

Pausing for a moment, she mused, "I suppose if I wasn't a nurse, I'd be a marine biologist."

A registered nurse since 1977, this fascination, be it with mammals or marine life, continues and comprises her main regret about her job as a flying nurse.

"Right now I can't advance academically in my career," she explained. "Traveling precludes schooling."

Because she can't continue her education, she works in the same type of units at the hospitals she goes to and for her nothing could be more 'boring'.

"All the hospitals seem identical after awhile," she said. "But I suppose, that's what work is all about."

But her work doesn't stop her from pursuing her favorite pastime, reading.

"You learn a lot from books," she commented. "Right or wrong, life or death, there's quite a bit...I'm reading Hemingway mostly."

She first heard about Flying Nurses from a colleague. After calling and speaking with the Brownsville, Texas operation, she applied and was accepted.

"They (Flying Nurses) were very hospitable," she said. "What impressed me most though was the fact that the owners were nurses themselves. We understood each other."

And where will she settle after she quells, what she calls, "her urge for going?" The young flying nurse from Quincy plans to journey back home and finish her schooling.

Layoffs, Money Woes On Special Council Agenda

germane to the budget, I would feel comfortable discussing right here. If the auditor needs direction from the Council I'll be glad to give it to him in open session. The city belongs to 90,000 people."

Under the state's open meeting law, the Council must be called to order in open session, then go into executive session by a majority vote of its members to discuss a limited number of subjects, including collective bargaining.

Council President Leo J. Kelly said he expects that the motion for executive session will be made "but I have no idea how the councilors will vote."

Shea declined to comment on the size of the budget deficit that is facing the city, saying only "that's what we'll be presenting to the Council on Thursday. They'll hear it first."

But it is known from testimony given by Chief Francis X. Finn that the Police Department is confronted with a $400,000 shortfall by next June 30 and the Library Department has been directed to trim some $200,000 from its current budget.

Tobin said some of the matters that will be placed before the Council are not new.

"We will be updating some problems that are already known," he said, "like the drastic budget cuts that were made by the City Council last summer. But it is not fair to blame the City Council entirely for our budget problems."

The mayor said Proposition 2½ has had an effect on the city's borrowing power. Investment houses are reluctant to lend large sums of money to municipalities whose income is governed rigidly by law.

Also, he said, the interest charged by banks on short-term loans has soared from a low of 3 per cent to a high of 15 per cent in the brief period of one year. The high rate could not be forecast when the budget was drawn up.

The issue came before the Council Monday night when Councilor Francis X. McCauley asked Shea about an interview on WJDA in which Shea referred to "the city crisis," the possibility that the city would not make it through to June 30.

"Mr. Shea, I was wondering if you have anything to bring before us on this tonight?" said McCauley.

"We will be making a presentation to the Council at Thursday's meeting," said Shea.

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Allowed to be withdrawn without prejudice a request from Ralph D. Zammitt for a common victualer license for Maggie's Luncheonette, 228 Water St., South Quincy. Fire Chief Edward Barry explained the board didn't feel the location of a luncheonette in that area was a good idea, especially with the "bad curve" on Water St. City Clerk John Gillis agreed the location was "almost impossible" and suggested the applicant look for a better site.

- Granted a permit to the Bryan VFW Post for their annual flea market for muscular dystrophy Sunday, March 1, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The post is to check with the Health Department on the serving of food.

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the Maritime Academy Hockey Club for a dance Friday, Jan. 30, 8 p.m. to midnight at the Knights of Columbus hall. Thomas F. McGinnis, representing the group, said the event was being held in Quincy because of the many members of the organization from this area.

- Granted Mrs. Robert M. Crosby of Gifts & Antiques, 107 Franklin St., South Quincy, a license to buy and sell old gold.

- Granted a change of manager for Capitol Liquors, Inc., 150 Parkway, Quincy Square, from Roger A. Lutzy to Denis R. Slawsky of 68 McLean St., Wellesley Hills.

DANGER IN THE FIREPLACE

Normally, the safest place for a fire in the home is in the fireplace. But, unfortunately, it doesn't always stay inside like it should.

A few years back, a Massachusetts family of six perished in a twenty-one room mansion when a smoldering piece of wood was blown from a fireplace onto a rug during the night. Ironically, screens had been ordered for all fireplaces in the house, but had not arrived. Never - but never - operate a fireplace without a screen, regardless of how romantic it may be. It's your best protection from blowing sparks or coals.

Do you need a chimney sweep? Soot burns heartily, and if not removed annually, you're likely to have a chimney fire that can creep through cracks in the chimney wall or send a shower of sparks onto the roof. If the roof is of combustible wood shingles, for example, or if the chimney is unlined, the danger increases.

Multibank Meeting Now Set For March 12

Directors of Multibank Financial Corp. have called a special meeting of shareholders for Thursday, March 12 at 2 p.m. in the Colonnade Hotel, Boston, to settle the fight for control of the $1 billion bank holding company.

The meeting was requested by a group of dissident shareholders headed by Abraham D. Gosman of Weston, and including the Rev.

Bedros Baharian, who are seeking to wrest control from a group led by President David B. Lynch of Dedham.

Shareholders of record on Jan. 26 will be entitled to vote at the meeting.

Gosman asked that the meeting be held on Tuesday, March 10, but the directors decided on a date two days later.

Economist Forecasts Recovery In Late 1981

By TOM HENSHAW

The man whose job it is to forecast the future for the First National Bank of Boston says he is generally optimistic about the American economy.

"1981 is not going to be an especially good year, particularly in the first half," James M. Howell told a breakfast meeting of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at Valle's in Braintree.

"But the second half of 1981 I think will show some economic recovery as the Reagan administration's tax credits come into play in 1982 or early 1983.

"I think the period of the mid-80s starting in 1982 will be years of rapid economic growth nationally and I think there's reason to believe we can share in that here in our region.

"I'm optimistic about the north. I think we've got a lot going for us now. If we do several specific points, we can do even more."

Howell, who is senior vice president and chief economist at the First National Bank, said that one of those points is "our perceptions and our attitudes toward ourselves."

"When I left Texas 25 years ago," he said, "there was a widespread perception that the action was in the north. I'm afraid that's no longer true and it's having disastrous consequences.

"There is a substantial number of the business leadership that is northern-born and northern-educated migrating to the south. We've got to stop that.

"We've got the capital; we've got the people. When we have the attitude to bring all those things into line is up to ourselves.

"Either we can work to insure the north full participation in an era of rapid economic development or we can sit back and become a footnote to the dynamic affairs of our nations."

Howell said Gov. Edward J. King has made a significant impact on the way the people of Massachusetts perceive themselves.

"In his own way," he said, "he has been doing an exceedingly constructive job in persuading us we're not quite so bad off and that's had a salutary effect on capital formation and growth."

Howell said southern New England is afflicted with an unusual labor problem.

"We did a survey of small business firms," he said, "and one out of five of them said that the high school graduates are simply so ill-equipped and unprepared that they won't hire them."

"Two out of three of the rest of them indicated that they will reluctantly hire high school graduates for entry level jobs but they have to be prepared to train them."

Some of the labor problems in Massachusetts, he said, are caused by attractive unemployment benefits.

"In our bank," he said, "there are a lot of entry level jobs at the minimum wage. But there is a very attractive alternative (unemployment compensation).

"If I'm not mistaken that income is not taxable which means you've got to offer considerably more in the viable employment market to be as attractive as that."

"I think there's been a lot of callousness built up in the north about the fact that there is no stigma attached to drawing these benefits.

"The one answer that is most appropriate is to try to imbue into young men and women the aspiration to work and to have a work attitude simply to want to work."

Ward Councillors Standing Pat?

It doesn't look like there will be any big rush on the part of ward councillors to grab off the at-large seat being vacated by Francis McCauley to run for mayor.

Of the six ward councillors only one — Ward 3's John Lydon — is even being mentioned as a possible at-large candidate.

Leo Kelly (Ward 1), Daniel Raymond (2), James Sheets (4) Steve McGrath (5) and Joanne Condon (6) seem content to stand pat (or is sit pat?) this year and seek re-election.

Whether Lydon actually does make a run for the McCauley seat remains to be seen. It's still a little early to make a firm decision.

If Lydon does decide to go, Richard Corner, accountant, and a member of the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers, son-in-law of Public Works Commissioner James (Pete) Ricciuti is seen as a possible contender for Lydon's Ward 3 seat.

LYDON

AT THE MOMENT, Richard Koch, Jr. looks pretty much like a sure candidate for the McCauley seat. He was nosed out by Joseph LaRaia by only 198 votes two years ago in his very first try for elective office.

Mike Faherty who has run before reportedly is considering another bid. And School Committee woman Patricia Toland is also believed giving it some thought.

TOLAND

HISTORY FOOT NOTE: If Frank McCauley is successful in his bid for mayor, he would be the first former school committeeman to hold the job since John L. Miller in 1914.

Only one other member of the School Committee ever rose to the front office in Quincy government and that was Harrison A. Keith in 1899.

In reverse, Charles H. Porter served as Quincy's first mayor in 1889-90, then won a seat on the School Committee in 1892 and stayed for 14 years.

JAMES M. HOWELL, the chief economist for the First National Bank of Boston, is from West Texas and he never ceased to remind members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce of it at breakfast last week, bringing up Gen. Hooker's defeat at Chancellorsville and the praising literacy of Texas A & M over Harvard.

But it remained for Lindsay Tait, the new president of the Chamber, to get in the last word.

"When George Washington was a little boy growing up in west Texas," Tait said, "there was only one tree for miles around. One day his father came home and found that someone had chopped that tree down.

"Who chopped down that tree?" he asked George.

"I cannot tell a lie, father," said George. "I chopped down that tree."

"Well, you just pack up all our things," said the father. "We're getting out of here."

"Why?" asked George.

"Because," said his father, "they don't want anyone in Texas who cannot tell a lie."

TAIT

JACK DONAHUE, retired North Quincy High School football coach, was reported in "good condition" Tuesday in Quincy City Hospital's progressive care unit after suffering a broken hip recently.

Donahue was coach of the high school football team from 1933 to 1960 and since his retirement has been a mainstay at the school's events. Donahue has seen every North Quincy High School Thanksgiving game played. Here's wishing you a speedy recovery, Jack.

OBSERVATION: After getting splattered with mud-like slush by one of those speed jockeys who think pedestrians are fair game, wouldn't you like to turn the corner and find his car stuck in a snowbank with four flats and a leaking radiator? And have him ask you for help!

Quincy Quiz

There are no winners in the Quincy Quiz this week.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. In what section of the city is the Nut Island Sewage Treatment plant located?
2. According to semi-official census figures, Quincy was the ninth largest city in Massachusetts in 1980. In what place was Quincy in the last federal census, in 1970?
3. What is the name of Quincy's Fire Chief?
4. Name the six elected members of the School Committee.
5. In what year was John Adams inaugurated as second President of the United States?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. Francis W. Parker was Quincy's first superintendent of schools.
2. The Myles Standish Cairn is located near Squaw Rock, in the Quantum section of the city. Standish landed there in 1621.
3. The chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority is Rev. William McCarthy.
4. Houghs Neck's 35th anniversary marked the granting of the area to Atherton Hough in 1635.
5. The John Hancock Parking Area is the site of a proposed shopping mall.

Harrington, however, told the council that it could only approve the petition for submission to the legislature, not change it in any way.

"If we approve it for submission, why can't we amend it?" asked Councillor Stephen McGrath.

"Councillor, that is my opinion -- it cannot be amended," replied Harrington.

Councillor Joanne Condon noted that the home rule petition lumped together the three accounts -- for QJC, the hospital and a combined water and sewer department.

"Some of us might have reservations about putting one department out on an enterprise account, but not another," she said. "Is putting them all together really going to give each of them a fair shake?"

"Would it make sense to come in with three home rule petitions?" asked Councillor Francis McCauley. "Then we could vote on the individual items."

"One without the other is not satisfactory," said Harrington, "as it does not accomplish his (Tobin's) end. He is building his budget around the fact there will be no appropriations for these departments."

The accounts will eliminate the need to appropriate about $6 million in the 1981-82 budget, said Harrington, adding "you will be able to translate the $6 million into 200 or 300 jobs."

Councillor John Lydon thought the accounts represented "an erosion of the legislative branch of city government," because the council no longer could control those departments' spending.

"The city still runs them," Lydon said. "If they come up with a deficit, it's still going to come back to us."

And Councillor Joseph LaRaia wondered what chance the petition had of passing the state legislature.

"Have you talked with the legislators?" he asked. "Is this going to die in committee?"

"I can see the mayor blaming all the problems of the city on us if this doesn't go through," LaRaia said.

Democrats To Caucus Feb. 21

Quincy Democrats will caucus Saturday, Feb. 21, to choose delegates to attend the State Democratic Issues Convention in Springfield on April 11.

The Ward 2 Committee will caucus at 2 p.m. in the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd.,

Quincy Point, to choose 12 delegates.

The Ward 3 Committee will caucus at 2 p.m. in the Community Room at 125 Granite St., Quincy, to select 11 delegates.

Sun Wins New England Press Award For Drug Series

Quincy Sun staff reporter Tom Henshaw has won a New England Press Association Award for his "blockbuster" series on the drug problem in Quincy.

Henshaw was awarded third place in the Best Feature category in competition with weekly newspapers throughout New England.

Contest judges said they felt the 15-part series, which ran in The Sun from Feb. 21 to May 29, was entered in the wrong category. Had it been entered in the Public Service or Special Award category, they said Henshaw probably would have won first place.

The judges called the series "a blockbuster" and "a valuable public service". Their comments, in part:

"Tom Henshaw's series is a blockbuster. Before the 15 weeks were out, the articles had generated their own news reaction to Judge (Albert) Kramer's statements, for instance — which in turn became part of the series."

"This is a valuable public service but the judges felt it was entered in the wrong contest division, Division VI, Community Service, or Division VIII, Special Award, would have been more fitting."

"The writing is a straightforward news style . . . In another contest division Tom might have carried off first place."

Contest winners were announced to more than 750 editors, publishers, newspaper and guests at the association's 32nd annual Awards Dinner Friday night at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel.

Some 2,500 entries were submitted by daily and weekly newspapers in New England. The competition is New England's largest newspaper contest.

The Quincy Sun had won two previous New England Press Awards. Photographer Steve Liss won a first place award for top news photo and a second place for a feature photo.

Two years ago, The Sun won the National Newspaper Foundation's Blue Ribbon Award for being "an outstanding community newspaper."

The Sun, since its founding in 1968, has won numerous community service awards.

In the New England Press feature category in which Henshaw won third place honors, Eileen Kuperschild of the Berkshire (Pittsfield) Sampler took first place. Second place went to Ric Kahn of the North Shore: Sunday in Danvers. And honorable mention went to Lois McNulty of the Amesbury (Ma.) News.

The Patriot Ledger also won a third place award in the feature category for daily newspapers in The largest 25,000 to 95,000 circulation class. The writers were Sue Scheible and Marilyn Jackson.

Bob Cubie of the Patriot Ledger won an honorable mention for best local column; Fred Keenan of the Patriot Ledger a second prize for sports photography; Dick Trust of the Patriot Ledger a first prize for best sports story.

The Ledger also won first prize for best editorial page, third prize in the special award category, second prize for special sections, third prize for living pages, and third prize for business reporting.

Quincy Says 'No' To Rapid Transit

A proposed South Shore rapid transit system that would tie in with Boston's Metropolitan Transit Authority at Savin Hill drew the opposition of public officials in Quincy.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa noted that the South Shore Transit District would be capitalized for $20 million, an expense that could fall on Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hingham if the plan failed.

"It doesn't have a chance of passing in the Legislature," said Della Chiesa, "unless those communities assume part of the current MTA deficit which is running in the vicinity of $17 million a year."

MCCORMICK APPOINTED

James F. McCormick Jr. was appointed to the School Committee, succeeding Paul K. Duffey, who resigned to become general manager of the East Coast offices of the Federal Sign and Signal Corp. in Philadelphia.

City Solicitor Douglas Randall handed down the opinion that Duffey's successor had to be selected by the remaining members of the School Committee, choosing the highest of the defeated candidates in 1957.

Former School Committeeman Carter Lee said he thought that under the new Plan A charter the choice of "any suitable person" had to be a joint session of the City Council and the School Committee.

Randall's opinion prevailed.

9 Firms In Race

Hearings On For Quincy's Cable Television License

Nine companies have entered the last lap in the race for Quincy's lucrative cable television franchise.

Public hearings will be held tonight (Thursday) on the applications of three of the companies, Quincy Cable-systems (7 p.m.), Rollins Cablevision (8 p.m.) and Metro-cable of Quincy (9 p.m.).

The turns of Comcast Cablevision (9 a.m.), American Cablevision (10 a.m.) and Bay State Cablevision (11 a.m.) will come Saturday morning in the City Council Chamber.

Quincy Cablevision, Norfolk Cablevision and Adams Russell Telecommunications were heard during the first public session on Tuesday night.

Each company is given 30 minutes to make a presentation of its application followed by a 10 to 20 minute period in which the Mayor's Cable TV Committee and the public can ask questions.

There will be a general question period for just the public on Saturday from 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. during which time representatives of all nine companies will answer questions.

Tonight's hearings promise to be the most exciting since Quincy Cable-systems and Metro-Cable of Quincy have listed some prominent local investors on their applications.

Shareholders in Quincy

Cablesystems include Lawrence F. a member of the City Hospital Board of Managers; former Mayor William Paul C. Kelly and Sheriff Clifford Marshall.

Investors in Metro-Cable include the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Quincy Planning Board; former Mayor Walter J. Hammon, and Plumbing Inspector Ralph J. Maher.

After the hearing, the Mayor's Committee, headed by George Riley, will take the applications under advisement and make a recommendation to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

Tobin has said he hopes to select the winner of the franchise in early March.

Mid-year Examinations Scheduled

Mid-year examinations will be administered in North Quincy High School, Quincy High School, and Quincy Vocational-Technical School Wednesday through Friday, Jan. 28-29-30.

Examination schedules are published in the schools. Attendance will be taken at each examination.

Lunches will be available in the cafeterias.

Second term marks close Friday, Jan. 30, in the junior and senior high schools.

Report cards are to be issued to students in the junior and senior high schools Friday, Feb. 13.

VETERAN'S COUNCIL President and City Clerk John Gillis (at podium) offers a "thank you" to those participating in Monday's service. Looking on behind him are past American Legion State Commander and Chairman of the Board of Assessors John Comer (left) and Mayor Arthur Tobin (right).

ABOUT 300 PERSONS including the combined choirs of Quincy and North Quincy Highs (in balcony) attended Monday's service at United First Parish Church celebrating the hostages' release. Speaking at the podium is Rev. Steele Martin of Christ Episcopal Church.

Think Of Peace And Freedom — Not Revenge

Because the hostages were not yet out of Iran, Tobin changed earlier plans to raise the flag from half-staff at noon.

Tobin thanked the city's clergy and school administrators who helped put the ceremonies together on short notice. He first proposed the service to Rev. Munson at 8:30 a.m. Monday.

By noon about a dozen clergymen, and the combined choirs and combined bands of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools were ready to take part in the service.

"We've kept a vigil for these hostages for these many months," said Tobin. "It was the clergy of our city that led us through that most trying time. We've kept a faithful watch, but now we celebrate."

John Comer, city assessor and past Massachusetts state commander of the American Legion, commented, "I thank everyone, but really we have to thank Almighty God — he made it all possible."

"Hate does not take care of anything," said Comer. He reported hearing an interview with the mother of one of the hostages on the radio that morning.

"She asked the people of the nation to think kindly of the people of Iran, if that is possible. Coming from the mother of a hostage, I think that's kind of special," he said.

"Let us also think of the seven heroes who gave their lives in an attempt to free the hostages," Comer said. "Though we might tend to forget them, they are heroes, too."

"This is a joyous occasion for us to gather in this historic church — the Church of Presidents" said Rev. Daniel Graham of St. John's Church. "This day could have been in the reverse — we could have been at war. Let us give thanks to God for the blessing of peace."

"Let us ask our Lord to imbue with wisdom the persons whom we entrust to lead our nation, and the leaders of all nations, so that we may all live in peace and with justice towards each other," said Rev. Steele Martin of Christ Episcopal Church.

Rabbi David Jacobs of Temple Beth El read the Psalm of David, which he called "a psalm for returning home." The psalm read, in part:

"I extol you, O Lord, for you have lifted me up and not let my enemies rejoice."

"Lord, My God, I cried out to you and you healed me."

"O Lord, you brought me up from hell and prevented me from going down into my grave."

Rev. J. William Arnold, interim minister of Bethany Congregational Church, asked, "What is freedom?"

"Soon the hostages will be able to express their freedom openly — and I am grateful and glad for that."

"Soon, they will be able to enter their own homes, order their favorite meals and sit in their favorite chair — things that every human being desires."

"They will be able to walk the streets of their own town, attend their own church and worship God as they please."

"Freedom is to be able to go home."

Thanksgiving Service For Hostages At Wollaston Nazarene Church

A special service of praise and thanksgiving in celebration of the release of the hostages was scheduled for last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, 37 East Elm Ave.

The service was to feature special music by the brass ensemble of Eastern Nazarene College and the church choir.

Drain Outfalls Sought In Sagamore Creek

Forge-O'Connell Properties is seeking permission from the Army Corps of Engineers to build storm drain outfalls in Sagamore Creek, North Quincy, in conjunction with construction of the Monarch II office complex.

The five planned outfalls would involve placement of about 35 cubic yards of crushed stone and 25 cubic yards of riprap in the wetland adjacent to the State Street South office building.

Monarch II is the second of three office buildings planned in the area by Forge-O'Connell, composed of the O'Connell Brothers of Quincy and the Monarch Insurance Co. of Springfield. Ground was broken for the nine-story, $14 million building in November.

The Corps of Engineers is seeking public comment on the proposed outfalls.

Comments should be submitted in writing to the Corps at 424 Trapelo Rd., Waltham, Mass. 02154.

Fund Set Up To Monitor Squantum Land Development

A group of Quincy residents, led by the Squantum Community Association, have set up a fund to insure what they consider proper developments of the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

More than $500 was collected at the first meeting last week and several thousand dollars were pledged for future contribution.

Maureen Mazrimas, president of the SCA, said the money will be used to hire an attorney to review past and future practices pursued by developers at the Boston Harbor Marina area.

Mrs. Mazrimas said she feels that the time has come for an unbiased group to insure that the Marina is developed in accordance with land use principles rather than the needs of a developer.

The group discussed a pending request by Marina Industries to have the city purchase Commander Shea Blvd., from Jordan Marsh as a second access road into the marina area.

It was agreed that, in light of Proposition 2½, it is important that the financial backing of any developer be examined closely lest taxpayers be called on to "bail out" poorly financed projects.

Paul Clasby Re-elected President Association For Handicapped

Paul Clasby of 90 Alvin Ave.,

Wollaston, was recently re-elected president-treasurer of the Massachusetts Association For Handicapped Children at a recent meeting.

Also re-elected was Clerk Richard P. Ward of Milton. Clasby, Ward, Joseph Clasby, Edward Graham and George B. Mathieson were elected to the Board of Directors for 1981.

Gerard Coletta, Peter Eley and Joseph McLaughlin were admitted as members of the organization. The association's "Christmas in November" party for students of the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton was discussed, as well as additional ways to raise funds in the coming year.

The association is a non-profit group that raises funds for hospitals and institutions serving handicapped children. There are no paid employees and all expenses are supported through membership dues.

NQ Parents To Discuss Prop. 2½ Effects

The North Quincy Parent's Council will discuss the effects of Proposition 2½ on school at a Thursday, Jan. 22 meeting.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Trophy Room at North Quincy High School. All interested persons are invited.

"ALL-AROUND NICE GUY" award is presented to Thomas McDonald of North Quincy, past VFW State Commander, by Rita Kelleher (left) past president of the George F. Bryan Post Women's Auxiliary. An evening at the Bryan Post was held to honor McDonald's birthday, his retirement from the Post Office and his selection as an Outstanding All-American VFW Department Commander. Looking on is McDonald's wife, Natalie.

Morrissey Named To Oversight Committee

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has been named to the legislative Committee on Post Audit and Oversight, which will start probing the shortage of gas in Massachusetts next Wednesday, Jan. 28.

Morrissey, who is starting his third two-year term in the House, also was reappointed vice chairman of the Urban Affairs Committee by Speaker Thomas W. McGee.

The Urban Affairs Committee will start its hearings Monday, Jan. 26.

"The new spot on Post Audit and Oversight will give me a closer look at state agencies and their workings," said Morrissey. "It is the only legislative committee with subpoena power."

"The Urban Affairs Committee deals with the MDC and various housing issues that deeply affect all of the citizens of Massachusetts. These are two areas I am deeply interested in and will be able to keep on top of."

Paul Bregoli Jaycees' Outstanding Young Man

Paul Bregoli of 80 Willow Ave., Quincy, has been selected by the U.S. Jaycees as an Outstanding Young Man of America for 1980.

The award recognizes men across the nation who have shown outstanding professional achievement, superior leadership, ability and exceptional service to the community.

Bregoli, a teacher at the Mass. Fields School in Quincy, is a lifelong resident of Quincy and is married to the former Carolyn Jay, also of Quincy.

Bregoli is active in the North Quincy Youth basketball program and the North Quincy Kickers Youth Soccer League and is coach of the North Quincy boys' soccer team and the girls' basketball team.

Mr. and Mrs. Bregoli recently received their Masters Degree in Counseling at Bridgewater State College.

On Sept. 24, 1980, Mrs. Bregoli gave birth to their first child, Christopher Jay, at St. Margaret's Hospital.

Grandparents are Franklin and Ida May Jay of 249 Highland Avenue, Quincy, and Louis and Dolores Bregoli of 57 Rita Road, Braintree.

Eleanor King Installed Quincy, S.S. Realtors President

Eleanor King, of Daniel A. Brown, Jr. realtors of Braintree, was installed as president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors at the 43rd inaugural ball held at Wollaston Golf Club recently.

Samuel J. McDonald, honorary member of the board, served as toastmaster for the evening. George H. Brenner, president of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, acted as installing officer.

Mrs. King was presented a Senate citation honoring her installation by Sen. Paul Harold and an honorary Deputy Sheriff's badge by Joseph Grant, representing Clifford Marshall.

Also installed were First Vice-President Daniel A. Lauria of Braintree, Second Vice-President Richard F. Cahill of Quincy, Secretary-Treasurer Stedman C. Beckwith of Quincy and Directors John Abdelahad of Braintree, Vito A. Barresi of Quincy, Virginia M. Crismond of Quincy, Arthur W. Foley of Quincy, Kari Keith of Braintree, Richard G. Nowlan of Braintree, George H. Raymond of South Weymouth and Lorraine D. Walsh of Braintree.

Milton H. Shaw, executive vice-president of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors, recognized the past presidents of the Board in attendance and made a presentation of a gift and plaque to immediate past-president George H. Raymond. After receiving the plaque, Raymond thanked those who assisted him in his year as president.

Dick Donovan Opens Quincy Real Estate Office

Dick Donovan, the former major league pitching star, has opened a real estate office at 20 Whitney Rd., Quincy Center, dealing primarily in residential properties on the South Shore.

Donovan, who is a member of the South Shore Board of Realtors, formerly was with the Jack Conway Co. where he was credited with more than $1 million in transactions in his first full year.

A native of Quincy, he pitched in the major leagues for 15 years for the Boston Braves, the Chicago White Sox, the Cleveland Indians and the Washington Senators until he retired in 1965.

He won 20 games and was American League pitcher of the year with Cleveland in 1962 and pitched for Chicago in the 1959 World Series, which the Sox lost to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

He led the American League pitchers in earned run average with the Senators in 1961 and he was voted to the American League all star team on five different occasions.

When he retired from baseball, Donovan became an account executive with Bach & Co., a member of the New York Stock Exchange. He became first vice president and manager of the

DICK DONOVAN

Boston office.

He left Bach & Co. to join Jack Conway in 1979.

During the past year, he obtained his insurance brokers license and completed studies in appraisal of single family homes. He is taking advanced courses in real estate at the Graduate Realtors Institute.

Donovan makes his home in Cohasset with his wife, Patricia, and their children, Peter 16 and Amy 13.

Hancock Group Net Income up 23% In 1980

Hancock Group, holding company for Hancock Bank, reports net income for the year ended Dec. 31 of $1,598,784 or $5.71 a share.

This represents an increase of 23 percent over 1979 earnings of $1,303,928 or $4.66 a share.

President William E. Kelley said net income for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1980 was $577,024 or $2.06 a share compared to $390,727 or $1.40 a share for the fourth quarter of 1979. There were no sales of securities.

Total deposits rose to $129,289,931 at Dec. 31, 1980 from $120,589,678 a year ago. Total assets reached $157,307,619 in comparison to $144,773,537 on Dec. 31, 1979, Kelley said.

Hancock Bank, headquartered in Quincy, operates banking offices throughout Norfolk County from South Weymouth to Plainville.

Northeastern Student Starts Own Cleaning Service

Most students try to get summer jobs to help put themselves through college.

But one student, Ken Leitch is starting his own business. He is a third-year student at Northeastern University and this year for his co-op program he has started the K.D.L. Cleaning Service.

He already has several contracts in the Quincy Square area and is looking for more. Specializing in office and retail jobs, he is willing to work anywhere on the South Shore.

The starting of his own company, maintaining records and supervising his own employees will give him excellent experience — and will also give his customers "the cleanest windows in town," he says.

To reach him call 472-3000 and ask for Dave Leitch.

North Edges Quincy, Rolls By Brookline

North Quincy's basketball team, which last week defeated Quincy and easily topped Brookline, took a 8-2 record (6-1 in the Suburban League) into Tuesday's game at Brockton.

The Raiders will play at Weymouth North Friday night and will host Weymouth South Tuesday, both games at 8 p.m.

Last Friday Ed Miller's high flying Raiders defeated Brookline, 70-50, in a game which was called with 21 seconds left after an altercation between a North and a Brookline player which spread to both benches and involved fans who poured on to the court.

"It was an unfortunate incident and I'd rather not talk about it," Miller said. "Brookline's coach (Bernard Johnson) apologized and it is over with. I don't think it should be built up."

Mark Millane had another big night for North with 21 points and 6-9 junior Chris Bunker played his best game with 12 points, four blocks and 10 rebounds. Paul Mallory scored 16 points and Paul Gill, the team's "quarterback" had 11 points and eight assists.

"The boys played an excellent game and it was too bad it had to end like it did," Miller said.

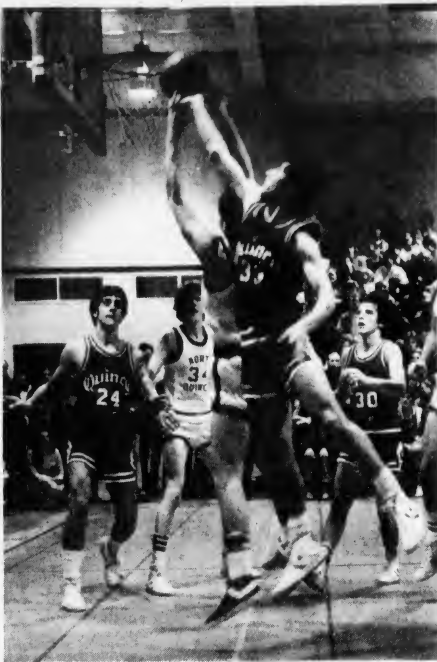

Several Quincy police cruisers responded and the Brookline bus was escorted to the Quincy line by MDC police and a Quincy cruiser.

Earlier in the week North edged Quincy, 61-57, in one of the best games ever played between the rivals.

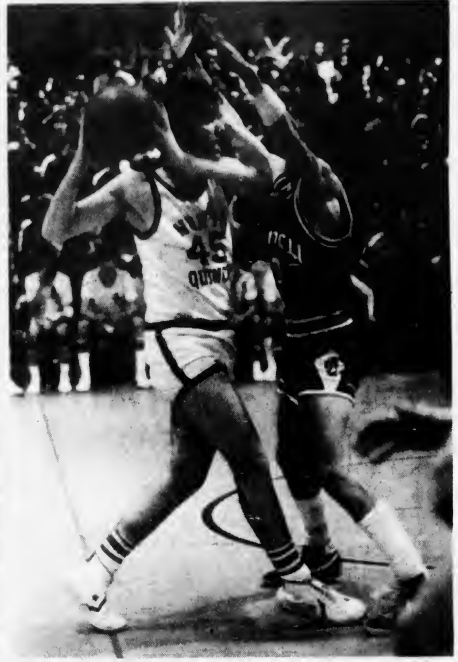

Quincy Coach Joe Amoroso said "the fans were the big winners tonight. They saw a real great high school game."

The score was tied seven times in the second half as the city rivals met for the first time since North upset Quincy in the opening round of sectional tournament last year.

"Gill was outstanding for us with those four free throws and a big assist under the basket in the final period," Miller said. "But it was a real team effort and it was a big game for us, being at home. We wanted to be one up on them before we had to over there."

North was up, 15-14, after a period and still held a one point lead, 27-26, at the half.

Quincy came back and took a 43-41 edge into the final period.

Gill hit on two free throws to tie it up and, after Quincy again went up by two, Gill again sank two more foul shots to tie it at 45.

With the score tied at 51, Millane hit on two outside shots, then sank two free throws to put North up for good, 57-51.

Millane had 19 points, Gill and Rico MacTaggart 10 each for the Raiders.

Quincy Squeezes By Weymouth S., 63-61

Quincy's basketball team came back after losing to North Quincy last week to squeeze by Weymouth South Friday night and met Brookline Tuesday with an 8-3 record (5-2 in the Suburban League).

The Presidents will host Brockton Friday at 8 p.m. and will play at Newton North Tuesday at 3:30 p.m.

Joe Amoroso's Quincy team barely survived Friday against Weymouth South after dropping a hard-fought decision earlier in the week at North Quincy.

Steve Priscella gave the Presidents a 63-61 decision with two free throws with 21 seconds left in the game.

Coast Guard Boating Course Begins Jan. 29

The U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary's 13-week safe boating course will begin Thursday, Jan. 29 at the Braintree Yacht Club. Classes will be held each Thursday at 7:30 p.m. All boaters and boat owners are invited.

Braintree Yacht Club is located on Gordon Rd. off Quincy Ave. in East Braintree. For information, call 843-1422 evenings.

winners tonight and they saw one great high school game."

North was up, 15-14, after a period but Quincy had something to smile about. MacDonald, the senior forward who had been taken to the hospital with a bad ankle sprain in the final minute of the Waltham game," returned, scored three baskets in the first period and went on to score 22 points, high for the game.

North still led, 27-26, at the half, and the score was tied up seven times in the second half. Quincy received a tough break when 6-5 center Sean Burke fouled out early in the third period and the Presidents had to play without him for the first time. But the Presidents kept battling, took a 43-41 lead, again led, 45-43, and stayed even until North pulled ahead to stay, 57-51.

Priscella kept up his fine play and had 15 points for the Presidents.

Beechwood, Sterling Montclair Tied For Top

Beechwood Knoll, Sterling and Montclair are tied for first place in the Quincy Recreation Department's Boys Senior High Basketball League with 3-1 records.

Last week Sterling fought off a Beechwood Knoll rally to take a 39-38 victory. Tony Chicellio had 14 points and Scott Hansen 13 for Sterling. Ken Mann paced Beechi with a game-high 16 points.

Montclair, with Bill Barter and Bill Gray scoring 12 points each, defeated Central, 47-33. Steve Evans added 10 points for Montclair, while Central was led by Gary Brown and Paul Quigley.

Snug Harbor topped Atherton Hough, 42-26, for its second straight win after losing its first two games. Mike Mattson led Snug Harbor with 22 points, and Coach John Mariano had high praise for his team's outstanding defense.

First Ladies Defeat North, Weymouth South

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy High girls' basketball team, under first-year coach Peter Swanson, is enjoying a fine season and took a 6-3 record (all in the Suburban League) into Tuesday's game with Brookline.

The First Ladies, who defeated North Quincy last week, will play at Brockton Friday and will be home to Newton North Tuesday. Both games will start at 3:30 p.m. Quincy is led by Capt. Ann McCarron, who had been slowed down by a leg injury but who has come along fast and is the team's number two scorer.

"Ann is outstanding on defense and intimidates the opposing players," Swanson said. "We play a woman-to-woman defense and she is the spark."

Nancy MacDonald is the team's top scorer and one of the league's leading scorers with an average of 17 points a game.

"We use a press a lot and Nancy continually steals the ball and scores on easy layups," Swanson said. "We don't feed her, she earns all her baskets."

The first-year coach, who succeeded Barbara Webster, explained that Linda Brennan runs the offense and controls the ball. She handles the pressure on offense.

Maureen Walsh is an outstanding defensive player and center Mary Kamb is the top rebounder who also is starting to shoot well.

Marie Callahan is another good defensive player who plays both guard and forward. Nancy Chludzinski is strong on defense and plays both forward and center. Michelle Riggs has come along well and is a fine backup center. Sophomore Mary Ann Agres is a fine utility player and shoots well. Rounding out the squad are Susan Callahan, Ellen Deady, Mary Kussman, Tricia Travers and Janet Witham.

"Everybody gets a chance to play and we usually use at least 10 girls in every game," Swanson pointed out.

Last Friday Quincy defeated Weymouth South, 58-48, as MacDonald was the game's high scorer with 25 points. The First Ladies trailed at the half but used a tough defense to win it.

"Defense is our strong point," Swanson said. "We score less than most of the other teams, but our strong defense carries us through."

Earlier in the week the First Ladies used their pressure and strong defense to good advantage as they defeated North Quincy, 46-

38. "Our goals were to keep (Joanne) Runge away from the basket and to keep (Julie) Watts from getting inside to grab the rebounds," Swanson said. "Mary Kamb got in early foul trouble and Nancy Chludzinski and Michelle Riggs did a fine job on Watts. We kept the pressure on and Nancy MacDonald again stole the ball several times and scored on layups."

MacDonald scored 17 points and McCarron played well on defense as did Walsh.

The Quincy girls this year are playing at the Vo-Tech gym after playing in the old and smaller high school gym in the past.

"Interest has picked up and we usually fill one side of the bleachers at the Vo-Tech gym," Swanson said.

The coach paid tribute to the parents, who have formed a Parents Club and are giving the girls' outstanding support.

"The parents are doing a tremendous job and their support means so much to the girls," Swanson said. "They are planning a banquet at the end of the season and they are just great."

George Colarusso is the club president and Mrs. Ruth MacDonald the treasurer.

Kelly Wants To Preserve Softball Field

Council President Leo Kelly has asked that the softball field adjacent to the Great Hill School be designated park property.

The council sent Kelly's request to the Engineering Department, to determine the bounds of the playing field.

"The field is used by many neighborhood groups, male and female, adults and youngsters," said Kelly. "I just intend to preserve the field for future use."

Kelly, Ward 1 councillor, represents the Houghs Neck neighborhood where the closed school is located.

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Here's a question you can have some fun with... The Super Bowl has been played in 6 different stadiums in its history, and naming 5 of those stadiums is fairly easy, but most people can't name all 6... The Super Bowl has been played at the Coliseum in Los Angeles, the Orange Bowl in Miami, the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Tulane Stadium and the Superdome in New Orleans and the tough one to get Rice Stadium (and NOT the Astrodome) in Houston... Super Bowl 8 was in Rice Stadium.

Who's the only head football coach in history to lead teams from 2 different cities to the Super Bowl? ... Answer is Don Shula... He was head coach of Miami in the Super Bowls of 1972-73-74, and he was head coach of Baltimore in the 1969 Super Bowl.

What's the biggest bet anyone ever won on a sports event? ... The world record was set in 1975 when a man won at odds of 4-MILLION to one... He bet the equivalent of 50 cents on a soccer pool in Brazil and won over 2-million dollars... The biggest gambling loss ever at one time was reportedly by a European industrialist who lost over 1-million dollars in 5 hours at the casino in Monte Carlo.

I bet you didn't know... that COLMAN'S is having a gigantic sale on skis, boots, bindings, poles and all the ski accessories you need... at prices you won't believe. Equipment for everybody... low, low prices for everybody.

North Girls Rebound To Bomb Brookline, 58-36

The North Quincy girls' basketball team bounced back from its loss to Quincy to wallop Brookline, 58-36, last Friday, improving its Suburban League record to 5-3 and its overall mark to 7-3.

The Raiderettes will host Weymouth North Friday and will play at Weymouth South Tuesday, both games at 3:30.

Julie Watts had another outstanding game against Brookline with 25 points and 11 rebounds. She has averaged more than 18 points a game in the last four games.

Watts scored eight first period points as North pressed its way to a 14-4 lead. Kim Alberti and Anne McElaney added six and five points respectively as North increased its advantage to 31-15 at the half.

However, the Raiderettes again went into a third period slumber and allowed Brookline to close the gap to 39-32. Again Watts took over, scoring nine fourth quarter points. JoAnne Runge added five points and Jackie Thayer three as the Raiderettes pulled away.

Thayer, who started the game for defensive purposes, shut down Brookline's leading scorer, Darsie Reynolds with a tight man-to-man defense.

Sophomore guard Debbie Kiley also played well, pressuring the Brookline guards into numerous turnovers. McElaney came up with her best effort of the season, scoring seven points and rebounding well.

"This was the first in a stretch of four critical games for us," said Coach Paul Bregoli. "We needed this win badly, but we are going to have to play better basketball if we're going to move up in the standings."

Earlier in the week North lost a hard-fought 46-38 decision to Quincy.

The First Ladies jumped off to a quick 8-0 lead and North finally broke the ice with two free throws by Tricia Meehan. The Raiderettes then ran off 14 unanswered points to take a 14-8 lead midway through the second period. High scoring Watts had five points during that stretch. Alberti hit on a jumper and a free throw and Meehan followed up a missed shot for another key hoop. Quincy came back to take a 17-15 halftime lead.

The third period proved the Raiderettes' downfall as they shot a poor 1 for 11 from the floor. Only Watts' 5 for 7 foul shooting kept them close.

Down by 11 going into the final period, North cut the margin to six as Runge came to life, scoring nine of her 10 points in this period.

Watts was immense in this game, scoring 15 points, taking down 14 rebounds and blocking four shots. Alberti had six points and played her best defensive game of the year. Meehan, a junior guard, played her best game, scoring five points and handling the ball well.

North Overcomes Deficit To Tie Quincy, 3-3

North Quincy's hockey team overcame a 3-0 deficit and tied Quincy 3-3 Saturday night at the Youth Arena to win the city championship for the first time in history.

The Raiders had topped the Presidents, 5-2, earlier.

North (5-4-1 overall and 4-4-1 in the strong Suburban League) will play Newton North Friday at 6 o'clock at the Watertown rink and will then be idle until Jan. 28 when it hosts Brookline's defending league champions at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

The Raiders found themselves down, 2-0, early when Quincy scored twice off faceoffs. Quincy led, 3-0, after the opening period.

North scored twice in the second period, Billy Nee scoring with assists for Mike McNeice and Dean Phillips and Paul O'Sullivan scoring with Mark Andrews and Bob Lynch assisting.

With three minutes left in the game Lynch scored from the point with Phillips assisting. Both are sophomores.

"I was pleased with the way the boys bounced back," Coach Kevin Lewis said. "They were still down after their heart-breaking loss to Brockton and a poor showing against Weymouth South. But they showed a lot of desire and it was good to get the tie and the city title.

"Danny Newcomb played another excellent game in goal and stopped two breakaways and Andrews, O'Sullivan and Bradley continued to play fine hockey."

Earlier in the week Lewis' fears of a letdown after the tough loss at Brockton were realized as nothing went right for the Raiders and Weymouth South rolled to an easy 7-0 win.

Penalties Hurt Presidents

The Quincy hockey team (3-3-3), following a disappointing tie with North Quincy last Saturday, faced Weymouth North yesterday (Wednesday), will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin Saturday at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will meet Waltham next Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the Watertown Rink.

Penalties killed the Presidents Saturday as they took a 3-0 lead in the opening period but had to be satisfied with a 3-3 tie.

It was the first time North, a 5-2 winner in their earlier meeting, had ever won the city championship.

Bob Lynch tied the game for North with 2:07 remaining in the game on a power play.

Quincy was hit with eight penalties in the opening period but managed to kill them effectively. However, they wound up with 24 minutes in penalties in all and they caught up with them late in the game.

"You can only hold off the hands of time so long under that kind of pressure," Coach Bob Sylvia said. "We only have two sets of penalty killers and I think that first period took something out of us and we ran out of gas at the end. You can't take that many penalties and expect to bail out."

Sylvia, whose own goalie, Paul Sarno, played a fine game, had words of praise for North goalie Danny Newcomb. "After that first period, he could have been shaky, but he regained his composure and kept them in the game," he said.

Quincy's first two goals were unusual, both coming off faceoffs.

Senior Ed Powers scored both, flipping the puck past the surprised Newcomb from the left circle.

Quincy went up, 3-0, on a goal by Paul Flynn, on which Ken Ryan and Kevin Craig assisted.

Sarno made his two best stops in the first period, stopping Mike McNeice's bullet from the left wing, and sprawling to cover up as Billy Nee attempted to put in a rebound.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Newton North, 6-4, with Ryan scoring the winning goal at the 11-minute mark of the final period.

Craig, who earlier in the year had a four-goal game, had a hat trick and also assisted on the winning goal. Dave Picot and Steve Kamb had the other goals for the Presidents.

QJC Downs North Shore, 82-75

The Quincy Junior College basketball team won its second game in a row, 82-75, defeating North Shore Community College last week to improve its Greater Boston Small College Conference record to 5-4.

The Jaguars will host Hellenic College next Wednesday night at the Vo-Tech gym at 7 o'clock. Hellenic, unbeaten in the conference, is coached by Greek Olympic coach and former Northeastern University coach Richard "Duke" Dukeshire.

Jim Holleran scored 31 points to pace QJC against North Shore, while Ed Richard had 23.

The game was close with the teams tied at 35 at halftime. Midway in the second half with the Jaguars leading, 52-50, a North Shore player committed two flagrant technical fouls which resulted in four QJC free throws. Ed Hanratty hit on three of the four and QJC led the rest of the way, at one time by as many as 15 points.

"That was the turning point," said QJC Coach Brian Buckley, referring to the technical foul shots. It gave us a big lift when Eddie hit those three shots."

North Girls Off To Another Good Track Start

There appears to be no stopping the North Quincy girls' track team.

The Raiderettes, who were 7-0-1 last year, champions of the Suburban League and state co-champions, are rolling again. When they met Weymouth North yesterday (Wednesday), they had a 4-0 record.

The North girls will compete in the Girls' Coaches Meet Friday and on Friday, Jan. 30, they will face Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 5 p.m. at Northeastern University.

Lou Tozzi's Raiderettes were expected to be tested severely last week when they faced equally unbeaten Weymouth South. Both teams were 3-0 going into the meet.

However, the North girls won all but one event in rolling by Weymouth by a surprising 59-28 score.

The Weymouth girls won only the hurdles, preventing a North sweep.

"We have a highly motivated team," Tozzi said. "We have seven or eight superior athletes, but also 30 other people who chip in. There's a lot of enthusiasm and that's what enables us to win."

Weymouth Coach Dean Souke had nothing but praise for North. "I thought it would be closer," he said. "My kids worked really hard and we have a good club, but North Quincy has a great one."

Sheila Barrett won the two-mile in 11:46 with Robyn O'Donnell third, Mary Crehan won the mile in 5:31.1 with Linda Kennedy second, Mary Kate Kennedy won the 300 in 44.1 with Mary Gannon third, Michelle Millane as usual, won the shot put at 39-11 with Kathy McCarthy third, Kara Crehan won the high jump at 5 feet with Mary Kate Kennedy second, Nancy McCarthy won the 600 in 1:44.1 with Karen Lindenfelter third, Deirdre Donovan won the 1000 in 3:34.0 with Ann Gorczyca third, Kathy McCarthy won the dash in 7.2 with Laura Coughlin third, Maria McGuri was second in the hurdles and North's relay team of Lindenfelter, Mary Kate Kennedy, Barrett and Mary Crehan won in 4:23.2.

OPEN HEARING

City of Quincy

Department of Planning and Community Development

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin cordially invites the public to attend a hearing to review the Quincy Towers, North Quincy Air Rights, and the Forge-O'Connell Properties III Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) applications being made by the City of Quincy's Department of Planning and Community Development. The purpose of this hearing is to receive comments and suggestions from citizens and residents of Quincy regarding urban revitalization and community development needs. The hearing will be held on Wednesday, January 28, 1981, at 7:30 P.M., City Council Chamber, City Hall.

The Urban Development Action Grant is a federally-funded program administered by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to aid distressed cities in combating physical deterioration and in fostering economic development activities.

David Roth To Present Trumpet Recital At ENC

David Roth, a senior at Eastern Nazarene College, will perform a baccalaureate recital in trumpet Saturday, Jan. 24, at 8 p.m. at Wollaston Church of the Nazarene on the college campus.

The free recital will include Sinfonies de Fanfares by Jean Moret. Prayer of Saint Gregory Hovhanness, Adagio in Sol Minor by Gigzotto, Solo de Concours by Charlier, Sonata in C by Purcell, Sonata for Trumpet, Bassoon and Basso Continuo by Prentzel, and Concert Etude, Op. 49, by Goodicke.

Lois Van Dam will accompany Roth on the organ.

The public is invited.

$12,000 Raised From Thayer Academy Auction

Nearly $12,000 was realized from the Thayer Academy Alumni Association auction recently where 104 donated items were sold for the endowment of an alumni/ae association scholarship.

When sufficient funds have been raised, the scholarship will be given each year to an outstanding entering ninth grader for the four year upper school.

The scholarship will be in the name of a distinguished alumnus to be chosen by the association board.

Top bids were made for a seven day trip to Island Bay Plantation, Virgin Islands, headmaster Peter Benelli's French cuisine dinner for eight, and a diamond and emerald dinner ring.

Humorous posters designed by Gail Buccini of Quincy illustrated items and inspired bidding.

Lyn Brooks Wey of Hingham was general chairman and Bruce Minevitz also of Hingham was acquisitions chairman. Auctioneer was Louis Cook of Halifax and Plymouth.

No Flea Market

License For Montello's

A request from Montello's, Inc., 53 to 61 Mass Ave., Quincy Point, for a license to conduct an indoor flea market was denied at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn motioned to deny the request after no representative from Montello's appeared at the meeting.

A petition signed by 31 area residents and abutters opposed to the flea market had been submitted to the board.

The residents opposed granting of the license because of the potential traffic and parking impact on Mass Ave. and other streets, and the close vicinity of other establishments that hold functions on Saturdays and Sundays when the flea market was to be held.

Morey Pearl Granted Video Machine License

Morey Pearl Restaurant, 572 Southern Artery, was granted a license for one video game at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

The license was granted with the stipulation that the corporate structure of Melo Tone, which is to supply the machine, is the same as when that information was submitted to the board a year ago, and that there be no obstruction of exits or entrances.

WEEK OF JANUARY 22

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
A week for tying up loose ends and tending to host of mini obligations. Don't initiate programs unless you're totally committed. Best times are in small groups.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
Careful planning brings results, especially in areas of travel and education. New developments take place in personal relationships, indicating change for the better.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
If considering an important lifestyle change, hear a lot of opinions and think carefully about each. Relative can be friend—just give him/her a chance.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
You become aware of your untapped resources, and added drive makes week financially rewarding. Entertainment is specialty; host a party for two... or for 20.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
An outgoing attitude brings new interests. Respect from subordinates increases. It may be impossible now to ignore family feud, especially if it concerns youngsters.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Solo efforts are your most successful this week, it's not the time to count on anyone for favors. You may now discover new route to important goal.

LEO - July 23-August 22
An outstanding week for expanding your social circle. A coworker could shock you with his/her lack of understanding. Weekend obligations are less boring than feared.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
One conflict is resolved as another is sparked during this sometimes tense week. Older friend offers wise financial counsel. Could be asked to repay very old favors.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
You can effectively express ideas on subject related to ethics or philosophy. But economics is another area; financial perception is low so consult pro on money matters.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
You're absolutely inspiring—establishing sense of excitement and anticipation about any job you begin. Unfortunately, you also show surprising difficulty in adding final touches.

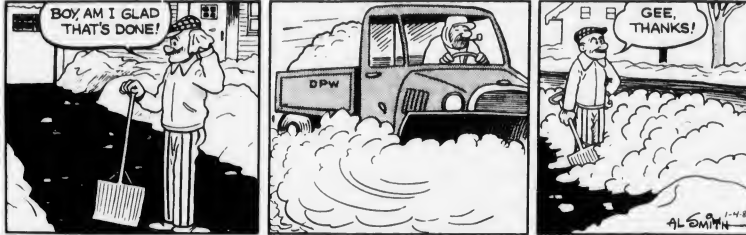

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
It's not easy to be deceived about the true motives of friends and neighbors. At work, reputation is at peak and your suggestions now have considerable impact.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Focus is on entertainment, with Capricorn on center stage. Loved one may ask you to join him/her on trip but it may not be your idea of fun. Creative solution might backfire.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
Friendly and very willing, but also unpredictable and stubborn. You're a humanitarian... and sometimes a rebel. Year ahead offers more opportunities than usual to enter into a partnership—either personal or business.

BORN THIS WEEK
January 22nd, actor Bill Bixby; 23rd, actor Randolph Scott, 24th, singer Neil Diamond; 25th, actor Dean Jones; 26th, singer Eartha Kitt; 27th, dancer Mikhail Baryshnikov; 28th, actor Alan Alda

Reaction:

'Peace Is What We Really Want'

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The service was great — but having the hostages home is even better.

That was the reaction of persons attending Monday's service of thanksgiving at United First Parish Church celebrating the imminent return of the hostages.

As of Monday noon, the hostages' release was "snagged" by various technicalities. They were finally released Tuesday.

"This will be a great day — I hope it comes off," said former Councillor and State Representative Joseph Brett of Wollaston outside the church. "I've got to get back to my car radio to find out what the story is now."

"I hope people think of peace, now that we have our hostages back," said Mrs. Josephine David. "Peace is what we really want, not revenge."

"Has it been settled yet?" asked Bob Nelson of North Quincy. "I hope it's finally over."

He pronounced the service "fantastic — it's great to see our young people taking part in something like this."

"We've been hoping and hoping and thank God it finally seems to be over," said Mrs. Barbara Wigmore of Quincy Center. She called the hastily organized service "very inspiring — I'm really glad I came."

"Now that we seem to have the hostages back, I wonder what we're going to do about it," said Ralph Morris of West Quincy. "Probably nothing."

"This is certainly and truly a day of thanksgiving," said Wilbur Roper of Braintree. "All of us have been waiting for this day. God has answered our prayers."

"We're all just so thrilled that it's finally over," said Mrs. Mari A. Marcantonio of North Quincy. "But I won't uncross my fingers until I see them get off that plane."

Council Wants More Info On Choking Aid Posters

City Councillors appeared mystified Monday night by Mayor Arthur Tobin's request that restaurants be required to display posters illustrating emergency aid to choking persons.

Several councillors questioned the wisdom or the necessity of the proposed ordinance before voting to ask Tobin to clarify his request.

"I don't think we, as a city, should be putting up paraphernalia so that unqualified persons may be jumping on someone and possibly harming them in the long run," said Councillor Daniel Raymond.

"I agree that people should be trained in preventing someone from choking," said Councillor John Lydon. "But I doubt, that if someone were choking, that a person could help them because of something that's posted."

Councillor Joanne Condon observed that a state statute already requires restaurants serving 25 or more persons to post a similar poster and to have a qualified person on the premises.

"It is not, unfortunately, mandated that these people have to use these methods," said Mrs. Condon.

The council voted to send a letter to Tobin, asking him to explain the need for such an ordinance and also voted to ask the Licensing Board to report to them on it.

LEGAL NOTICE

MASSACHUSETTS WATER RESOURCES COMMISSION
DIVISION OF WATER POLLUTION CONTROL

110 TREMONT STREET
BOSTON, MASS. 02108

PUBLIC NOTICE OF SEWER EXTENSION PERMIT APPLICATIONS

The Massachusetts Division of Water Pollution Control has received applications for permits for construction of sewer extensions or connections to the municipal systems listed below. Section 43 of Chapter 21 of the General Laws, as amended by Chapter 546 of the Acts of 1973, requires that public notice be given of every permit proceeding.

The applications are available for inspection and copying at the Division's offices at the above address. Persons desiring to comment upon or to object to the tentative determination of the Division or to request a Public Hearing thereon should submit their views in writing to the Division at the above address within 21 days of publication of this notice. All comments received within this 21-day period will be considered by the Division in formulating the final determination regarding these applications. A Public Hearing will be held only if the response to this notice indicates, in the opinion of the Director, that the public interest would be served thereby.

Following this 21-day comment period, a final determination to issue or deny the proposed permit will be made by the Director of the Division with respect to each permit application. Where the final determination remains substantially unchanged from the tentative determination indicated in this public notice, the Director will so inform the applicant, and any person who has filed written comments during this 21-day comment period, of his final determination and of the right of any party aggrieved by the final determination to request a formal adjudicatory hearing within 14 days of the final determination.

Where the final determination is substantially changed from the tentative determination in this public notice, the Director will publish a public notice of the final determination in addition to the written notice provided above. Persons other than the applicant who feel they may have a right to and may wish to request a formal adjudicatory hearing should file written comments during the 21-day public comment period in order to assure receipt of written notification of the final determination.

Within 14 days of the final permit determination, parties (as defined in sections 1, 10 and 10A of Chapter 30A of the General Laws) aggrieved by the determination may file a written request with the Director for an Adjudicatory Hearing under the provisions of Chapter 30A (the Massachusetts Administrative Procedure Act) and the Standard Adjudicatory Rules of Practice and Procedure (801 CMR 1.00).

Reikard Fights Eviction

Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the Rent Grievance Board, has filed a $300 bond so that she can appeal her own eviction from the rooming house where she and her husband have lived for seven years.

Joseph Tretola, owner of the house at 51 Miller Stile Rd., obtained an eviction judgement against the Reikards in District Court but they served notice that they will appeal to Superior Court and request a jury trial.

Judge Lawrence D. Shubow denied a request by counsel for Tretola to set a maximum $3,000 bond for the appeal on grounds that high bond would be a deterrent to appeal.

Citing sewage, drainage and traffic concerns, about a dozen residents opposed plans for 138 condominium units in West Quincy Tuesday.

Developers of Stoney Ridge

Residents Oppose West Quincy Condos

Village, between Centre and Bartlett Streets, however, told the Planning Board that plans would adequately address the area's sewage and drainage problems.

Three "retention ponds" to catch rainwater and holding tanks for use during peak sewage periods would ease the development's effect on West Quincy said Richard Rheume of GHR Engineering.

Russell Kelcourse, of West Quincy, broker for the developers, told the Planning Board that Stoney Ridge Village would generate about $250,000 in real estate taxes "and enhance the esthetic value of the area."

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets opposed the plan, saying, "this issue is, first you improve the sewer system, you improve the water drainage system, then you look at these kinds of projects."

Fred Prezioso of 34 Roberts St. said "If this project gets through, we might as well all get boats - we'll think we are back in Italy."

The 138 units would be built in two phases, according to architect Michael Ross of Braintree:

The first includes 52 units of 2-story town houses, to be followed by an 86-unit, six-story "mid-rise".

Prices of the condominiums would begin at around $65,000, Kelcourse said.

Board members took the residents' comments under advisement.

Rev. Baharian commented "my feeling is that the six-story residence is a little imposing for the rest of the development - although I do like bulk residences."

Board Backs Marina Rezoning

It took only a matter of minutes for the Planning Board to end 58 days of discussion by voting Tuesday to recommend rezoning of 39 acres at the Squantum Marina.

Board members voted unanimously to support the rezoning of 18.4 acres from Planned Unit Development (PUD) to Industrial A and 21.4 acres from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development.

That rezoning had been opposed by members of the Squantum Community Association, who rejected an invitation from Planning Board Chairman Rev. Bedros Baharian to meet with him privately to discuss the action.

The switch, if approved by the City Council, would pave the way for the development of the old hangar area into condominiums.

Board members noted a letter from Planning Director James Lydon supporting the rezoning.

At Willard School

Students Write Hostages: 'Welcome Back To Freedom'

While almost everyone was posting or wearing yellow ribbons to welcome the hostages home, fourth graders at the Willard School carried it one step further.

Students in Mrs. Alice Lindblad and Mrs. Jeannette Halloran's classes each wrote to one selected hostage, welcoming them home.

Some of the students' letters are as follows:

Dear Mr. Graves,
I'm writing to you because I'm glad to have you released from Iran. We are decorating the school windows with the welcoming of the hostages. Please write back.

Sincerely,
Scott O'Brien

Dear Mr. Gillette,

It will be good to see you and the rest of the hostages when you are home. Your family will be glad to see you and you will be to see them. We made yellow ribbons for you and the other hostages.

Your friend,
Robbie Carroll

Dear Sergeant Hohman,

My teacher is hanging up yellow ribbons on all the windows in the school. She's giving all the teachers and the fourth graders ribbons to put on everyone's shirts. I was hoping that you would come back. I saw you coming out of the plane on TV.

Sincerely,
Dennis Plant

Dear Mr. Golaciniski,
Welcome home. How are you? I always prayed for you.

$4 Million Budget Deficit 700 City Employees Face Possible Layoff

By TOM HENSHAW

As many as 700 city employees could lose their jobs soon.

This is made plain in a letter from Auditor Charles L. Shea to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, dated Jan. 14, parts of which were read to the City Council by Tobin last Thursday night.

But the section in which Shea dealt with the probability of losing 700 jobs was left out by the mayor.

Shea's letter, which detailed an expected budget shortfall of between $3.5 and $4 million by the end of the current fiscal year ending June 30, said:

"It is imperative that the city cut back sharply in its spending or we will experience payless paydays long before June 30.

"It would seem that the best course of action for the city in the fiscal year would be to cut back on spending in the amount of $4 million.

"The bulk of this cutback, at least 80 per cent, would have to come from personal services.

"If done by Feb. 1, this means about 700 jobs."

Shea went on to say that borrowing to offset such layoffs is not possible but that "enactment of the sewer use charge could reduce this job loss."

The sewer use charge, contained in a Tobin proposal to create an independent Quincy Water and Sewer Commission, was on the agenda for the Council's Finance Committee Tuesday night.

Also in the Tobin package, which was presented to the Council last week, were proposals to set up special revolving accounts for City Hospital and Quincy Junior College.

Such special accounts would make those institutions, plus the Water and Sewer Commission, independent of the annual tax levy and therefore exempt from the restrictions of Proposition 2½.

Members of the City Council were divided in their views on the package, which would take the hospital, the junior college and the water and sewer divisions out from under Council financial scrutiny.

"It's pretty obvious what the mayor is trying to do," said Finance Committee Chairman John J. Lydon Jr. "He's trying to save as many jobs as he can by removing these departments from the tax levy.

"But my main concern is that the proposal removes from the City Council approximately 25 per cent of the budget. There is a large transfer of authority within the legislation.

"I oppose removing that check and balance between the legislative and executive branches."

"I'm concerned that we maintain checks and balances," said Councillor James A. Sheets, "but we have maintained them in the past and look what happened. I'm not pleased with the track record of the hospital.

Cable TV Decision Possible Thursday

The Mayor's Cable Television Advisory Committee meets tonight (Thursday) and there could be a decision on which of seven companies receives the lucrative franchise to wire up the city of Quincy.

"We could come to a decision Thursday night," said Chairman George Riley, whose year-old committee will meet at 4 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall for perhaps the last time.

"If one of the companies is head and shoulders over the rest in the opinion of the committee members," said Riley, "we might just submit that one name to the mayor as our recommendation.

"If we can't come to a conclusion, I might just ask the members to list their preferences, one-two-three, and submit the lists to the mayor and let him make the judgement."

Riley said he was disappointed at the small public turnout for the hearings into seven applications which were conducted on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of last week.

"The general public really hasn't had any input into this at all," he said. "It didn't seem as though anyone wanted to come out. The same people, most of them with vested interests, showed up."

The hearings did manage to trim the list of applicants from nine to seven when Rollins Cablevision of Massachusetts and Bay State Cablevision dropped out on the days they were to be heard.

Riley said neither withdrawal unexpected.

Bay State's problems arose from the fact that its chairman, Benjamin Rabin of Fair Lawn, N.J., resigned after he was charged with violations of securities exchange laws.

The charges did not involve Bay State.

"Rollins gave no reason for dropping out," said Riley, "but their final application did not go into much detail. They were not in the running and it appeared that they knew it."

The remaining companies are MetroCable of Quincy, American Cablevision (ATC), Quincy Cablevision, Adams Russell Telecommunications, Quincy CableSystems, Comcast Cablevision, Norfolk Cablevision.

WELCOME-HOME PACKAGE for the 52 hostages is wrapped in yellow ribbon, courtesy of the South Shore Bank. The 320-foot long, three-foot wide ribbon was wrapped around the bank's ninth story Saturday morning.

Kennedy Steers For Vote

Committee Members Head For Decision On School Closings

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

School Committee members seemed headed for a decision Wednesday night on seven reorganization plans that could close five to 14 schools for the 1981-82 school year.

"It seems to me we have been talking about this and thinking about this long enough," said committee Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy. "We should be ready to make a decision. I'm going to try to steer the committee into a vote on this Wednesday."

Other committee members, while differing on some points, agreed the time has come to decide.

The seven reorganization options were drawn up by School Supt. Lawrence Creedon and other school administrators in response to Proposition 2½.

The plans offer a variety of grade structures and building uses in the school system and would save from $7.2 million to $8.5 million, depending on how many schools are closed.

The committee's six elected members each said they would be ready to vote on the plans Wednesday night. Mayor Arthur Tobin, who, by law, serves as chairman of the committee, was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

"I think it's very urgent — it's important that we decide now," said Mary Collins. "I have a couple of questions, but basically I'm prepared to vote."

"I'm quite sure that I will be ready to make my decision," said Francis Anselmo. Anselmo wanted to hear the opinions of a citizens task force, scheduled to meet with the School Committee Tuesday night, before making a definite choice, however.

"I think the time has come to decide," said Joan Picard. "We can't go any further in determining our budget for next year until we know how many schools we'll have. The longer we put it off, the tougher it's going to be."

"I think there will probably be a motion made, but not acted upon," said Patricia Toland. "In all likelihood, there won't be any action taken until our first meeting in February." Mrs. Toland said she, personally, was ready to take some action Wednesday night.

John Sullivan said he was ready to vote, "but I want some questions answered before I vote on anything."

Sullivan said the school system's $8.5 million share of a projected $17 million citywide cut due to Proposition 2½ was unfair, since the school budget is only 43 percent of the city budget.

"I have heard nothing, any place, up to now that would convince me to vote in good conscience for anything but Plan One," said Sullivan. That is the least drastic of the seven plans, closing five schools and retaining the present grade levels at the remaining buildings.

"Anything more than that is just too much to stomach," said Sullivan. "Plan One, I believe, would be the least destructive to our students, their parents, our employees and the city as a whole."

Plan One would close the Adams, Beechwood Knoll, Gridley Bryant, Cranch and Pollard Schools. Quincy Point Junior High would also close, with the entire building being used by the Daniel Webster Elementary School.

Mrs. Toland also favored Plan One, which would preserve the present grade structure, but wanted to expand upon it.

"I'm beginning to think we shouldn't try to decide on a reorganization this year," she said. "We have so much to think about in the next couple of months — closing schools, RIFing (laying off) staff members, deciding what programs we will have to cut. I'm not sure we want to tackle all that at once."

"I think if we told Dr. Creedon that we wanted to keep the present organization, and that we wanted to close as many schools as we have to, to make the cut, he could work on that. Maybe we would end up closing seven or eight schools," Mrs. Toland said.

Anselmo said he couldn't yet disclose his preferences among the seven plans: "I want to see how the chips fly tonight (in the meeting with the citizens' task force)."

"I will go along with closing schools and consolidating our facilities if we must, and it appears we must," he said. "But I will not vote to weaken our social system by cutting back on educational programs."

Mrs. Collins said she favored Plan Seven, which would establish eight "grammar" schools for kindergarten through grade seven. The three high schools would accommodate grades 8-12.

"I think that is the only plan that addresses one of our big problems," she said. "By 1985 we could have two half-empty high schools."

"I realize there are a lot of concerns as to whether eighth graders should be in a high school building. But we have to decide whether we want that or we want half-empty buildings."

School Committee Briefs

The School Committee made the following personnel decisions at its most recent meeting:

- Accepted the retirement of Food Service Coordinator George Cole, effective Feb. 28 and Broad Meadows teacher Barbara O'Brien, effective Aug. 6. Also, the Civil Service retirement of Broad Meadows nurse Madelyn DeForge.

- Accepted the Civil Service resignations of Adams school clerk Rita Healey, Mass Fields custodian Michael King and Beechwood Knoll teacher aide Priscilla Wiswell.

- Approved a leave of absence, for reasons of health, for Quincy High teacher Catherine Snodgrass, from Feb. 2 through the end of the school year.

Public Raises Questions On Cable TV License

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Quincy residents voiced their concerns over the length of a 15 year cable television license to be issued by the city and controls over the company issued the license at a public question and answer period Saturday.

City Hall's Council Chambers was nearly filled for the meeting with interested citizens and representatives from the seven cable television companies still in the running for the license.

Rollins Cablevision of Massachusetts had dropped out of the nine company race Jan. 22, with no reason given. Bay State Cablevision withdrew shortly before its scheduled hearing Saturday with Attorney Frank Magee explaining the company decided to concentrate on smaller cities.

George Riley, head of the Mayor's Cable TV Advisory Committee, began the meeting by stating all of the seven applicants had made "excellent proposals."

"Not one of the seven couldn't operate the Quincy system," said Riley.

Atty. Noah Mandell of 141 South Central Ave., Wollaston, began the public's comments by agreeing each of the applicants could run the system. However, he was concerned with local controls over the company granted the license.

Mandell told of a system built in Worcester 10 years ago that has still not begun service. He proposed penalty bonds as a way to see "just how far a company would go to keep its word."

Mandell also said Quincy was not obligated to award a license and could handle the situation any way it wished.

Steve Ryan, a Connecticut resident who was raised in Quincy, was among several people who suggested cutting back the length of the license until the company issued the license proves itself to the community.

Ryan suggested a license for what he called a "monopoly" be granted for a three year period "to see how they treat us" with regard to rates and other matters.

William Piche of the Mayor's Committee explained a company couldn't be expected to invest $7 million for three years.

With regard to rates, William Henchey of Adams Russell Telecommunications said the industry has been cautious in adjusting rates and "can't price itself out of business."

Riley later explained there would be a two year freeze on rates from the initiation of service and also said maximum time should be given to get maximum results.

Arthur Chandler, owner of the Wollaston Theatre, was concerned with possible invasion of privacy in the event of a two way cable system, and with protecting the community from X-rated movies.

Piche explained that if in the future a person had a two way system, direct action, such as pressing a button, would have to be taken to make a response.

With regard to X-rated movies, James Chandler, Jr. of the Mayor's Committee said many program packages are available including a G-rated family package.

Thomas McDonald, active in local and state veterans affairs, said cable television is just the tip of the iceberg and that in the future, gas, electric and other utility meter readings could be done over the TV.

McDonald commended the Mayor's Committee for a "superb job" and urged that it impartially consider its recommendation to the mayor since effects would be felt for years to come.

After receiving the committee's recommendation, Mayor Tobin hopes to select the winner of the cable television franchise in early March.

Elaine Strung Is Recipient Of $100 QJC Scholarship

Elaine Strungis of Quincy was the recipient of a $100 scholarship awarded during Open College Week recently at Quincy Junior College.

Miss Strungis' name was drawn from a list of nearly 100 South Shore residents that attended the four day event.

"I was planning to come to the college in January part-time," said Miss Strungis. "Now that I've won this scholarship, I'll probably be able to afford to take a full load of courses," she said.

The scholarship is for any time during 1981.

During Open College Week, area residents ranging from age 17 to senior citizens visited classes, met with faculty, students and administrators, and obtained brochures and other information.

Some who attended were to be graduated from high school in 1981, but most were adults considering returning to education after several years or more.

Susan Maginnis On Dean's List

Susan A. Maginnis of Quincy has been named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Western Maryland College.

Classes attended by the public included business administration, psychology, secretarial science and computer science.

Several participants commented that attending a class and Open College in general made them feel more confident and comfortable about returning to school.

"Now that I know what it's like, I know I'll feel more at ease when I start taking classes in January," said one participant.

According to Toby Felton, assistant to the college president, the Open College Week was a tremendous success. She termed the event a permanent part of the college's commitment to provide the South Shore with a responsive community based college.

Those who did not attend Open College Week but would like information on QJC, can call Donna Rothenberg, adult services advisor, or Toby Felton, at 786-8777, ext. 499.

Inclusion on the list requires a minimum 3.4 grade point average on a scale of 4.0.

Today's Women

After 40 Years, She Meets Penpal From 'Down Under'

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Though they had never met, Louise Forsyth and Valma Hunter were the closest of friends.

For 40 years, they had shared news of friends, family, and careers, though they never came within thousands of miles of each other.

Miss Forsyth, coordinator of testing for Quincy Public Schools, and Mrs. Hunter finally met recently after 40 years of 'penpal' friendship between Quincy and Australia.

"For all this time, we've been writing to each other and never met," said Mrs. Hunter, a native of Brisbane. "Well, my son met Louise in Washington last year and said, 'Look, Mum, you've got to come and meet her.' So we did."

Mrs. Hunter and her husband Colin, a textiles agent, arrived in the city Jan. 3 for a brief stay. Their impressions of Quincy:

"We love it," said Colin Hunter.

"The people are fantastic," his wife added. "They have opened their hearts and homes to us."

"I've been here before," Mr. Hunter said, "but for my wife, visiting Quincy has been a real eye-opener."

"Notice he's even pronouncing 'Quinzy' correctly," kidded Miss Forsyth.

The long-distance friends began their correspondence in 1940, when both were in junior high school.

"I've always been interested in foreign correspondence and meeting foreign visitors," says Miss Forsyth, "even when I was young. When I first started writing to Valma, I was back at Central (Junior High School)."

"At first, we wrote about

AMERICAN WINTER was one aspect of their trip that Australian visitors Valma and Colin Hunter (left) could have done without. With them is their hostess and Mrs. Hunter's long-time pen pal, Louise Forsyth (right).

schoolwork, our friends, what our lives were like," said Mrs. Hunter. "Actually, our letters haven't changed that much over the years—we still write about the same things."

"I'm very interested in education," said Mrs. Hunter, who taught dancing before being married. "We write a lot about that."

The friendship led to Miss Forsyth meeting Colin Hunter in 1943, during World War II. He was passing through this country as a member of the Royal Australian Air Force, on the way to Britain. At the time, Mrs. Hunter was in Australia, expecting the couple's first child.

And, Louise Forsyth met the couple's son in Washington last year. He is an architect and graphics arts designer who was working in the country briefly.

"I had met everyone else in the family," said Miss Forsyth, "I thought it was about time I met Valma."

Because the two had corresponded so frequently, and so extensively, the visit has had few surprises, the Hunters said.

"I think we've always written at least once a month," says Miss Forsyth.

"And once I wrote a letter that was 29 foolscap (extra-large) pages long," adds Mrs. Hunter.

And, because the Australians are exposed to so much information about America, the country has had few surprises for the couple.

"Americans have been great—very friendly and eager to meet us," said Mr. Hunter. "You know, Australians have always been called cousins to Americans, because we have so much in common. We're finding that to be true."

"We have a great deal of coverage of American news," he said, including "constant coverage" of the presidential election.

Of Ronald Reagan, he said, "Australians are generally pretty pleased. We think we'll be able to work very well with the new administration."

There are occasional reminders that the Hunters are far from home—like the weather.

"That we could do without," said Hunter. "In Australia, it's midsummer right now."

And, during the visit, the Hunters have been exposed to another American midwinter tradition: televised football.

"It doesn't mean a thing to me," said Colin Hunter. "Actually, I think it's a little crazy."

Criticizes Gas Shortage

Morrissey Bill Would Require Quarterly Energy Reports

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has filed legislation that would require utilities to submit quarterly reports on supplies and expected consumption to the State Energy Office and the DPU.

Morrissey said the legislation was inspired by the shortage of gas that touched off an energy emergency in Massachusetts.

"Early detection of the shortage," he said, "might have allowed state officials to head off the crisis or soften its effect."

"But there are clearly no checks and balances or managerial controls that possibly could have alerted public officials to the impending gas shortage."

"The quarterly reporting information will include current supplies on hand, past use, and estimated future consumption as well as the various utilities ability to obtain additional energy or storage facilities to meet future energy crises."

Morrissey called the gas companies' explanation of the shortages "completely inexcusable." They blamed the extreme cold, many conversions from oil to gas and miscalculation of supplies.

"If the gas utilities cannot keep up with the current supply and demand then a moratorium on conversions to gas should be imposed," said Morrissey.

He asked Gov. Edward J. King to use his emergency powers to declare a moratorium on conversions, until the companies can come up with a plan to meet anticipated future demand.

"If the gas companies are unable to meet current demand because of increased conversions from oil to gas then our problems may not yet be over," he said in a letter to King. "We still face serious periods of cold weather during the months of February and March."

Advanced Lifesaving Course Begins

The Recreation Department will conduct an Advanced Life-saving Course at the Lincoln Hancock Community School, beginning Wednesday, Jan. 28.

The program will be taught in accordance with the standards of the American Red Cross and is open to persons 15 and over passing a swimming test under the supervision of the Recreation Department staff.

The course will meet Wednesday evenings from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at the Lincoln Hancock pool.

Persons may register immediately at the pool office during any Recreation Department swim program. Registration is limited and on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Ward 4 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 21

Ward 4 Democrats will caucus Feb. 21 to choose 10 delegates to the Massachusetts Issues Convention in Springfield, April 11, announces Daniel M. Shea, Ward chairman.

The caucus will be held at 2 p.m. in the Morrisette Legion Post, 54 Miller St., West Quincy.

Morrissey also requested the State DPU to adopt interim reporting requirements for the utilities under its control and have it ready for legislative approval before Feb. 13.

"We can no longer afford to rely on the word of the gas company," he said in a letter to Doris Pote, chairman of the DPU.

"We must act now to insure that the public access to energy and information of energy supplies and reserves is guaranteed.

"The precarious situation in the Boston area could occur anywhere in the Commonwealth unless we immediately insure the public safety by implementing an adequate plan to deal with reporting and planning in our long-range energy plans."

DICK AND MARY POWERS watch as Ronald Reagan takes the oath as the 40th President of the United States.

CONG. BRIAN DONNELLY escorts Dick and Mary Powers to lunch following inauguration ceremonies. The Powers were winners of a three-day trip to the inauguration sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association. They were the guests of Congressman Donnelly.

Reagan's Inaugural Not Overshadowed By Hostages

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Even a momentous event like the return of the hostages couldn't overshadow the inauguration of our 40th President, say two Quincy couples who attended last week's festivities in Washington.

"It was the most enjoyable trip, the most enjoyable experience we've ever had," said Peter Gacia of South Quincy, who attended with his wife, Norma. "From the time we got there on Sunday till the time we left, everything was perfect — very well-planned."

"The inauguration speech itself was the part I liked best," said Mrs. Mary Powers of North Quincy who won a three-day trip to the inauguration in a promotion sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

They were the guests of Congressman Brian Donnelly.

"I especially liked the President's speech," said Mrs. Powers, who attended with her husband, Richard. "It was very inspiring. I hope I like him as much a few months from now."

The inaugural speech was one of two highlights of the trip for Peter Gacia. He and his wife were Quincy coordinators for the George Bush campaign and, later, for the Republican ticket.

"We had seats about 200 yards from the inaugural stand," said Gacia. "With the aid of our binoculars, it brought all of the dignitaries right into our laps, so to speak. It was very memorable."

The other highlight, he said, was the inaugural ball at the Washington Hilton Hotel, at which the featured attractions were actor Charlton Heston and singers Glen Campbell, Tanya Tucker and Charlie Pride.

"They were fabulous," he said. The president and his wife made a brief appearance at the ball, one of several going on throughout the city.

"We managed to get outside while the President was leaving," said Gacia. "We got close enough to get a few pictures. That was quite a thrill."

"We were all following the hostage situation very closely," said Mrs. Powers. "A lot of us at the inauguration didn't understand why they didn't make some sort of announcement during the ceremonies. But, later on, we found out that the hostages weren't released until three minutes after the swearing-in ceremonies."

"We heard quite a bit about the hostage situation, although it didn't overshadow the inauguration," said Peter Gacia. "Both were very well covered by the Washington media."

The Powers had praise for Congressman Donnelly, who hosted them during their trip.

"He was a wonderful host — we felt really at home," said Mrs. Powers. "He's really a very personable guy. In fact, he invited us to lunch in the Congressional Dining Room after the inauguration. We spent so much time talking we didn't leave until 4:30."

700 City Employees Face Possible Layoff

"One of the mandates of Proposition 2½ is to find more efficient ways of delivering city services.

"My feeling is that the mayor's package, as a whole, represents a legitimate effort to try and come to grips with some of the cost-cutting essential under Prop 2½.

"I'm not sure that the people are going to be too thrilled with the argument over who is going to have the power. They're interested in economy in government and that's what we're going to have to deliver."

"It appears that the City Council is being removed from any involvement in 25 per cent of the budget," said Councillor Francis X. McCauley, himself a candidate for mayor in 1981.

"It gives an awful lot more power to the mayor. The city Council would no longer have any say on those budgets, which total something like $29 million. The checks and balances would be gone.

"Right off the bat that's 25 or 30 per cent of the budget and he's talking about several other departments. That's putting a lot of power in the mayor's office. Pretty soon you won't need a Council."

"I favor the entire package," said Councillor John J. Quinn. "This is an effort to keep the service going. People who want to utilize these services will be charged for them and not the real estate taxpayers."

"I'm not concerned about the Council losing power whatsoever. If we find someone in the business world who can do a better job than they should get the job."

"I don't think the government should be involved in many services. Sometimes the government has gotten too involved. I think in the last election, when people voted for Reagan, there was that feeling."

Councillor Joanne Condon said she has no problem with putting the hospital or the junior college on revolving accounts.

"The combination of that and the management firm will help get the hospital on its feet," she said. "The council has never chosen to have any input in the junior college anyway."

"The Council may have some hesitancy to let go because it's eliminating our input in these particular areas."

"But on the water-sewer package, we're right back to the sewer tax and we're creating a water-sewer commission. I'm going to need a detailed explanation of the benefits of that, plus the cost."

"It seems peculiar," she added, "that we can do the hospital and the junior college with two pages and it requires 25 or 30 to do the water and sewer commission. Why is it so complicated?"

Among the insufficiently funded budgets listed in Shea's letter were:

- The city's share of the Cross-Blue Shield, $1,000,000.

- Various personal service accounts, $700,000.

- Temporary loan interest, $1,700,000.

- Additional funding for the UDAG garage (if state funding is not received), $750,000.

Mrs. Condon said she understood when the bids were opened for the UDAG garage that the low bid was some $150,000 to $200,000 higher than the federal funding available for the job.

"But the $750,000 comes out of the blue," she said. "What is the $750,000 for?"

Mayor Tobin explained that the real shortfall in the UDAG contract is something like $670,000, but the higher figure was given as a "safeguard."

The cost escalated, he said, because the contractor struck an unexpectedly difficult ledge on the site at the corner of Granite St. and Burgin Parkway. There were also delays, he said.

Councillors should have known at the time, he said, that the cost would be some $400,000 to $500,000 more than the funding on hand.

He said there is a good possibility that the extra money will come from the state.

"I have opened a couple of doors," said Tobin, who spent most of Tuesday in the State House. "I am pursuing it. I hope that I am successful. But I don't know if I will get it."

"I am just alerting the City Council that if I am not successful and we have no way of getting the money, then the project could come to a halt."

Tobin presented a seven point program to the Council to help the city through the financial morass of Proposition 2½.

In addition to his proposals for the hospital, the junior college and the water-sewer divisions, the mayor said he plans:

- A budget for fiscal 1982 "that conforms to Prop. 2½ to meet our operations and debt service obligations."

- To prove to "the banking institutions and financial rating services that Quincy will not have to borrow as great as it has in the past."

- To propose "additional home rule petitions affecting three additional budgets which are not ready at this time."

- Support for the city of Boston in its attempt "to remove debt service from Prop 2½, which will help in the marketability and sale of both long-term bonding and short-term notes."

- A school budget "to face up to the realities of Prop. 2½."

- "Reduction in force" of city employees, a matter which would require to discuss in open session with members of the Council.

The Council voted 7-2 to hear the mayor in executive session, with Councillor Daniel G. Raymond and Joseph J. LaRaia casting the negative votes.

Raymond felt so strongly about the matter that he refused to join his colleagues in their closed meeting with the mayor.

Will LaRaia Bow Out?

City Hall observers are wondering if another City Council at-Large seat might go up for grabs this year.

It's the one occupied by former mayor Joseph LaRaia.

There's a growing feeling among some councillors and some of those who frequent council meetings that LaRaia is getting bored with the job.

Councillor Frank McCauley's early entry into the mayoral ring may have caught LaRaia by surprise and fouled up his own mayoral plans.

When LaRaia returned to the City Council two years ago after his defeat for re-election by Arthur Tobin, it raised the question: why would he want to be a city councillor again after being mayor?

The answer, according to those who think they really can read LaRaia politically (not his book) was that he planned to use the council chamber as a detour to the mayor's office.

It was safer for him to run for an open council seat (the one vacated by Joseph Brett when he retired) than to challenge Tobin for mayor so soon after his own turbulent term as chief executive.

The game plan it seemed, was to return to the council for two years and then make the bid for mayor this year. Young Richard J. Koch, Jr. in his first run for elective office, almost threw a monkey wrench into the works by coming close (198 votes) to defeating LaRaia. A LaRaia defeat then would no doubt have ended his political career.

His squeaker victory kept him alive politically. But now what?

LaRaia was there when McCauley announced for mayor. And revealed afterwards, that he was 95 per cent sure until then of running for mayor himself. He said, however, he would not run now that McCauley is a candidate.

No 'Midas' Caps For First Graders

Quincy first graders won't be getting a free knit cap from Midas Muffler.

The School Committee last week denied Midas' request to distribute the black-and-gold winter caps to the city's 650 first graders.

Members Joan Picard, John Sullivan and Patricia Toland objected to the fact that the caps bore the word "Midas" in large letters.

Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy disagreed, saying, "I go into schools nowadays and I see T-shirts saying Pepsi-Cola, Coca-Cola, Schlitz beer. And these aren't free -- people pay for these things. I think it (advertising) has become an accepted part of society."

On a motion to grant Midas' request, Kennedy was joined by Mary Collins and Francis Anselmo.

Anselmo, in fact, demonstrated his enthusiasm for the idea by donning a sample cap during debate on the matter.

"Everyone with a bald head will appreciate these," said Anselmo, who fits that description. "In fact, we probably should amend the motion so that all the school board members and all the staff should receive caps, too, because we are desperate. Get all you can for nothing."

The 3-3 tie vote on the matter meant that the motion to allow Midas to distribute the caps failed.

On Jan. 7, Mrs. Picard's motion to deny Midas' request also failed, by a 2-2 tie vote. The Big question: will he seek re-election as a councillor at-large. Serving in the council can get to be pretty ho-hum for someone who once ran the show. True, former Mayors Thomas Burgin and David McIntosh served in the council after being mayor but they were a lot older than LaRaia at the time. And, besides, Quincy was going through an interesting transition: the city's return to the Plan A form of government after a stormy marriage with Plan E.

Maybe some of the councillors and on-lookers at council meetings are mis-reading LaRaia. But they wouldn't be surprised if he decides to bow out.

IF YOU LIKE hot rumors, here's one: A source close to him says that Ernie Montilio, the Quincy baker, is toying with the idea of running for mayor. With son, George, just about running the business, he would probably have the time. (If he does run, remember you saw it here. If he doesn't just forget it.)

SOME PIECES OF the Montilio inaugural cake that didn't make it to Washington, wound up feeding the 40 members of the State Senate and the 180 members of the House.

The goodies, leftovers from the 3,000-pound cake that Montilio baked for President Reagan's inauguration, were specially packaged by Sen. Paul D. Harold and presented to his colleagues.

Series Of Events Planned

February Proclaimed 'Special Needs Awareness Month'

Mayor Arthur Tobin presented a citation Monday to the Quincy Parent Advisory Council for Special Education proclaiming February "Special Needs Awareness Month in Quincy".

The event, at the Central Library, was the first of many planned through February to highlight the programs and services available to children with special needs in Quincy. Events will also commemorate the United Nations Designation of 1981 as the "International Year of Disabled Persons".

The program Monday included demonstrations and discussions on library resources on special needs by Jane Granstrom, director of children's services.

Among the special events scheduled are:

- Feb. 2, 1 p.m., a team of pupil personnel services staff members, chaired by Luleen S. Anderson, will begin a six session inservice program for a fourth grade class at the Quincy School on "Understanding Handicaps". Co-sponsored with the Volunteer Information Agency.

- Feb. 4, (snow date Feb. 5) Open House sponsored by the Department of Special Education of the Quincy Public Schools to demonstrate some special education programs for Quincy students. The schedule will be:

- 9 to 10 a.m., Squantum School, pre-school special needs program, with Ruth Haggerty, principal, and Elizabeth Braunstein, as hostesses.

- 10:15 to 11:15 a.m., Atlantic

- Junior High School, Resource Room program, Arnold Rubin, principal, Rosanne Crowley, Kevin Marks, hosts.

- 11:30 to 12:30 p.m., North Quincy High School, Special Needs Learning Center, Senior High level, Peter Chrisom, principal, David Donovan, hosts.

- 12:45 to 1:45 p.m., Snug Harbor School, Special Needs Learning Center, Primary Level, Louis DiMartini, principal, Brenda Shore, hosts.

- 2 to 3 p.m., Quincy Vocational Technical School, Extended Vocational Alternative Program, Edward T. Hannon, director, Leonard Ciarro, hosts.

- Feb. 10, 9:30 a.m., area and school librarians/media specialists and other interested adults will be invited to a meeting about special needs students at the Adams Shore Branch Library. The program, sponsored by the inter-library loan department, will include the film, "Walk in Another Pair of Shoes" and panelists Carolyn Banks, Patricia Del-Val, Diane Farrell, and Kathleen Picarski.

- Feb. 11, 7:30 p.m., Patricia Del-Val, Julie Morrissey and Susan McKeon will report to the School Committee on events to occur during the month. A slide tape-presentation will be made.

- Feb. 12, 7:15 p.m., free wheelchair basketball game: City officials vs. Mass. Hospital School "Chariots" at North Quincy High School gym.

- Feb. 17, 10 to 11:30 a.m., 2 to 3:30 p.m., 7 to 8:30 p.m., special needs awareness film festival at Thomas Crane Public Library. Discussion leaders will be Jane Granstrom and a member of the Quincy Parent Advisory Council.

During February, the Thomas Crane Public Library will have displays and publications available. City Hall will display the work of Quincy students with special needs in the main lobby.

The Department of Special Education of the Quincy Public Schools and the Thomas Crane Public Library will display the work of special needs students in the windows of the South Shore National Bank.

There will also be library resources on special needs for parents and children.

Events are being sponsored by the Quincy Parent Advisory Council to Special Education, the Thomas Crane Public Library, and the Quincy Public Schools coordinated through the Office of the Mayor.

Planning committee members are George B. Mathieson, Thomas Burke, Dr. Patricia B. Del-Val, Jane Granstrom, Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Mrs. Susan McKeon, Mrs. Julie Morrissey, Mrs. Kathleen Picarski, Ellen Reiser and Ann Wickberg.

Any community group which would like to have a speaker present a program on children with special needs and/or services and programs available within the Quincy Public Schools can call Patricia Del-Val at 786-8743 or Carol Lee Griffin at 786-8742.

Quincy's Yesterdays

By Tom Henshaw

Trade School Equipment Called 'Outmoded Junk'

The Trade School Advisory Committee warned that almost all the equipment at the Quincy Trade School is "outmoded junk," inadequate, and in some cases downright dangerous to students.

It urged that hazardous machinery be replaced "before there is a serious accident."

Committee Secretary Frank C. Webster said the old school building was so crowded that 14-year-old boys were sharing the same classrooms with 29-year-old veterans of World War II.

"We must have adequate classrooms immediately to divide up the classes as they are required to be," he said.

CITY PARKING SCORED

City Councillor Russell T. Bates criticized the city for going into the parking business for the benefit, he said, of a few property owners, a few merchants and a few out of town people.

"Why should Quincy provide parking for a few merchants when Foy's and Quincy Market provide parking spaces for their customers on their own property that they are paying taxes on?" he asked.

NORTH VICTORIOUS

Art (Buddy) Barrett had 16 points as the North Quincy High School basketball team ran up a 23-7 first half lead and coasted to its eighth straight victory, 54-20, over Brookline.

The North Quincy lineup: McCauley, Doherty, Barrett, forwards; Collins, center; Cedrone, White, Sullivan, Finneran, Johnson, guards.

AGAINST HOUSING

The Mayor's Emergency Committee on Housing voted 8-5 to table a resolution by Russell W. Frey, secretary of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, against government subsidized housing.

It was interpreted as an indication of the group's opposition to a state law that would enable cities to borrow money for permanent housing in multiple family units.

$36 TAX RATE FORECAST

City officials estimated that the Quincy tax rate for 1947 will be $36 after they got a look at the budget drawn up by Mayor Charles A. Ross before he left for three weeks in Florida.

ORDER POLES CHECKED

Acting Mayor Christian A. Burkard directed Building Inspector Alrick A. Weidman to examine all flag poles in the city after the 115-foot pole at Quincy High School toppled in a storm.

Mrs. Grace Wallace, South Shore's First Woman Funeral Director

A funeral Mass was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) at St. Ann's for Mrs. Grace G. (Golden) Wallace, of Quincy, who died Jan. 24 at Quincy City Hospital.

Mrs. Wallace, the first female funeral director on the South Shore, operated the Wallace Funeral Home of Wollaston from 1937 to 1957, when she retired.

The funeral home was founded in 1929 by her husband, the late John E. Wallace.

A lifelong Quincy resident, she was a graduate of Quincy High School.

She was a former member of the Massachusetts and New England Funeral Directors Associations, the Wollaston Business and Professional Association and the St. Ann's Women's Club.

She is survived by her son, Richard C. Wallace of Quincy; a brother, William Golden of Quincy; two sisters, Mrs. Helen Moore of Quincy and Mrs. Anna Gunning of Harford, Ct., and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Margaret Anscombe, 77, Salvation Army Brigadier

Funeral services were conducted Jan. 17 for Margaret (Gardephe) Anscombe, 77, of Quincy, a Salvation Army Corps Brigadier.

Mrs. Anscombe died Jan. 21 in Quincy City Hospital.

Born in Glens Falls, N.Y., she lived in Quincy for 15 years.

Wife of the late Brigadier George E. Anscombe, she is survived by a son, George E. Anscombe, Jr., of Orlando, Fla.; two daughters, Marjorie Milne of Wollaston and Major Ruth Brown of Springfield; three grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted at Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., Quincy Center. Burial was in Forest Hills Cemetery, Jamaica Plain.

George D. O'Brien, 63 Former QCH Employee

Funeral arrangements are incomplete for George D. O'Brien, 63, a former maintenance employee of Quincy City Hospital who died suddenly at home Jan. 26.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, Mr. O'Brien was a disabled veteran of World War II. He served with the military police and medical corps in Europe.

Wife of the late Catherine (O'Donnell) O'Brien, he is survived by a son, George E. O'Brien of Washington, D.C.; three brothers, Joseph F. O'Brien of Quincy, James P. O'Brien of North Beverly and William H. O'Brien of North Quincy; two sisters, Mary C. McGovern of Jamaica Plain and Agnes E. DuWors of Wollaston, and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral arrangements are by Deware Brothers Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Squantum Church Installs Newly Elected Officers

The First Church of Squantum installed its new church leaders Sunday during a special installation service.

The leaders were elected at the church's annual meeting.

The meeting began with a covered dish supper. Dorothy Abbe, church moderator, presided over the meeting which included reports of the church boards and officers, election of new officers for 1981 and approval of the church budget.

Newly elected officers are: clerk, Barbara Walter; assistant clerk, Lorraine Josselyn; auditor, William Galarneau; treasurer, Ralph Dougherty; assistant treasurer, Kenneth Johnson; financial secretary, Kenneth Johnson; benevolence treasurer, Mary Gifford; historian, Grace Holmes; head usher, Tore Wallin; church school superintendent, Thomas Williamson, and moderator, Dorothy Abbe.

Delegates elected were: Inter-Church Council, Fred MacMillan, Paul Gifford and Mary Gifford; Metropolitan Boston Association, Thomas Williamson; Protestant Social Service Bureau, Silas Porter; Massachusetts Conference of the United Church of Christ, Dorothy Abbe.

Church Council Members at Large: Fred MacMillan, James Sumner and Stewart Scott.

Board members elected were: Board of Benevolence - Gloria Cutler, Mary Gifford, Sandra Ahearn, Hazel Mayne, David Mildram and Karen Deary, Board of Christian Education - Edith Adams, Gretchen Bumpus, Marie Resier, Ellen Ogilvie, Barbara Colwell and Recilla Stamos. Board of Deacons - Grace Holmes, Ellen Ogilvie, Jens Thornton, Donald Frazer, Katherine Hansen, Carl Anderson, Ralph Dougherty, Leon MacIntyre, Evelyn Ahearn, Hazel Mayne and Thomas Williamson. Board of Trustees - Edwin Adams, Kathryn Kelly, Calvin Bumpus, John Malmgren, Ida VonRiegers, Paul Paulson, Ruth Swenson and Lester Young.

Committee members are: Flea Market Committee - Janet Sumner, Hazel Mayne and Sue Abbe; Flower Committee - Barbara Frazer, Mary Scott, Claudia Young, Gretchen Bumpus, Sandra Sumner and Helen Miller; Furnishings

Committee - May Lewis, Evelyn Ahearn, and Ruth Swenson; Hospitality Committee - Joan Hansen; Music Committee - Frederick MacMillan, James E. Sumner, Genevieve Todd, Christine Young and Adelaide Nelson; Wedding Arrangements Committee - Doris Longmire, Virginia Galarneau, Gretchen Bumpus and Mildred Johnson.

For the installation service, the Youth Choir sang "Seek Ye First" by Karen Lafferty. The Chancel Choir sang "Lord, For Thy Tender Mercies Sake" by Richard Farrant.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, explained the annual meeting process to the children. He led the congregation in a special installation prayer.

His sermon, "Faith is Love", continued the series on The Life of Jesus called "Encounters with Christ".

Hostesses for the Fellowship Hour were Doris Longmire, Ethyl Lawless and Mary Lou Kemp.

The service for next Sunday will begin at 10:15 a.m. Cinnamon Toast will meet at 8:30 a.m. and Sunday School will be at 9:15 a.m.

QCH To Hold Two EMT Courses

Quincy City Hospital will hold two Emergency Medical Technician courses beginning Feb. 16, at 7 p.m.

Courses, approved by the Office of Emergency Medical Services, will be held Mondays and Wednesdays and Tuesdays and Thursdays.

Rev. Arthur Jacobi To Celebrate First Mass At Star Of The Sea Church

Rev. Arthur H. Jacobi, formerly of Squantum, will celebrate his first Mass Sunday, Feb. 1 at Star of the Sea Church, Squantum.

Father Jacobi, son of the late Marie and Arthur Jacobi, Sr., of Squantum, was ordained to the priesthood Jan. 17 in Detroit's Blessed Sacrament Cathedral by John Cardinal Dearden.

He has a sister, Mrs. Peggy Madden of Squantum, a brother, Bill Jacobi of New Jersey, and an aunt, Mrs. Ruth Connolly of Squantum.

"Father Art", as he is known at St. Anthony's parish in Belleville, Mich., where he served part of his internship, attended elementary school in Quincy and high school in

REV. ARTHUR JACOBI
Weymouth and Waltham.
He received his B.A. in Philosophy and Liberal Arts from Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit and a Master of Religious Education from SS Cyril and Methodius Seminary and a Master of Arts from the University of Detroit. He completed his theological studies at St. John's Provincial Seminary in Plymouth from which he received a Master of Divinity degree.

His formal internship began at St. Theodore's parish in 1979 and continued in 1980 at St. Anthony's; both in the Detroit area.

Fr. Jacobi will resume his duties at St. Anthony's in Belleville, Mich., following a short vacation in Quincy.

Howard S. Willard, Sr. Elected Bethany Moderator

Howard S. Willard, Sr., was elected moderator of Bethany Congregational Church at the church's 149th annual meeting Sunday.

"I am honored to have been elected moderator of Bethany Congregational Church in a time of critical need for revival of Christian principles and a re-emphasis of the moral values so essential to a good life," Willard said.

"I am confident that Bethany Congregational will continue to provide leadership, and move forward in the attainment of those goals," said Willard.

A memorial service was conducted by Rev. J. William Arnold for the following members who died in 1980: Mrs. I. Louise McCormack, Mr. Henry F.

Nisen, Mrs. Charlotte B. Bates, Mrs. Grace M. Collier, Mrs. Jean S. Montgomery, Mrs. Rita M. Muirhead, Mr. Carl A. Bohlken, Sr., Miss Cora B. Massey, Mr. William A. Anderson, Sr., Mrs. Alice B. Oswald and Dr. George A. Davidson.

Preceding the memorial service, Win Bettinson led a hymn sing with Linda Roberts at the piano.

During the business session, annual reports and the 1981 budget were accepted. Clarence L. Edwards was elected Deacon Emeritus.

In her welcome to Willard, outgoing moderator Jean C. Smart presented him with a jar of jelly beans, reminiscent of the preference of a national executive officer.

Squantum Church Holds Thanksgiving Service For Returned Hostages

The First Church of Squantum held a Service of Thanksgiving Sunday for the return of the American hostages from Iran.

Worshippers arriving at the church found the exterior of the building and all adjacent tree trunks, bushes and poles tied with yellow ribbons and bows by the young members of Cinnamon Toast.

The service began with the congregation singing, "God of Our Fathers, Whose Almighty Hand!" Robert Gorrill played the trumpet.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, spoke to the children about the historical significance of the occasion. He then distributed yellow ribbons to each person in the congregation.

The Cinnamon Toast Crowd sang "Song of the Way", a hymn adapted by Dr. Langevin from a popular song by Paul Scokey. The Chancel Choir sang "O Sing Unto the Lord" by Henry Purcell.

Taking his text from the story of Christ raising Lazarus from the dead, the pastor preached on "Dealing With the Pain of Injustice."

The service concluded with a special prayer of remembrance and thanksgiving, remembering those who had given their lives in the rescue attempt and thanking God for the release of the returnees.

To this prayer, the congregation responded with the hymn, "O Beautiful for Spacious Skies."

Luther and Ruth Swenson were greeters. Ushers were Charles Todd, Harry Holmes, Susan Aldram, Bonnie Adams, Nancy Allen and Steve Williams. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by May Lewis, Eva Martin and Katie Crossman.

Next Sunday's service begins at 10:15 a.m.

Mass Of Thanksgiving At Sacred Heart For Safe Return Of Hostages

Sacred Heart Church of North Quincy will celebrate a Mass of Thanksgiving tonight (Thursday), celebrating the safe return of the 52 hostages from Iran.

The Mass will also commemorate the eight servicemen who died in last year's attempt to rescue the hostages, announces Rev. Cornelius Heery, pastor.

All of the church's priests will concelebrate the Mass, which begins at 5:30 p.m. in the main church.

Father Heery suggests that persons attending wear a piece of yellow ribbon to commemorate the official Day of Thanksgiving declared by President Reagan.

All persons are welcome to attend.

NOW THAT JACK IS DEAD BECKY HAS SOME BIG DECISIONS.

The death of someone we love can change our lives drastically. The house may be too large, we may have a sudden loss of income, we may have to raise the children alone. Adjustment to these changes may force us to make major decisions at a time when we are already distressed emotionally and least able to make good decisions. We may feel rushed to make decisions simply to avoid memories. Good decision making requires that you take time, have all the facts before you and be rational not emotional. If you or a friend are faced with major decisions because of a death in your family we urge you to take time, get good information and wait until your emotions have subsided.

So More Can Take Advantage

McGrath Seeks To Boost Home Loan Income Guidelines

eligible to participate.

The current income guidelines, according to Jerry Cavanaugh of the Planning Department, range from $10,550 for a household of one to $18,800 for a household of eight or more.

The suggested new guidelines, again according to Cavanaugh, would range from $12,900 for a household of one to $23,050 for a household of eight or more.

"We used the low guidelines to start because we wanted to get the poorest people first," said Cavanaugh. "We seem to have all those who want to take part so now is the time to go to the new guidelines."

"The current guidelines," said

McGrath, "which are set by the federal government and not the city, exclude many middle income families who should be able to take advantage of the program."

Under the plan, income-eligible homeowners living in certain sections of Wollaston may borrow up to $3,000 for home improvements, paying it back at 5 per cent interest over five years.

"The basic setup of the program is sound," said McGrath. "By outlining the payback method, a perpetual loan fund is set up to benefit residents of the area."

"With the possibility of changes and cutbacks in federal programs, I think it makes sense to try to set up a program which will, in effect, be safe from any federal budget reductions."

"But it is obviously not beneficial to outline guidelines which are so restrictive that many people are excluded from participation in the program."

"This money was allocated for our Wollaston residents and I will do all I can to see that this money gets to them."

Willard Students Write A Welcome Back To Hostages

We wore yellow ribbons all day long. I'm really glad you're in Germany. We also put yellow ribbons on the windows. I'm nine years old. How is it in Silver Spring Meadows? I always wanted to be a security officer. I'm in the fourth grade. I wish I could meet you in person instead of on TV. Please write.

Sincerely yours,
Barbara Carroll

Dear Marine Persinger,

Welcome back to freedom. I picked you to write to because my father was a Marine. I'm glad you're back from Iran. I hope you are all right.

Sincerely,

Robby Cinquegrano

Dear Sergeant Moeller,

Welcome to freedom. I wish you had been home for Christmas. I'm glad you are not a hostage now. I'm glad you have been released by the Iranians. I hope you have a nice time in Washington, D.C. Please write back. I was praying for you to get released.

Sincerely,

Richard Canale

Dear Mr. Kennedy,

I hope you are happy you are free. We have ribbons in the windows of the school. I am happy you are free. You were in Iran for a long time. We have yellow ribbons on us too. Welcome home.

Write back.

Sincerely,

Robert Purpura

Dear Mr. Keough,

How did it feel to be a hostage? I don't think it was nice of Iran to take you hostage and take over the embassy. I am working on Iceland in school. Please write back.

Sincerely,

David Nourse

Dear Donald R. Hohman,

I'm very glad you and all of the other people are coming back. A few months ago me and my friends put a big yellow ribbon on an oak tree in the school parking lot for you to come back and you are. I hope your very glad to be getting home to your family and friends.

Your friend,

Robbie Romeri

Dear Rodney Sickmann,

I am glad you're back. I watched you when the hostages got off the plane. I hope you get to the U.S.A. very soon, after all you've been through in Iran—444 days in captivity! I hope to see you soon because everybody misses you and all the hostages. Your friend, Steven Carey

Dear Mr. Laingen,

I hope that you never have to have another experience like that again. Two days ago I watched the 52 Americans land in Algiers on a special report. But I'm sure that your wife and three sons will be thrilled to see you and know that you're O.K. P.S. Please write back or call. Thank You.

Your friend,

Christopher Smith

Dear Corporal Gallegos,

Welcome back to America. Every window in my school has a yellow ribbon on it, and every one in my class has a yellow ribbon on, welcoming you home. My family and I hoped you would be home before Christmas, but you're home now, and everyone is happy.

Sincerely,

Darren Murphy

Dear Miss Koob,

How are you? I felt real bad when they captured you. What right do they have to do that? My whole school had yellow ribbons on just for you. We even put yellow ribbons on the windows. My class and I prayed that you would come home before Christmas. You must have had a miserable Christmas. I'm glad that you were finally freed.

Sincerely,

Lorri Derbes

Dear Mr. Ode,

Welcome back to freedom. I was praying for you a lot. I was hoping that President Carter would get you out of Iran and he did. I am very happy that everybody's out.

Sincerely,

Robyn LaRaia

Ward 1 Democrats Caucus

Ward 1 Democrats will caucus Saturday, Feb. 21, at 2 p.m. at the Manet Community Health Center, 193 Sea St., Houghs Neck, to select delegates for the party's issues convention April 11 in Springfield.

Ward 1 will select 11 delegates, equally divided among men and women according to the number of each who attend the caucus. The caucus is open to all registered Democrats in Ward 1.

Lt. Frazer March Of Dimes Cannister Chairman

Quincy Police Lt. Walter Frazer has been named Chairman of the 1981 Quincy Cannister Drive to benefit the March of Dimes.

Money raised helps programs of research, medical services, and education.

During the month of January, Quincy police will distribute coin cannisters to local stores and restaurants. Money raised will fund March of Dimes programs in birth defects research. Contributions over the past 20 years have enabled scientists, physicians, and nurses to offer families better hope than ever before that the impact of birth defects need not be as shattering as they once were.

Locally, the March of Dimes has awarded grants to Tufts -

New England Medical Center, Massachusetts General Hospital, and the Boston Hospital for Women.

"We need the support of everyone in Quincy if we are to make any impact on overcoming the tragedy of birth defects," Lt. Frazer said. "I know everyone will be as generous in 1981 as they have been in the past."

Manet Center Completes Positive Parenting Course

The Manet Community Health Center announces the completion of another positive parenting course led by Rosemary Hanley and Mary Ann Skjold.

The first few weeks of the seven-week course were devoted to communication skills and to the expression of feelings in the family. Later, parents were presented with theories concerning discipline, especially the use of logical consequences as a method of rearing children to be responsible for their own behavior.

The course material and format was designed to be flexible and to give ample opportunity for discussion of the needs and problems of the parents participating in the course.

Purpose of these sessions is not to ask parents to completely change or alter their relationships with their families, but to provide an open atmosphere to learn new ideas of child behavior and management. Participants also discuss how specific techniques might be adapted to their personal style of parenting.

Norman Nicholson Completes Training

Army Private Norman C. Nicholson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nicholson of 50 Quarterdeck Rd., Germantown, recently completed One Station Unit Training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

OSUT is a 12-week period which combines basic combat training and advanced individual training.

'A Disgrace'

Beery Bus Ride Upsets QHS Basketball Parents

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

A trip to a Dec. 29 Quincy High basketball game turned into an unpleasant experience for some spectators.

They demanded action from school administrators, who cancelled the following night's "booster bus," and threatened to cancel the spectators' bus totally in the future if the beer-drinking was repeated.

At last week's School Committee meeting, School Supt. Lawrence Creedon also promised to "tighten up" the procedure for chaperoning cheerleaders on road trips and to strictly enforce the policy against drinking on any school bus, by anybody.

The incident was brought to the attention of the School Committee and administrators by Mrs. Joyce MacDonald of West Quincy. She and her husband Robert travelled to watch their son, Karl, play for Quincy High at a Dec. 29-30 basketball tournament in Portsmouth, N.H.

They rode on the spectator bus, which travels to each road game in addition to the team bus.

Said Mrs. MacDonald last week:

"Some of the young spectators--whom we later found out graduated last year--brought some beer and wine onto the bus. Some--not all--of the cheerleaders were drinking with them.

"There was no supervisor on the bus, although there should have been," she added. "There was no one in authority on the bus."

"There was a problem with that, in that the cheerleaders' chaperone was ill that night," Creedon told the School Committee. "The cheerleaders shouldn't have gone, I suppose."

But, he added, the cheerleaders later denied taking part in the drinking.

"We are willing, at this point, to take their word for it. They are very concerned that their reputation has been pushed around over this," he said.

"Everyone on that bus saw another group drinking," he said. "There are almost as many stories as there were people on the bus."

"Halfway up there," Mrs. MacDonald continued, "Mrs. (Janice) Amoroso asked them to stop drinking." Mrs. Amoroso is the wife of coach Joseph Amoroso and a Braintree school committee member.

"Obviously, they didn't stop," she added. "I suppose they thought that we were blind. By the time we got to New Hampshire, some of them were drunk, some of them were urinating in the back of the bus. Some of them were throwing beer cans out the windows."

"I thought it was a disgrace to the city of Quincy," she said. "The next morning I called the mayor's office and Dr. Creedon's office."

"Our boys are out there playing for Quincy High School and we don't want them hurt," she said. "We don't want to see anything to disgrace them.

"I was extremely disappointed in some of the kids on the bus," said Mrs. Amoroso, who would make no other comment.

"I think we should put a limit on this spectator bus business," commented School Committee member Joan Picard. "We should just limit it to parents only."

"We have served notice," said Creedon, "that if there are any further incidents, there will be no Quincy Public School bus going anywhere."

Win 2 More Nail-Biters

Quincy's 'Cardiac Kids' Keep Hearts Jumping

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's "Cardiac Kids" continue to give Coach Joe Amoroso and the Presidents' basketball fans heart palpitations and last week won two more nail-biting decisions to improve their record to 10-3 (7-2 in the Suburban League).

Quincy played at Newton North Tuesday and next Tuesday at 3:30 will host unbeaten state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin and its brilliant 7-foot center, Pat Ewing, at the Vo-Tech gym. The Presidents are idle Friday.

"They are calling us the 'Cardiac Kids' and it is an appropriate name," Amoroso said. "Eleven of our 13 games have been decided in the last seconds of regulation time or overtime. These games are great for the spectators but they are awfully tough on us coaches."

"These games are proving, though, what I have said all year long, we have a very good basketball team and these kids never quit."

Last Friday the Presidents eked out a 59-58 decision over Brockton on Sean Burke's two foul shots with 30 seconds left in the game.

This was the Presidents' third straight win in the final seconds of overtime.

Every game sees a new hero for Quincy and Friday it was senior forward Kurt MacDonald who had his finest night with 34 points and 15 rebounds.

P.J. Fay had 10 points but the real story was Jimmy DePietro, who played a flawless game on defense despite playing with a bloody nose received on the opening tap.

Earlier in the week Quincy edged Brookline, 76-73, in double overtime as Shawn Burns hit four free throws and Dan Whyte added two more.

The game was tied at 58-58 at the end of regulation time and 66-66 after the first overtime.

Steve Priscella led the Presidents with 24 points and 12 rebounds, MacDonald had 16 points and Fay Burns contributed 10 each.

Raiders Rebound, Roll By Weymouth N., 72-46

The North Quincy basketball team rebounded from its third loss of the season to easily defeat Weymouth North last Friday and the Raiders were 9-3 (7-2 in the Suburban League) going into Tuesday's game with Weymouth South.

The Raiders will be home to undefeated state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin, led by 7-foot center, Pat Ewing, Friday at 3:30. North gave Cambridge its toughest game of the year earlier, leading much of the way but bowing, 56-44. This was Cambridge's lowest score of the season. It has gone over 100 points twice and has continually scored over 90 points, including 93 against Quincy. North is idle next Tuesday.

Ed Miller's North team had little trouble rolling over Weymouth North, 72-46.

Mark Millane again led the Raiders with 22 points and 6-9 junior Chip Bunker had his best game with 17 points and 16 rebounds.

North jumped out to a 38-23 halftime lead and was never in trouble.

Earlier in the week North bowed to Brockton, 64-56, despite 17 points by Millane. Paul Mallory added 12 points.

Raiderettes Edged By Weymouth N., 37-35

The North Quincy girls' basketball team hoped to rebound from a disappointing loss to Weymouth North when it met Weymouth South Tuesday.

The Raiderettes, with an 8-4 record, will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday at 3:30. They will be idle next Tuesday.

The North girls let one slip away as Weymouth North came from behind to edge the Raiderettes, 37-35, last Friday.

Paul Bregoli's North team looked like it would blow out the visiting Maroons as it jumped off to an 11-4 lead on two baskets by Lauran Apollo, a breakaway by Tricia Meehan, three points by Julie Watts and a basket by Kim Alberti.

However, Weymouth came back to take a 21-19 halftime lead as it beat the Raiderettes badly on the boards.

Weymouth increased its advantage to seven points in the third period but, as has been characteristic, the Raiderettes stormed back and JoAnne Runge and Watts combined for seven steals and they narrowed the gap to two points with 14 seconds left. North had a chance to tie the game three times but couldn't do it.

Watts scored nine points, had 13 rebounds, five blocked shots and three steals for another outstanding performance.

Earlier in the week North defeated Brockton for the second time, 49-38.

Brockton's collapsing zone bothered North's inside game in the opening period as high scoring center Watts managed but one basket. But sophomore Debbie Kiley and Alberti picked up the slack as they hit several outside jumpers to put the Raiderettes up, 12-7, at the end of one.

Apollo sparked North in the second period as she scored eight points on inside moves and was sensational on the boards. She pulled down a personal high of 15 rebounds in the game. Watts, who ran into foul trouble in the second period, was awesome on defense in the first half, blocking five shots. Anne McElaney again came in to spell Watts and did a fine job. North led, 26-17, at the half.

Watts came back in the third period to score six points as North extended its lead to 13 points. Jackie Thayer, who started in place of Runge, who was sick with the flu, played well before fouling out.

She scored three points, had seven assists, three steals and four rebounds. North also got big contribution from sophomore Michelle White, who replaced an injured Kiley while Alberti was on the bench with four fouls. She and Meehan ran the offense well.

In the fourth period Brockton stormed back to within six points but two pressure free throws by Mary Ellen Timmins and a breakaway layup by Kiley sealed the win for the Raiderettes.

"This was a total team effort," Bregoli said. "I was nervous with Runge out sick, but Thayer, Kiley and Apollo all came up with superior efforts. And White and Timmins, two girls who haven't played all that much, came in and played like pros."

Apollo had 10 points, and 15 rebounds, Watts had 12 points and 10 rebounds, Alberti eight points and four assists and Kiley 12 points and three steals.

North Ties On Duff's Last Second Goal

North Quincy's hockey team tied Newton North, 5-5, last week with a last second goal.

The Raiders, 4-4-2 in the Suburban League and 5-4-2 overall, will be idle until next Wednesday when they host Brookline, the defending league champion, at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Junior wing Kevin Duff gave North the tie with Newton, scoring with 56 seconds left to play and goalie Danny Newcomb out of the game for an extra skater.

Newton had taken a 5-4 lead with 1:17 left but Duff tied it when he picked up a loose puck in front of the net. Mark Andrews and Paul O'Sullivan assisted on the goal.

Robbie McHugh scored his 10th goal, Mike Cullen had two goals and O'Sullivan one.

North Girls Take 8 Of 10 Events In Romp

The North Quincy girls' track team keeps rolling along and last week breezed past Weymouth North, 58-28, to improve its record to 5-0.

Lou Tozzi's Raiderettes will face Cambridge Rindge and Latin Friday at 5 p.m. at Northeastern University.

The North girls won eight of 10 events last week, with Weymouth North winning only the 300 and 600-yard runs.

For the Raiderettes, Michelle Millane remained unbeaten in the shot put with a 41-2 throw, and Caryn Smith was second; Kara Crehan won the high jump at 5-0 and Deidre Donovan was third; Kathy McCarthy won the 50 in 7.5; Maria McGurl won the hurdles in 8.8; Sheila Barrett won the 1000 in 3:16 with Cathy Moriarty second; Robyn O'Donnell won the mile in 5:58 with Ann Gorczyca second; Deidre Corrigan won the two-mile in 12:46 with Regina Nagle second; Linda Morash was second in the 300, Janet Zdzankowski second and Lisa Reynolds third in the 600 and the Quincy relay team won in 4:47. Running on the relay team were Barrett, Mary Gannon, Sue Orrock and Laura Coughlin.

The North Quincy girls made an outstanding showing in last Friday's fifth annual State Coaches meet.

The Raiderettes placed in seven events, the most by any school, and eight girls won medals.

"This is an open meet and is a much tougher meet to score in than the state meet because there are no divisions," Tozzi said. "All the girls compete against each other regardless of the size of the schools. I am very pleased with our excellent showing."

Millane won the shot put with a toss of 41-3/4, her second best ever. Her best throw is 41-5.

Mary Crehan placed fourth in the 1000 in 2:45.4, her second best time; Linda Kennedy was fifth in the two-mile in 11:30, also her second best time; Kara Crehan won the high jump at 5-5, barely missing the meet record of 5-5/4; Nancy McCarthy was sixth in the 600 in 1:29.3, her best time ever, and Mary Kate Kennedy was third in the 300 in 36.9, easily breaking the old school mark of 39.2. The winner, Maxine Underwood of Brookline, ran 34.6, the fastest ever by an American school girl.

North's relay team of Karen Lindenfelzer, Deidre Donovan, Nancy McCarthy and Mary Kate Kennedy won in 4:02, with Kennedy running an outstanding anchor leg.

Two other North girls turned in fine performances but failed to place. Kathy McCarthy ran her best time in the 50, 6.8, and Sheila Barrett did 5:13.1, the second best in school history, in the mile.

Richard Powers QJC To 74-71 Overtime Win

Sophomore forward Ed Richard scored all of his team's points in overtime in leading the Quincy Junior College basketball team to a 74-71 victory over Daniel Webster College in Nashua, N.H.

The win gives QJC a 6-5 Greater Boston Small College Conference record.

The Jaguars have five conference games remaining as they strive for a playoff berth.

Quincy led by as many as 14 points over Daniel Webster but the home team continued to battle back on its outside shooting, especially by John Terravella, who had 31 points. Daniel Webster went ahead, 64-60. With things looking bad, Quincy changed its defense and Terravella failed to score in the final four minutes. "He was shooting the lights out and he didn't seem to get cold," Quincy Coach Brian Buckley said. "We let Andrew Scheele deny him the ball and it was successful. When he got the ball he had to shoot off balance. Drew did a fine job."

Quincy tied it at 67-67, forcing the overtime, and it was all Richard from then on.

He scored all seven QJC points in the OT, scoring on a jump hook, a tip-in and a fall away jumper.

"They certainly were not shots we diagramed or were working on," Buckley said. "But Ed hit those shots in practice and he gave us a big road win."

Track Club Scores 40 Points At Harvard Meet

The Quincy Track Club made its best showing ever in the New England Senior Championships at Harvard, scoring 40 points and picking up several awards.

The stars for Quincy were Michelle Millane and Kara Crehan, two of the standout members of North Quincy High's unbeaten girls' team. Millane took second in the shot put with a 38-8/8 toss, her best with a 4 kilo, and Crehan won the high jump at 5-6, her best ever. She is the first N. E. champion at the senior level in the QJC's history.

Lianne Supple again scored well, taking sixth in the high jump and hurdles, setting a club record of 8.5 in the hurdles. Margaret Osterman took fifth in the 600 at 1:28.6.

The relay teams made good showings with the medley team of Supple, Kristine Picarski, Maureen Roche and Mary Crehan, running 4:19.3. Supple had a fine 60.8 leg for 440 yards and Crehan ran 2:23 for her 880 leg.

The mile relay team took third with Caroline Mitchell, Ellen Regan, Margaret Osterman and Deidre Donovan combining to run 4:06.2. Donovan had an excellent 58.9 anchor leg.

In the unseeded mile Terri

Rodgers and Beth Regan ran well, finishing in 5:29.0 and 5:30.0 respectively, and Coach Jeff Hennessy ran his fastest ever 880 in 1:57.7.

Several QJC age group athletes ran well in the final Brown University meet sponsored by the Bruin Spiked Shoe Club.

Georgia Traficante won the 12-13 1000-yard run in 3:02.2 with Terri Rodgers second at 3:04.4. Karen Rodgers ran away with the 10-11 race, winning in 2:58.4. Stacie Coull set a club age 11 record with a 14-11 in the long jump and Tommy Walsh set a record with his 42.8 clocking in the 300.

Quincy Ties Cambridge After Drubbing

Quincy's hockey team came back from one of its worst defeats in some time to tie the Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 4-4, last Saturday.

The Presidents were 3-4-4 going into Tuesday's game with Waltham.

Quincy will host Brockton Saturday at 7:50 at the Youth Arena and will be home to Weymouth South next Wednesday at 6:40 at the same site.

Kevin Craig, Paul Flynn, John

Baylis and Ken Ryan scored for the Presidents in their tie with Cambridge.

Earlier in the week Suburban League-leading Weymouth North handed the Presidents an 11-5 walloping.

First Ladies Defeat Brookline, 52-41

The Quincy girls' basketball team defeated Brookline, 52-41, last week, and improved its Suburban League record to 7-3.

The First Ladies are idle Friday and next Tuesday will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:30.

Nancy MacDonald one of the league's top scorers, scored 17 points and took down eight rebounds for Quincy.

Michelle Riggs had 10 points and seven rebounds and Nancy Chludzinski also took down seven rebounds.

Broad Meadows Girls Undefeated

The Broad Meadows Junior High girls' basketball teams are still unbeaten and last week improved their records to 3-0.

The BM varsity easily defeated

Atlantic, 37-13, as Janice Schurch, Michelle Miller and Karen Cullen had six points each and Chris Donovan scored five. Renee Ryan and Cindy Morrell played outstanding games.

The junior varsity defeated Atlantic, 24-11, led by Laura Fratolillo's six points.

Mite A Defeat Randolph, 7-1

Quincy's Mite A's defeated Randolph, 7-1, to improve their record to 29-4. They are still unbeaten in South Shore Conference play. They played three games in Augusta and Brunswick, Maine, and won all three, outscoring the opposition, 37-0.

The team is coached by Dave Fasano and Ernie Zimmerman and the players are Brian Zimmerman, Kenny Staskyvicz, David Santosuosso, Matt Smith, Kevin Daly, Michael Hughes, Bobby Scott, Joey Fasano, Richie McDonald, Ronnie Last, Matt Kelley, Mark O'Brien, Michael Baylis, Tony Spinelli, Timmy Collins, Jim Tiberio and alternates Greg Hohman, Jeff Freeman and Jim McCarthy.

CHRIS CUNIFF shows her form.

Chris Cuniff Wins Florida Tennis Title

Quincy's Chris Cuniff, who won several championships while playing at Abp. Williams High School, recently took the annual Sunshine State Tennis championship at Rollins College in Florida, upsetting two-time All-American Nancy Neviasek, of Winter Park, Fla., 2-6, 6-2, 6-3, in the finals.

Cuniff, a freshman at Rollins, had eliminated Amy Holton of Sarasota 7-5, 6-7 (4-7), 7-5, in the semifinals, while Neviasek had ousted Kerry Young of Orlando 7-5, 6-1.

The tournament is rated the strongest women's amateur event in Florida.

The 19-year-old Cuniff was given little chance against the 22-year-old Neviasek, last year's Rollins captain and now teaching pro at Winter Park's Azalea Lane.

Most of the gallery expected to see the left-handed Rollins graduate give Cuniff a lesson and it appeared she would do so as she won the opening set, 6-2.

However, the young Quincy star, ranked second in New England among 18-year-olds last year, came back strong and her lightning forehand proved too much for Neviasek, who fought service problems all afternoon.

"It took me a set to warm up and solve her lefty strokes," Cuniff said. "It's been a long time since I played a southpaw. After the first set, Nancy started missing a few and I was back in it. I didn't worry about her coming in because I have lots of confidence in my passing shots. Breaking her for a 4-2 lead probably was the turning point."

Cuniff had to go three hours and five minutes to defeat Holton, the national 16-year-old champion. She credited a tip from Coach Ginny Mack for her survival.

"After we'd split sets, Mrs. Mack told me to put more pace on my second service," Chris said. "I was plopping it in and getting killed by Holton's forehand returns. So I put more top spin on my second serves in the last set and kicked them in. I appreciated that little tip because it probably won this tough match for me."

Youth Soccer Registration Feb. 7

Registration for the Quincy Youth Soccer League's spring season will be held Thursday, Feb. 7 from 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday, Feb. 9, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Quincy Police Station.

Boys and girls in grades 1 through 8 are eligible.

The fee is $11 per new member with a family fee (three or more) of $25 maximum. Registration forms which were sent to the families of those participating in the fall should be returned at the spring registrations.

Quincy Matmen Bow To Lowell

The Quincy wrestling team finally lost last Saturday, bowing to defending state champion Lowell, 40-17, but still had a 12-1 record after edging Brockton, 25-23, in the other part of the triangular meet.

The Presidents will meet Newton North and Milford Saturday at 4 p.m. at Newton North and Friday, Feb. 6, will be at Braintree at 6 o'clock.

Quincy has three wrestlers still undefeated, John Herald (12-0) at 157 pounds; Michael Monahan (10-0) at 167, and Mark Picot (9-0) at 187.

All three were instrumental in the win over Brockton, scoring 18 points between them. Jerry McSharry earned a decision at 121 pounds, Paul Silcox tied at 100 and Joe Souza tied at 140.

"The Brockton meet couldn't have been closer or more exciting," Coach Carmen Mariano said. "It also was a hint of things to come as we look ahead to Newton North and Waltham, two Suburban League powers who will prove just as tough as Brockton. I could not be prouder of the way in which we responded to the pressures of the meet.

"The Lowell meet proved to us that we still have plenty of work to do in preparation for the state tournament late in February. But we will take one thing at a time and for now our goals are getting ready for Newton North, Waltham, Milford, North Quincy and Nashua, N.H. Quincy wrestled at Nashua last night (Wednesday).

North Wrestlers Split, Face Plymouth-Carver

team, which split two meets last week to make its record 5-7, will face Plymouth-Carver and Stoughton Saturday at noon at Plymouth-Carver.

The Raiders were outclassed by a stronger Newton North team, 41-14, last Saturday with North's only winners Chris Butler, 9-2, at 128 pounds; Danny Dodd by pin at 100, and Jim O'Hare, 1-0, at 147. Gino Pillard tied, 4-4, at 140, earlier in the week the Raiders defeated Brookline, 45-22.

Dodd won by forfeit at 100, Jay Pillard won, 8-4, at 121; Butler won, 4-2, at 128; John Kozlowski won, 13-0, at 134; Gino Pillard won by pin at 140, O'Hare won, 8-0, at 140; Tom Merrill won by pin at 188 and heavyweight Steve Kallenberg won by forfeit.

100 backstroke in 1:03.8.

Andrews won the diving, Buckley won the 100 butterfly and Burke won the 500 freestyle. The 400 freestyle relay team of Feeney, Burke, Riley and Stockless also won.

Earlier in the week North had rolled over Waltham, 118-50, as Riley won two events and Feeney had a win and was part of two winning relay teams.

Riley won the 200 and 100 freestyles, while Feeney won the 100 backstroke and swam with the 400 freestyle medley and 200 medley relays.

Also winning for the Raiders were Buckley in the 500 freestyle, Burke in the 500 freestyle and Andrews in diving. Andrews' score of 197.50 broke the school record which he set last year and qualified him for the sectionals and state tournament. Boudreau finished second in the 200 individual medley and 100 breaststroke.

In their previous meet the Raiders had made one of their best showings of the season in forcing undefeated Brockton, annually one of the state's top teams, down to the final relay before the Boxers pulled out an 89-83 victory.

The meet started with a second place finish by North's relay team. Riley and Burke finished second and fourth in the 200 freestyle.

Boudreau and Dave Dindy finished 2-3 in the 200 individual medley and Buckley won impressively in the 500 freestyle in 25.5.

Diving, North's strong point, found North sweeping the first three places with Andrews scoring 193 points, Jack Leone 168 and Mike O'Toole 162.

After the diving Buckley and Sean O'Brien's 2-3 in the butterfly tied the score at 47-47 with four events remaining.

Stockless came in second in the 100 freestyle, Burke and Melanson scored in the 500 freestyle. Feeney won the 100 backstroke in a personal best 1:03 and Santosuosso and O'Brien also scored in this event.

Bill Boudreau, Dindy and Jim Boudreau placed 2-3-4 in the 100 breaststroke.

It came down to the final relay which Brockton won. North placed second and third but it was too little and too late.

Earlier North also forced Westwood down to the final relay before pulling out a victory.

In the diving Andrews and Chamberlain had powering performances but the best surprise was Leone winning with 149 points.

Feeney won the 100 backstroke with what at the time was his personal best time of 1:04 and Andrews won the 50 freestyle.

In earlier meets North had outclassed Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 124-37, in the league and Blue Hills Regional, 125-43, in a non-league meet while bowing to Newton North, 85-76, in a league meet.

Executive League

Emmott's Hat Trick Sparks Washington, 7-5

Dick McCabe and Ken Gardner had the other goals. Terry Flaman and Steve Dymant had assists.

Luke's Lounge defeated Dyer's Place, 6-3, with John McNeil scoring two goals and assisting on another. Ed Linehan, Al McKay, Don Costa and Rich Gibbs each had a goal. McKay and Linehan had two assists apiece and McNeil, Gibbs, Costa, and Ed O'Riordan one each. Ken Marini, Kevin Lewis and Doug McLean scored for Dyer's with Jerry Ionanelli having two assists and Lewis one.

Budget Rent-A-Car topped Adams Sport, 6-4, with Dave Towle, Ted Ahola, Chuck Behenna, Steve Marini, Charlie Watts and Bob Murray scoring for the winners. Art Boyle had two assists and Murray, Frank McCulliffe, Ahola, Behenna and Marini one each.

Braves Host Merrimack Friday

The South Shore Braves hockey team, coached by Quincy High Coach Bob Sylvia and boasting a 25-5-5 record, will host Merrimack College, one of the top college teams in New England, Friday at 8 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The Braves rolled over Tufts University, 13-3, last week as Scott Harlow and Paul Greeley had hat tricks. Rich Milano of Quincy, Tommy Jacobs and Fran Mitchell turned in fine offensive and defensive performances and the work of goalies Bob Tierney of North Quincy, Ross Mottau and Art Fitzgerald was again outstanding.

The Braves have several Quincy and North Quincy players, Milano, Tierney, Bill Flynn, Bryan Offra and Pat Ennis. Ennis, former North Quincy star, was playing for Bridgewater State College but the school had to drop hockey two weeks ago.

The Braves are looking for future prospects and all those interested are asked to call Dave Grafton at 659-7012 or Sylvia at 878-1241.

Men's Bowling

The second annual South Shore Men's Bowling Tournament sponsored by Coca Cola, will begin Feb. 8 at the East Weymouth Bowl-A-Way.

All entries must be in by next Sunday. A league can enter more than one team but neither team can exceed a 560 average. There is a $25 entry fee for the single elimination event.

Further information can be obtained by calling Hal Larson at 335-7004, Frank Perfetuo at 471-6138 or Paul Vickers at 471-4037.

To appreciate how much better a scorer Wilt Chamberlain was than ANY other man who ever played basketball, consider this... In the entire history of pro basketball, nobody has ever come within 4 THOUSAND points of Chamberlain's record total... Will scored 31,419 points in his pro career... The NEXT closest player on the all-time list of scorers is Oscar Robertson who finished with 26,710.

Oddly, at one time last season, on the roster of the Cleveland Cavaliers of the National Basketball Association, more than one-third of all the players had the same last name... NBA teams carry 11-man rosters, and Cleveland had 4 players named Smith—Randy Smith, Elmore Smith, Willie Smith and Bingo Smith.

Here's an amazing fact... When third baseman George Brett hit .390 for Kansas City last season, that marked the highest batting average for a regular third baseman in major league baseball in 81 YEARS, or since John McGraw hit .391 in 1899.

I bet you didn't know... that COLMAN'S has all the cold weather wear the entire family needs. For sports, leisure or work... and at low, low COLMAN'S money saving prices. Shop now and save.

NQHS Football Boosters Club Captains Banquet Set For Feb. 1

The North Quincy High Football Boosters Club will hold its annual Captains Banquet Sunday, Feb. 1, at 6:30 p.m. at the Sons of Italy Hall on Quarry St.

The guest speaker will be John Flynn, a former North Quincy football standout and former football and golf star at Trinity College.

The head table guests will include Mayor Arthur Tobin, Supt. of Schools Dr. Lawrence Creedon, Principal Peter Chrimos, Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone, Rev. Cornelius Heery of Sacred Heart Church, Stan Nichols of the Quincy Fathers Club and Coach Dave Burke and his staff.

Every member of the football squad and cheerleaders will receive gifts from the club.

A number of special awards will be presented, among them the Coach Jack Donahue Award for outstanding North performance in the Quincy game.

A Sportsmanship Award in Father Heery's name and the William J. Schaeztl Award presented by the Quincy Fathers Club to the "unsung hero" also will be presented.

An offensive lineman and a defensive back will be given a Jack O'Leary Memorial Award and this year, for the first time, trophies will be presented in the name of the following coaches: Carl Leone Trophy for outstanding offensive back; Ralph Frazier Trophy for outstanding defensive back; Ted Sadowski Trophy for outstanding linebacker and the North Quincy Football Award to the Most Improved Player.

Jack Brown is the Boosters Club president, Betty Schaeztl vice president, Mary Furlong treasurer, Ginny Pillard corresponding secretary, Nancy Grant recording secretary and Bill McIntyre and Frank Grant, in charge of concessions.

"I would like to publicly thank the concession group which worked all home games plus the North-Quincy sophomore game and Thanksgiving Day," Brown said. "These people arrived early to set up the refreshment stand and left late after cleaning up."

The group included Bill and Rosalyn McIntyre, Frank and Nancy Grant, Betty and Bob Schaeztl, Jack and Brenda Brown, Phil and Kay Segalla, Ginny and Jean Pillard, Hugh and Beth Gray, Don Pound, Bill McIntyre Jr., Bill Stacy, Louise McCormick, Carol Howley, Edna Dolan, Mary Furlong, Marie McDonough, Jean McGinnis and Louis Clarfella.

Additional volunteers relieved the senior parents so they could enjoy the Thanksgiving Day game. They were Velma Knudsen, Pat Miceli, Pat Meehan, Marie McMillen, Bill Ragusso and Judy Stein.

'Trades, Tradition And Today' Evening At Vo-Tech Feb. 3

Quincy Vocational Technical School will host an evening of information on "Trades, Tradition and Today" Tuesday, Feb. 3, 7 to 9 p.m. for the public, parents and students.

Information will be available on vocational training opportunities especially as they relate to "non-traditional" opportunities for women and men.

The vocational school offers training in general pipe and plumbing, general woods, graphic and commercial art, electro-electronics, health occupations, data processing, culinary arts, power mechanics, and metals and machines.

Individuals who work in these areas will present information on their occupations such as how and when they received training. They will also address the future of women in their trades.

"Trades, Tradition and Today" is sponsored by Quincy Vocational Technical School and Project Inter-Action for educational equity.

For more information, call Mrs. Janet Doyle at Quincy Vocational Technical School.

Nancy DuLaurence Ch. 2 Auction Area Chairman

Mrs. Nancy DuLaurence of Hingham will serve as area chairman of Quincy and other South Shore communities for the 1981 Channel 2 Auction May 29 to June 6.

The event is the PBS station's major fund raiser and Mrs. DuLaurence will recruit and supervise volunteers who serve as "Go-Getters" calling on merchants, artists, residents and others for donations to the auction.

More than 10,000 new products, services, antiques and art will be offered for high bid at the auction.

Steven Wilkes To Direct Jazz Concert

Percussionist Steven Wilkes of 34 Payne St., South Quincy, will direct a concert featuring the jazz septet, "Quinntagious" Tuesday, Feb. 10, at 7:30 p.m. in the Berklee College of Music Recital Hall, Boston.

The concert will feature traditional percussion works and high energy jazz compositions.

Wilkes frequently appears in Boston area clubs and concert halls with the group which performs original compositions. His professional credits include appearances throughout New England with a variety of bands. A Berklee alumnus, he majored in traditional performance at the college.

Art Workshop Starts At Houghs Neck Center

The Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St., will begin a weekly art workshop tonight (Thursday) from 7 to 10 p.m. for people that would like a place to sketch or paint.

Once the workshop gets underway, a qualified artist will be available for those that would like individual instruction.

For more information, call Patricia Ridlen at 471-8251.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead To Be Painted

Mayor Arthur Tobin announces the MDC has allotted funds to paint the Dorothy Quincy Homestead on Butler Rd., Quincy.

The contract is expected to go out for bid in early spring with a completion date in June or early July. Estimated cost of the project is $23,000.

"We have been in touch with MDC officials since before the city's Bicentennial Celebration of 1980 when we requested that they perform the badly needed work," said Tobin. "Work will include painting of the Homestead and Fence, and some minor carpentry."

The MDC is responsible for upkeep and maintenance of the homestead and grounds. In 1972 there was a new roof installed at a project cost of $11,700.00. At that time interior renovation, carpentry and a great deal of matching of exterior wood and sanding was performed. Landscaping was done by the MDC in 1975 costing $26,003.00.

"I'm particularly pleased that this work is being done and it is of no cost to the City of Quincy," Tobin said. "I'd like to thank everyone at the MDC for listening when we requested to have the work done and for their follow through in bringing the project this far along."

"If we are going to have these historic structures in our city they should be properly maintained, and this is the last of the most needed repairs."

Carol Pisano, Director of Tourism for the City, said, "The Dorothy Quincy Homestead is a beautiful historic site, and I'm delighted that it will be painted in time for the next tourist season."

Last year nearly 2,000 visited the historic site, she said.

Girl Scout Cookie Sale Through Feb 8

Ruth Johnson of Quincy is Patriots Trail Girl Scout Council area coordinator for the annual cookie sale which continues through Feb. 8.

Seven varieties of cookies, at last year's prices, can be ordered: Samoas, Thin Mints, Do-Si-Dos, Van'chos, Tagalongs, Trefoils and Granolas.

Each troop will receive 20 cents on every box of cookies it sells to help support its yearly activities.

If desired, individual girls will receive camp credit of 10 cents per box towards her 1981 camp fee.

The credit can also be used for Girl Scouts attending "Wider Opportunities", a program designed to give cadettes and seniors an opportunity to explore a wide range of learning experiences in and out of the USA.

"We sell cookies so we can continue to provide the type of program which emphasizes values and cultivates skills that build better people for the challenging society of today," said Mrs. Johnson.

History of Modern China Course At Quincy Junior College

History of Modern China, a course that addresses the new role of China in today's world, will be taught in the second semester under the Quincy Junior College Division of Continuing Education.

The three-credit course will be offered Tuesday evenings from 6:30 to 9:10 p.m., and will be open to students in the Evening Division and to others interested. For degree students, the course satisfies one of the Social Science requirements or can count as an elective.

The course will trace the western influence in China and the Chinese response to it from about the 1840's, through the rise of the Chinese Communist Party to power in China. Students will gain an understanding of the modern Chinese experience.

The course will be taught by Larry Rines, a member of QJC's History and Government Department.

Multibank Reports Record Earnings For Third Consecutive Year

Multibank Financial Corp. (NASDAQ Symbol MLTF), a Massachusetts bank holding company, reports its third consecutive year of record earnings, with assets exceeding $1 billion.

Net operating income was $9,021,000, or $5.84 per share, for the year ended December 31, 1980, compared with $7,246,000, or $4.71 per share, a year ago. Net income for the year after gains and losses from securities transactions was $9,056,000, or $5.86 per share, compared with $7,337,000, or $4.76 per share, for 1979.

Multibank reported net operating income for the fourth quarter ended Dec. 31, 1980, of $2,379,000, or $1.53 per share, compared with $2,137,000, or $1.39 per share, a year ago. Net income after gains and losses from securities transactions was $2,380,000, or $1.53 per share, compared with $2,226,000, or $1.44 per share, for the comparable quarter a year ago.

David B. Lynch, Chairman and President of Multibank, said, "Our 1980 results are particularly gratifying. We have now achieved record earnings for the third consecutive year. All seven of our banks contributed to the year's strong earnings performance. During the year, assets passed the one billion dollar mark for the first time, and we are meeting our objective of sound, profitable growth."

"Our continuing financial progress has enabled us to more than triple our quarterly cash dividend since the third quarter of 1978."

"We believe that our strong record clearly shows that Abraham Gosman's claims of poor performance are misplaced. His charges have put Multibank in the position of having to deal with a costly and disruptive proxy fight, a situation which we believe is not in the best interests of our stockholders, depositors, employees and the communities which our banks serve. We believe our stockholders will examine the facts and our record before acting on Mr. Gosman's effort to take over control of Multibank."

Multibank Financial Corp. is a registered bank holding company with seven member banks, as well as other affiliated divisions and subsidiaries, including those offering computer services, leasing and international banking.

Joseph M. Doherty Named 'Certified Insurance Counselor'

Joseph M. Doherty, president and treasurer of Joseph M. Doherty Insurance Agency, North Quincy, recently completed an education program sponsored by the Society of Insurance Counselors.

By completing the program, Doherty, a Weymouth resident, earned the designation of Certified Insurance Counselor, awarded to only 3,500 agents nationwide.

According to society president, Dr. William Hold, Doherty has "demonstrated his professional competence through a combination of experience, formal training and a series of comprehensive written examinations focusing on all major fields of insurance, insurance management and agency operations."

The Doherty agency is located at 518 Hancock St.

Mrs. Catherine Feldman Fidelity Vice President

Mrs. Catherine Feldman of 205 Presidents Lane, Quincy Center, has been named executive vice-president of Fidelity Guarantee Mortgage Corp., 14 Newbury St., Boston.

Mrs. Feldman's promotion was announced by Fidelity Guarantee's president Richard M. Arakelian.

A vice-president of the firm since 1977, Mrs. Feldman is in charge of the company's secondary marketing division. She is a specialist in the preparation and delivery of home mortgages to investor banks and home mortgage companies.

Mrs. Feldman began her mortgage banking career with Commonwealth Mortgage Corp.

'Leading Organization' South Shore Chamber Of Commerce Reaccredited, Commended

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has been reaccredited by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, according to the national Chamber organization.

The South Shore Chamber was called "one of the truly leading organizations of its type in New England" by Paul Greeley of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

It was cited as "an organization meeting high standards of performance in planning and programming and conducting a well-balanced productive program of work."

It is among 427 of the over 2,800 staffed Chambers which have received accreditation.

Chamber Executive Vice President Ronald Zooleck said, "we are delighted with the reaccreditation results, as are the many members of the business community who worked on the process."

Conway Company Sets Sales Records During 'Wild' 1980

The Jack Conway Company set an all-time sales record during the "wild and woolly, never to be forgotten, year of 1980," according to President Jack Conway.

Total sales during 1980 were up about 23.6 percent over 1979, according to a statement delivered by Conway at the firm's annual meeting.

Soaring interest rates held sales to a crawl during the first five months of the year, Conway said. But, as rates bottomed out around June, the company began setting new sales records monthly during the second half of the year, he said.

"It was the wildest year I have ever experienced in my 23 years of running this company," he said. "It was only because of a great combined desire for home ownership as a way to keep pace with inflation and an availability of ample, yet expensive mortgage money, that we were able to cope at all."

The company's five-office Greater Quincy division boosted sales by 20 percent during 1980, Conway said.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT

To all interested agencies, groups and persons:
The City of Quincy requests the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) to be used for the following projects:

QUINCY TOWERS PROJECT - Estimated Cost of Project $16,332,000
200 NEWPORT AVENUE OFFICE BUILDING - Estimated Cost of Project $15,872,000

It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, Quincy has decided not to prepare an Environment Impact Statement under the National Environmental Protection Act of 1969 (PL 91-190).

The reasons for the decision not to prepare such Statement are as follows:
a. The facility will not create excessive traffic or other impacts on the environment.

b. The proposed project conforms to the existing comprehensive revitalization plan for Downtown Quincy.

An Environmental Review Record concerning the project has been made by the City which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the address mentioned below and is available for public examination and copying, upon request.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted, prior to the request for release of Federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City to the Department of Planning and Community Development. Such written comments should be received at the Community Development Agency on or before 2/15/81. All such comments so received will be considered and the City will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the within project prior to the date specified in the proceeding sentence.

License Board Continues Game Room Request

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
 "I've got to be convinced" commented Building Inspector Allan MacDonald at Tuesday's License Board meeting after hearing the plans of DIBOW Corporation for a game room at 119 Parkway, formerly Duddy's Tire Shop.

The matter was continued to Feb. 3, so that MacDonald could view a similar operation in Cambridge. The applicants, Ronald G. Bowers of Randolph and Robert J. DiCarli of North Easton are also to supply MacDonald information on renovation on the building.

Atty. John J. Doyle explained that Bowers, a probation officer in Plymouth and DiCarli, a police lieutenant in Brockton, are requesting a license for 50 machines and Sunday openings. Five machines would be pinball, and 45, electric amusement, according to Doyle.

Hours of operation would be 9:30 a.m. to 11 p.m. Monday to Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to midnight, Friday to Saturday, and 1 to 12 p.m. Sunday, said Doyle who added youngsters would not be added during school hours.

Doyle said no smoking, eating or loitering would be allowed and employees would be retired police officers.

The machines and building would be leased from Parkway Realty Trust according to the applicants.

Bowers and DiCarli said that Louis Grossman, of Parkway Realty, plans to spend $50,000 for the machines, $40,000 to remodel the building and will also loan the applicants $25,000.

Doyle told the board the seven abutting merchants in the area favor the game room. He also cited a merchant association and police officer in Fall River who had had no trouble with game rooms in their area. The merchants even considered the game room beneficial according to Doyle.

City Clerk John Gillis said Councillors Joanne Condon and Steve McGrath sent letters to the board endorsing the application, and that the board of directors of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association voted 8 to 6 to oppose the game room.

Gillis also said he and Fire Chief Edward Barry, not present at this week's meeting, visited a similar operation in Framingham and that it seemed well run.

Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh said he wanted the building to have toilet facilities for the male and female handicapped.

MacDonald said he had visions of what he considered a similar operation on Billings Rd., a few years ago that turned into a "disaster" with motorcycle gangs hanging around and hand bag snatchings.

"We have to be very careful that doesn't happen here," said MacDonald, "it's not good for Quincy."

Police Chief Francis Finn felt the Billings Rd. situation was different because it was a pool room that was managed poorly.

Finn said he was "not particularly in favor, but not against" the game room. He motioned to continue the matter to next week.

Board To Set Policy On Pinball Machines

The City License Board voted Tuesday to continue requests from four establishments for licenses for pinball and other machines to allow the board time to formulate a policy on future granting of such licenses.

Police Captain Paul Nestor told the board there is an influx of such machines in this and other cities. Capt. Nestor submitted to the board a proposal of guidelines to be used in issuing such licenses.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald agreed the city was going to be flooded with the machines. Fire Chief Edward Barry commented, "one machine leads to another and it is like a cancer".

Barry said the board needed a policy on matters such as how many machines establishments would be allowed.

The board continued to the Feb. 10, meeting requests from:

- Conway & Nally, 32 Washington St., for one TV game.

- Olindy's Quincy Ave. Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., for two pinballs and three TV games.

- Chuck Wagon Roast Beef, 656 Washington St., for two TV games.

- Bobby Dodd's Pub, 160 Hancock St., for one video machine.

42 Channels At Start

Cable TV Could Be In City's Homes By Fall

By TOM HENSHAW

Cable television with 42 channels could be coming into some homes in Quincy before the end of the year if Mayor Arthur H. Tobin acts quickly and favorably on his advisory committee's recommendations.

"We are able to begin construction within a few days after the final license is granted," said David J. Keefe, the general manager-designate of Quincy Cablesystems, Inc.

Quincy Cablesystems was recommended for the Quincy cable TV franchise last week, getting five first and two second place votes from the seven members of the Mayor's Advisory Committee.

"The final license is granted when all contracts and leases are in place," said Keefe. "We should be able to complete within three to five months without any unusual delays holding us up."

"If you put that all together, if the Mayor makes a rapid decision in our favor, then about 10 months from now, sometime in late fall or early winter, service can begin in residential areas."

If Cablesystems wins the license, the city will be wired up in five phases emanating from the "head-end" and studio area in a renovated building at the corner of Parkingway and School St.

Phase 1 - Quincy Point - South Quincy; Phase 2 - Eastern Wollaston - North Quincy - Squantum; Phase 3 - Western Wollaston and West Quincy; Phase 4 - Houghs Neck; Phase 5 - Southwest Quincy.

"The continuity of the trunk line will run north and south," said Keefe. "That's why the Quincy Point and North Quincy areas were chosen to be wired up first. Those areas are easiest to construct."

Keefe said the wiring project will cost Cablesystems about $5.5 million for eight underground miles and 176 aerial miles for which Cablesystems will pay an annual fee of $7 per pole per year.

If Cablesystems wins the license, Keefe said, it will employ about 35 fulltime employees and "a host" of parttime workers, most of them from the Quincy area, although there may be outsiders to start.

"Typically," he said, "we take untrained people and train them in the field. It costs a lot of money

Quincy Cablesystems Stands Out

TV License May Be Awarded Within 2 Weeks

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, who is the sole awarding authority, said Tuesday it is possible he will announce the winner of the Quincy cable television license in the next two weeks.

The Mayor's Advisory Committee on Cable Television last week voted to recommend Quincy Cablesystems Inc. for the franchise, based largely on its "strong interest in the city of Quincy."

"I have not yet finished digesting the committee's report," said Tobin. "When I have finished the report and when I have finished reading the proposals, then I'll be making an announcement."

"If everything falls in place there is a good possibility the announcement could be made in two weeks."

Tobin said he has also decided on two people he wants to sit on the proposed Community Television Council that will help to guide the license-holder in its selection of community fare.

They are Ted Harrington of Quincy Point, who has been active in the Morality in Media organization; and Carol Pisano, who handles tourism and cultural affairs in the Planning Department.

"We will be looking for other prominent citizens of Quincy to serve on the council," Tobin said.

The advisory committee's report to Tobin said that all seven of the final applicant companies made excellent proposals and presented them well at public hearings but Cablesystems stood out over all.

Said the report on Cablesystems:

"The company consistently demonstrated a strong interest in the city of Quincy, as evidenced by its extensive community ascertainment and its ongoing involvement in local activities and events."

"The committee was impressed with the quality and integrity of the company's corporate and local

Tobin, LaRaia Clash

Did Arbitrator Exceed Authority On Layoffs Ruling?

Did arbitrator Mark M. Grossman exceed his authority when he ruled that the city of Quincy violated a contract by laying off employees according to seniority by department instead of citywide?

Labor Negotiator Joseph McParland said the city may ask the Superior Court to vacate Grossman's decision on those grounds before it results in "chaos" for a city faced with wholesale layoffs.

Meanwhile, Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia clashed over whether LaRaia also erred in procedures when he fired 50 city workers in 1976 during the so-called January Massacre.

"As far as Joe LaRaia is concerned," said LaRaia, now a city councillor, "as of 1976, there was no such language in a union contract."

"I did not violate the contracts of any such city employees."

Tobin said that LaRaia may be technically correct that he did not violate the language of the contract then existing between the city and the Hospital, Library and Public Employees Union.

"But once he accomplished the January Massacre," he said, "he signed a new contract with Keefe (Union President John Keefe) that established the rules and put everybody in the union."

In return, said Tobin, Keefe and the union "did not fight for the people who were let go."

Keefe was ill and not available for comment at press time.

"If I was going to be bolder," said LaRaia at Monday night's Council meeting, "I'd say the mayor was a liar... but I'm not."

"The only way I'm going to answer Mayor LaRaia," said Mayor Tobin, "is if he would agree to go into a courtroom with

3 To 2 Vote

Board Denies Game Room Licenses

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board voted 3 to 2 Tuesday to deny the request of DIBOW Corporation for licenses for a game room at 119 Parkingway, formerly Duddy's Tire Shop.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald made the motion to deny the request saying the proposed establishment was "not in the best interest of the city". Fire Chief Edward Barry seconded the motion and Police Chief Francis Finn joined them in opposing the licenses.

City Clerk John Gillis and Health Commissioner Dr. Robert P. McKeogh voted against denying the license.

Atty. John J. Doyle explained at this and last week's meeting that applicants Ronald G. Bowers of Randolph and Robert J. DiCarli of North Easton were requesting licenses for five pinball machines and 45 electric amusement games, and for Sunday openings.

Doyle explained that Bowers, a probation officer in Plymouth, and DiCarli, a police lieutenant in Brockton, would not allow smoking, eating or loitering, nor school age children on the premises during school hours.

According to Doyle, the building and machines would be leased from Parkingway Realty Trust. Doyle said that Louis J. Grossman of Parkingway Realty would spend $50,000 for the machines, $40,000 to remodel the building, and would loan DiCarli and Bowers an additional $25,000.

Grossman, also of Grossman's, Quincy Center, said at the meeting he has had prospective tenants for the building but that he couldn't issue them a 10 or 15 year lease because of the city's proposed Cross Town Connector. The connector would go through the parking area, said Grossman, and a proposed hotel would be located at the Duddy Building site.

Grossman also said he saw the game room as a temporary two to three year business.

Doyle added abutters in the area and City Councillors Joanne Condon and Steve McGrath were in favor of the game room.

Gillis said the board had received a letter opposing the game room from Rev. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church.

Also expressing opposition was City Councillor Francis McCauley, president of Presidential Cooperative Bank and an announced candidate for mayor.

McCauley said the city wants to upgrade the downtown area and the game room "could cause problems down the road."

John Allegrini, president of Cheever Co., which runs Paperama, said he didn't perceive the game room as a "wholesome business" and that it would infringe on his customers, 75 percent of which are women.

Wollaston residents Kathy Roberts said the machines would be a great temptation to youth and would not upgrade the city. Granting a license would be "the wrong thing to do," said Mrs. Roberts.

Also opposed was Sarah McLeod, of the Presidential, Cranch and Hospital Hill Association, who said she didn't think gambling was the best thing for local youth.

Bernie Reisberg, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, reminded the board his organization is "strongly opposed" to the game room, and urged the License Board to vote on the matter that day.

Doyle said his clients would be willing to accept a license for a six month probationary period, and asked that the matter be continued so that he could explain all facets of the game room to Father McCarthy.

MacDonald made the motion to deny the request saying he had listened to the opposition and visited a similar operation in Cambridge "that did not do a lot for the square".

Harold Urges Quincy Signs At New Braintree Interchange

Sen. Paul D. Harold has called for immediate state action to install signs directing motorists who use the new Washington St. interchange in Braintree to Quincy Center.

In a letter to Public Works Commissioner Dean Amidon, Harold noted the intricate series of traffic controls "including no fewer than ten large new directional signs" at the Route 3 and Washington St. interchange.

"I am quite concerned that, of all these new signs, not a single one directs motorists to Quincy Center or, indeed, to Quincy at all," Harold said.

"I would hope that this serious oversight would be corrected at once, for those visiting the city, making deliveries and, of course, for those who may wish to shop in Quincy.

Harold said such signs "would be the least the Commonwealth can do for Quincy merchants, who have been patiently waiting for 10 years for a connector road, and who now find not a single sign even acknowledging the existence of Quincy at this important interchange."

Hospital Auxiliary Reiterates Objectives

Mrs. Arthur Pentz, president of the Quincy City Hospital Women's Auxiliary, recently reiterated the auxiliary's objectives even though the hospital's management has changed.

Speaking at a meeting of the auxiliary's executive board in the Dennis Ryan Board Room of the hospital, Mrs. Pentz said the auxiliary will continue to attempt to awaken public opinion to the needs of volunteer service.

She said the auxiliary will continue to raise funds for special gifts to the hospital through the maintenance of the Cherry Gift Shop and through special projects.

Since its inception in Feb. 1953, the auxiliary has raised $405,000. Also during the meeting, members voted to purchase a $300 childbirth film on the Lamaze Method.

Upcoming events include a Heart Tag Day at the hospital Friday, Feb. 13, with Mrs. Carol Herbai as general chairman, and an executive board meeting Feb. 11.

Breastfeeding Class At Hospital

A free breastfeeding class for mothers who are nursing their babies and those expecting, will be held Wednesday, Feb. 4, at 9:30 a.m. at the Gordon House, Quincy City Hospital.

Topics will include: whether or not to breastfeed; care of the breasts before and during breastfeeding; adapting breastfeeding to the hospital schedule; nutrition for the nursing mother; establishing a modified demand schedule; expressing and freezing breastmilk; and possible problems and how to deal with them.

To register, call Ann Kurkjian, 848-8564, or Beth Rotondo, 337-8689.

FLOOR FURNACE BURN DANGER

One of the surprising outcomes of the National Commission on Product Safety's investigation into dangerous products, was the fact that floor furnace grilles accounted for one out of every five burns to children under the age of 15. They are the leading cause of burns to children under 5.

Witnesses testified that the temperature at the level of the floor grate has been recorded at between 300 and 350 degrees, the usual temperature for cooking chicken and meat. Gas-fired floor furnaces have been searing infant flesh and imprinting waffle-pattern scars for years. Contact with the skin at a temperature of approximately 155 degrees for one second will produce second-degree burns. At 300-350 degrees, the burn is instantaneous and often permanently disfiguring.

Gas-fired floor furnaces are most often found in mobile homes and in other low-priced housing. Until something can be done to make them safer - it will help to at least be aware of their danger and take your own precautions.

Villa Rosa Extension Request Continued To Feb. 17

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
A request from Villa Rosa, Inc., for extension of the business by 12 feet, developed into a sometimes heated discussion of neighborhood parking and other problems at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

The request, which was continued to Feb. 17, was for extension of the establishment's common victualer-all alcoholic license from 701-705 Adams St., to 699, 701, 703, 705 Adams St. Dora McDonald of Villa Rosa told the board the restaurant would be expanded about 12 feet to include a former pizza shop. Mrs. McDonald said the expansion would result in only one additional seat, but that a new lobby, men's room and kitchen area could be added. "We'd be able to handle the same amount of people more efficiently," said Mrs. McDonald, who added the front of the building would be done over to attract a better clientele.

John Matthews of Braintree, owner of an apartment building in the area, said he was opposed to the plans until he had a chance to review them himself.

Matthews also heatedly told of problems he associated with patrons of the establishment, who remained in the area after hours. He added his property has depreciated as a result.

Several area residents including Mr. and Mrs. John Hurley of 18 Victory Rd., told the board of parking problems they felt would prevent fire or other emergency vehicles from reaching their area.

Mrs. Hurley also said police officers have declined taking any action against the illegally parked cars.

Police Captain Paul Nestor said he would check on that situation.

Fire Chief Edward Barry commented the neighbors couldn't blame Villa Rosa, which provides parking across the street and behind the building, for that problem. Barry also said the plans would improve the establishment's interior traffic and wouldn't increase the size of the lounge.

The matter was continued to allow owners of Villa Rosa to discuss the plans with Matthews and the Lakin Square Neighborhood Association.

License Board Briefs

The Quincey License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted a request from Arthur M. Chandler for a permit to conduct a flea market Saturdays at the Wollaston Theatre, 14 Beale St. At last week's meeting, Chandler had been instructed to discuss the matter with Ward Councilor Steve McGrath. McGrath then sent a letter to the board saying he favored the flea market.
- Granted Sandra M.

Charron of Sandra's Antiques, 210 Washington St., permission to sell used clothing and discontinue selling large used furniture.

- Denied a request from Joseph and Margaret Sinkiewicz for transfer of a lodging house license for 46 Winter St., Quincy Point, when the applicants failed to appear at the meeting for the second week in a row.
- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to the North Quincey Red Raiders Hockey Boosters for a dance Friday, Feb.

13, 8:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the North Quincey Knights of Columbus Hall.

- Granted the Wollaston Chapter of the Eastern Star permission to conduct the annual Antiques Show and Sale Feb. 14, 6 to 10 p.m., Feb. 15, 12 to 9 p.m., and Feb. 16, 12 to 8 p.m. at the Masonic Temple, 1170 Hancock St. The license fee was waived.
- Continued to Feb. 10 approval of Robert Wacks of Braintree as manager of the Strand Theatre, 12 Chestnut St.

'Outstanding Neighbor Of Year' Red Cross Chapter To Honor Edna Gilmore At Centennial Ball

A Centennial Ball, sponsored by the Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross to be held at the Lantana, Randolph Feb. 20, will honor Mrs. Edna Gilmore as "Outstanding Neighbor of the Year".

It will open a year of celebration marking the 100th anniversary of the American Red Cross.

Co-Chairmen of the ball, are Mrs. Daniel Shea of Quincy and Mrs. Samuel Logan of Braintree, are being assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Quinn, Mrs. Peter Anastas, Peter Benelli, Mrs. William Dignan, Robert Brooks and Atty. Joseph McParlaq, all of Braintree; Peter F. MacDonald, David Bouley, Dr. and Mrs. Norman Wilson, Dr. Daniel Shea, Dr. Anthony Dragone, Dr. Thomas Divinagracia and Chapter Chairman John M. Corcoran, all of Quincy, and Mrs. Frederick Connelly of Holbrook.

There will be a dinner and dancing to the music of Joe Contrino and his orchestra. Proceeds from the ball will go to support the programs of the Red Cross Chapter. This is the third annual ball. The first two, held in 1979 and 1980 commemorated the Blizzard of '78 and the Red Cross' role in helping thousands of victims along the New England Coast.

On May 21, 1981, the American Red Cross will be 100 years old, marking a century of service to this country in times of war, disaster and depression.

The Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross will celebrate the 60th anniversary of its founding on Sept. 21, 1981. Chartered originally to serve the city of Quincy, only, it numbered among its early supporters Mrs. Irene Favorite and this year's "Outstanding Neighbor of the Year" award recipient Mrs. Gilmore, who began her long association with the Chapter in 1929 when she went door-to-door seeking contributions to aid the chapter.

Lawrence Butler Honored On Retirement As State Examiner

Friends and family of Lawrence S. Butler of Homer Rd., Merrymount, gathered recently at Morrisette Legion Post to celebrate his retirement.

Butler retired recently after 35 years with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. He retired as Senior Municipal Examiner with the state Department of Corporations and Taxation.

He is also a former chairman of the Quincy Housing Authority and past Commander of the Quincy Veterans Council.

A former resident of Everett, he is the youngest man ever elected to the Everett City Council, at age 21.

He has assisted for many years in election tabulation with the Quincy Election Department and remains active in many civic and community affairs.

Joining Butler and his wife, Margaret, at the retirement party were their son, Lawrence Butler Jr.; their four daughters, Mrs. Kathleen Colbert, Mrs. Judith Kolson, Mrs. Margaret Hanna and Mrs. Mary Ann Lencki, and their granddaughter, Julianan Kolson.

Going Away Party Held For Marie Prevost

A going away party was held recently for Marie Prevost of North Quincy, manager for the past nine years of McLellan's Store, North Quincy.

Miss Prevost has been transferred to the store's Windsor, Vt. branch and several dozen neighbors and friends attended the party to wish her well.

She was presented a gold watch and a $100 gift certificate during the festivities which were held at Cammy's Deli, North Quincy, and hosted by that establishment's owners, Charles and Fran Tirrell.

Miss Prevost has been employed for 37 years by McCrory Corporation, head of McLellan's.

Organizers of the party were Michael Goldwatt and Brendan Gallagher of the North Quincy Local Development Corporation.

John Herbert Chairman NCCJ Anniversary Dinner

John R. Herbert, president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank, has been named South Shore general chairman for the 53rd anniversary dinner of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Northeast Region.

The dinner, which will be held April 28 at the Park Plaza Hotel in Boston, will honor William F. Craig, president of the Shawmut Bank of Boston; Thomas L. Phillips, chairman and chief executive officer of Raytheon Co.; Eliot I. Snider, president of Massachusetts Lumber Co., and George S. Kariotis, secretary of Economic Development and Manpower Affairs.

General chairman for the event is Roderick MacDougall, chairman of the board of New England Merchants Bank.

Herbert has served for several years as a vice chairman for the annual dinners of the National Conference.

Prior to becoming president of The Quincy Cooperative Bank he was editor of the Boston Herald Traveler and, before that, editor of the Patriot Ledger.

Picnic Fees, Electricity Up Park Dept. Facilities To Cost Users More This Summer

Using Park Department facilities will cost more this summer due to Proposition 2½.

The city Park and Recreation Board Monday night approved new guidelines for use of its facilities.

The Board approved a recommendation that a minimum $25 fee be charged to groups using the picnic areas for family, church, scout, civic, youth and community picnics and outings to help offset the cost of supplies and equipment. A $75 charge will be applied to commercial or industrial groups or clambakes scheduled at the outdoor sites.

Organizations using the facilities will be assigned a key and assume the responsibility of opening the restrooms in advance of the scheduled event and will look up afterward.

In previous years, Park Department personnel were assigned to weekend duties to maintain the picnic locations and mark the athletic fields. However, elimination of overtime expenditures and a cut back of employees, both permanent and temporary, will restrict Saturday and Sunday maintenance of park and playground facilities.

Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board, explained that after a series of discussions with officials of the Quincy Men's Softball League and Quincy Women's Softball League, both organizations agreed to assume the electricity costs at Rotary Field, Welcome Young Playground and the Mitchell-McCoy athletic fields on Southern Artery, Merrymount Park during the 1981 playing season.

The Park Department had assumed the total cost of electricity at the athletic fields with lighting in previous years.

Koch informed the board that the total expenditures for for electricity at all park and playground facilities last year was $14,808.52, with $3,517.96 spent at Adams Field, $2,157.88 at Kincaide Park, $1,455.80 at Rotary Field, $1,106.96 at Mitchell-McCoy Fields and $670.84 at Welcome Young Playground. The five areas accounted for $8,909.44 of the total.

The Park and Recreation Board and Park Department have scheduled a meeting of Quincy baseball, softball and soccer sponsors, managers and coaches on Monday, Feb. 9, at 7 p.m. at the Park and Recreation Complex meeting room, 100 Southern Artery, Merrymount Park to discuss the 1981 softball, baseball and soccer playing season.

Project To Achieve Sex Equity Underway In Schools

Project Inter-Action is being conducted in the Quincy Public Schools as one of five projects in the country funded by the Women's Educational Equity Act (WEEA) program.

Purpose of the project is to develop a comprehensive program to achieve sex equity in a school system.

According to District Title IX Coordinator Alicia Coletti, one of the leaders of the project, Quincy was chosen as a site because of the work it has done towards equity for children. Also leading the program is project director Leslie Herbert.

The project will have national impact in helping to expand educational opportunity for all students.

Planning for the project was begun in September, 1979, and last year a needs assessment was conducted and a program designed. The project has been funded for three years to implement and evaluate the designed program.

Working in collaboration with the Quincy Public Schools is The NETWORK, Inc., a non-profit educational service and research organization located in Andover.

The program focuses on areas identified in the Quincy needs assessment: expanded career awareness, female leadership, curriculum and instruction, athletics, parent and community involvement.

A 15-member Action Team of Quincy administrators, teachers, counselors, media specialists, parents and community members is overseeing the project which has six components:

- Impact Schools - Intensive work will take place at the Parker, Quincy and Snug Harbor Schools; Quincy Point Junior High School; North Quincy High School; and Quincy Vocational Technical School.

- Training - Workshops and courses to promote educational equity will be offered to all Quincy staff, parents and community groups.

- Resource Linkage - A resource center is being established with print and audio-visual materials provided by project funds. Available for staff preview and use, the center is staffed half-time by Evelyn Carroll.

- Title IX Implementation - Consultation will be provided to designated departments to ensure continued movement toward full compliance with federal and state laws.

- Dissemination - A newsletter describing project resources and activities will be sent to Quincy staff and parents and to other school districts. Visitors from other school districts will see the project in action and will be trained to use the project in their own districts.

- Evaluation - Documentation and evaluation of the entire effort will be conducted and the results submitted to a national review panel.

Zaire Official To Visit Quincy School System

Dr. Vunduawe Te Pemako, vice rector of the National University of Zaire, will visit the Quincy school system Wednesday, Feb. 11, as part of the Distinguished Visitors Program.

Dr. Vunduawe accompanied by an escort-interpreter from the State Department, will visit classes in both high schools and exchange with students ideas on the problems of Africa and the United States.

He will also meet with Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and members of the School Committee.

Dr. Vunduawe, who is also a member of Zaire's Council of State, was his nation's official representative at the inauguration of President Ronald Reagan.

All's Quiet On Political Front

Proposition 2½, designed to cut fat, waste and other unnecessary costs, may also bring another big reduction.

You will probably see fewer candidates running for municipal office this year than you have in a long time.

City employee layoffs, school closings, other cutbacks and assorted other problems aren't exactly anything to make candidates want to jump in.

As one City Hall wag put it: "I wouldn't dare to run for anything this year. I might get elected and then what would I do!"

So far in Quincy there is only one official candidate for anything: Frank McCauley, running for mayor.

The big question: will incumbent Arthur Tobin seek a third term? Political observers are looking for the tipoff sign. Tobin hasn't publicly said he will or he won't. There are times he looks like he will and there are times you wonder.

Being mayor these days isn't exactly a picnic. Problems sprout like weeds — weeds that got the fertilizer instead of the grass. There are enough "up" and "down" days, that Tobin must feel the mayor's office is getting more and more like an elevator.

If Tobin does run, he and McCauley will probably be the only two candidates which would mean no preliminary (primary) election. If he doesn't, it would be interesting to see how many other candidates would step forward willing to take on all the headaches of the man who has to sit in the city's chief executive chair — the hot seat.

THE QUIETEST FRONT, politically speaking, right now is the school committee.

Three incumbents are up for re-election: Mary Collins, Joan Picard and John Sullivan. But there isn't even one prospective challenger being mentioned at this time.

The School Committee has a lot of bullets to bite this year such as closing probably five schools. No one wants their neighborhood school boarded up so you can imagine the telephone calls school committee members are now getting from parents of children in the schools that seem marked for a lock. And, of course, closing five schools would mean the loss of about 400 jobs — more than 200 of them teachers, the others clerks and custodians, etc.

A seat on the School Committee hasn't been that appealing to candidates in recent years. In fact in the past four years there have not been enough candidates for a preliminary runoff. That's a far cry from 1971 when there were 22 candidates for three school committee seats.

What about the three incumbents who are up for re-election this year? Speculation is that all three will run again because they are so wrapped up in trying to solve the present bushel basket of problems they want to see it through to solution.

Mary Collins, who topped the field four years ago, probably sums it when asked if she's going to seek re-election: "It's too early to decide. I'm too busy with Proposition 2½ right now to even think about anything else."

KATHY ROBERTS, the Republican state committeewoman from Quincy, thinks she has spotted a dark horse candidate for the GOP gubernatorial nomination some 21 months before the 1982 election.

He is John Lakian, 38, millionaire investment counsellor from Westwood, who parted the state's delegation to the Republican national convention in Detroit last year and recently had about 1,000 influential Republicans to a lobster bake at his home.

"He's moving like crazy," Kathy reports. "I think he may be able to do it."

Career Testing Days At Quincy Junior

The Quincy Junior College Counseling Center invites QJC students and interested community members to participate in Career Testing Days at the college Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 9 and 10.

Those interested in participating in the activity can visit the center, in the lower level of the old Courthouse Building, 30

Coddington St., 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

A career interest test will be administered and participants will be able to meet with a counselor and share career information.

Follow up appointments and activities will be arranged. Those not enrolled at QJC will be charged a fee to cover the cost of test material.

Those having difficulty choosing a career or thinking of making a career change, homemakers returning to school, and high school seniors or college students undecided about their future are invited to attend.

For more information, call Richard Pessin, coordinator of student services, at 786-8777, ext. 452, or Alicia Coletti, Women's center director, at 786-8791.

S. Quincy Nursing Home Expansion Plans To Be Viewed

The John Adams Nursing Home owners and staff invite neighbors and other interested persons to attend a showing of the on-site construction plans of the future nursing home.

The meeting will be held at the home, 211 Franklin St., South Quincy, Monday, Feb. 9, at 7:00 p.m.

Ernest Aristide, president of the South Quincy Civic Association will be moderator of the informational session.

2 Quincy Churches To Participate In Healing Service

Prayer groups from Sacred Heart and St. Joseph's Churches, Quincy, are expected to participate in a healing and restoration service Monday, Feb. 9, at 8 p.m. at Immaculate Conception Parish, East Weymouth.

The music ministry from St. Joseph's Church will also be included in the service to be conducted by Father Edward McDonough.

A Mass at 7 p.m. will precede the service which is open to people of all faiths and denominations.

Father McDonough is a redemptorist priest who has worked full time in the charismatic renewal since 1974. His weekday and Sunday radio program can be heard on WROL.

Quincy Quiz

There were four winners this week in the Quincy Quiz.

Earning a Quincy Sun T-shirt were Beth Nemeskeen, 38 Minihan's Lane, West Quincy and Brian Smith, 16 Anderson Rd., Wollaston.

Winning Quincy Sun bumper stickers are Joe Cotter, 807 Sea St. and Cheryl Sullivan, 38 Glover Ave., North Quincy.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. In what section of the city is the Willard School?

3. In what year were the nation's first ironworks founded in West Quincy?
4. What is the name of the City Council President?
5. Name the three candidates for mayor in the September, 1978 primary.

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. The city Fire Department Headquarters is located at 26 Quincy Ave.
2. Massachusetts' first governor under its constitution was John Hancock.
3. The Pollard School is located in Quincy Point.
4. Hancock St. passes through four city wards.
5. The city building inspector is Allan MacDonald.

In 1900, there were only three million Americans over the age 65. Today, there are 24 million.

David Keefe's 'Impossible Dream'

Quincy Man Would Head City Cable TV Outlet

If David J. Keefe is remembered by the Class of '67 at Quincy High School it's probably for the variety show in which he strummed a guitar and sang "The Impossible Dream."

"I'm living that dream right now," said Keefe the other day.

If the Quincy cable television license is awarded to Quincy Cablesystems Inc. as recommended by the mayor's advisory committee, Keefe, the Quincy boy who has been away for 10 years, will be the general manager.

Keefe, who is the son of former Asst. City Solicitor Stephen T. Keefe, Jr., has been in cable television since 1972, which is the ground floor in that infant industry.

He got into it by accident; he had nothing better to do at the time.

A graduate of Bridgewater State College with a degree in theater, Keefe wound up with a temporary job as director of stage activities for the Minnesota State Fair.

"The activities," he says, "included the world's championship plowing contest, an event that comes to the United States only once every 22 years. A kid from Quincy directing the world's plowing contest!"

When that was over, he had to go looking for a real job.

He was married by then, to Pamela, a girl from Cloquet, Minn., whom he met while they were councillors at Camps Hayward and Burgess, the Quincy YMCA camps.

She had a sister living in Atlanta whose house happened to back up to the home of Henry Harris, president of the Cox Cable Co., which had just entered the brand new field of cablevision.

One thing led to another and he wound up in Harris' office, talking job opportunities.

"This cable industry is great," said Harris. "Maybe we can give you a job. We don't have any young people so we're going to start a management training program and we might as well start with you."

Keefe wound up at the age of 22 as assistant manager of the company's operation in Moline, Ill.

"I was in on the ground floor," he said, "I could do almost whatever I wanted to do. The opportunities that were offered me were fantastic."

DAVID J. KEEFE, son of former Asst. City Solicitor Stephen T. Keefe Jr., will be the general manager if Quincy Cablesystems get the Quincy cable TV license. In family portrait are Keefe, his wife, Pamela, and their sons, Matthew, 5 (left) and Benjamin, 4.

"It was a pretty boring business back then. We didn't have satellite reception. We didn't have movies. In fact, we did some of the first movies in Moline."

He traveled around the country for Cox, developing new services, when the company merged with another and Keefe experienced the feeling that he was getting lost in its size.

"I felt it was time to go to work for a small company," he said. "I felt I would have more to offer if I had a chance to learn."

He joined National Cable TV, a small family-owned company in Greenwich, Conn. He moved onto the post of general manager of Upstate Community Antenna in Syracuse, N.Y.

He was in Syracuse when he met Stephen Dodge, founder and president of American Cablesystems of Boston, a small and growing firm that was interested in applying for the Quincy license.

"I had thoughts about Quincy, too," he said. "So we started talking."

For a while, he commuted between Syracuse and Boston, holding down his regular job while helping Dodge to develop the Quincy proposal.

"Last spring," he said, "I felt it was worth the risk to leave the job in Syracuse and come here to a project I could better identify with. I joined American in July."

He and his wife, Pamela, live in Scituate, where, he explains, they were forced to live because housing was not available in Quincy. They have two sons, Matthew 5, and Benjamin 4.

Bethany Church Starts $182,000 Building Drive

Members of Bethany Congregational Church pledged more than $56,000 at the kickoff dinner of a fund-raising campaign to build a new church at the corner of Coddington and Spear Sts.

The goal of the drive was $182,000.

It was planned to build the church in Gothic-style with granite blocks of various colors to be mined from a Quincy quarry opened especially for that purpose.

The Bethany congregation was being aided in its efforts to build a new church by the Granite Trust Co., which planned to build a tower on the site of the old church, Hancock and Chestnut Sts.

ASSESSOR SHAKEUP

New Mayor Thomas J. McGrath shook up the Board of Assessors, accepting the resignations of Joseph Wrightman, George H. Bean and Chairman Michael T. Sullivan.

He named Albert Nelson and J. Winthrop Pratt to replace Wrightman and Bean and reappointed Sullivan to another term as chairman.

DOG OWNERS ANGRY

Dog owners besieged a City Council meeting seeking modification of an ordinance that required all dogs in the city to be muzzled or otherwise restrained for 90 days.

The Public Health Department advocated the restraint as a health measure following a state report that called rabies more dangerous to the public than small pox.

BROCKTON ROMPS

The Brockton High School basketball team built up a 21-0 lead before Gil Crofts scored the first Quincy basket in the second period and went on to a 43-10 victory.

The Quincy lineup: Robinson, Comparato, Gabriel, Greenhalg, forwards; Crofts, MacLeod, centers; Collagan, Eaton, guards.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS SHOWN

The City Council watched a demonstration of traffic lights proposed by Police Chief Ernest Bishop for Hancock St., with the colors red for "stop," yellow for "pedestrians," and green for "go."

It would cost $5,000 to install them at the major intersections from East Squantum St. to Quincy Square.

Bishop Hart To Celebrate Mass At Sacred Heart Sunday

Sacred Heart Elementary School, North Quincy, will conclude its celebration of National Catholic Schools Week with a Mass celebrated by Bishop Daniel Hart Sunday at 10:45 a.m. at Sacred Heart Church.

Following the Mass, refreshments will be served in the cafeteria and parishioners, teachers, parents and visitors are welcome.

The school will be open at that time and those interested can visit the classrooms.

During the week, opening exercises at Sacred Heart School each day have included a special prayer read over the public address system by selected students.

Classroom activities have centered on "Choosing Tradition". Faculty members have worked with students expressing their thoughts on the tradition of Catholic Schools: service, values, scholarship, citizenship, love and faith.

Students also have expressed their thoughts through art projects, faith experiences, community involvement and written compositions.

'Latin America' Topic At Adams Shore Church

Rev. Ulises Torres will speak on Latin America Sunday at 7 p.m. at Adams Shore Community United Methodist Church, 175 Albatross Rd., as part of a School of Missions.

The school, which continues to Feb. 22, is sponsored by the United Methodist Cooperative Parish of Quincy and Parkway, United Methodist Church in Milton.

Rev. Torres came to the United States in 1975 after spending 14 months as a political prisoner in Chile. A Methodist minister, Rev. Torres was engaged in political, social and economic action with oppressed people in that country.

His work brought him into conflict with the military junta and he was arrested, tortured and imprisoned. Rev. Torres recently returned from a study tour in Nicaragua, Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Jamaica, Puerto Rico and Cuba.

An informal fellowship time and refreshments will follow the meeting.

'Thought For Food' Program At St. John's Feb. 11

"Thought for Food", a presentation on hunger around the world and close to home, will be the topic at a meeting of St. John's Parish Adult Religious Education Committee Wednesday, Feb. 11.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at St. John's School, Phipps St., Quincy Center.

Speaker will be Nan Johnson of "Bread for the World" and the Boston Walk for Hunger Office at the Paulist Center.

Miss Johnson will share ideas on responding to world and local hunger problems.

All are invited.

Jean Smart Praised By Bethany Church

Bethany Congregational Church recently presented Jean Smart with a leather pocketbook in appreciation for her work as moderator for three years.

Rev. J. William Arnold made the presentation on behalf of the church at a recent Fellowship Hour after the Sunday 10 a.m. service.

Rev. Arnold praised Mrs. Smart for her dependability and accountability.

He also expressed gratitude for the continued diligence shown by Mrs. Smart in her almost daily appearance at church in her capacities as publicity committee chairman and Sunday School Superintendent.

FATHER ARTHUR JACOBI (center) celebrated his first Mass Sunday at Star of the Sea Church, Squantum. Father Jacobi, a former Squantum resident, was ordained Jan. 17 in Detroit and will serve at St. Anthony's parish in Belleville, Mich. From left are Fr. Festive Lord's Supper At Squantum First Church Members of the First Church of Squantum gathered around a Communion Table 24 feet long Sunday as, beneath colored streamers and clusters of balloons, they participated in a festive celebration of the Lord's Supper.

The service, which took place in Fellowship Hall to save energy, was conducted in the round with the congregation and visitors sitting in a double row of chairs arranged in an enormous circle around the worship area.

At one end of the circle, a fire blazed in the fireplace. At the center was the unusually long Communion Table.

"We needed a table that long," explained the church's pastor, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, "so that the whole congregation could gather around it to share in the Lord's Supper at the same time."

"The streamers and balloons are symbolic of the joy we feel as Christians when we participate in the communion service. It was a deeply moving spiritual experience for all of us."

Before the service, choir director Mary Ruth Scott taught the congregation the alto, tenor and bass parts to some pieces of music used frequently in the service. In recent weeks, the congregation has been encouraged to sing in four-part harmony.

The service began with the congregation singing successively two different versions of the same hymn, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name."

The Junior Choir then provided the musical accompaniment for a music drama, "Jesus Feeds the Five Thousand". Narration was provided by the pastor. Lead parts were played by members of the Boys' Choir including David Scott as Jesus, Chris Shionis as the boy with the lunch and Andrew Ogilvie as the disciple Andrew. Other children in the congregation became the crowd that came to listen to Jesus speak.

The congregation was amused by the delight that came over the faces of the children in the crowd in the play when they learned the basket that was passed to them, supposedly containing five loaves of bread and two fishes, actually contained little fish-shaped cookies they could eat.

The Chancel Choir sang "O

Thou, From Whom All Blessings Come" with music by Tchaikovsky and words by Wright.

The pastor's sermon, "The Power of Hospitality" led into a prayer of confession which included the hymn, "Just As I Am, Without One Plea".

The congregation then gathered around the central table to receive the elements of the Lord's Supper from Deacons Doris Longmire, Carl Anderson, Grace Holmes, Ralph Dougherty, Katherine Hansen, Leon MacIntyre and Ellen Ogilvie.

Before receiving the bread and the wine, the people sang various verses of the hymn, "Let Us Break Bread Together on Our Knees".

Greeters for the service were John and Vera Malmgren. Paul Paulson and Don Frazer were ushers. The Fellowship Hour after the service was hosted by Ruth Swenson, Evelyn Ahearn and Diane Lindblad.

The service Sunday will begin at 10:15 a.m. Sermon topic will be "Putting First Things First". Three choirs will participate in the service.

Cable TV Could Be In City's Homes By Fall

and perhaps a year to bring someone up through the ranks."

Cablestems eventually plans to train people, for itself and for other firms, at a Cable Career Center located in Quincy, for which it has committed $100,000 in its license application.

"This is the first of its kind in the nation," said Keefe. "Cable is booming on the South Shore. One of the problems is that we can't find qualified people."

"We figure there will probably be a thousand jobs generated in cable TV in the next two or three years on the South Shore."

Quincy Cablestems has 12 local investors, who together will own 15 per cent of the stock in the company. The investors and their stock percentages are:

The Rev. M. Alicia Corea, 30 Manet Ave., co-minister of the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 1.4 per cent.

Joseph L. Donovan, 72 Putnam St., assistant commissioner of the State Department of Public works, 1.4 per cent.

Thomas E. Finnerty, 141 Sea St., attorney and former Plymouth County district attorney, 1.4 per cent.

Paul C. Kelly, 93 Ames St., attorney and former member of the Quincy School Committee and Planning Board, 1.4 per cent.

Clifford H. Marshall, 48 Baxter Ave., sheriff of Norfolk County and former Quincy City Councillor and State Representative, 0.7 per cent.

Sabath A. (Sam) Mele, 340 Adams St., former major league baseball player and manager, now a batting instructor with the Boston Red Sox, 0.7 per cent.

Peter F. O'Connell, 40 Hatherly Rd., president of OBC, Inc., construction company, 1.0 per cent.

Lawrence F. O'Donnell, attorney and member of the Board of Managers of City Hospital, 1.4 per cent.

Albert Slate, 134 Monroe Rd., attorney, 1.4 per cent.

Richard T. Sweeney Jr., 41 Alton Rd., funeral director, Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1.4 per cent.

Peter J. Valle, 76 Myopia Rd., sales manager, Irving Levitt Co., and associate member of the Board of Zoning Appeals, 1.4 per cent.

Andrew T. Walsh, owner of Walsh's Restaurant, Norfolk Downs, 1.4 per cent.

Three per cent of the stock will be made available for sale to local organizations, such as veterans groups, service clubs, fraternal groups, and business and professional associations.

Keefe will have two per cent of the stock and 80 per cent will be held by American Cablestems Corp. of Boston, the parent company of Quincy Cablestems.

Keefe said that the individual investors in Quincy were chosen by the company from among those "who we felt were people who gave more to the community than they took out."

Since he was born in Quincy and grew up in Houghs Neck, the son of former Asst. City Solicitor Stephen T. Keefe Jr., Keefe knew most of the people involved, at least by reputation.

"We were introduced to Paul Kelly, who was a friend of my father," he said. "Then it was a building process."

"After Paul and Sam Mele joined up, we started building on people we thought would represent the kind of group we wanted. It was a representative cross section."

"We know that local ownership is important. It's a good thing for the community. You'll notice we didn't have a lot of political horsepower in our group."

Keefe said that the Rev. Corea and Kelly will serve on the board of directors to start and then the post will be filled by other local investors on an annual rotating basis.

Each investor will pay his or her full share of equity dollars, averaging $10,000 for each 1.25 per cent interest.

"Our position from the beginning was no free rides, no matter who was there," said Keefe.

No more individual shares will be sold but Cablestems will be seeking investors from the local groups.

In addition to the two local investors, one member of the yet-to-be-named Community Television Council also will serve on the board of directors.

If it is successful in obtaining the license, Quincy Cablestems will offer the following programs and services at these prices:

- Lifeline, $1.95 a month. This includes eight channels for programming originated locally, such as City Council meetings, educational services, entertainment produced in Quincy, parades, telethons, sports, church services, etc.
- Focus, $4.95 a month (including Lifeline). This encompasses 16 channels bringing in all nine Boston air channels, plus four from Providence, one each from Worcester and Durham, N.H., and WPIX, Channel 11 in New York, which features New York Yankee baseball.
- Supercable, $6.95 a month (including Focus). This includes Channels 26 to 75, with the first 13 active and Channels 38 to 75 reserved for premium television and new service development.

Supercable includes Entertainment and Sports Programming Network (ESPN), the USA Network, the so-called "superstations", WOR in New York, WTBS in Atlanta (Ted Turner's station) and WGN in Chicago.

Channel 33 is the Quincy Newswire, featuring local news and some classified advertising; and Channel 37 is the Satellite Program Network (SPN) of entertainment and informational programs.

Premium Television, which will come in on channels above Channel 37, includes such services as Home Box Office (HBO), Cinemax Movie Service, Showtime and Premiere, the new movie outlets.

They cost $7.75 a month for one service and $5.25 a month for each additional.

Keefe promised that there will not be any X-rated movies shown on Quincy Cablestems and the major services, HBO, Cinemax and Showtime, offer R-rated pictures only after 9 p.m.

"There are several controls that keep the R-rated movies away from people who shouldn't see them," he said.

"You can refuse to buy the service. You can buy a service that just has G and GP. Or you can buy a parental lock that shuts out that service."

One of the channels that was offered by some of the other applicants for the Quincy license was the superstation in Sherbrooke, Que., which, said Keefe, features "raunchy movies and hockey."

"Maybe in time," he said, "the local board of directors will want to do a survey and see if we want to put on the Sherbrooke station. Maybe the Quincy community would say, 'yes.'"

"That's where local ownership is good. We didn't want to make that decision up front."

Cable TV bypasses the dial on the home set by way of a converter, a small box that sits on top of the set. It can be purchased outright for $85 or leased for $3.95 to $6.95 a month, depending on the service.

The Mayor's Advisory Committee, which has been at work for nearly a year, decided on its final recommendations in about 20 minutes with a few strokes of the pen last Thursday.

Quincy Cablestems got the nod with five first place votes and two seconds.

Comcast Cablevision of Quincy had one first, four seconds, and one third.

MetroCable of Quincy, whose list of local investors included the Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Planning Board, and former Mayor Walter J. Hannon, got one first and one second.

Adams-Russell Telecommunications and American Cablevision of Quincy (ATC) each had two thirds, and Norfolk Cablevision one third.

Quincy Cablevision (Alda) didn't get a vote and Bay State Cablevision and Rollins Cablevision of Massachusetts dropped out during the final week of hearings.

"The vote pretty much speaks for itself," said George Riley, chairman of the advisory committee, adding that the balloting was secret to prevent possible intimidation of the committee members.

In addition to Riley, they included Mrs. Regina Whelan, Paul Ricca, Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, William Piche, James Chandler Jr., and Henry April.

The committee was named Jan. 30, 1980, and turned in its recommendation just one day short of a year later.

management. Although the company is relatively young, research on the parent company's other operations showed it to be reliable and the committee feels it will fulfill its commitment and provide quality service to the residents of Quincy.

"Other positive features of the applicant's proposals are its low rates, specific financial commitment for Quincy, funding of a community television council, and a corporate commitment to establish in Quincy a Cable Career Training Center."

The report offered these critical comments on the applications of the six other companies:

Quincy Cablevision (Alda) — "The committee was concerned about the financial stability of the applicant's parent company. The applicant did not provide a specific financial commitment for Quincy. The applicant's community ascertainment efforts were considered insufficient by the committee."

Norfolk Cablevision (Sammons) — "The committee questions their corporate commitment to Quincy since no corporate personnel were evident during the licensing process. The applicant offered only two tiers of basic service, conducted very little community ascertainment, and proposed a community programming facility the costs of which were excessive and inappropriate."

Adams Russell — "The committee's opinion is that additional costs, associated with the construction of this system, were excessive, could have an adverse impact on subscriber rates and the committee questioned the validity of the company's community ascertainment."

MetroCable of Quincy (Times Mirror) — "The company's application was incomplete. They did not guarantee all initial rates and charges. They failed to include certain channels in their offerings. And although the application included extensive community ascertainment, it was noted by the committee that it was mostly conducted during the 30 days immediately preceding the deadline."

Comcast — "The committee was impressed with the company's consistent and strong interest in Quincy. However, the committee felt that Comcast's free tier of service, which they themselves indicated to be valued at $350,000 could ultimately have an adverse impact of subscriber rates. The company proposed a system with extremely high channel capacity. The committee felt this capacity is unnecessary and could have adverse impact on subscriber rates."

American Cablevision (ATC) — "The committee felt ATC's intention to hook up all homes for free service would ultimately have an adverse impact on subscriber rates. ATC did not include some channels. The company's offer of 12 tier one channels was considered exaggerated. . . . conducted little community ascertainment and capital investment, the largest among the applicants, appeared to be unnecessarily high. ATC also failed to guarantee all initial rates and charges."

Tobin thanked the seven members of the advisory committee, chaired by George Riley, for their "many hours of dedication to the task and service to the people of the city" over the past year.

"All the applicants for the license extolled the work of the committee for its fairness and objectivity," said the mayor.

me under oath.

"We did that in the 1978 campaign with the Post-Gazette and he ran for cover.

"That's all I'm going to say to the mayor who had the most corrupt administration in the history of this city."

Tobin was referring to a libel suit lodged against him by the Post-Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Boston's North End that supported LaRaia in the 1978 campaign.

The suit was allowed to drop after Tobin obtained depositions from LaRaia and the publisher of the Post-Gazette to use in his own defense.

Tobin and Personnel Director Mary McGinty said the workers who were laid off by the Tobin administration were let go "by seniority by department units as dictated by Civil Service."

"It was not done arbitrarily," said the mayor.

The employees who were laid off, however, were "provisionals" and not protected by Civil Service, which covers only permanent employees who have passed a test.

"I don't understand," said Mrs. McGinty, "how a Labor contract can give provisional employees rights that permanent employees don't have under Civil Service."

Under Grossman's ruling, a provisional employee who is being laid off can use his or her seniority to bump another employee with less time in any similar classification in the city.

For instance, a clerk in the auditor's office who is faced with loss of his or her job can bump a clerk in the treasurer's office or a clerk in any other office in the city.

That, said McParland, is where the chaos comes in.

"If an auditor's clerk bumps a treasurer's clerk," he said, "she would have to be retrained. The treasurer's clerk would then bump a public works clerk. She also would have to be retrained."

All this in a city that may be faced with as many as 700 to 900 layoffs as the result of Proposition 2½ restraints on the budget for fiscal 1982.

McParland pointed out that Arbitrator Grossman ruled in favor of the city in most parts of the grievance that was filed by the union over the layoffs. He found that:

- The contract did not obligate the city to bargain with the union the impact of the layoffs.

- The union did not prove its contention that the city bargained individually with some employees to return to work.

- There is no basis for the arbitrator to interpret or apply CETA regulations to the unions contention that the city failed to lay off CETA workers prior to the layoff of other employees.

- "An honest desire to reduce costs in one area or perform government services more efficiently is a permissible cause for layoffs."

Currently, a series of hearings are being held before a Civil Service officer for seven city employees who were laid off with the others last June but are covered by Civil Service.

McParland said their appeal processes are about three quarters of the way through.

Included among the seven, Sarah Saccone, who served as budget director in the LaRaia Administration and was laid off after she returned to her permanent job as an accountant in the auditor's office.

Saccone resigned last Thursday as town accountant in Canton, a post she had held since last August.

Canton Selectman Chairman Edward J. Lynch Jr. declined to comment on her resignation, which was accepted by the board, but Miss Saccone told the Canton Journal that "political interference from other town officials was a reason."

The annual Heart Tag Day, sponsored by the Quincy City Hospital Women's Auxiliary, will be held all day at the hospital on Friday, Feb. 13.

Mrs. Carol Herbai, chairman said, "A gift from the heart can save lives.

The goal is to purchase a heart monitor for the hospital which will cost $5,322.

Mrs. Arthur Pentz is president of the Auxiliary.

Council Sends Marina Rezoning To Committee

The City Council Monday night sent the proposed rezoning of 39 acres at the Squantum Marina to its Ordinance Committee.

The motion to refer the rezoning to committee was made, with a note of disapproval, by Councillor Joanne Condon, and seconded by Councillor James Sheets.

"This rezoning is necessary for the 'master plan' for development of the marina, which will be presented at some future date," commented Mrs. Condon. "This plan is apparently not acceptable to the community and, as the rezoning is part of the master plan, I move that it be sent to the ordinance committee and no hearing date set."

The rezoning was approved

Jan. 21 by the Planning Board and has been recommended by Planning Director James Lydon.

It would rezone 18.4 acres from Planned Unit Development (PUD) to Industrial A and 21.4 acres from Industrial A to Planned Unit Development.

The planned rezoning has been opposed by members of the Squantum community.

Billings Rd. Landtaking For Pedestrian Access Sought

The Planning Department has asked the City Council to approve the taking by eminent domain of land at 55-65 Billings Rd.

The land would be used as a pedestrian access between the North Quincy business district and municipal parking area off Vane St., according to Gerry Kavanaugh of the Planning Department.

The parcel of land includes a building formerly occupied by Cammy's Deli, which recently moved to another nearby location.

The building would be demolished, although no other business would be affected by the work, Kavanaugh said.

The order, introduced by Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon, was sent to the City Engineering Department for study.

Thomas Donelin Awarded Degree In Pharmacy

Thomas R. Donelin, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Donelin, 19 Davis St., Wollaston, was awarded the Bachelor of Science degree in Pharmacy at recent Commencement Exercises of the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences.

The degree requires the completion of five years of study of medical sciences and clinical practice in hospital and community pharmacy settings.

The Massachusetts College of Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences is one of the oldest colleges of pharmacy in the United States. It was founded in 1823 and located in the Longwood Medical Center.

Squantum Center Schedule

The schedule of activities for Feb. 9 to 14, at the Squantum Community Center, 136 Standish Rd., will be:

Monday - Sign-up for Roller Skating in Norwood, Feb. 17, 7-9 p.m.

Tuesday - Mothers' co-op play group 9:30-11:30 a.m.; Drop-in day 1-4 p.m.

Wednesday - 4-H Club 2:30-4 p.m.; Senior Citizens Board Meeting at 7:30 p.m.

Thursday - Blood Pressure 9:30-10:30 a.m.

Friday - Stretch exercise 11 a.m.; Senior's day 1-4 p.m.; Swim-fun, bus leaves at 7:30 p.m.

Saturday - Rep. Michael

Morrissey and Councillor Joanne Condon will be at the Center from 10 to Noon, to help provide answers to questions you might have.

Montclair Men's Club To Meet Thursday

The Montclair Men's Club will meet tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the clubhouse, 93 Holbrook Rd.

All members are urged to actively participate in the building fund drive for necessary repairs to the property, and to make returns at the meeting.

Joseph N. Gildea of the club's civic committee will report on the Montclair Flood and Drainage Project now in the engineering study phase by Camp Dresser & McKee Inc., Consulting Engineers of Boston.

Parker School Advisory Council

Jo Jarvis, a staff member of Project Inter-Action, will be the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Francis W. Parker School Advisory Council, Thursday, Feb. 12, at 9:30 a.m. in the school's media center.

WALTER CROOKS of North Quincy marches in the recent presidential inaugural parade in the uniform of the U.S.S. Constitution's 'pikemen.'

North Quincy Man In Inaugural Parade With Navy 'Pikemen'

When Walter C. Crooks of North Quincy joined the Navy, he had no way of knowing that he would be involved in a historic event such as the inauguration of the 40th president of the United States.

Navy Petty Officer 1st Class Crooks, of 69 Saratoga St., took part in the inauguration of President Ronald Reagan as a member of the Navy "Pikemen".

Dressed in 1812 era uniforms, the 18-man color guard marched in the inaugural parade.

"It's quite an honor and one of the great events during my tour on the Constitution," said Crooks, a Navy veteran of 19 years.

The Pikemen are a ceremonial unit consisting of members of the crew of the USS Constitution --

"Old Ironsides", the oldest commissioned warship -- berthed at the former Boston Naval Shipyard in Charlestown.

The unit takes its name from the 7-foot long spear-tipped boarding pikes with which they drill. Such pikes were used by sailors of the Constitution during the 1812 era to repel boarders in close-in combat.

"To be a Pikeman, you must be a qualified member of the Constitution crew, neat, march well, be proud of what you're doing and wear the 1812 era uniform with pride," said Crooks.

"Marching as a Pikeman in the inaugural parade was one of the proudest moments of my life. It has to be the 'topper' of my Navy career," he said.

James Lowell Selected To Who's Who

James Lowell of North Quincy is among 33 students from the culinary arts division of Johnson & Wales College, Providence, R.I., selected for inclusion in the 1981 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

Lowell, of 143 Atlantic St., is a second year student working towards an associate in science degree.

Students selected to Who's Who are recognized as being among the country's most outstanding campus leaders.

PAUL MALLORY of North Quincy shoots over the Cambridge Rindge and Latin defense.

CAMBRIDGE'S 7-foot Pat Ewing misses blocking a North Quincy shot.

NORTH QUINCY'S Paul Gill (45) tries to go around Cambridge's Bryan Lowe (44), while North's Mark Millane (50) and Cambridge's Ladon Adair (10) also get involved in the action.

Ewing Held To 12 Points

Raiders Give Cambridge Trouble But Bow

The North Quincy basketball team, the only team to give unbeaten state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin trouble this year, took a 10-4 record (8-3 in the Suburban League) into last night's (Wednesday) non-league game with Rever.

The Raiders, who made another brilliant showing against Cambridge, one of the country's top teams, last week, will host Newton Friday at 8 p.m. and will be home to Waltham Tuesday at 7.

Ed Miller's North team, which earlier in the year had held Cambridge to a 56-44 win at Boston College, last Friday gave the same team and 7-foot Pat Ewing, rated the top player in the country, even more trouble before bowing, 51-42, before a standing room only crowd at the North gym.

Cambridge this season has three times reached 100 points and has scored at least 90 in nearly every game. North is the only team to hold down its scoring.

If the Raiders had shot well early in the game, who knows? Cambridge's fantastic win streak may have come to an end. North hit on only two of its first 12 shots from the floor.

Since the amazing Ewing came upon the scene Cambridge is 65-1 and is unbeaten against Massachusetts opponents. The lone loss was to Bp. Hendrickson of Rhode Island in a tournament in Nashua, N.H.

North successfully double-teamed Ewing and 6-9 Chip Bunker and Mark Millane held him to 12 points. But Rindge again proved it can win even if Ewing is held down.

With North cold from the floor, Cambridge took a 12-6 lead in the opening quarter. Cambridge, however, also wasn't shooting at its best with only 7 for 28 in the first half. Ewing's alley-oop from Ladon Adair gave Cambridge its biggest lead, 14-6, to start the second period.

"We usually shoot a little better," Miller said. "I thought we were taking good shots (the majority from the 10 to 18 foot range) but they just weren't dropping in."

"One coach in the league asked me, 'what are we going to do with Cambridge? We can't beat them.' I told him I thought we could beat them and I think anyone who saw this game today will agree. We could have beaten them with a few breaks."

North trailed, 25-20, at the half, but the shots started dropping in after the intermission and the Raiders took a 26-25 lead on a Millane basket, a hook shot by Bunker and a jumper from the corner by Bob Bolster.

Sports

Guard Paul Gill, who did a great job on Adair, hit on a pair of baskets and Millane gave North a 32-29 lead. But North couldn't take advantage of a Bolster steal to add to its lead and Cambridge rebounded with seven straight points before Millane tipped in a rebound to leave the Raiders behind by two, 36-34, going into the final period.

Gill, who scored 12 points, tied the game with a nice scoop shot, but Cambridge scored six of the next eight points. North came back to tie it on a basket by Gill and two foul shots by Millane and it was 42-42 with 2:03 left.

But North's outside shooting went cold and it failed to score again and Kevin Headley and Rick Jarvis scored for a four-point Cambridge lead.

Headley had 14 points as Bolster did a good job on him and Jarvis added 12 for Cambridge. Millane scored 18, Gill 12 and Bolster eight for North.

Earlier in the week North Quincy had defeated Weymouth South, 67-54, with Millane scoring 22 points and Bunker scoring 18 points, taking down 10 rebounds and blocking eight shots.

North, Quincy Swimmers Meet Saturday

The North Quincy boys' swim team will be a solid favorite to continue its domination over Quincy when the rivals meet Saturday morning at 10 at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

Since the schools began swimming six years ago Quincy has never defeated North either in boys' or girls' swimming.

Despite the fact the Raiders, who won their last two meets to even their record at 4-4, are favored, the usual large crowd is expected to witness the meet.

Monday North will swim at Randolph at 3:30 and on Saturday, Feb. 14, both teams will compete in the Suburban League championship meet at the Lincoln-Hancock Pool.

The Southeastern sectionals are scheduled for Feb. 20 and 21, the state championships on Feb. 28 and 28 and the New England's March 6 and 7.

Raiders Looking For Rebound

The North Quincy hockey team went down before the Suburban League's two top teams last week.

The Raiders hoped to defeat Cambridge Rindge and Latin yesterday (Wednesday) and Waltham Saturday at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena and have a chance to finishing with at least a .500 record.

North will host Brockton next Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

North was defeated by Weymouth North, 8-1, last Saturday, dropping its record to 5-6-2 (4-6-2 in the league).

Billy Nee scored the North goal with Paul O'Sullivan assisting, but the highlight of the game from a Raider standpoint was the work of Danny Newcomb in goal.

Newcomb was peppered with 59 shots and stopped 51 of them.

Earlier in the week North lost to Brookline, 7-1, with Bobby McHugh scoring the goal and O'Sullivan assisting.

"These teams are the class of the league and our boys gave 100 percent and never gave up, despite the scores," Coach Kevin Lewis said. "I couldn't ask any more from them."

Lewis received two tough breaks, losing Tom Lester with a broken wrist and Mark Andrews with a knee injury.

Face Cambridge Rindge Friday

Lady Luck Jilts Presidents, 42-40

The Quincy basketball team's luck ran out last week and, in the Presidents' fifth straight game won in the final seconds or overtime, they bowed to Newton North, 42-40, on a basket with one second left.

The loss dropped Quincy to 7-3 in the Suburban League and 10-4 overall. The Presidents faced unbeaten state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday, Friday they will play at Waltham and next Tuesday will be at Weymouth North. Both games will be at 8 o'clock.

Twelve of Quincy's 14 games have been decided in the final seconds of regulation time or in overtime as the Presidents earned the nickname of the "Cardiac Kids".

Last week, Quincy trailed, 30-22, at the half, but outscored Newton, 12-2, in the third quarter to take a 34-32 lead into the final session.

Things looked good for the Presidents as they led, 40-34, with 4:44 to play but high scoring Steve Priscella (13 points) fouled out and Quincy failed to score the rest of the way.

Just when it looked like another overtime game was in the making, Newton's Scott Humphrey grabbed his own rebound and scored the winning basket with one second left.

Sean Burke scored 10 points for the Presidents and Kurt MacDonald was the big man on the boards, taking down eight rebounds.

City Champs

Atlantic-North Soccer Team Undefeated For 4th Year

By PETE ZOIA

The Atlantic-North Junior High School soccer team was unbeaten this past fall for the fourth year in a row with a 7-0-1 record and again won the city championship.

Leo Donovan has coached the team for the past 12 seasons and his 1979 team finished 8-0-0. He also coaches the girls' basketball team.

The toughest game this year was against Point, which held A-N to a 2-2 tie.

Atlantic-North defeated Sterling, 6-1 and 6-0; Central, 2-1 and 2-1; Broad Meadows, 3-2 and 3-0, and Point, 3-2.

Steve Hogan, Mark Scanlon, Andy Curtis and Mike Walsh scored four goals each, Tim Burke and Pat Harrington had two each and Paul Cahill, Fezel Reshed and Ted Shionis one apiece.

"It is fun working with these boys, they have a wonderful attitude," Donovan said. "We should do well again next season with a good group of returnees from the seventh and eighth grades."

The team roster: Ninth grade - Robert Climo, Bill Donnelly, Mike Moriarty, Paul Cahill, Steve Hogan, Andy Curtis, Mike Walsh, Fezel Reshed and Dave Blaton.

Eighth grade - Mark Waterman, Kevin Cafferty, David Benson, Keith Burke, Ken Zwicker, Anthony Koutsos and John Ennis.

Lubarsky and Fran Haynes.

Others include George Lane, Joe Zapustas, Dibby Baker, Vin Kiernan, Paul Cheverie, Bob Gibson, Lefty McKeag, Luigi Richiardi and Charlie Copeland.

Broad Meadows Girls Defeat Sterling, 21-14

The Broad Meadows Junior High girls' varsity basketball team remained undefeated (5-0) by defeating Sterling, 21-14.

Cindy Morrell, Karen Cullen and Susan Beven turned in outstanding defensive performances and Michele Miller paced the attack with 10 points.

The BM junior varsity suffered its first defeat, 35-31, at the hands of Sterling despite excellent performances by Denise Loud and Nancy McDonald.

Earlier in the week the BM varsity defeated Central, 41-24 sparked by Miller's 20 points. Joan Agres played an outstanding two-way game.

The BM jayvees also won, 22-15, after trailing, 10-0. Wendie McKeon scored six points and Loud added five points and played outstanding ball.

Mite A Win Pair

Quincy's Mite A team continued to play winning hockey as it defeated Pembroke, 6-0, at Hingham, and previously unbeaten Belmont, 10-1, at the new Harvard University rink.

In the Pembroke game Matt Smith and Michael Baylis had two goals apiece and Joey Fasano and Brian Zimmerman one each. Matt Kelley and Kevin Daly had two assists each and Smith one. James Tiberio was outstanding in goal in both games.

Braintree White Sox Plan 13th Reunion

Here's an unbelievable fact... If baseball star Rod Carew plays every day in the 1981 season and never gets a hit all year, his life-time batting average would still be over .300... In order for Carew to fall under .300, he'd have to go hitless in ALL of 1981 and part of 1982... For Carew's lifetime average to drop below .300, he'd have to come to bat over 800 times without a hit... Amazing, but true.

See if you can name the player who has this unusual background...

He now plays in the National Basketball Association... His mother was once Miss America and his father and his uncle both played in the NBA... He's Kiki Vandeweghe, who plays for the Denver Nuggets of the NBA... His mother is Colleen Hutchins Vandeweghe who was Miss America in 1952... His father, Ernie Vandeweghe, and his uncle, Mel Hutchins, both played in the NBA in the 1950s.

Did you know that the new manager of the San Diego Padres, Frank Howard, holds the all-time big league baseball record for hitting the most home runs in one week... Howard once hit 10 homers in one week in the majors, and no other big leaguer... Babe Ruth or Hank Aaron or anyone... has ever matched that.

Jerry Lewis Bowlathon At Olindy's

Olindy's annual Jerry Lewis bowlathon for the benefit of the Muscular Dystrophy Association is set for Saturday, Feb. 7. Members of Olindy's Junior Bowling League are getting sponsors to make a pledge for the number of pins they will knock down in their three strings of league bowling.

All participants receive an MDA Certificate of Achievement, an iron-on transfer, and a sew-on patch, with special prizes going to the top pledge collectors.

Funds raised by Olindy's bowlathon help support MDA's research and medical services programs benefiting children and adults throughout the South Shore who have any of 40 muscle-destroying diseases. Last year, Olindy's collected $1000 to fight muscular dystrophy.

Olindy's Jerry Lewis bowlathon is co-sponsored by the Quincy-South Shore Telethon Committee.

Swim Program Cancelled

The Quincy Recreation Department is cancelling the recreational swim program at the Lincoln Hancock Pool for Saturday, Feb. 7 and Feb. 14, 1981.

The High School will be conducting swim meets on those dates. The normal schedule will be held on other days during the month.

North Girls Track Team Downs Cambridge Rindge

The North Quincy girls' track team improved its record to 6-0 last Friday with an easy 59-27 victory over Cambridge Rindge and Latin at Northeastern University.

Lou Tozzi's Raiderettes have a busy week. Yesterday (Wednesday) they met two Boston schools in a tri meet, Friday night at 7 they face Brockton at Northeastern and Saturday they will compete in class B of the state relays at noon at the Commonwealth Armory in Boston.

In the romp over Cambridge Robyn O'Donnell won the two-mile, Sheila Barrett was second in the mile, Mary Crehan was first and Linda Kennedy second in the 1000, Nancy McCarthy won the 600 and Deirdre Donovan won the 300 with Karen Lindenfelzer second.

McCarthy's time of 1:30.2 in the 600 was her best and the second best in the league, while Donovan's 39.4 was also her best and the league's second best time. Maxine Underwood of Brookline, who has the best time in the country in the 300, is the only one to run the 600 and 300 faster than the North Quincy girls. Lindenfelzer's 41.0 is also her best time.

Mary Kate Kennedy won the 50 with Kathy McCarthy second, Karen Crehan won the high jump with Mary Kate Kennedy third, Michelle Millane, as usual, won the shot put with Caryn Smith third, and Maria McGurl won the hurdles. Smith's 32-9 in the shot was her best effort and McGurl, only a freshman, tied the school record of 7.8 in the hurdles.

The North relay team of Lindenfelzer, Donovan, O'Donnell and Janet Zdanowski also won.

Raiderettes Lose To Newton N. 63-44

The Quincy girls' basketball team lost to Newton North, 63-44, last week to drop its record to 8-4.

The First Ladies, idle last Friday, played at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday, will host Waltham Friday at 3:30 and will be home to Weymouth North Tuesday, also at 3:30.

Quincy had a 10-9 first period lead but the strong Newton team went ahead, 23-20, at the half and outscored the First Ladies, 19-13, in the third period to win going away.

Nancy MacDonald, one of the top scorers in the Suburban League, scored 20 points for Quincy and Maureen Walsh had nine points and played an excellent defensive game.

Newton's three high scorers, Donna Yaffe (26), Sandy Smith (17) and Debbie Quinn (14) proved too much for Quincy.

Kiwanis Club Hockey Tourney Feb. 16-22

The Quincy Kiwanis Club will hold its eighth annual International Youth Hockey Tournament during school vacation week, Feb. 16 through 22, at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The AHA-sanctioned Invitational Class A tournament will feature teams from Quincy, Enfield and Midfairfield, Conn.; Long Island, N.Y.; Providence, Don Mills, Toronto; Dorsett Park and Scarboro, Ontario; Port Hawkesbury and Halifax, Nova Scotia; Neponset, Melrose, Woburn, Newton, Wakefield, Wilmington, Billerica, Belmont, Brockton and Scituate.

Teams in four divisions, Mites, Squirts, Pee Wees and Bantams, will compete.

A pass for all games is $3.00. These are available from Quincy Kiwanians and will be on sale at the arena on opening day.

Single tickets for adults are $2 and children 12 and under will be admitted free.

Proceeds will be used by the Quincy Kiwanis Club for many charitable endeavors for young and old.

Further information can be obtained by calling the Youth Arena at 479-8371.

Defeat Newton N., Milford Quincy Wrestlers Pass 100th Victory Mark

By TOM SULLIVAN

Quincy's wrestling team not only had its biggest day of the season last Saturday, downing a good Newton North team to improve its Suburban League record to 6-0 and defeating strong Milford, 30-25, to make its overall mark 15-1, but the Presidents also gained their 100th and 101st victories (101-25-1) since the sport began in 1974.

Saturday at 5 o'clock Carmen Mariano's team will seek its third straight league championship when it wrestles at Waltham.

"This is the big one for us and it will take a supreme effort to win, as Waltham has an outstanding team," Mariano said. "No Quincy team has ever wrestled better than it did last week against Newton North. We won every match but one against some very strong opposition. The Milford meet went right down to the heavyweight bout and Ed Mackey pinned his opponent to clinch the win."

Quincy's records since starting in the 1974-75 season are as follows: 1974-75, 3-8-0; 75-76, 12-9-0; 76-77, 19-1-0; 77-78, 16-2-1; 78-79, 19-1-0; 79-80, 17-3-0, and this year so far, 15-1-0.

"I am very proud of the way our program has developed so completely and quickly and this year's team epitomizes everything that we have worked so hard over the past seven years to build."

Four wrestlers remain unbeaten after last Saturday's two big wins, John Herald (15-0), Al DiVicentis, back from an injury, (11-0); Jim Silcox (8-0) and Mike Miller (6-0).

In the romp over Newton North Paul Silcox won by pin at 100 pounds, Al Costigliolo won by pin at 107, Joe Madden won, 2-0, at 114; Jerry McSharry won, 4-0, at 121; Ed Ryan won by pin at 128, Joe Souza won, 8-6, at 134, DiVicentis won, 5-2, at 147, Herald won, 9-1, at 157, Mike Monahan won, 7-0, at 169, Mark Picot won by pin at 188, and Mackey won, 5-3, in the heavyweight bout. Only Glenn Oriola at 140 lost.

In the win over Milford Costigliolo won by pin at 107, Souza won 8-6, at 134; DiVicentis won 7-0, at 147; Herald won by pin at 157; Jim Silcox won by pin at 169 and Mackey won the clinching bout by pin in the heavyweight bout.

The strong Milford team won six bouts with Bill Marston, Madden, McSharry, Ryan, Shawn Winn and Picot Quincy's losers.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Nashua, N.H., 31-25, with Costigliolo winning, 10-1, at 107; Madden winning by pin at 114, Joe McClellan winning by forfeit at 121, Herald winning, 5-0, at 157; Picot winning by pin at 188 and Mackey winning by pin in the heavyweight bout. Paul Silcox, Ryan, Glenn Oriola, Winn, Greg Oriola and Monahan were defeated.

Brown, McDonough Offensive, Defensive Stars Segalla Receives Donahue Award At NQHS Boosters Banquet

By PETE ZOIA

Glen Segalla was given the Jack Donahue award for being the Most Valuable North Quincy player in the Quincy game at the annual North Quincy Boosters Club Awards Banquet Sunday night at the Sons of Italy Social Center.

Principal Peter Chrisom presented the award in the absence of the retired North coach, who is hospitalized with a broken hip.

The featured speaker was John Flynn, former football and golf star at North Quincy and captain of both sports at Trinity College.

President Stan Nichols of the Quincy Fathers Club presented the William J. Schaeztl Award for unsung hero to Paul Schaeztl.

Fr. Cornelius Heery of Sacred Heart Parish gave the sportsman-ship award in his name to Jim Sullivan.

Recipient of the Coach Carl Leone Award for outstanding offensive back was Jackie Brown and winner of the Coach Ralph Frazier Award for outstanding defensive lineman was Pete McDonough.

Lou DePietro received the Jack O'Leary Award for best offensive lineman and Gino Pillard and Jamie Walsh received the defensive back awards.

Ted Sadowski, dean of the coaches, presented the outstanding linebacker award in his name to Paul O'Sullivan.

The Booster Club Award for most improved player was presented by Betty Schaeztl to Steve McEachern.

Coach Dave Burke and each assistant received a gift as did all senior, junior and sophomore players.

The cheerleaders and mascots (Mr. and Mrs. Yakoo) also received gifts.

Colored slides of the 1980 season were shown to the large turnout of parents and friends.

Raiderettes Hand Cambridge First Loss

The North Quincy girls' basketball team won its biggest game of the year last Friday, handing Cambridge Rindge and Latin its first loss of the season.

Going into Friday's 3:30 game at Newton North, the Raiderettes have a 10-4 record. Tuesday they play at Waltham at 3:30.

Paul Bregoli's North team, enjoying the finest season in the school's history, came from behind in the second half to upset Cambridge. JoAnne Runge and Julie Watts scored all the points in a 9-9 first period. In the second period Cambridge scored 11 unanswered points and took a 24-17 halftime lead.

The Raiderettes climbed back into the game thanks to the hustle of Tricia Meehan in the first 1½ minutes of the third quarter. Meehan made two steals for breakaway layups and then finsned on a Raiderette break with a short jumper to bring the score to 24-23.

"Those plays by Tricia were the turning points for us," Bregoli said. "She brought us back very quickly with those steals and it picked up the whole team."

North led, 31-30, after three periods and opened up a nine-point lead in the final session, thanks to the scoring and rebounding of Watts and Runge. Lauren Apollo came alive on the boards before fouling out late in the game.

Watts had 19 points and 12 rebounds, Runge had 14 points and Meehan added eight. Meehan also had three steals, three assists and a blocked shot.

This big win greatly improved North Quincy's chances of making the Eastern Mass. tournament.

Earlier in the week North defeated Weymouth South, 44-38, leading most of the way thanks to a superb defensive effort to shut down Weymouth's high scoring guard, Janice Lewis. Meehan and Michelle White took turns shadowing Lewis and they held her to seven points.

High scoring Watts ran into early foul trouble but Kim Alberti and Runge handled the offensive chores as the Raiderettes led at the half, 22-13. Anne McElaney played exceptionally well in place of Watts, especially on the boards she grabbed six rebounds in the first half.

North protected its lead in the second half as Watts exploded for 12 points. Apollo, who has been playing well, chipped in with eight points, 14 rebounds and three assists. Alberti scored eight points and Runge scored 12.

QCBPA Presents Awards, Thanks At Festival Night

For some people the Christmas season didn't really end until last Friday night.

That's when the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association's Christmas Festival Committee held its annual awards night, at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center, honoring and thanking those who took part in its series of holiday activities.

Top honors at the awards banquet went to the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, which sponsored the best float in the Nov. 29 Christmas parade.

The Knights received the first-prize Father Tierney Trophy and $1,000, donated by the South Shore Bank, Quincy Cooperative Bank and Quincy Savings Bank, for their float, "Christmas Morning".

Finishing in a second-place tie were the Curtain Call Theatre's float, "Annie" and St. John CYO's "Kids in Casteland". Each received $500, donated by Granite Cooperative Bank, Hancock Bank and Burke Distributors, Inc.

Fourth prize went to CETA's Theatre Connection for its float "Superheroes". The $200 prize was donated by Old Colony Bank and The Pizza Chef.

The Mayor's Trophy, presented by Thomas Burke, executive secretary to Mayor Arthur Tobin, went to the float sponsored by Woodward School for Girls.

The Festival Committee trophy, to the best float in the commercial division, went to The Hancock Bank for its float featuring Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

A specialty award was presented to The Hi Wheelers.

Awards were also presented to student winners in the annual

Winners in the grades 4-6 category were Irene Scott, 27 Sharon Rd., North Quincy, a Sacred Heart School fifth grader, first prize, and Corrine Radzevich, 153 Vassall St., North Quincy, also a Sacred Heart School fifth grader.

Winners in the grades 1-3 were Jason Radzevich, 153 Vassall St., a Sacred Heart second grader, and Christine Sutter, 59 Bird St., Houghs Neck, an Atherton Hough third grader.

Participation awards were presented to the Sacred Heart School and Atherton Hough School.

Arts Council Accepting Applications For Funding

The Quincy Arts Council will begin accepting applications from local artists and cultural organizations for programs, projects, and activities in the arts and humanities.

Mayor Arthur A. Tobin appointed the Council last year to be the official administrative body for the Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council and for the City of Quincy. The local Council will oversee the application and evaluation process.

Eligible applicants will be considered for the funding period of July 1, 1981 through December 31, 1981. The Massachusetts Arts Lottery Council will inform Quincy in February of the projected amount of money to be allocated.

"In a time of shrinking budgets," Mayor Tobin said, "it is gratifying to see support directed toward the arts and humanities to encourage worthwhile projects on the local level."

Information, guidelines, and application forms are available from Carol Pisano, Planning Department, City Hall, 773-1380 extension 442.

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
Norfolk, ss. Probate and Family Court

No. 79F 0483-C1
Notice of Fiduciary's Account

To FLORENCE C. GRAHAM of Quincy, in said County, a person under conservatorship and to her heirs apparent or presumptive and to the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the Second and Final account of EFFIE LeSUEUR As Conservator (the fiduciary) of the property of said Ward has been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account, you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the Twenty-fifth day of February, 1981, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account. If you desire to object to any item of said account, you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

Witness, ROBERT M. FORD, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this Eighth day of January, 1981.

QCH Blood Bank Accredited

The Quincy City Hospital blood bank has been awarded a two-year accreditation by the American Association of Blood Banks (AABB), according to Dr. James P. Kane, blood bank director.

Accreditation follows an inspection by AABB representatives, and establishes that the level of medical, technical and administrative performance within the facility meets or exceeds standards set by the association. By successfully meeting those requirements, Quincy City Hospital's Blood Bank can join more than 2,000 similar facilities across the United States that have earned the accreditation rating and recognition.

Dr. Kane explained: "The AABB's inspection and accreditation procedures are voluntary. It is not legally necessary for a blood bank or transfusion service to be accredited, but like many others, our facility has sought accreditation because it represents a level of professional and medical expertise that meets and exceeds government regulations. The primary goal of the program is to assist facilities like ours to achieve excellence, and thus provide higher quality blood, blood products and service to patients."

Now You Really Must Tell Your Age

The City of Quincy must have the exact date of birth of every resident for the city street listing report, according to a recent state act reminds City Clerk John Gillis.

Previously, residents could give either their age or date of birth.

Persons refusing or neglecting to give required information are subject to fines of up to $500 or imprisonment of up to a year.

Street listers are in the process of compiling information and the cooperation of local residents is requested.

Tobin, Comer Ward 2 Speakers

The monthly meeting of the Ward 2 Civic Association will be held Tuesday, Feb. 10 at the Fore River Clubhouse, announces President Thomas Barrett.

Guest speakers will be Mayor Arthur Tobin and John Comer, chairman of the board of assessors.

They will discuss the effects of Proposition 2½, the state of the city and downtown development plans. A question and answer period will follow.

Tobin, Council Wrestle With $89-M Budget

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin was scheduled to present an $89 million budget for fiscal 1982 to the City Council at a special meeting last night (Wednesday).

At the same time, the mayor and some councillors girded for battle over a separate legislative package that Tobin termed vital to his budget proposal.

Tobin's budget, down $13 million from the $102 million passed by the Council last year due to the constraints of Prop 2½, represents a loss of 275 jobs.

But the mayor said only 150 city employees will be laid off due to retirements and other attritions.

If the separate legislative package is not passed, Tobin said, there could be 200 to 300 additional layoffs and the Squantum and Germantown fire stations could be closed.

The legislative package contains the mayor's proposals to set up enterprise accounts for City Hospital, Quincy Junior College and a newly created Water and Sewer Commission.

Thus, the expense of running those departments and institutions would be removed from the tax levy, which is limited by Prop 2½ to 2.5 per cent of the city's valuation.

The legislative package was also on the agenda for last night's meeting, which Tobin told a news conference he suspects was called as part of a plot to kill the package.

The mayor mentioned no names, but Councillors Francis X. McCauley and Joanne Condon, two of those he indicated were involved in calling the special meeting, denied it.

"Early yesterday (Monday) morning," said Tobin, "four city councillors went to the city clerk's office to have a special meeting called."

"It was done to kill my legislative proposals before they got started."

John Gillis, the city clerk, notified me of the special meeting so I had the budget put on the agenda to open up the whole discussion of the budget and the layoffs."

"I want everyone to know that if the City Council does a butcher job tomorrow (Wednesday) night, it will mean between 200 and 300 additional layoffs in this city."

Tobin did not name the councillors but he identified one as being "upset that a school was closed in the area" and another as a candidate for public office.

"The mayor is incorrect," said Councillor Condon, who has said in the past that she does not like the idea of having the Quincy School in her Ward 6 closed.

"I know of no four city councillors who went to the city clerk's office yesterday (Monday). The City Council President (Leo J. Kelly) called the meeting at the request of Jack Lydon."

Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., who is chairman of the Council's Finance Committee, concurred that he requested the special meeting to follow a meeting of his committee on the legislative proposals.

"I don't know anything about four councillors going to the clerk's office," he said. "I called Gillis Monday morning about the time frame of the meeting. Leo called it at my request."

BIG DAY for the Vo family of Quincy St., who became American citizens Wednesday at Boston's Old North Church. 'A Proud Day'

7 Members Of Vo Family Become U.S. Citizens

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The trip from Vietnam to Old North Church has been a long and eventful one for the Vo family of South Quincy.

But the story had a happy ending Wednesday when seven members of the family, who came to Quincy in 1975 as Vietnamese refugees, became American citizens in ceremonies at Boston's Old North Church.

"I'm very proud to become a citizen," said Dzung Viet Vo, father of the family. "For some time I considered myself stateless — a man without a country. But now I'm very proud to be an American."

Joining him in the citizenship ceremony were his wife, Lanh Dieu Vo, their daughters Kim Dzung Vo, 22; Tuyet Trang Vo, 10 and Diem Trang Vo, 9; and their sons Hung Viet Vo, 17 and Phat Tan Vo, 11.

Kim Dzung is a student at Boston University School of Nursing. Hung Viet a senior at Quincy Vo-Tech and the three younger children students at the Lincoln Hancock School.

Mr. Vo is an instrumentation technician with Polaroid in Waltham.

In April, 1975, however, he was an attorney and customs official in Lachgia, a South Vietnamese Coastal city.

"I never planned to leave," he said. "But I had no choice." On April 30, 1975, the day the American-supported government was toppled by the present Communist regime, the VOs and about 40 other persons left for Thailand in a fishing boat.

"We were stopped twice by the pirates," he said. "They took my glasses, my watches, everything we had."

After six months in a Thai refugee camp, they were allowed to come to America — with no friends or relatives here, almost no belongings and without knowing a word of English.

They were aided by members of Bethany Congregational Church, who found them a home, helped Vo find a job and began teaching the family English. The family attends St. John's Roman Catholic Church.

Vo credits members of both churches with helping his family adjust as well and as quickly as they have.

"I'm very glad to have met all of the wonderful people that we have here," he said. "They have been very helpful — and we have not encountered any prejudice at all."

"The gap between our cultures was much greater than we imagined," he added. "Besides the language barrier, there were great moral and social differences."

"But, now my children are like Americans."

Kim Vo, for example, was chosen as class speaker by her Quincy High 1978 graduating class.

"I go to sleep with no fear of bombs, no fear of Communist invasion and no need to escape," she told her fellow graduates, in the language she had learned in less than two years.

Hung Viet plays soccer at Vo Tech and the three youngest children are taking lessons for various musical instruments. And, the entire family seems to be developing a taste for

QHA Board

Tobin Taps Terranova To Replace Papile

Frank Terranova, retired superintendent of maintenance for the Quincy Housing Authority, is Mayor Arthur Tobin's choice for a spot on the authority board.

Tobin said Tuesday he will ask the City Council Wednesday night to approve Terranova's nomination for the seat now held by Alphonzo Papile.

Papile was appointed to a five-year term on the QHA in 1976 by then-Mayor Joseph LaRaia. That term expires Feb. 28.

Tobin said he was placing his nomination before the council this week in order that Terranova's appointment be confirmed by Feb. 28. Tobin said he expected the nomination to be tabled on its first appearance before the council.

Terranova, 72, retired in 1977 alter 10 years as maintenance superintendent for the QHA. He is employed as a part-time aide in the mayor's office. Before coming to work for the QHA, he was superintendent for a Boston construction firm.

He and his wife, Teresa moved to Quincy from South Boston in 1955 and are now residents of 65 Churchill Rd.

Terranova is president of the Massachusetts Association of Housing Authority Maintenance Superintendents and an honorary QHA board member.

"I feel I'm well qualified to be a member of the authority, with 10 years' experience as maintenance superintendent, and I'm looking forward to helping the senior citizens and other tenants," said Terranova.

100 Per Cent Valuation To Be Known In Mid-March

"Impact notices" will be going out to Quincy property owners in about a month informing them of the new valuation placed on their property under 100 per cent valuation.

For the past year, the firm of P.R.C. Jacobs has been surveying the city to raise valuations from an average of 28 per cent to 100 per cent under court order.

"Jacobs is all through now," said Chief Assessor John P. Comer. "except for a last minute cleanup of people they may have missed the first time around."

"Impact notices will go out to the people in mid-March. After that they have two months to appeal, then the final value will be set in mid-May in time for the 1982 tax rate."

Special Needs Awareness Film Festival At Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center is sponsoring a Special Needs Awareness Film Festival on Tuesday, Feb. 17 at 10 a.m. The 90-minute program related to children with special needs will be repeated at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Among the topics covered by the films are cerebral palsy, dyslexia, deafness, blindness and Down's syndrome.

"How do you feel?" is an especially effective presentation in which a group of young people with various disabilities talk about themselves and how they feel about other people's attitudes and behavior toward them.

Library staff member Jane Granstrom and a member of the Quincy Parents Advisory Council to Special Education are the program coordinators. The Film Festival is another observance of Special Needs Awareness Month in Quincy which has highlighted programs and services available to children with special needs in the City.

"February is Special Needs Awareness Month in Quincy" is sponsored by the Mayor's office, the School Department, the Public Library, and the Quincy Parents Advisory Council to Special Education.

Only Speculation But--

Beechwood Knoll School Could Re-open In 2 or 3 Years

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

The Beechwood Knoll School, closed last week by the School Committee, could reopen two or three years down the road.

So says School Supt. Lawrence Creodon, who said the School Committee may choose to hold on to the Beechwood Knoll until then to store equipment from other closed schools.

Creodon emphasized that his comments were speculation, not a recommendation: "I make recommendations only to the School Committee."

But he noted that the Beechwood Knoll, opened in 1952, is the newest of the five schools closed last week by the committee.

And, Creodon said, the school system will need storage space for equipment from the five schools. The committee last year stopped renting space at the Boston Harbor Marina, as an economy move.

Two or three years from now, Creodon said, "the School Committee may find it wise" to close out the Mass Fields (School), and split that school's district between the Parker School and a newly reopened Beechwood Knoll.

Committee Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy said last week he was unaware of any plans to hold on to any of the closed buildings.

"We're just now getting rid of the schools we closed last year," Kennedy said. "It seems to me, we should probably dispose of these buildings as soon as possible."

Complicating the Beechwood Knoll situation is the fact that area residents say the school site was deeded to the city by the late Louis Grossman. They believe that grant limited use of the land to education or conservation purposes.

Creodon told the committee last week that the land was taken by eminent domain in 1949. Whatever use found for it by city government, should the School Committee vote to return it, "is of no particular interest or concern to the committee," Creodon said.

To Meet 1982 Budget

Library Board Votes To Eliminate 33 Positions

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The board of trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library voted at their meeting Monday to eliminate 33 positions within the library system in an effort to meet their fiscal 1982 budget which begins July 1.

The positions include 27 part time employees, two junior librarians and four maintenance people.

Paul Marini of the library trustees said the board submitted to Mayor Arthur Tobin a proposed budget of $1,103,708 last week. Because of Proposition 2½, the mayor requested that the budget be trimmed by about $100,000.

When asked when the 33 employees would be let go, Marini said "I really don't know, it's a matter of procedure. The board has the power to eliminate positions, but it must negotiate with the union as to which employees will be let go."

"I would say the matter would have to be resolved by at least the end of April because we're running out of money," said Marini.

Marini added that an additional four positions would also have to be eliminated to meet the budget, but that the trustees hope that can be accomplished through retirement.

Four employees are of retirement age, said Marini, who also added those employees, by law, can't be compelled to retire.

The board of trustees will meet in the next few weeks to further discuss budget and operational matters.

Traffic Commission Meeting

The Traffic Commission will meet at 10 a.m., Wednesday, Feb. 18 in the lower level conference room of 55 Sea St. to consider three orders.

They are to establish no-parking zones on the easterly side of Kent St., West Quincy; on both sides of Smith St., West Quincy, near Prospect Hill and on the westerly side of California Ave., West Quincy.

CPR Course

The Quincy Heart Saver Task Force will sponsor a CPR course Thursdays Feb. 19 and 26, 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Quincy Masonic Temple.

Participants in the course will learn the emergency procedure for restoring life in a person whose heartbeat and breathing have stopped.

Board To Meet Friday On Pinball Machine Guidelines

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN
The City License Board is scheduled to meet Friday at 1:30 p.m. at City Hall to discuss guidelines for licensing pinball and other similar amusement machines.

The special meeting was scheduled at the request of Fire Chief Edward Barry who voted against licensing machines for three establishments at Tuesday's License Board meeting.

Barry said he would vote for no more than one machine per establishment until guidelines were set, and then said he opposed any granting of licenses pending the guidelines.

The three establishments, which were granted licenses after receiving votes from the other board members, are: Olindy's Quincy Ave. Bowling Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., three TV games; Chuck Wagon Roast Beef, 656 Washington St., two TV games subject to approval of the Fire Department with regard to placement, and Bobby Dodd's Pub, 160 Hancock St., one video game.

A fourth establishment, Conway & Nally, 32 Washington St., was granted a license for one TV game. Chief Barry was not opposed.

At last week's meeting, Police Captain Paul Nestor had told the board there is an influx of such machines in this and other cities.

At that time, Capt. Nestor submitted to the board a proposal of guidelines to be used in issuing licenses for such machines, but the board has not as yet reached a decision on the proposal.

Police Chief Francis Finn said at this week's meeting his department would not approve of gambling machines in establishments.

A representative from Melo Tene, a supplier of amusement machines, told the board he would forward to them a list of machines that are approved by the state.

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted transfer of the common victualer-all alcoholic license for The Allen's Jolly Roger, 1099 to 1101 Sea St., from Robert Noyes, Jr. to William F. Allen of Sudbury who will manage the establishment.

- Allowed to be withdrawn without prejudice a request from Sherry's, 579 Southern Artery, for transfer of the common victualer license to Brian A. Leonard.

- Granted a theatre license to Robert Wacks of Braintree for the Strand Theatre, 12 Chestnut St.

Permits For $102,457 In Wiring Issued In January

The Department of Wire Inspection issued 80 permits for wiring estimated to cost $102,457 for the month of January, it was reported by Inspector William H. Pitts.

The major project for the month was a Chinese restaurant at 105

Hancock St., North Quincy. The department collected $923.05 in fees, issued 34 certificates of approval to Mass Electric, made 158 inspections and noted 22 defects.

Eleven reinspections were conducted.

Board Hears 2 Rent Grievances

The Rent Grievance Board was scheduled to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. in the City Hall Council Chamber to hear two cases of what the tenants call exorbitant rent increases.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Halter of 54 Payne St., South

Quincy, vs. their landlord, Anthony Parlavacchio; and 15 tenants of 124 Main St., Quincy Point, vs. Harkel Realty.

"More and more cases are coming before the board because of exorbitant rent increases," said Jane Reikard, executive secretary of the Rent Grievance Board. She said there are six cases pending for the March meeting of the board.

County Refunds $5,000 In City Dog Tag Money

Norfolk County has returned $5,073.34 to the city of Quincy as a refund on the $11,730.63 that the city contributed from the receipts of the sale of dog tags.

Treasurer James M. Collins said that, by law, the city must use the money to assist the local library.

The county received $145,562.96 from dog tag receipts in its 28 communities and returned $62,953.97 after $82,608.99 was taken out for county canine expenses.

They included $15,935.65 for the county dog officer's salary; $50,416 for boarding dogs; $6,153 for damages and appraisals; and $10,104.34 for expenses.

Today's Women

At City Hall Conference Room

Homemaker's Re-entering Job Market Workshop Theme

A special workshop on "Displaced Homemakers and Re-entering the Job Market" will be presented in the Quincy City Hall Conference Room Wednesday, Feb. 18 at 7:30 p.m.

Sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, the Women's Center and the Quincy Cooperative Bank, the program will feature Gloria Bernheim, field specialist for the Displaced Homemakers Network and Sheila DeBettencourt, Career Counselor working with the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College and DOVE.

Notes Deborah Ormon, Chairwoman of the Mayor's Commission:

"More and more women today are faced with the necessity of obtaining a job after many years of being a homemaker. This is often a frightening and difficult experience for women who have been removed from the job market for a number of years. This workshop is designed to assist women who are re-entering the job market to build confidence and skills which are needed to successfully obtain a job."

Issues relating to re-entry including assessment of skills, volunteer work, education, training, work experience, and interests will be discussed. Effective ways of building confidence, preparing a resume, and interviewing will be explored. Pointers will be offered on ways to look for a job.

The role of individual as well as group counseling will also be examined. The resources available on the South Shore to aid women who are seeking employment will be reviewed.

Miss Bernheim who is a field specialist for the Displaced Homemakers Network, provides technical assistance to Title III funded programs for displaced homemakers and re-entry women. Miss DeBettencourt, the South Shore's Career Counselor is based in Quincy under the auspices of Quincy Junior College's Women Center and DOVE.

The program is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served. Future programs planned by the Women's Commission included Divorce- the Need for Financial and Emotional Support and Parental Stress.

McCauley, LaRaia Lash Water-Sewer Plan

On the eve of a City Council hearing into Mayor Tobin's legislative proposals on enterprise accounts, two councilors have issued critical blasts at the plans.

The proposals are to set up revolving accounts independent of the city budget for City Hospital, Quincy Junior College and a newly created Sewer and Water Commission.

Councilor Joseph J. LaRaia, whom Tobin defeated for mayor in 1977, called the Sewer and Water Commission "a guaranteed retirement plan for the mayor's long-standing political friends."

"The plan simply sets up a separate agency apart from government that is not subject to the same checks and balances that other city departments must be subject to," said LaRaia.

Councilor Francis X. McCauley, who is a candidate for mayor in this year's election, possibly against Tobin, saw the new commission as a haven for patronage.

"The potential for abuse in the area of excessive creation of jobs would be enormous," he said, "given the fact that the elected representatives of the people would have no jurisdiction over the commission or its operations."

"Proposition 2½ mandates a more efficient operation. However, efficiencies in government should not be accomplished by the removal of the all-important checks and balances that an elected City Council provides."

Commenting on the patronage charges, Tobin said most of the jobs in the new commission would be filled by the transfer of engineers and laborers from similar jobs under Public Works.

"If that's patronage," he said, "then they don't understand patronage or they don't want to understand."

LaRaia noted that the schedule of charges established by the commission would "not be subject to supervision or regulation by any department, division, commission, board, bureau or agency of the Commonwealth or any of its political subdivisions or the city of Quincy."

Also, that the commission appoints "an executive director, treasurer, chief engineer, general counsel and other senior officers," while the executive director is charged with appointing additional personnel, none of them under Civil Service.

"I am not," he said, "in favor of turning over the powers and responsibility of an existing city department or departments to a phantom authority insulated from the checks and balances of the City Council and the public that it serves."

"The mayor, consciously or not, is attempting to separate several city departments from the checks and balances of the City Council and entrust this power to individuals insulated from public pressure."

McCauley, in a statement entitled "A Continuing Analysis of Quincy's Financial Problems," went beyond the legislative package in his criticism of Tobin's handling of city finances.

"A serious deficit exists in the temporary loan interest account," he said. "This account funds interest charges due on loans made to the city in anticipation of property taxes."

"Despite large deficits in this account in fiscal 1979 and 1980 and despite an uncertain market for short term interest rates in 1980, the present administration funded only $800,000 in the present budget."

"Failure of the Tobin administration to meet its target date of Sept. 1, 1980, to set the 1981 tax rate, increased the amount of borrowing and increased the interest rate."

"This temporary loan interest account is expected to be in deficit by over $1.7 million."

McCauley said that in addition to an acknowledged budget shortfall of $4 million, the city is also facing a revenue deficit of $1.5 million.

"Budgetary and revenue deficits incurred by the Tobin administration in fiscal 1981 must be added to the 1982 cost of city government," he said.

"Proposition 2½ limits the tax levy to some $56.9 million so that any deficit incurred in 1981 must be offset by a reduction in 1982 cost of government."

"The 1981 deficit will put severe pressure on the 1982 budget already impacted by Proposition 2½."

2 Residents Nominated To Military Academies

Senator Paul E. Tsongas has nominated two Quincy residents, Paul T. Kelley and Stephen J. Colman, to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and to the Merchant Marines, respectively. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Kelley of 34 Norton Rd., Merrymount, is a senior at Thayer Academy, Braintree.

He is a member of the Thayer football and hockey teams, cum laude honor society and the school complaint and judiciary boards.

Kelley served as chairman of the academy's "Spree Day" and was elected to four terms on the school community council.

He was one of 10 candidates chosen for the military academy from 500 applicants. West Point will make the final decision on appointing its cadets by June.

Colman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray F. Colman of 75 Arnold Rd., North Quincy, is attending North Adams State College. A 1979 graduate of Boston College High School, he was a member of that school's football team and ski club, and was also active in the Big Brother program, tutoring program, and senior class show.

Colman was one of 10 candidates for the Merchant Marine Academy chosen from 500 applicants. A final decision on the appointment of midshipmen will be made by June.

A reception honoring the nominees was held by Senator Tsongas in his Boston Senate office at the JFK Building.

'Excellent Proposal'

Cable TV License Goes To Quincy Cablesystems

To the surprise of almost no one, Mayor Arthur Tobin announced Tuesday that Quincy Cablesystems will receive the city's much-sought-after cable TV contract.

That company, a division of American Cablesystems Corp. of Boston, had been highly recommended by Tobin's own citizens advisory committee.

Competing against six other finalists, Quincy Cablesystems had received five first-place and two second-place votes at a Jan. 29 meeting of the seven-member advisory committee.

State law gives Tobin sole authority for granting the contract.

Citing "extremely competitive rates" and "a strong interest in the city of Quincy," among other reasons, Tobin said Tuesday he would follow the committee's recommendation.

David J. Keefe, Quincy Cablesystems general manager, has said that some Quincy homes could be hooked up to the cable service by late fall or early winter of 1981.

At Tuesday's press conference, Tobin cited the following reason for granting the award to Quincy Cablesystems:

"The company submitted an excellent proposal, which was extremely thorough and consistent throughout. Their proposal stood out by meeting or exceeding each and every specification contained in the city's Request for Proposals.

"Their rates submitted were extremely competitive and were fully guaranteed for two years from first subscriber turn-on. In the six major subscriber service options, Quincy Cablesystems had the lowest rate in three options and had the second lowest rate in two others.

"The company consistently demonstrated a strong interest in the City of Quincy as evidenced by their community ascertainment, which was the most comprehensive of all applicants.

"The parent company is a Massachusetts-based company, located in Boston, providing close and easy access to corporate decision makers.

"The company has named a General Manager of the Quincy system, if selected, who is highly experienced in cable systems development and operations.

"The company has made a major commitment of resources to Quincy, commensurate with Quincy's needs, including a major studio, two mobile vans and appropriate trained personnel.

"The company's commitment to establish and fund a non-profit Quincy Community Television Council.

"The parent company's corporate commitment to establish, in Quincy if selected, a cable career center which will be a training facility serving the needs of the cable television industry. This corporate commitment which includes a $100,000 initial grant, is unrelated to the Quincy system and its subscribers."

Also-rans in the cable competition were Southern Massachusetts Cablevision, Norfolk Cablevision, Adams Russell Co. Inc., Metrocable of Quincy, Comcast Cablevision of Quincy and American Cablevision. Two other finalists, Rollins Cablevision of Massachusetts and Bay State Cablevision Corp., withdrew their applications before the Jan. 29 advisory committee meeting.

Quincy Quiz

There are no winners in the Quincy Quiz this week. No one correctly answered all of the questions last week. We hope you try again.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What well-known building is located at 1306 Hancock St.?
2. The nation's first commercial railroad was located in Quincy. In what year did it begin operation?
3. In what section of the city is Bicknell St.?
4. What is the name of the presiding justice of Quincy District Court?
5. In what county is Quincy located?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. The Willard School is located in West Quincy.
2. Quincy City Hospital is located at 114 Whitwell St.
3. The nation's first ironworks were founded in West Quincy in 1644.
4. The City Council President is Leo Kelly.
5. The three candidates for mayor in the September, 1979 primary were Arthur Tobin, Abe Itkin and Michael Jovanovic.

According to the U.S. Dept. of Energy, the most efficient driving speed range is usually between 35 and 45 miles per hour.

Will St. John's School Re-open?

The closing of five elementary schools could bring about the re-opening of St. John's School in Quincy Center.

Maybe.

"Quite a few parents from the schools being closed have asked me to re-open St. John's School," says Fr. William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's Church.

He has brought the matter before the Parish Council for study and consideration.

The eight-grades, eight-classroom facility was closed in 1974 when the nuns that staffed it, left. Fr. John Tierney was pastor then.

The school could accommodate approximately 240 students-30 to a classroom.

The five elementary public schools marked for closing are the Adams, Cranch, Beechwood Knoll, Gridley Bryant and Quincy. Most of the inquiries about reopening St. John's School are coming from parents of children in the Adams and Cranch Schools which are in St. John's parish area.

Will St. John's reopen?

"It's up to the Parish Council," says Fr. McCarthy. "The costs have got to be carefully weighed. But it's worth looking into."

The next regular meeting of the Parish Council is March 11. If the calls from parents continue to mount, the council might possibly meet earlier.

Cranch PTO Censures School Committee On Reorganization

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Cranch School Parent Teacher Organization has unanimously voted to censure all members of the Quincy School Committee for their decisions thus far in dealing with the problems of declining enrollment, the effects of Proposition 2 1/2, and the resultant school reorganization.

There are two major groups in the city, the Citizens' Task Force and the City-Wide Parents' Council, who have devoted many hours and much effort to helping the School Committee reach their decisions. Both groups reached a definite opinion and the same opinion - that now, not next year, is the time to reorganize around a middle school concept. They both overwhelmingly supported Plan 2 of the possible seven plans of reorganization. How can the members of the School Committee so blatantly disregard this!

We, the people of the Cranch School have repeatedly gone through the upheaval of possible school closings and feel we have gained perspective because of this. Although we are saddened to see the Cranch School finally closing, we are thankful to have had this final year. We now know that it is possibly more detrimental to be short-sighted and to play stop-gap politics at the expense of our children and educators.

We feel that it is in the best interest of the majority to implement the middle school concept. Such a plan would allow the schools to offer the greatest number of programs to our children in grades K-12. We want to add that we see it as an important step that the Quincy Public Schools immediately divest itself of all financial responsibility for any education beyond K-12. It is hypocritical to say that Quincy is dedicated to K-12 when we are supporting Quincy Junior College and the 13th and 14th year Vocational Programs.

"I don't know what the mayor is upset about. He has been asking us to hold a hearing on his legislative package and now we're doing it."

Councillor McCauley, who is the only announced candidate for mayor in the 1981 election, said he didn't go to the clerk's office Monday morning either.

"I got a call from Jack Lydon so that the schedule could be arranged," he said.

"He told me there might be a problem getting Leo to call the meeting and he asked me if I would sign for one. After he explained it to me, I said I would sign."

Under the rules of the Council, four councillors can get together and call a special meeting in the absence of a call from the Council President.

Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, another critic of the mayor's legislative proposals, said Lydon called him Sunday night but he was not home and no contact was made.

"If he had asked me to sign for a meeting I would have balked," said LaRaia. "I don't believe there has been enough discussion on those proposals, particularly the sewer and water."

Tobin spent much of the day Tuesday conferring with leaders of the city employees' unions, trying to secure a large turnout of union members at last night's Council meeting.

He told reporters at his news conference frankly that he wanted their stories to arouse neighborhood groups to attend.

Tobin said his $89 million budget, which is based on passage of his legislative proposals, will effect 275 positions but only 150 actual personnel.

"I have a no hire, no fire policy," he said. "Due to attrition only 150 employees will receive pink slips. We are doing this without closing any libraries or fire stations."

If the legislative package is not passed, he said, these additional layoffs and closings will happen:

- 17 library personnel and some closed libraries, including the North Quincy branch.

- 15 workers at City Hall departments. "No one can then come to City Hall and expect prompt service," said Tobin.

- 10 people in the Public Health Department, including nurses, health inspectors, and dental program personnel.

- 10 workers in the Park, Forestry and Cemetery Departments, "which would destroy the park system and possibly delay funerals," said the mayor.

- 20 personnel in the Water, Sewer and Highway Divisions.

- 72 firefighters and policemen (36 of each), which would also result in the closing of the Squantum and Germantown fire stations.

- 12 people in the Recreation Department, which would "wipe out the programs that keep the kids busy and out of trouble in the summertime," said Tobin.

- 44 traffic supervisors, "wiping out the department that sees to it our children get safely across the thoroughfares," said the mayor.

"These are not scare tactics," said Tobin.

"Something dramatic has to happen after the insanity of the last 24 hours," he added, an apparent reference to the calling of the special meeting.

"They are not hurting me," he said. "It may be personalities. It may be politics. But don't take it out on the 200 to 300 innocent people who will lose their jobs over this."

Councillor Condon was critical of the mayor's action in submitting a budget based on passage of his legislative proposals even before they are passed.

"Apparently," she said, "he doesn't want us to discuss them but only vote the way he wants us to vote. What makes him so sure the proposals won't be defeated?"

"It sounds like scare tactics."

"My ward has already lost the Squantum and Atlantic libraries and the Myles Standish and Quincy Schools and health services to parochial schools have been cut back."

"Does he mean that if I vote to create a Sewer and Water Commission I'll get them back?"

"Does he think he can provide protection to Squantum without a fire station. I hope he can show us his plan."

"The North Quincy branch is the busiest library in the city. Is closing that not a political move? Does it require my vote to create a Sewer and Water Commission to keep a library open?"

"The mayor is playing a game with the people of Quincy and they deserve more than a game. When they voted for Prop 2½ they did not intend to create an additional bureaucracy."

Condon said she supports in principle the idea of making the City Hospital and the Junior College enterprise accounts "but I need a lot of answers before I vote on the Sewer and Water Commission."

She said she hoped the answers would be forthcoming at last night's meeting.

"I certainly will get my twocents in," she said. "When my Irish is up, I've been known to get three cents worth. It's up now."

In Tahiti the temperature rarely rises above 94°F, even in the summer months of February and March.

Bill To Change City Council Gets House Approval

The State Legislature approved a bill filed by Rep. Clifton H. Baker (R-Quincy) that would change the makeup of the new Plan A City Council to six members from wards and three elected at-large.

The bill, which would place the matter before the city's voters on the November state ballot, was opposed by Rep. Carter Lee (R-Quincy), who objected to any major change in the charter.

"I opposed a bill that attempted to change the new charter by setting up an assistant mayor on exactly the same grounds," he said. "It might be a good thing but it was not what the people voted for."

COMPTROLLER BILL DIES

The State Senate killed a bill, which carried the unanimous endorsement of the City Council, to combine the posts of city auditor and director of finance into the single office of comptroller.

Opposition to the legislation was led by Sen. Charles W. Hedges (R-Quincy), who said he could find no support for it among the people of Quincy.

"It's too bad," said Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. "Under the present setup, the city auditor and director of finance have to serve two masters, the City Council which appoints the auditor and the city manager who appoints the director of finance."

WARM-UP FOR NORTH

Jack Crowley scored 26 points and Doug Grutchfield had 15 as the North Quincy High School basketball team warmed up for the Tech Tourney with a 67-58 victory over Thayer Academy.

The North lineup included: Cox, Mann, Mahoney, Crowley, forwards; Grutchfield, center; Stephenson, Painter, Walsh, guards. Al Adams missed the game with the measles.

HOSPITAL LOSING MONEY

Director Dr. Joseph P. Leone told a Lions Club luncheon that City Hospital was losing $4 a day on each patient and experienced a deficit of $343,000 in 1955.

But, he added, as hospitals go, Quincy's is not in bad shape at all.

12 Scouts Honored At Squantum First Church

Twelve members of Boy Scout Troop 24 sponsored by the First Church of Squantum, were honored at the church's morning service Sunday in recognition of Boy Scout Sunday.

The scouts were accompanied by three of their leaders: Donald Pound, scoutmaster; Arthur Erickson, assistant scoutmaster; and Marjorie Petrosius, scouting coordinator.

The service began with a flag ceremony by the troop, including a repetition of the Boy Scout Oath and Law and the pledge of allegiance to the flag.

The Junior Choir and Boys' Choir combined to sing a black spiritual, "Somebody Touched Me," with an instrumental accompaniment. Playing instruments were: Karin Reister, xylophone.; Tracey Gale, glockenspiel; Kerry Galvin, Kimberly Galvin, Bethany Golden, Andrew Ogilvie, Krista Olson, Kim Olson, Kristen Reister, David Scott and Amanda Young, tone bells; Jennifer Cocio and Lee Ann Miller, lumm sticks; Blithe Bumpus, Chris Shionis and Lillian Shionis, finger cymbals; Lori Ogilvie, triangle; Colleen Cocio, drum; Jason Deary, tambourine.

Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, pastor, spoke to the children on the topic, "Don't Be A Jellyfish." He also mentioned that two members of the Boy Scout troop were working on their eagle badge, Robert Leonard and James D. Sullivan. He praised Sullivan for having written, printed and distributed to every home in Squantum a booklet on home safety.

The Chancel Choir sang Henry Purcell's "Rejoice in the Lord Always." Mary Ruth Scott directed.

In honor of Troop 24 members, the congregation sang the hymn, "Now in the Days of Youth."

Dr. Langevin preached on "Putting First Things First." The sermon, based on the incident when Jesus visited the home of Mary and Martha, was the 10th in the series on the life of Jesus.

Gretters were Cal and Gretchen Bumpus. Ushers were Steve Williams, Paul Paulsen, Bonnie Adams, Tore Wallin, Laura Johnson and Susan Mildram.

After the service, a reception for the scouts and their leaders was hosted by Kathy Hansen, Shirley Mason and Sandy Sumner.

St. Ann's School Celebrates Catholic Schools Week

Students and teachers at St. Ann's School, Wollaston, recently celebrated Catholic Schools Week which had as its theme "Catholic Schools: Choosing a Tradition".

Students researched the roots of their Catholic School heritage by taping interviews with relatives and friends who have been educated in Catholic schools throughout the world.

The research provided comparisons and contrasts between the strictly disciplined schools of two generations ago and the more relaxed climate of today's schools.

Children sharpened their map reading skills by locating states and far off lands where their parents and grandparents attended Catholic schools.

QSD Traffic Study Bill Gets Committee Okay

A bill authorizing the MDC to study the traffic flow on Quincy Shore Drive has been given a favorable report by the Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee.

The legislation, which was filed by Reps. Thomas F. Brownell and Michael W. Morrissey, is now before the House for further action.

"Quincy Shore Drive has been the scene of numerous traffic accidents during the past few years," said Morrissey.

"While the MDC has made several studies of the area, I think the track record would warrant another outside study."

Brownell's main concern is the heavily populated Merrymount section.

"Automobiles are constantly speeding along the entire roadway, but the danger increases in the residential neighborhoods," he said.

Wollaston Cub Scouts Hold Father-Son Cake Bake

Wollaston Cub Scout Pack 14 recently held its annual Father-Son Cake Bake and blue and gold Cub Scout pen sets were presented to the winners.

Paul Adams and sons Jeff and Paul were winners in the Cub Scout theme category with cakes depicting the badges for the four ranks in Cub Scouting.

Winners in the animal category were James Dodd and son Andy who made a rabbit cake.

Joseph D'Angelo and son Joe won in the novelty category with balloon cakes.

Most original entry was a Webelo campsite cake made by David Sugarman and son Stephen.

Bureau Drawer Offers Clothing

The Bureau Drawer in Wollaston, a thrift shop operated by volunteers, Wednesday through Friday, 9:30-3:30, has new and used clothing available, especially women's coats, men's clothing, and children's clothing.

A miscellaneous selection of other household items at reasonable prices is available. During February, donated items dated prior to Jan. 1, 1981 will be sold at half price.

The shop is located in the basement of Donner House, 776 Hancock St., Wollaston, the home of the Protestant Social Service Bureau.

When requested, assistance is given to people who need emergency items, and requests from outside organizations are honored where possible.

Donated material is checked, sorted and marked for sale. Consigned items, five at one time, in good style, clean, and worth at least $1.00 value, may be left for sale.

All articles left over are given to other organizations.

Luncheon Friday For Fenno Residents

Morrissey Named To National Post

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has been appointed to represent the Massachusetts House of Representatives on the National Council of State Legislatures.

"The National Council is designed to help lawmakers meet the challenge of today's complex federal system," said Morrissey. "I am pleased to be able to represent my colleagues in the organization."

He said the new appointment, which was made by House Speaker Thomas W. McGee, will enable him to deal more directly with other state legislators and their legislation.

"I will have better insight into national trends and beliefs," said Morrissey. "and that will only help me to better serve my constituents."

QUINCY'S Kurt MacDonald gets a shot off despite a block attempt by Cambridge's Tracey Crayton.

CAMBRIDGE Rindge and Latin's 7-foot Pat Ewing presents quite an obstacle as Quincy tries to get the ball around him.

Bow To Cambridge, Defeat Waltham Pressure On Presidents To Win Tourney Berth

Quincy's basketball team bounced back from a tough loss to unbeaten state champion Cambridge Rindge and Latin to defeat Waltham last Friday.

Going into last Tuesday's game with Weymouth North, the Presidents had to win three of its last four games to again qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Quincy (11-5 overall and 8-4 in the Suburban League) will play North Quincy Friday at 8 p.m. at the Vo-Tech gym, hoping to avenge an earlier defeat at North, will be home to Weymouth South Tuesday at 8 and will finish the regular season next Tuesday at 8 at Brookline.

Kurt MacDonald had 16 points and nine rebounds Friday to lead the Presidents over Waltham.

Steve Priscella had 12 points and nine rebounds, Jim DePietro had nine points and guard Gary DiNardo had eight assists and five steals.

Earlier in the week Quincy gave the Cambridge powerhouse a tough struggle after a bad first period but lost, 56-43, before a packed house at the Vo-Tech gym.

Quincy and North Quincy are the only teams this year to hold down the Cambridge attack. The team has been scoring at least 90 points in most games and three times has hit 100. Cambridge is 16-0 this year and since 7-foot Pat Ewing came upon the scene, the team is 67-1 and unbeaten against Massachusetts schools.

Quincy's defense was superb but the offense faltered at times as the Presidents missed a number of layups and also had a bad night from the foul line, missing 16 of 29 free throws.

"Today's defensive effort was one of the finest by any team I've ever coached," said Coach Joe Amoroso. "I don't want to take anything away from my past teams -- I've had a lot of great defensive clubs -- but against a team like this we played as well as ever. We could have won."

"A lot of their points came on our mistakes and they probably had about 44 off their regular offense. They couldn't figure out our defense. Our teams always play on heart and determination. We played real hard and the 13-point difference was not indicative of the play."

The Presidents failed to score a basket in the opening period and fell behind, 20-3.

Quincy came back to outscore Cambridge, 11-10, in the second period with DiNardo sinking the team's first field goal at 2:44 of the period.

Going into the final period Cambridge led, 45-28.

"I substituted freely and it didn't make any difference who was in there," Amoroso said. "Shawn Burns did an outstanding job on defense. Peter Paile came off the bench and played superbly and all nine of the boys who played did an excellent job on defense."

"But, we failed on some of the fundamentals. You saw the abundance of free throws we missed and the many missed layups. Two areas of a game that should not be factors with a good team cost us the game."

MacDonald scored 12 points and took down eight defensive rebounds, DiNardo also had 12 points and Priscella nine.

Ewing had 20 points, including several slam dunks which can't be stopped.

Undefeated North Girls Win State Relays Title

The North Quincy girls undefeated track team (7-0 in the Suburban League and 9-0 overall) last Saturday won the state relays championship in Class B for the second year in a row at Commonwealth Armory in Boston.

The Raiderettes just nipped Reading, scoring 33 points to Reading's 32.

North finished its league season Tuesday against Quincy and was heavily favored to wind up as unbeaten league champion. The Raiderettes will compete next Thursday in the Suburban League meet at Northeastern.

In the state relays last Saturday North won the 4x800 race in 9:36.7 with Nancy McCarthy, Robyn O'Donnell, Linda Kennedy and Sheila Barrett.

The Raiderettes were sixth in the 4x200 run with Kathy McCarthy, Maria McGurl, Mary Crehan and Mary Gannon. They were fifth in the shuttle hurdles with McGurl, Kara Crehan, Loretta Garrigan and Siobhan Corrigan.

North won the sprint medley in 4:10.9 with Mary Crehan, Karen Lindenfelzer, Deidre Donovan and Mary Kate Kennedy. This was the second fastest time ever run in the country.

North also won the mile relay in 3:56.9, a new school and meet record and just off the state record of 3:56.6 set by Falmouth. Running on this team were Lindenfelzer, Donovan, Nancy McCarthy and Mary Kate Kennedy.

Last Friday North rolled over Brockton, 62-24, as Barrett won the two-mile with Deidre Corrigan third; Linda Kennedy won the mile with O'Donnell second; Deidre Donovan won the 1000 with Mary Crehan second. Nancy McCarthy won the 600, Mary Kate Kennedy won the 300, Kathy McCarthy won the 50, McGurl won the hurdles in 7.6, the fastest time in the league this year; Karen Crehan won the high jump with Donovan second and Mary Kate Kennedy third. Michelle Millane won the shot put with Caryn Smith second, and the relay team of Kathy McCarthy, Ann Gorczyca, Deidre Corrigan and Gannon won.

Earlier in the week the Raiderettes scored easy wins over West Roxbury and Boston English in a tri-meet in Boston. North had 64 points. W. Roxbury 19 and English 12.

Kathy McCarthy was third in the 50, Donovan won the 300 with Gannon second and Lisa Reynolds third, Mary Kate Kennedy won the 600 in 1:25.3, a new school record with Lindenfelzer second and Janet Zdanowski fourth. Barrett won the 1000 with Nancy McCarthy second and Gorczyca fourth, Mary Crehan won the mile with O'Donnell second and Regina Nagle third. Linda Kennedy won the two-mile with Deidre Corrigan second, Kara Crehan won the high jump. Millane won the shot with Smith second. McGurl won the hurdles in 7.6, a new school record, and the relay team of Mary Crehan, Donovan, Kathy McCarthy and Nancy McCarthy won.

Millane remained unbeaten in the shot put and Kara Crehan is still undefeated in the high jump.

North Icemen Face Weymouth S.

The North Quincy hockey team, still hopeful of ending with at least a .500 season, hosted Brockton Wednesday night.

It was the annual Senior Night with all senior players being honored.

The Raiders will face Weymouth South Saturday at 3 p.m. at Hingham's Pilgrim Arena and next Tuesday will finish their season against Concord-Carlisle at 7:30 at the Middlesex School rink.

Kevin Lewis' North team defeated Waltham, 4-3, last Saturday to make its record 6-7-2 overall and 5-7-2 in the Suburban League.

"We really needed that win and the boys came back after trailing, 2-0, after the first period," Lewis said. "I think we have a chance to win at least two out of our last three games, maybe all three, and finish at .500."

Robby McHugh scored his 13th goal (22 points) for North's first goal against Waltham on a power play and Paul O'Sullivan tied it up. Mike McNeice put North ahead, 3-2, and Tommy Lester scored the winner, making it 4-2. Lester also assisted on the goals by McHugh and O'Sullivan.

Goalie Danny Newcomb saved the night for North with an unbelievable stop with the score 4-3. Waltham won a faceoff and the Waltham skater went in on Newcomb all alone.

Earlier in the week North dropped a 5-2 decision to Cambridge Rindge and Latin with McHugh and O'Sullivan scoring the Raider goals.

Quincy Winds Up Season Against Newton N.

The Quincy hockey team will wind up its season Saturday when it hosts Newton North at 7:50 at the Quincy Youth Arena and Coach Bob Sylvia will have his first losing season in 16 years.

The Presidents take a 4-6-5 record into Saturday's finale.

Last week was one of ups and downs for the Presidents. First they lost to Brockton, 8-1, then defeated Weymouth South, 5-2, and on Saturday they absorbed a 10-0 wallop at the hands of Suburban League leading and defending champion Brookline.

Paul Flynn scored the only goal against Brockton.

In the Weymouth game Kevin Craig and Kent Ryan each had two goals and David Picot scored the other. Paul Sarno played an excellent game in goal.

QJC Defeats Bunker Hill, 3-2

The Quincy Junior College hockey team, coached by former Quincy High coach Bill Hutchinson, defeated Bunker Hill Community College, 5-3, Monday to improve its record to 3-2.

Jim O'Leary scored four goals and Tom Shea had the other for QJC. It was the second win over Bunker Hill.

In their previous game the Jaguars walloped Emerson

College, 10-2, with Bob Thomas scoring four goals and O'Leary having five assists. Other goals were scored by Brian Condon, Bob Newcomb, Bob Livingston, Jack Damento, Pete Golden and Shea.

Steve Olson has turned in excellent performances in the QJC goal.

The two losses were to Mass. College of Pharmacy and Tufts.

Braves Held To 4-4 Tie

The South Shore Braves, who have 27 hockey wins this season, were held to a 4-4 tie last Friday night by New Prep.

Mike Storer, Danny Maul, Tim Gratton and Paul Greeley had the Braves' goals.

Both teams played excellent offense and defense with continuous non-stop action. The work of the rival goalies was outstanding, with Ross Mottau, Art Fitzgerald and North Quincy's Bob Tierney excelling for the Braves and Steve Capps for New Prep.

The Braves, who had walloped Merrimack Junior Varsity, 10-5, in their previous game, will be home at the Quincy Youth Arena Friday night at 8.

Mite As Win, 4-1

The Mite 'A' team defeated Braintree, 4-1, in a South Shore Conference game as Richie McDonald had two goals and Joey Fasano and Brian Zimmerman one each. Michael Hughes had two assists and McDonald one.

The Mite A's also rolled over Easton, 10-0, in a non-conference game.

Montclair Downs Merrymount In All-City Tourney Opener

Montclair took the first step toward the Recreation Department's all-city basketball championship game at Boston Garden as the championships opened last Saturday.

The title game in the junior high division will be played at the Garden Sunday, March 1, prior to the Celtics - Philadelphia 76ers game.

Montclair, no stranger to the Garden, having made the trip the past two years, opened this year's tournament with a 46-50 victory over Merrymount.

Mike Malloy had 10 points and turned a fine two-way performance for Coach John DiNardo's Merrymount team and Mike Canavan and George McGinness had four points each and played fine defensive ball.

Boys' Vacation Program Scheduled

The Quincy Recreation Department announces it will conduct a vacation program for boys during the school vacation period, Feb. 17 to 20.

But Montclair's height advantage was too much and Bill Bilton had 16 points for Coach Jerry Pratt's team. John Comeau had nine points and Steve Manning seven. Manning also did some excellent ball handling and Comeau pulled down several key rebounds.

Elementary age programs will be held 8 to 9:30 a.m., Junior High, 9:30 to 10:45 a.m., and Senior High, 10:45 to noon at the following centers:

Atherton Hough, Beechwood Knoll, Central, Merrymount, Point, Snug Harbor, Sterling, Wollaston, Atlantic and Quantum.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the Recreation Department.

SNOWMOBILES CAN BE DANGEROUS

Snowmobiling is one of the fastest-growing leisure-time activities in this country. As the snowmobile enthusiasts increase, however, so do the number of accidents. Here are a few safety tips from the National Safety Council for present and future snowmobilers to consider:

Follow marked trails when provided. Watch for wire fences, fence posts, snow covered stumps, and fallen trees. Your speed should fit the terrain. Never "jump" a snowmobile.

Avoid wearing long scarves or other loose clothing that can catch moving parts of the snowmobile. This includes long-flowing hair which should be tucked under a hat or helmet.

Inform a responsible person of your planned route and estimated time of return. Turn back immediately if the weather worsens. If possible stay clear of railroad crossings and railroad right of ways. The sound of the snowmobile can drown out the sound of an oncoming train.

North Seeks 2nd Win Over Quincy

The Raiders will seek their second win over Quincy Friday at 8 at the Vo-Tech gym. The Raiders will be at Brookline Tuesday at 8 and will finish the regular season.

The North Quincy basketball team, needing two wins in its last four games to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the second year in a row, faced Waltham Tuesday night.

North won a big one last Friday, topping Newton North, 52-39 to improve its record to 12-4 overall and 9-3 in the Suburban League.

Mark Millane continued to play outstanding ball and scored 18 points to pace the Raiders.

Paul Gill added 12 points and Paul Mallory had 10. Bob Bolster next Thursday with an 8 o'clock home game against Brockton.

turned in an outstanding defensive performance. Earlier in the week North rolled over Revere, 84-53, in a non-league game as Millane again showed the way with 20 points and seven rebounds.

Chip Bunker, 6-9 center, had another big night with 16 points, 10 rebounds and eight blocked shots. Bolster chipped in with 12 points.

Quincy Girls Keep Tourney Hopes Alive

The Quincy girls' basketball team kept its tournament hopes alive with a 63-40 victory over Waltham last Friday after having lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 63-49, earlier in the week.

The First Ladies, with a 9-5 record, played Weymouth North yesterday, will seek their second win over North Quincy Friday at 3:30 at North and next Thursday will finish their regular season with an 11 a.m. home game against Brookline.

Nancy McDonald, one of the top scorers in the Suburban League with a 17-point average, paced Quincy with 13 points against Waltham. Marie Callahan had eight points and Mary Ann Agnes and Mary Kussman played strong defensive games.

In the Cambridge game Mary Kamb had 18 points and did an excellent job on Cambridge's outstanding scorer, Medina Dixon.

MacDonald had another good day for Quincy with 16 points.

North Girls Need 4 Out Of 5 For Tourney

The North Quincy girls' basketball team, hoping to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time, had to win four of its last five games to do so.

The Raiderettes, walloped by Newton North, 62-33, last Friday, had a 10-5 record (8-5 in the Suburban League) going into Tuesday's game with Waltham, hosts Quincy Friday at 3:30, entertains Fontonne Academy in a non-league game Sunday at 3:15, will be home to Brookline next Tuesday and next Thursday will wind up the regular season with a non-league game against Sacred Heart of Weymouth.

North fell behind early at Newton as the home team continually stole the ball and scored easy baskets on layups.

The Raiderettes lost two starters on fouls and another with an ankle sprain and never made a serious run at overtaking Newton.

Julie Watts scored 13 points and took down seven rebounds before fouling out in the third period. JoAnn Runge scored 10 points and played a fine defensive game and sophomore Michelle White turned in an excellent performance.

The Raiderettes held Newton's high scorers, Donna Yaffe and Debbie Quinn, down, but the others took up the slack.

Lianne Supple Stars At Yale For Track Club

Several Quincy Track Club girls made impressive showings at the recent third annual Yale Women's Invitational meet in New Haven.

Lianne Supple was again the star of the day as she won the high jump with a record-tying 5-4 and placed second in the hurdles.

Kara Crehan also jumped 5-4 but had to settle for second on misses.

Lauren Andrews placed second in the shot put with a 38-10 toss.

The distance medley relay team of Karen Lindenfelzer, Maureen Roche, Ellen Regan and Beth Regan placed third in a club record time of 13:20.5.

Officials To Meet Handicapped Students In Basketball Game

City Officials will meet a team of students from the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton in a wheelchair basketball game tonight (Thursday) at 7:15 in the North Quincy High gym.

The "official challenge" was received last week by Mayor Arthur Tobin, coach of the City Officials team, from Terry Frazier of Germantown, cheerleader for the Hospital School Chariots.

Before the wheelchair basketball game there will be a scrimmage among North Quincy High School special needs students beginning at 6:15 p.m. The event is sponsored by the Office of the Mayor, the Thomas Crane Public Library, the City Department, and the Quincy Parents Advisory Council to Special Education as part of Quincy's Special Needs Awareness Month.

Tobin said "being involved in an athletic activity with physically handicapped children is going to be a learning experience for all the city officials who participate."

Miss Frazier, during her visit to the mayor's office, was presented flowers and an oversized replica of the free ticket that has been distributed as a promotion for the game. The ticket will be hung in the school's gymnasium.

The city officials will conform to wheelchair basketball rules and will participate in wheelchairs along with the Chariots.

Vandals Damage Faxon Park Fieldhouse

Vandals caused several hundred dollars damage in two incidents at the Faxon Park Fieldhouse this weekend, according to Richard J. Koch, executive secretary to the city Park and Recreation Board.

Park department employees repaired damage done to the fieldhouse over the weekend on Monday, only to return Tuesday morning to find it vandalized again.

"It's bad enough getting hit by Proposition 2½ and inflation," said Koch. "This vandalism catches us in a three-way squeeze."

Sometime over the weekend, intruders broke the hasps on the fieldhouse doors and upon gaining entrance, smashed windows, fixtures and pipes in the restrooms. Vandals entered the area by climbing the chain-link fence surrounding the 50-year-old stone building. Police notified Park Department officials after discovering the break.

The fieldhouse was also the site of a suspicious fire which caused an estimated $3,000 damage last spring, Koch said.

One of the most incredible records ever set by any college basketball team was the one made by UCLA in 1971-72...They not only won every game, but THEY DIDN'T LET THEIR OPPONENTS GET WITHIN 30 POINTS OF THEM, based on average final score...UCLA averaged 95 points per game that season while they gave up only 64 points per game...No team in college history has ever had a better margin of victory than that over a whole season.

Here's an amazing fact...The LAST 7 winners of the U.S. Open tennis championship have ALL been lefties...Jimmy Connors won the title in 1974...Manuel Orantes in '75...Connors in '76... Guillermo Vilas in '77... Connors in '78... and John McEnroe in '79 and '80... Each of those players is a lefty.

Of all the men who've ever been the heavyweight boxing champion of the world, which one held the title for the shortest time?...The record was set by Leon Spinks who was heavyweight champ for just 214 days... He won the title on Feb. 15, 1978 and lost it on Sept. 15, 1978.

Quincy Wrestlers Pin Waltham In Battle Of Undefeated

The Quincy wrestling team virtually clinched its third straight Suburban League championship Saturday when it defeated Waltham, 14-20, in a battle of unbeaten league teams at Waltham.

The big win improved the President's record to 7-0 in the league and 17-1 overall. A victory over North Quincy Saturday night at 7 at the Vo-Tech gym will give Quincy its third successive league crown.

Quincy had to come from behind to top tough Waltham as the home team won the first two matches at 100 and 107 pounds to take a 12-0 lead.

Sophomore Joe Madden turned things around for Quincy with an 8-4 victory at 114 pounds. Jerry drew, 7-7, at 121 and senior Ed

Ryan earned a 4-2 decision at 128. Senior Joe Souza, who has done a tremendous job all season, lost a close decision at 134 but Greg Oriola took a 13-3 decision at 141. Sophomore Bill Rollins turned in an outstanding effort at 147 against Waltham veteran Guy Sergi Billy, who suffered a broken ankle early in the season, filled in for injured senior Al DiVicentis and gave Sergi all he could handle, dropping a 6-5 decision.

"At that point we turned the meet over to our captains and again John Herald and Mike Monahan did the job, as they have done all season," Coach Carmen Mariano said.

Herald won by a pin at 158 pounds and Monahan, wrestling his best match of his career, destroyed one of Waltham's toughest wrestlers, Ron Calnan, 12-0.

Mark Picot at 188 and heavyweight Ed Mackey clinched things for the Presidents as Picot won, 15-0, and Mackey pinned his opponent.

"As outstanding as these were performances, the key to this victory was another team effort," Mariano said. "It took our whole team, all 45 of them, practicing every day, pushing each other and supporting each other to bring us to our current level of success."

"This team effort, more now than ever, must continue as we approach the sectional championships Feb. 20-21 and the state championships Feb. 27-28."

Quincy has won two straight sectional championships.

Take Last 6 Meets

North Girls Swim To 6th Straight Win Over Quincy

The North Quincy swim team finished up in grand style, winning its last six meets to finish with a 7-4 record, highlighted by its sixth straight win over Quincy, 128-35, last Saturday.

Quincy has never won a meet, either boys or girls, against North since the sport was started six years ago.

North also defeated Dedham, 100-72, earlier last week and Monday breezed past Randolph, 12-48.

As expected, Bill Walker's Raiders had no trouble beating undermanned Quincy as they won all 11 events, Bill Feeney setting a new school record in the 100-yard backstroke.

North Quincy's Ralph Santosuosso, Bill Boudreau, Sean O'Brien and Dave Riley won the 200 medley relay and North's Feeney, Dave Dindy, John Buckley and Ken Burke placed second.

North's Scott Andrews, Bradley Martin, Paul Melanson and Feeney won the 400 freestyle relay and North's Bob Dunn, Mike O'Toole, Peter Stockless and Tim Burke finished second.

North's Tim Burke won the 200 freestyle, Bill Boudreau the 200 individual medley, Buckley the 50 freestyle, Jack Leone the diving, O'Brien the 100 butterfly, Tim Burke the 100 freestyle, Melanson the 500 freestyle, Feeney the 100 backstroke and Dindy the 100 breaststroke.

Raider second places were taken by Dindy in the 200 individual medley, O'Toole in the diving, Riley in the 100 butterfly, Martin in the 500 freestyle and Santosuosso in the 100 backstroke.

Third place finishers for North were Martin in the 200 freestyle, John Wallace in the 200 individual medley, Stockless in the 50 freestyle, Paul Chamberlain in the diving, Dave Jones in the 100 butterfly, Jim Boudreau in the 100 breaststroke.

Finishing second for Quincy were Bill Mayo in the 200 freestyle, Kevin Goslin in the 50 freestyle, Mayo in the 100 freestyle and Dan Mallock in the 100 breaststroke.

Third places for the Presidents were taken by Goslin in the 100 freestyle, Coley McDonough in the 500 freestyle and Mayo in the 100 backstroke.

The Suburban League championships will be held Saturday at the Lincoln Hancock School pool and the South sectional championship meet will be held at the same site on Feb. 20 and 21.

QJC Edged By Northern Essex

The Quincy Junior College basketball team dropped a tough 73-70 decision to Northern Essex, dropping the Jaguars into a fourth place tie (7-7) with Daniel Webster in the Greater Boston Small College Conference.

Each team has two conference games remaining as they battle for the fourth and final playoff spot.

The playoffs will be played Feb. 19 and 21 at Hellenic College, Hellenic (14-0), Northern Essex (11-3) and Emerson (11-5) have clinched playoff spots.

"Our guys have really worked hard all year, win or lose," QJC Coach Brian Buckley said. "Making the playoffs would be a just reward for all their efforts."

Northern Essex looked as though it would win easily, building up a 39-24 lead at the half. But the Jaguars came back strong behind Gene Casper, Jim Holleran and Ed Richard, who combined for 62 points. But the Knights held on to pull it out and clinch a playoff spot.

QJC had bounced back into the playoff picture earlier last week with a 71-68 victory over Mass. College of Pharmacy. Paul Bandera came off the bench with 11 points to lead the way.

"We've been playing well against everyone in the league and we've come a long way since the start of the season," Buckley said. "If we can win our last two games, you never know what might happen in the playoffs."

QJC played Wentworth Tuesday and will be at Essex Agricultural tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock.

Casper leads the Jaguars in scoring with an average of 20 points a game. Holleran is averaging 19 points and Richard 17.

2 Schools To Present Gym Demonstration

Two local schools, Atlantic Junior High and North Quincy High, will present "Celebration," a gymnastics demonstration, tonight (Thursday) and tomorrow night (Friday) at 7:30 p.m.

The demonstration, at Atlantic Junior High's gym, is in celebration of Atlantic's 22nd birthday, the safe return of the hostages, and Valentine's Day.

The program will include tumbling, mini-tramp, cross fire vaulting, parachute and tableaux. There will also be individual routines on the floor, rings, uneven and parallel bars, high bar and beam, and the grand march.

Boating Course Starts March 4 At Marina

The Boston Power Squadron will start its 10-week basic boating course Wednesday, March 4, one evening a week at the Boston Harbor Marina in Squantum.

Registration is March 4 at 7:30 p.m.

The course is offered free in such subjects as rules of the road, compass and chart reading, handling under adverse conditions and navigation aids.

Lectures will be held in the Marina Pub inside the hanger building at the Marina.

For further information call Harry Osborne at 698-0143 or Andrew Ohtnickny at 664-5017 after 6 p.m.

Experiences In Art Cap ELC's 'Immersion' Week

Fifth grade students in the Elementary Laboratory Center (ELC) for the gifted and talented at the Lincoln-Hancock School have completed the second phase of the annual "immersion" week of learning from sources beyond the routine classroom experience.

The focus of study this year was the visual and performing arts.

Forty students visited the Massachusetts College of Art, the Museum of Fine Arts, the Opera House of Boston, the DeCordova Museum in Lincoln and the Dorchester Art Museum.

Specialists who worked with the children were Dr. Diane Kozminski, director of art education at the Massachusetts College of Art; Richard Rowdell, coordinator of art for Quincy public schools and Frank Moffett, director of the Quincy Community Theatre.

Special in-school activities included a performance by the Peanut Butter and Jelly Dance Company of Boston and a Decent Art Appreciation program presented by Mrs. Dolores Rush, a parent volunteer from the Merrymount school district.

Frank Moffett and five members of the North Quincy High School Drama Club presented a creative dramatics workshop to fifth grade students of the laboratory center.

Drama Club members Ann Keenan, Brenda Bryant, Andrea Gelmini, Annalisa Majica and Susan Orsok assisted Moffett as the elementary laboratory students were guided through a theatre training experience.

Registration Saturday For Children's Theater Workshop

Registration will be held Saturday, Feb. 14, from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m., at the Woodward School for the spring semester of Diane Purdy's Children's Theater Workshop.

This will mark the 10th year for the "drama by doing" workshop, which works with youngsters age 6 and up. A number of them have gone on to work in films and commercials.

The workshop's productions of "Cinderella Meets Cindy Ellen" and "Commotion in Clown Castle" recently played to four full-house audiences in the Woodward School theater.

Quincy children who took part in the shows include:

Jennifer McCauley, Rene Theriault, Angela Noguiera, Cindi McTiernan, Ann Carroll, Lisa Ventol, John MacDonald, Scott Bartoloni, Jennifer Dwyer, Kristen MacDonald, Trisha Canty, Chris Carroll, Michael Ricca, Colleen Hannon, Brian Kelly.

Kathy Francis, Leanne Kennedy, Tasha Anastasi, Neil Borden, Michael Martorano, Mae McCormack, Kaitlin Barry, Beth Lenahan, Darlene Colubare, Amy Donahue, Whitney Norton, Krista Kerrigan, Stephanie Segadelli, Sandy Wysocki.

For information of registration, call 331-4941.

'Sonbeams' To Perform At Glad Tidings Church

The Sonbeams, a trio of young gospel singers, will perform at a service Sunday at 10:45 a.m. at Glad Tidings Church, 158 Washington St., Quincy.

The trio consists of the three daughters of John and Margaret Bass: Patsy and Angela, 15 year old twins, who are 10th grade honor students and Kathleen, 11, a sixth grader.

During their three years of performing, the girls have sung at churches of all denominations, youth crusades, conventions, retreats and gospel sings in seven states.

They have travelled 90,000 miles in the past two years, and have won 17 awards in talent searches in the gospel and secular world.

The girls have appeared on television and their first record album is produced by Tink Abraham of the Watchmen.

Benefit Dance Saturday For James Bragg Family

A dance to benefit the family of the late Commander James I. Bragg will be held Saturday beginning at 8:30 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Legion Post, 1116 Sea St., Houghs Neck.

The dance, sponsored by the Auxiliary Unit, will feature country and western music by Jim Fratolillo.

There will be refreshments. Tickets are available at the post home, from Diane Clark, auxiliary president, or Mary Allsop, junior vice president, and will also be sold

Bryan Post Auxiliary Plans MDA Flea Market

Tables are available for a flea market to be held by the Bryan Post Ladies Auxiliary Sunday, March 1, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the post home, 24 Broad St., Quincy Center.

A portion of the proceeds from the event will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

The public is invited to attend. Tables can be rented by contacting Marianne DelGreco at 472-3690. Committee members are president Mary Farmer, senior vice president Ruth Perry, conductress Edith Marre, treasurer Judy Cross, secretary Barbara Hapsen, Rita Kelleher, Madeline Roberts, Flora Robbins, Janet Nelson and Maggie Engren.

Quincy Man Featured In Modern Jazz Concert

Quincy percussionist Steve Wilkes will join the band "Quinntagious" in a special concert of "original, high-energy fusion" — that's modern jazz, folks! —

Thursday, Feb. 19 at 8:15 p.m. in the Berklee College of Music Performance Center in Boston.

Wilkes, who lives at 34 Payne St., South Quincy, is a graduate of Berklee, where he majored in traditional performance. He was recently showcased in a highly successful performance of traditional solo works in the Berklee Recital Hall.

'Friendly Cones For Kids' To Aid Easter Seals

Carl Carlson of Presidents Lane, district manager of the Friendly stores in Quincy, recently hosted a kickoff party for the "Friendly Cones for Kids" campaign to benefit the Easter seal programs.

Friendly restaurants will offer customers "Cones for Kids" tabs for $1, entitling them to a free ice cream cone Feb. 27.

Proceeds of the campaign will go to the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society.

The Easter Seal child, Andy Serriello, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Serriello of Randolph, attended the kickoff party as the representative of all physically disabled persons in the state.

Born with cerebral palsy, Andy enjoys Saturday morning recreation and swimming at the local Easter Seal swim program.

Funds raised through the "Friendly Cone for Kids" campaign will be presented to the society during the Easter Seal Telethon Saturday and Sunday, March 28 and 29 on WXNE-TV, Channel 25.

"Our waitresses and all our employees are enthusiastically involved in this effort," said Bob Meaney, manager of the Wollaston Friendly.

"It's a pleasure for our people to be part of this campaign to help support the many recreational and therapeutic programs of the Massachusetts Easter Seal Society."

Webelo Scouts To Participate In Klondike Derby

Webelo Scouts of pack #27 will be participating this weekend in the Klondike Derby.

As in the past, the Webelos are availing themselves of all scouting activities as well as involving themselves in community affairs.

Last year, the Webelos spent a weekend on the U.S.S. Massachusetts.

This year, they went on the fall camporee in October. The Webelos were one of the few groups to cook some of their meals over an open fire during the rain drenched weekend.

The group has also "adopted grandparents" at a local nursing home and make sure that their "grandparents" are remembered on holidays.

Along with visiting their "grandparents" during the holiday season, they each earned money and donated it to the Koch Club Christmas Fund and participated in a food drive which was donated to the Protestant Social Service in Wollaston.

No Coffee Hour At HN Center

The Monday morning coffee hour at the Houghs Neck Community Center 1193 Sea St., will not be held until renovations of the Manet Community Health Center are completed.

Valentine Breakfast At Squantum

A Valentine's Day breakfast, sponsored by Cinnamon Toast, will be served at the First Church of Squantum Sunday at 9:15 a.m.

The breakfast consists of French toast, ham, juice and coffee.

Profits will help send young people to Christian camps next summer.

For breakfast reservations, call the church office at 328-6649.

The church service Sunday will follow at 10:15 a.m.

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY!

STARSCOPE

by Clare Annsell

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 12

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19
Frustrating delays on Thursday, Friday, are followed by a weekend of diverse activities. Romance is sweetest after Monday. Tuesday marks start of cycle devoted to self-improvement.

PISCES - February 20-March 20
This is generally a favorable week for assessing future prospects. New member joins your fan club--and you are amazed. Overseas communication inspires feeling of wanderlust.

ARIES - March 21-April 20
Lucky Aries. Hunches are strong, you're charismatic and a couple of tricky situations are miraculously avoided. But all these pluses are tiring--so lots of rest is essential.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22
Financial snag isn't nearly as knotty as you believe. Could be unexpectedly reckless in your actions. Creative juices perk away, so begin that story, poem or painting.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21
Tackling big jobs is current forte. It's the easy ones that give you problems now. Put physical fitness on agenda, sign up for skiing--or tap dancing--lessons.

CANCER - June 22-July 22
Despite tense times Thursday, this develops into a calm week. It's a good period for getting in touch with yourself, trying a new look and contacting former admirers.

LEO - July 23-August 22
Small mixups and minor gains are dotted throughout the week. Executive decision may be required of you. Romancewise, Libras and Geminis are most compatible partners now.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22
Easy to be deceived, wonderful bargains may be less than fantastic. Tuesday-Wednesday offer advancement opportunities but don't make rash decisions. Weekend accents domestic bliss.

LIBRA - September 23-October 22
Accent is on transpositions; you may have a chance to travel for your job. Small windfall and romantic patch up are among current highlights. Healthwise, treat stomach with tenderness.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21
You're unusually conservative, opting for the tried and true, which, in fact, is your best approach in romance. In career, however, some small risks won't hurt at all.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22
Ambitions are strong but don't take on the world just yet. Friends share their good fortunes with you. A tense situation will ease up, but you can't force anything now.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20
Energy level is high but the key to success is to improve organizational skills. You may be nominated to do some dirty work, but who says you can't decline?

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK
You're a humanitarian with a sharp mind--and an irresponsible urge to argue. The next year accents contrasts: financial ups and downs, travel and close-to-home happenings. And more than ever, you must learn to see the forest and the trees.

BORN THIS WEEK
February 12th, actor Robert Young. 13th, actor George Segal. 14th, actress Florence Henderson. 15th, actor Harvey Korman. 16th, singer Sonny Bono. 17th, Alan Bates. 18th, actor John Travolta.

Vo Family Become U.S. Citizens

(Cont'd from Page 1)
American music.

Vo wants his children to grow up thinking of themselves not just as Americans or Vietnamese, but as a little of both.

"I want them to be able to speak both Vietnamese and English," he said, "but most of all I want them to know their background and remember where they came from."

While many Americans still differ on the rights and wrongs of the Vietnam War, Vo said
America was right to help fight
Communism in his country.
What was wrong, he said, was that so many Americans did not stand behind their principles.

10 Residents Named To Dean's List

Ten Quincy residents have been named to the fall semester Dean's List at Massachusetts Community College, announces Dean Carl Kowalski.

They are Robert H. Almuist,
Robert F. Bloomer, Francis A.
Eaton, Christine B. Leary, Merri
A. Marden, Allan G. Michaud,
Robert G. Palermo, Linda J.
Chiampa, Michael E. Marella and Gerard A. Watts.

"The fact that you helped out is a good thing," he said. "You are the leader of the free world and the most powerful nation in the world, you have to help."

"The fact that you sent American soldiers without any ideology, who did not believe in what they were fighting for, was a big mistake."

Despite all they have gone through, his family considers themselves lucky people, said

Vo. He noted that, although about 300,000 Vietnamese refugees have come to this country, about 600,000 more died trying to get here.

"That is the price my people paid for a chance to come here," he said. "But now I am a free man, so I consider myself very lucky. That is the message I want to convey to everyone."

WE LOVE OUR CHILDREN—

Three members of St. Mary's Girl Scout Troop 4141 of Quincy examine the bank's "Progress Report" with its theme of "Preserving a Heritage"

Valentine Greetings

It is always a great joy to have young people visit our bank. Each year we have many School, Boy Scout, Girl Scout and Camp Fire groups take a tour of our bank. Typical of these visitors were young people from Troop 4141.

Don't worry about the new generation and its ability to cope with a changing world. We received many letters from the youngsters of Troop 4141 and most of them expressed the thought that they enjoyed the pens and other items we gave them but the highlight of their visit, they said, was to see and in some cases operate the computer equipment and other machines in our main office.

Dear Mr Connelly,
Thank you for the nice tour of the bank. I had a lot of fun
I really like the machine, when I grow up I might work
there
★ ♥  ♥ ★
your frinds,
 ★ Kathy Kelly ★

Dear Mr. Connelly
I had a fun tour of the Bank. Thank you for the pens calendar and the book.
I liked The Machines the best.

IT'S NOT TOO SOON to start thinking about helping others at Christmas time, even though Christmas is still 309 days away. Rita Kelleher of North Weymouth prims one of the dozens of used and discarded dolls she prepares each year for delivery to needy children by the Koch Club of Quincy. In 1980, the 10th year of the Koch Club Christmas toy program, over 5,000 toys were donated. Dolls and other toys for 1981 should be delivered to Richard J. Koch at 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Junior High Sports, Art, Music Cuts Proposed

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

School Committee members aren't pleased with the prospect of cutting junior high sports, art and music classes and programs for gifted children.

But, says committee member Patricia Toland, "I don't see that we have that many choices."

And, adds member Mary Collins, "we're at the point now where there isn't that much else to cut."

School Supt. Lawrence Creedon presented the committee with a list of $1.8 million in proposed budget cuts, due to Proposition 2½, last week. Those are in addition to $7.6 million in cuts approved by the committee at their Jan. 28 meeting.

The most recent proposed cuts include junior high school sports, phys ed, music and art classes at the elementary and junior high level and others.

The committee was expected to begin action on those proposed cuts at their Feb. 25 meeting.

Committee members agree that the proposed elimination of all junior high sports will probably attract the most public attention. "I've had several calls on that already," said Mrs. Collins. "But there are other things that are more important, and that $100,000 is a big line item. That's something that we will have to look at."

"I'm keeping an open mind," said Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy. "But I've always felt that our junior high sports program was one of the best parts of the system, especially since so many of the kids would not ordinarily have an opportunity to play."

"I've always felt it was a real plus. It hurts to take away something like that—it's going to be a real problem," said Kennedy.

"I'm going to oppose a cut in our sports," said John Sullivan. "If we're going to cut sports, we'll be sending a golden invitation to our youngsters that we could care less about them."

"We'll be telling them that they should find other outlets for their time and energy, and I'm thinking mainly of criminal activities."

"Cutting sports will cost us more in the long run in crime and vandalism and police protection. It's poor economy," said Sullivan.

"I don't know what to expect on these cuts," said Mrs. Toland. "But I think we'll probably follow his (Creedon's) recommendations pretty much—I don't see that we have that much choice."

"I think we may have a few discussions here and there, and feelings that something here and there might be a little too severe. But I don't see that we have too many choices," she said.

Francis Anselmo would say only that the fate of the junior high sports "depends on what else we have to cut."

Anselmo was more concerned

Squantum Condos Win Conservation Approval

The Conservation Commission has given conditional approval to a proposal to build Harbourside Condominiums, 142 town house units on part of the site of the old Squantum Naval Air Station.

The conditions require that:

- The entire perimeter of the site which abuts any marsh shall be carefully staked and the stakes maintained throughout construction to define the limits of the alteration.

- The storm drain system must contain at least one wafer and oil separator in any line leading to an outfall.

- The method of treatment of the slopes abutting any marsh or intertidal zone must be submitted to the commission prior to any alteration.

- Excavated material from the project must not be placed in wetlands areas or in areas where it could cause deterioration of the environment.

- Stockpiling of materials is not allowed within 50 feet of a wetlands area unless adequate provisions are made to prevent the eroding of material into the wetlands.

Under Prop. 2½ 100% Revaluation Tax Rate Could Be $40 Next Year

By TOM HENSHAW

How does a $40 tax rate in Quincy for 1982 sound to you? That's a $40 tax rate, not a $40 increase in the tax rate.

It is not only possible but likely in the light of the $56,937,064.87 limit on the tax levy set by Proposition 2½ plus 100 per cent revaluation which is expected to raise the total valuation of the city to about $1.4 billion.

City Auditor Charles L. Shea confirmed that the 1982 tax rate will have to be between $40 and $41, if indeed the revaluation of the city is set at $1.4 billion.

"That's the only variable," he said. "We can't change the tax levy figure at all."

Divide $1.4 billion by 1,000 (the tax rate ratio); then divide $57 million by the result ($1.4 million) and you get $40, which would be the tax rate for fiscal 1982.

In the past, the setting of the tax rate began with passage of the municipal budget. Various state and county charges were added; state aid and receipts were deducted; the result was the amount needed to be raised by taxes, or the tax levy.

Under Prop 2½, the process goes backwards. It starts with the tax levy, which is set by the state on the basis of Prop 2½. And all you need to set the tax rate is the tax levy and the total valuation of the city.

Last year, that is fiscal 1981, the total valuation of the city was fixed at $274 million, or some 28 per cent of full value. With the tax levy at $64 million, the tax rate was calculated to be $242.60. The state considered Quincy's full valuation to be $1.149 billion.

Of course, even with a $40 tax rate for 1982, Quincy homeowners will probably be paying as much if not more in actual taxes than they did in 1981 since the value of their property will increase, in some cases as much as five or six times.

Assessor Patricia Ceriani said the state has figured the full valuation of Quincy at $1,149 and the rule of thumb allows for a 13 per cent increase for cities and towns due to inflation.

"Hopefully," she said, "the revaluation of the city will come in at between $1.4 and $1.5 billion."

State Aid On Way For UDAG Garage?

Gov. Edward J. King apparently is prepared to grant Quincy some $750,000 in state aid to complete the $3.79 million UDAG parking garage over the MBTA tracks at Granite St.

The financing for the garage, which is to provide parking for the 10-story, $14 million Center Plaza Building, came up short due to time delays and unexpected foundation problems.

Gov. King was scheduled to visit Quincy Tuesday and indications were that he was to announce the grant to the city. But the visit was called off and rescheduled to a later date.

"I'm optimistic," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "I met with the governor about the UDAG garage and I was led to believe that he wants to help the city."

After Angry Hearing Fin Com To Try Again On Revolving Accounts

The City Council's Finance Committee may try again this weekend to hold hearings on Mayor Arthur H. Tobin's proposal to remove three sections from the budget and make them revolving accounts.

The Committee, chaired by Councillor John J. Lydon Jr., tried to hold hearings last week but only got through the City Hospital account after nearly six hours of confusion and angry exchanges. "I've been trying to get the Committee together this week," said Lydon, "but there have been too many schedule conflicts. I'm hoping for Friday or Saturday night now."

In his proposals, which require the permission of the State Legislature, Tobin is seeking to set up special accounts for the Hospital, Quincy Junior College, and a newly created Water and Sewer Commission.

In this way, their accounts could be removed from the municipal tax levy, which is rigidly restricted by Proposition 2½. They would, said Tobin, save all but 150 city jobs. A special meeting of the City Council, called at the request of Lydon, was also scheduled for the same night as the Committee meeting but it was adjourned when the Committee could not finish its business.

Tobin presented the city budget for fiscal 1982 to the Council on the same night but the Council left it on the table in its haste to adjourn and get back to the Committee meeting.

The budget, which Tobin said would bring the city in under the $36.9 million tax levy permitted by Prop 2½, totalled $63.8 million, well down from the $102 million from fiscal 1981.

The Hospital, the Junior College and the Water and Sewer Divisions were not included in the 1982 budget.

Earlier, the Sun and the Patriot Ledger were told by Budget Coordinator William Grindlay that the budget would come in at about $89 million.

Mayor Tobin said he could not explain the discrepancy and Grindlay was not available for comment.

Last week's Finance Committee meeting got off to a rocky start when Chairman John Lydon Jr. noted the large number of city employees in the audience and suggested that they were motivated to attend by the mayor.

"Anyone who is out of order," he warned, "will be removed by the police."

Then Lydon proceeded to gavel through a voice vote to split the package into three parts while Councillors Daniel Raymond and James Sheets tried vainly to get his attention so they could speak.

"I find your statement insulting to city employees," snapped Raymond when he finally got the floor. "And I find your conduct disgusting. You are the one who should be removed."

Raymond then amended the motion to read:

"That any and all labor union leaders and/or city of Quincy employees who desire to address this finance committee be allowed to do so forthwith and prior to any further discussion by this Finance Committee."

The motion was passed and then ignored over Raymond's repeated protests.

"I am most happy to listen to every person in the audience," said Councillor Joanne Condon. "They have been brought here by the mayor... and have been given the opportunity to have input."

"But if we want to address how many people are laid off before we address the package then I would make a motion we adjourn and come back another time when we're here to discuss the issue and not the layoffs."

The committee took up the Hospital first and an amendment was introduced — by whom was not certain — that would revamp the Board of Managers to give the Council the appointment of three members of a nine-member board.

Hospital Director Michael Kitchen spoke briefly on the need for a revolving account at the hospital. Then Sheets got the floor.

"I yield to the people," he said dramatically.

As it turned out, only three people wanted to speak on the hospital at the time — James A. Shannon, attorney for the Laborers' Union; Rosemary Wahlberg of Quincy Community Action; and Bart Caggiano, city employee.

"First off," said Caggiano angrily, "I'd like to tell you that the Mayor did not bring me up here. I got in my car and drove up here by myself."

"Somewhere between the mayor and the City Council a game of Russian roulette is being played with my life and my family's future and I don't like it."

"I will not and my family will not and my fellow city workers will not tolerate politics as usual in this city."

"We expect you city officials to cut out the fat in the budget and protect our jobs and our security so that we may work in harmony for the best interests of the city."

Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington told the committee that there will be "no layoffs at the hospital as a result of Proposition 2½'s impact on our budget"

Tobin, Harold Differ On Revolving Accounts

The revolving accounts proposed by Mayor Tobin for City Hospital, Quincy Junior College and a Water and Sewer Commission would have to be approved by the State Legislature.

What are their chances in the State House, when and if they win approval from the City Council?

Sen. Paul D. Harold thinks the chances of getting a Water and Sewer Commission past the Legislature are slim.

Mayor Tobin thinks they are pretty good, given the right backing by the right people.

"Traditionally," said Harold in a letter to the City Council, "the legislature has been very reluctant to approve revolving accounts of any kind. This year in particular the legislature will be hesitant to open the door."

"I know that it would be extremely difficult to secure approval of a package which includes provisions for a Water and Sewer commission at this time because there would be no consistency in treating one city differently than the others."

Harold said, however, that "whatever decision of the Council and the Mayor, I will do whatever I can to secure approval."

Tobin said he has already conferred with Senate President William Bulger on the matter and that "he is more positive about this than Sen. Harold. He said when it gets over the City Council hurdle to come back and see him."

Tobin noted that Harold is chairman of the Urban Affairs Committee, which will hear the proposal if it gets by the City Council.

"If I was chairman of that committee that bill would go through and you could bet with Las Vegas on that one," he said.

"That's not the type of letter I'd write if I were the senator from Quincy. Here we have the senator from Quincy doubting things when he should be telling them that this is important for my city."

"I hope the city employees whose jobs are in danger and the people who don't want to see city services cut have had enough of this political foolishness."

Harold ousted Tobin from the senate seat in 1978.

4 To 1 Vote

Board Toughens Amusement Machines Policy

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board approved by a 4 to 1 vote and put into effect Tuesday a set of guidelines for licensing automatic amusement machines in Quincy.

Among the guidelines are approval of the premises by the board, no operation of the machines to school children during school hours, and a public hearing after notification of abutters if an applicant applies for five or more machines.

Exceeding the number of machines for which the establishment has been licensed will be cause for a hearing on revocation of licenses for all machines for one year, according to the guidelines.

Police Chief Francis Finn voted against the guidelines because of his opposition to a point that probation checks be made on all applicants and officer of corporations.

Finn said he didn't believe applying for amusement machine licenses was just cause for the release of a criminal record.

The first applicant at the meeting to apply for amusement machine licenses under the new guidelines was Morton West, owner of Quincy Wonder Bowl, 565 Southern Artery, and Wollaston Boulevard Bowl-drome, 679 Quincy Shore Boulevard.

West requested six machines for each establishment. Finn said he would waive the guideline stipulating notification of abutters and a public hearing for license requests of five or more machines since West's application was made before the guidelines went into effect.

However, Fire Chief Edward Barry contended that the guidelines should be adhered to. West will re-submit his application following the new guidelines.

Three other such license requests were passed by the board more smoothly.

Issued amusement machine licenses, with the stipulation floor plans be submitted, were:

• The Beachcomber, Quincy Shore Drive, three machines.

• Houghs Neck Post, 1116-1118 Sea St., one machine and one pool table.

• Fraternal Order of Eagles, 47 Mass Ave., one pinball and one pool table license.

Barry commended Police Captain Paul Nestor for compiling and submitting the guidelines to the board.

$278,000 In Building Work Approved

The city Building Inspection Department issued 60 permits for work costing an estimated $278,035 during January, according to its monthly report.

That total is down from January, 1980, when 86 permits for work costing an estimated $291,000 were issued.

Only one new building was approved last month, a one-family dwelling costing an estimated $24,000.

Other permits issued and the estimated cost of work: 27 residential alterations, $89,980; seven other alterations, $152,885; two removals, $800; nine signs, $3,750; 14 miscellaneous, $6,620.

The department received $1,469 in inspection fees and other receipts in January.

Tobin, Lydon Going To Washington

2 UDAG Projects Threatened By Reagan's Budget Cutting

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and Planning Director James Lydon will be going to Washington in the next two weeks to check on future prospects for the Urban Development Action Grants that are so vital to Quincy's development.

It was reported Feb. 3 that President Reagan intends to eliminate the $675 million UDAG program under which federal funds are used at a ratio of about 6-1 to encourage private investment in downtown areas.

But Mayor Tobin said he is hopeful that the program will be preserved possibly in an abbreviated form.

"We are timing the trip to coincide with the completion of Reagan's new budget," he said.

"We want to meet with the new people in Housing and Urban Development and go over the Quincy applications with them."

Quincy currently has a $3.79 million parking garage that is being built under a UDAG over the MBTA tracks at Granite St. and Burgin Parkway and applications have been sent to Washington for two more.

The possibility that the UDAGs may fall victim to Reagan's budget-cutting spree was reported by a group of mayors after a meeting with Samuel R. Pierce Jr., secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Pierce said that "no final decision has been made," but the report drew the fire of Cong. Brian J. Donnelly, who is a member of the House Budget Committee.

"I am appalled that the President would consider chopping out such a valuable, cost-effective investment in the future of our cities," said Donnelly.

"It is the one federal program that has produced concrete results for our cities. Quincy has already received one UDAG grant. It was the key to major private investment in the downtown area."

"Everyone seems to support UDAG except the Reagan administration."

"The federal government will rule late this spring on Quincy's application for two more UDAGs. If the grants are approved, I expect the government will honor its commitment, even if the program

DOVE To Receive United Way Funding

DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), a Quincy-based organization providing services for battered women and their families, was approved recently for funding by the United Way.

DOVE will receive $60,000 during 1981 to support its services and programs.

The agency's application for funding was approved by the United Way Board of Directors

Incorporated in 1978, DOVE is the only agency offering temporary emergency shelter to battered women and their children in Norfolk and Plymouth counties. The shelter will house an estimated 185 women and 290 children in 1981.

Besides the emergency shelter (provided by the City of Quincy and open seven days a week, 24 hours a day), the agency's programs include a 24-hour hot-line, counseling, court and welfare advocacy (information on abuse laws and legal options), and public education and outreach.

The admission of DOVE to the United Way brings to 43 the number of United Way agencies located throughout the South Shore. Twelve are located in Quincy.

MAN-MADE FIRE LOG SAFETY

Americans are using their fireplaces at an unprecedented rate. Whether the reason be energy conservation or atmosphere, fireplace owners are finding the problem of obtaining enough wood to burn at a decent price and are turning to man-made fire logs, made from industrial waste, sawdust and wax. These can be delightful but they can also be dangerous if not handled with care.

Read the manufacturer's label printed on the logs and follow them. Place the log at the rear of the fireplace, preferably on a grate. Never use more than one man-made log at a time, and never add such a log to an existing fire. Don't poke or break apart man-made logs because the wax can stick to the poker and could drop to the floor or carpet.

Regardless of the kind of fuel you use, always use a fireplace screen. Start with an open damper and a clean flue. Never, but never, leave children unattended near a fire. The temptation to prod the fire to make it bigger is irresistible.

Pamphlets Available On Smoke Detectors

Fire Chief Edward F. Barry announces a free information pamphlet is available to assist dwelling owners who have not yet complied with the mandatory smoke detector requirements in Quincy.

"We have been receiving many calls for technical information about smoke detector installation," Barry said. "I have instructed my staff to compile general guidelines to aid the owners of residential dwellings."

The five-page pamphlet outlines the requirements for single family homes to multi-apartment complexes.

Barry said the guidelines are available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope (business size - nine and one-half by four inches with 15 cents postage) to the Quincy Fire Department, 40 Quincy Ave., Quincy, 02169. The envelope should be marked to the attention of the Superintendent of Fire Alarm.

Family Planning Services Office Moved To Whitwell St.

Family Planning Services of the South Shore has been relocated to 120 Whitwell St., Quincy Center. The organization will continue to provide low-cost comprehensive family planning services.

The services include counseling, education, GYN examinations, VD screening, pregnancy testing and counseling, all methods of birth control and appropriate referrals.

Examinations are performed by gynecologists or family planning nurse practitioners. Medicaid is accepted or payment is determined on a sliding scale with low-income patients receiving free services, sponsored by state funding.

Family Planning wishes to reassure its Germantown patients that service will not be interrupted while the move is made and that everything possible will be done to make the transition smooth and to accommodate clients.

Services continue to be given at Family Planning's Southwest, Weymouth and Hull sites.

For further information, call Family Planning at 471-5187 or 471-8272.

To Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, the Citizens Advisory Committee, and the many private individuals, community groups, and service organizations who worked so hard to help select the very best cable television system for the people of Quincy:

We are proud that this long and difficult process has ended in our selection. As a subsidiary of American Cablesystems Corporation, with strong ties to Quincy in our management and local investor group, we are totally dedicated to creating in this city a cable system that is ideally suited to it.

Being Held Hostage To Crime

Perhaps you saw the news item, too. There was this man in another state who killed a baby by throwing it into a compactor where it was crushed to death. He was arrested. He confessed. He was convicted. He was sentenced to life. Once again justice triumphed, right? Once again justice triumphed, wrong!

The man was ordered freed by a court the other day. Seems he confessed 12 minutes too late, according to some cockamamie deadline devised by the court.

Since the confession, freely given and never repudiated, was the only evidence against the man, he is free to walk the streets.

That's why we were heartened recently when the biggest judge of them all, Warren Burger, the Chief Justice of the United States, came down squarely against such legal shenanigans.

And our hope was renewed last week when Superior Court Judge Henry H. Chmielinski, who sees the problem from the perspective of the front line trenches, lined up firmly on the side of Chief Justice Burger.

"Our search for justice must not be twisted into a search for technical errors to guilt or innocence," Burger told the American Bar Association in his annual State of the Judiciary address.

"The judicial process becomes a mockery, a mockery of justice, if it is forever open to appeals and retrials for errors in the arrest, the search or the trial."

He also criticized the present philosophy of bail, noting that the legal inability to consider the defendant as a danger to society has led to a "startling amount of crime committed by persons on release awaiting trial."

"Like it or not," he said, "today we are approaching the status of an impotent society, whose capability of maintaining elementary security on the streets, in schools and in the homes of our people is in doubt."

In effect, he said, we are held hostage to crime.

"We have a civil war going on in this country between the criminal element and the law-abiding citizens," Judge Chmielinski told a meeting of the Weymouth Democratic Town Committee. "Unfortunately, the criminals are winning."

"If I were totally amoral and some young fellow came up to me and asked me a good field to go into, I'd say crime."

"Your chances of being caught are 1 in 20."

"If you are caught, your chances of being convicted are 1 in 10."

"If you are convicted, your chances of going to jail are 1 in 100."

"Your chances of getting away with it are 20,000 to 1."

"Just make sure you lock your doors tonight. Get gun permits or Mace permits. Then you may be safe."

Some people in Quincy who have been saying that for some time — some from personal experience.

They are old people who are afraid to leave their homes to go to the store. They are women who are afraid to use the MBTA after a certain hour at night. They are young people who dare not use the parks.

It is heartening to know that at least two judges feel the same way, particularly since one of them is the jurist in the best position to do something about it. Let's hope he does.

The Prop. 2½ Jungle

School Committeewoman Patricia Toland wonders if Quincy is going to get through the Proposition 2½ jungle without losing touch with civilization.

"Everyone is screaming at one another and blaming one another for everything," she says. "I just wish everyone would just calm down and try to work it out together in a civilized manner."

"People are nervous and frightened. Things are so uncertain — taxes, school closings, layoffs, etc. But we just cannot panic. We've got to calmly solve our problems — not push the panic button."

Proposition 2½, she thinks, not only delivered a message — but it has taught a lesson that shouldn't be forgotten.

The message, of course: the property owner, who has become round-shouldered carrying the financial burden is fed up with state officials blowing their money through waste and excessive spending.

The lesson: the state can no longer solve its problems on a crises-to-crises basis.

The only time anything is solved," says Mrs. Toland, "is when it reaches the crisis stage."

Proposition 2½, she says, is the direct result of the tax crisis that has been growing and growing right under legislative noses on Beacon Hill.

The legislators, she says, did nothing about tax reform, so the people did.

"Legislators," says she, "have got to address themselves to tax reform and other problems. We have got to get them to do it. We should gang up on them if we have to and make sure they do it."

For openers, she notes that the proposed state budget is six per cent more than last year.

"I think they can get us (cities and towns) three per cent of it to help us through this difficult period."

Meanwhile, she'd like to see Quincy's legislative delegation deliver the tax reform message to colleagues on Beacon Hill.

MRS. TOLAND, incidentally, is still giving thought to running for the City Council at-large seat being vacated by Frank McCauley to make his bid for mayor.

"We've been so busy with the problems of school closings that I haven't had much time to seriously think about it," she says. "But I expect to make up my mind within a month."

OTHER THAN Richard Koch, Jr., who is definitely running, the only other prospective council candidate doing any stirring is Ron Iacobucci. But he is still in the "thinking it over" stage.

ANTHONY DE FALCO, former director of the Quincy City Hospital, will be honored at testimonial buffet Friday night in the Golden Suite at the Sons of Italy Social Center, Quarry St. A social hour will start at 7 p.m., followed by the buffet and dancing. For ticket information contact Mary Forester at the hospital, 773-6100, ext. 201.

Praises Appointment Of Mildred Trout To Hospital Board

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The recent announcement of Mrs. Mildred Trout's appointment to the Board of Managers of the city hospital by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin was, I feel sure, well received by those of us who have had the privilege of knowing her both as a friend and as a registered nurse at the hospital.

From 1939 until her retirement in 1979 Mrs. Trout served with distinction on the hospital's nursing staff, being in charge of that section known as Hunting One on her particular shift. Dedicated to her responsibilities, efficient in her work, she exemplified the highest traditions of the nursing profession. As a former patient on one or more occasions I had the opportunity (as have many others) to see her many kindnesses and observe her devotion to duty.

In my opinion her experience and familiarity with the hospital staff in general should qualify her to render helpful service as a member of the Board of Managers. To the best of my knowledge I believe that Mrs. Trout is the first registered nurse to be appointed to the Board. I feel confident she will not only be a good representative of the citizens in general but of the loyal and dedicated members of the nursing profession.

This tribute, under no circumstances, should be considered as being politically motivated. It comes from a grateful patient and, I trust, a good friend of many years.

Quincy Quiz

Four winners in this week's Quincy Quiz.

Earning Quincy T-shirts are Ronald Saad of 26 Chestnut St., Quincy Center and Eric Gould, 163 Norfolk St., Wollaston.

Earning Quincy Sun bumper stickers are Evelyn T. LeVangie, 121 Martinsen St., Quincy Point and Kendall F. Mills, 91 Independence Ave., South Quincy.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. In what year did John Quincy Adams become the sixth president of the United States?
 2. In what section of the city is the Quincy School?
 3. Name the five members of the Quincy Housing Authority.
 4. What well-known building is located at 100 Southern Artery?
 5. What is the name of Quincy's Superintendent of Schools?
- Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:
1. United First Parish Church is located at 1306 Hancock St.
 2. The nation's first commercial railroad began operation in Quincy in 1826.
 3. Bicknell St. is located in Germantown.
 4. Albert Kramer is presiding justice of Quincy District Court.
 5. Quincy is located in Norfolk County.

Mexico is estimated to have enough oil to supply all U.S. needs for the next 40 years.

Coming Attraction:

Fire, Burglar Alarms Available On Cable TV

Cable television is more than just watching first run movies, sporting events and maybe City Council meetings in the comfort of your own living room.

Some two years after the final license is granted, when the wiring of the city is complete, Quincy Cablesystems has a commitment to offer its subscribers a fire and burglar alarm system.

For an additional charge, of course.

And perhaps a year or three after that, once regional systems on the South Shore are extensive enough to make it worth while, you may be able to shop by pressing a button on the TV set.

For another additional fee, of course.

Barry Lemieux, executive vice president of American Cablesystems, parent firm of Quincy Cablesystems, is the man in charge of marketing and franchise development programs.

"Our marketing surveys show that there is a tremendous interest in Quincy in burglar and fire alarms," he says. "The problem is that right now the price is too high for many people."

"Traditionally, residential alarm systems have been provided for the affluent few but we are evaluating a number of technologies that are very promising in regard to cost."

The most prominent system in use today is called the TOCOM III-A, which, says Lemieux, is used by some 6,000 subscribers nationwide.

It costs more than $300 to install with a monthly fee of $16 to $18 to monitor the home for fire through a smoke detection device and for burglars through intrusion alarms.

But, says Lemieux, "this is a young industry within our young industry and technology is moving fast." Prices are coming down with each new development.

Canadian Cablesystems is running a pilot program in 1,000 homes in Syracuse, N.Y. for a system called "The Security Connection" which costs $75 to $100 to install and $7 to $9 a month for monitoring.

"We've received a proposal from them to do the same in Quincy," says Lemieux.

And Jerrold Manufacturing, the largest supplier of electronic gear in the cable television industry, recently unveiled a security system that is competitive in cost to the one in Syracuse.

Price is the key factor because Cablesystems' survey showed that while 40 percent of Quincy was interested in fire alarm service and 38 percent in burglar alarms only 17 percent was interested at $16 a month and 5 percent at a $200 to $300 installation fee.

"Over the next year, we'll be concentrating in Quincy on building the cable system," says Lemieux. "The second year we'll focus on adding services and this will be one of them."

"Once we have the computer system in, we will utilize the interactive (two-way) capacity for alarm signals. Then we can use the same terminal devices to explore other uses."

"I don't have a crystal ball but some of the things that have been discussed and experimented with include banking and shopping at home."

If the shopping service were to be offered, you'd have a catalogue like Sears Roebuck puts out. If you wanted to order something, you'd go to your terminal device and press the catalogue number. The price would appear on your TV screen. Press another button and it's ordered.

"This is in the experimental stage now," says Lemieux. "It won't be commercially viable until there is a large subscriber base in the area. It's three to five years away, when Boston, Brockton, Milton, Randolph and other area towns are wired."

The two-way use of the cable system also opens the way for public opinion and other polling of subscribers similar to the Qube system that is being used now in Columbus, Ohio, which in turn opens the way for invasion of privacy.

"It is possible to monitor viewing habits without the subscriber knowing it," says Lemieux. "We can tell when the set is on and when it's off and what station it's on."

"Don't conjure up an image of a camera monitoring what goes on in your living room. It's not a surveillance kind of thing. There are, however, those monitoring capabilities."

"The city has set up some strictures against it and they will appear on the license. Basically they are very strong restrictions on information and the issue of privacy."

"It's not something that will be done by Quincy Cablesystems without the expressed authority of the individual subscriber. If he wants to be monitored or polled, he'll have to take some positive action."

Purchasing Agent Would Save $20,000, Burgin Says

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin urged legislative action to create the post of city purchasing agent, a move which, he said, would save the city at least $20,000 a year.

"I am convinced," he told the city Council, "that a purchasing officer would save at least four times the amount of his pay."

Burgin said he knew of instances when two city departments, one small and one large, purchased the same thing on the same day at two different stores for two different prices.

CIVIL WAR VET DIES

James H. Webb, 91, a Navy veteran of the Civil War and the next to last surviving member of Quincy's Paul J. Revere Post, Grand Army of the Republic, died at his home in Boston.

Webb manned the main topsail starboard watch aboard the USS Sacramento that chased the Confederate raider Alabama across the Atlantic and around Africa into a trap in a French harbor.

NORTH BOWS

Capt. Fred Cummings was out with the flue as the North Quincy High School basketball team lost to Brockton, 31-21, ending the Raiders' hopes of a trip to the Tech Tourney.

The North Quincy lineup included: Miff Leith, Navin, Nino Mayer, guards; Roger Comins, center; Pete Cooke, Anderson, George Reilly, forwards.

DEMOCRATS COMPLAIN

Members of the Democratic City Committee complained to Gov. Charles F. Hurley that aliens were getting preferred treatment over citizens by the WPA and they wanted the rules changed.

Recently, they said, the WPA sent 40 painters to the Fore River Shipyard to work on the cruiser Vincennes. Thirty eight citizens were kept at 67 cents an hour, while two aliens were put back on the WPA payroll at $1 an hour.

FIRE STATION APPROVED

The City Council voted 6-3 to authorize the building of a $160,000 Central Fire Station, with the federal government picking up $72,000 of the cost and the city $88,000.

"How can the city make any savings in the tax rate if we continue to borrow and keep the debt at a high figure?" declared Councillor John W. Savage, one of those opposed.

He was joined in opposition by Councillors Myron N. Lane and Edward J. Sandberg.

QUINCY-ISMS

Police Chief John J. Avery said he could operate his department efficiently and without extra cost even if a new law went through giving police officers one day off in seven instead of one day off in eight. . . . Mary Pratt of Christ Church was named captain of the Patriot Ledger's Girls Church League all stars. . . . Hamburger was 17 cents a pound at Mohican Market, 19-25 Chestnut St. . . . Thomas C. Johnson, manager of the South Shore Buick Co., was elected president of the Quincy Chamber of Commerce. . . . James H. Powers, foreign news editor of a Boston newspaper, told the Quincy Women's Republican Club that economic conditions in Europe were such that a major war could not last longer than a year. . . . Promoter Richard Gordon was preparing to hold a world's wrestling championship match between Jacques Bernard of France and Abe Stein of New York City at Quincy Arena. . . . Patrolmen Carl Seppala and George Wyman called on passersby for help when their cruiser got stuck in the mud on the Hollis Ave. playground in North Quincy. . . . Lobster croquettes were 35 cents at the Norfolk Cafe, 7-9 Billings Rd. near the Norfolk Downs railroad station. . . . The Rev. George Lyman spoke on "The Man We Brought Here, the Negro" at a meeting of the Women's Guild of Christ Church. . . . Al Emery scored 15 points as Quincy Trade defeated Everett Trade, 34-19, for its eighth straight victory. . . . Anthony Venna, Quincy's WPA administrator, was reported to have been offered the new $2,500 a year post of welfare director in Braintree. . . . Gary Cooper, Jean Arthur and Charles Bickford were starring in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Plainsman" at the Strand. . . . Cong. Richard B. Wigglesworth appeared before the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors in support of a bill to dredge a channel in the Town River to the Quincy Oil Co. terminal. . . . Pal, a 6-month-old wire haired terrier, frightened off burglars who broke into William E. Estes' Jewelry Store, 17 Granite St. . . . Dr. Walter G. Kendall of Atlantic was elected to his 51st term as captain of the Boston Bicycle Club. . . . Sammy Garcia, 121, of Quincy defeated Johnny Compo, 120 3/4, New York, in a six-round bout at Manhattan's Coliseum. . . . Mayor Burgin recommended a salary hike to $4,250 a year for City Auditor George H. Bonsall. . . . Mrs. Herbert Holmes was nominated for president of the Quincy Women's Club.

Quincy Legion Auxiliary Has Scholarship Applications

The Quincy Post Auxiliary has applications available for scholarships for children or grandchildren ages 16 to 22 of a living or deceased veteran eligible for membership in the American Legion.

The child must have been a resident of Massachusetts for the last five years and must not be eligible for or have received the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Scholarship through the Department of Education.

Auxiliary scholarships are the National President's Scholarship, Department President's Scholarship and Past President's Parley Nursing Scholarship.

For applications, send a stamped, self addressed envelope to Unit 95, Auxiliary Education Chairman, 31 Revere Rd., Quincy.

The American Legion also publishes a booklet, "Need A Lift?" that lists financial assistance programs for all students.

Copies have been placed in the guidance departments of Quincy's high schools and the Thomas Crane Library.

In 1978, nearly 24 percent of all restaurant orders were for hamburgers.

El Salvador Crisis Topic

Sister Jeanne Gallo To Speak At United First Parish

Sister Jeanne Gallo will discuss "El Salvador: A Country in Crisis" Sunday at 10:30 a.m. at United First Parish (Unitarian) Church, Quincy Square.

The Social Concerns Committee of the Church is sponsoring the program by Sister Jeanne, a native Bostonian who is a Sister of Notre Dame.

A former member of the Boston Industrial Mission staff, she is a human rights activist with the Boston "Overview of Latin America" staff.

She teaches seminars and produces publications to alert Americans to the situation in El Salvador and the results of continued American involvement in that country.

Sister Jeanne teaches at Boston College in a peace and war program. She recently returned from Mexico City where she was an observer at a trial of El Salvador's ruling junta by the Human Rights Commission of El Salvador.

The public is invited.

Braintree Choral Society To Present 'Messiah' Concert

The Spring Concert of the Braintree Choral Society will feature Parts II and III of "The Messiah" by G.F. Handel, Sunday, April 26, at 4 p.m. in Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington Street, Quincy.

There will be organ and orchestral accompaniment with Christopher King, conductor. The two sections will be sung in their entirety, including choruses and solos seldom sung. These parts deal with the Passion and Resurrection of Our Lord.

There are still some openings for interested choristers, particularly tenors and basses. Tickets will soon be on sale from any member of the Society, and will also be sold at the door on the day of the performance.

Soloists will soon be announced.

Good Shepherd Church To Elect Officers March 2

Members of the new church council of The Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd met recently to nominate church officers and form committees for 1981.

Elections for the posts will be held March 2, at 7:30 p.m. at the church. The church posts are vice president, secretary, assistant financial secretary and treasurer.

Sub-committees are evangelism and social ministry, worship and music, stewardship and finance, church property and Christian education.

Church council members are Pastor Darrell Urban, Marie Demaggio, Al Stein, Cathy Henry, Doris Bingham, Virginia Mirick, Jane Hult, Flo Steeves, John Norden and Dan Conatser.

Faith Lutheran Children Sing, 'Sign' Hymn Words

Church school children from Faith Lutheran church sang "Jesus Loves Me" while using sign language during the worship service Sunday.

The children were directed by Mrs. Jean Fuller, a student at the Randolph School for the Deaf, who is practicing a voluntary ministry to the deaf in this area.

She has been teaching the signs to the hymn to the church school children, nursery to grade two, for the last few Sundays.

Also during the service, Pastor James Kimmell used sign language while the congregation repeated the Lord's Prayer.

Rev. Kimmell has ministered to the deaf in Lancaster, Pa., and at the Randolph School for the Deaf. Rev. Kimmell's sermon for the service was "Reaching Out".

'China' Missions Topic At Wollaston Methodist

Dr. Hyla Waters will discuss "China" Sunday At 7 p.m. at Wollaston United Methodist Church, 40 Beale St., at the last session of a School of Missions.

The five week school has been sponsored by United Methodist Cooperative Parish of Quincy and Parkway United Methodist Church in Milton.

Dr. Waters is the aunt of Mrs. Betty Allen, wife of Rev. Daniel Allen, pastor of the cooperative parish.

She spent 25 years in China as a missionary surgeon. In March, 1980, she made a return visit to the hospital in Wuhu, China, where she had served.

Dr. Waters found that some of her former students are now professors in the recently opened government medical school.

An informal fellowship time with refreshments will follow the meeting.

'Buy-A-Brick' Campaign For Dorchester Church

St. William's Parish in Dorchester has started a "buy-a-brick" campaign to rebuild the church, which was burned to the ground last Sept. 24.

Parishioners and former parishioners, many of whom live in Quincy, have been asked to purchase a brick at the suggested price of $10 apiece.

Checks or money orders should be sent to St. William's Rectory, 1048 Dorchester Ave., Boston, Mass. 02125.

Paul Schelfaut On Nursing Home Awards Committee

Paul F. Schelfaut of Quincy, coordinator and acting administrator of the Elihu White Nursing Home, Braintree, has been appointed co-chairman of the annual awards committee of the

Wheelchair Presented In Memory Of Clarence Metcalf

A wheelchair in memory of the last Mr. Clarence Metcalf was presented to the Quincy Council on Aging at a meeting of the Federation of Senior Citizens Clubs of Quincy recently.

Mr. Metcalf was the dean of the Council on Aging Board and president of the Retired Fire and Police Association.

The wheelchair will be loaned to any Quincy senior citizen in need of one, and then returned to the Council on Aging.

Accepting the wheelchair were Mrs. Marion Andrews, Council on Aging director, and Mrs. Theresa Whitaker, Council on Aging Board chairman.

An honored guest for the occasion was Mr. Metcalf's daughter, Mrs. Doris Lyons.

Also at the meeting, a plaque was presented to Mrs. Mary MacLean, retiring president of the federation, who served 1973 to 1980. She also received a bouquet of flowers.

The incoming slate of officers was installed. A buffet luncheon was served.

To Reopen On Quincy Ave. Claus Gelotte Closing Downtown Store

"We feel really terrible about this," said Tony Merlino of Claus Gelotte. "But things are just terrible in Quincy Square right now."

Citing conditions in Quincy Square which have cut the store's business in half, Merlino announced Tuesday that Claus Gelotte's Quincy store will close Feb. 28.

A parking lot adjacent to the store, at 1387 Hancock St., closed in December for construction of the Quincy Center Plaza office building.

"Business has really dropped off since they closed the parking lot," said Merlino, retail sales manager for Claus Gelotte. "It's really inconvenient for our customers to find a place to park."

"And Sears' leaving has hurt, too. That was a great draw.

"Between those two factors, I'd say we've lost 50 percent or more of our Quincy Square business," Merlino said.

"There's a lot of other factors, but those are the only ones I want to go into," he said.

"We hate to close down our Quincy store — we've been here for over 30 years. But the numbers aren't good for us right now."

The Quincy Claus Gelotte will reopen next fall at the new Pilgrim Plaza, on Quincy Ave. Claus Gelotte's three other stores, two in Cambridge and one in Boston will remain open.

Of the store's six employees, Merlino said, three would be moved to other stores. Three more will be laid off and called back when the Quincy Ave. store opens.

QCA Opposes Zoning Changes

The Quincy Citizens Association has come out against two proposed zoning changes that would make it easier for developers to work in Quincy.

One of them would create a Business C-1 District that would bypass the Business C requirement that parking be provided and permit the leasing of space.

The other would permit the construction of a hotel or motel on land that is zoned for Industry A, or light industry. They are now banned.

Said QCA Secretary Dorothy C. Kelly in a letter to the Planning Board:

"Business C parking requirements were put in to assure orderly and adequate planning for buildings and parking; downtown parking must be provided by the developers, not the taxpayers.

"Already Quincy has bent over backwards for Stop & Shop by giving up the public Della Chiesa parking lot for the Stop & Shop building.

"Another proposal is being contemplated to wipe out the public Hancock Parking Area and give it to a private developers for a mall off Hancock St.

"(This will) reduce public parking by hundreds of cars and not provide any replacement parking. Braintree Plaza does not depend on the town for parking and neither should downtown Quincy.

"The passage of Proposition 2½ was a clear message to local planners and developers that taxpayers will no longer subsidize private developments through grants or by footing the bill for such amenities as private parking."

The QCA called the hotel-motel zoning amendment an effort "to bypass public opinion and sentiments of concerned citizens."

"Presently a developer has only to seek a variance to build a hotel or a motel in an area zoned Industry A," said the letter, "If there are no real objections a hotel or motel variance is possible.

"If the residents want to know what is being planned before an undesirable development proceeds, the residents should have the protection that the present zoning affords.

"Let's leave the ordinance as is and require developers to put their complete plans on the table for public scrutiny. That's the democratic way that assures good city planning that we can live with."

Miss Kelly noted that she was a member of the committee that drafted the present ordinance and "the committee deliberately omitted motels and hotels from Industry A zones as incompatible uses in close proximity."

Aron Savage President Quincy Legion Junior Auxiliary

Aron Savage was recently installed as president of the junior auxiliary of Quincy Unit #95 of the American Legion.

Also installed during ceremonies held by the unit auxiliary were Danielle Prescott, vice president; Sharon Goodman, secretary; Marsha Goodman, treasurer; Valerie Caruso, chaplain; Judy Goodman, historian; Wendy Eng and Darlene Koestner, sergeant-at-arms.

New members who were initiated during the ceremony were Kirsten Herbert, Amy Martin, Valerie Caruso; Darlene Koestner and Danielle Prescott.

Lee Stevens was outgoing junior president.

Auxiliary president Irene James presided over the ceremonies assisted by junior auxiliary chairman Debbie Herbert and assistant chairman Doris Martin.

Families and friends of the new members and officers were on hand for the occasion.

Junior auxiliary members range in age from seven months to 17 years.

Their purpose is to aid the auxiliary in providing service to the United States and its veterans, and to learn the principles of patriotism and Americanism.

Polio Victim

Sybil Mattson Receives Special Telephone For Handicapped

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

A Quincy woman who has been paralyzed from polio for the past 25 years, can "reach out and touch someone" by phone now thanks to a member of the United Methodist Cooperative Parish of Quincy.

Sybil Mattson, mother of two, can now answer the phone when it rings and make her own calls to friends due to the efforts of Ken Morris, a member of Adams Shore United Methodist Church.

Morris who works for Western Electric, secured the loan of a special telephone for the handicapped through the Telephone Pioneers, volunteers who provide services of many kinds in the area.

Mrs. Mattson, paralyzed from the neck down, has a little mobility in her left foot which she can use to activate the phone.

In addition to a large box under her bed, there is a microphone on her pillow and a small loudspeaker on a nearby table.

Morris and his wife, Mary Alice, learned about Mrs. Mattson in late summer and they offered to take her for a ride in their van.

The excursion required disconnecting Mrs. Mattson's large bedside breathing machine and lifting her into a wheel chair. A hand squeezed bulb was then used to keep her breathing until she could be lifted out the front door and into a van where a portable breathing machine was hooked up to her.

Those involved in the transfer were anxious, but reportedly Mrs. Mattson was calm and smiling, encouraging those who helped.

SYBIL MATTSON, paralyzed from polio for 25 years, can now answer her own phone and call her friends with a special phone for the handicapped provided through the efforts of (left) Steve Slicis of the Telephone Pioneers, and (center) Ken Morris of Adams Shore United Methodist Church.

She reportedly was tremendously grateful for the chance to get out and view the sea shore and boats and said it gave her enough memories to last all winter.

Mrs. Mattson is a member of Quincy Centre United Methodist Church. Ellis Gammons, lay leader of the church, tapes the Sunday morning service each week and takes it to her home.

Other church members visit her frequently and the church helps with some of Mrs. Mattson's expenses.

According to Mrs. Daniel Allen, wife of the cooperative parish pastor, visiting Mrs. Mattson is both a humbling and inspiring experience.

She is always cheerful, positive, interested in others and grateful for life itself, according to Mrs. Allen.

Added Mrs. Allen, "Her little yellow love bird is somehow symbolic of Sybil: having accepted his cage, he sings and dances within the confines, giving joy to all who hear."

Rep. Cerasoli Named To Ways And Means Committee

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli has been appointed to the powerful Ways and Means Committee by House Speaker Thomas W. McGee.

The Committee on Ways and Means is considered one of the most powerful committees due to the fact that it deals with the state budget. It is also responsible for many of the approximately 8,000 bills filed each year.

Speaker McGee also re-appointed Cerasoli as chairman of the House Ethics Committee, a position he has held for the past two years. Cerasoli previously served as Vice-Chairman of the Committee on Election Laws and as a member of the Committee on Federal Financial Assistance.

"I am very pleased with my committee assignments for the 1981-1982 legislative session," said Cerasoli. I hope to continue the work we have done in the areas of ethics and election laws and I look forward to the great challenge the Committee on Ways and Means offers."

Cavanaugh DAV Membership At All Time High

Membership in the Quincy-Cavanaugh Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans has reached an all time high of 465 paid members, according to Joseph R. Harold of Quincy, DAV adjutant.

Harold reports that of that total, 221 are life members. Last year's membership was 437, according to Harold.

State commander Richard H. Wells reports that DAV membership in Massachusetts has reached 34,000 and is also at an all time high.

"Our membership has increased mainly because of the influx of Vietnam veterans into our ranks and our continual fight to improve conditions for disabled veterans," said Wells.

Wells said the DAV has seven full-time national service officers at Room E-318 in the JFK Building, Boston, all of which are Vietnam veterans.

There is also an outreach program for Vietnam veterans at 933 Dorchester Ave., Dorchester, according to Wells.

Nowadays, it just doesn't make sense to pay more taxes than you have to.

It could be costly mistake to file the "short form." You'd be cheating yourself if you didn't claim all the deductions and adjustments, credits and special tax-figuring methods that you're entitled to.

For example, did you work two jobs or at two worksites, look for work, or take a course to maintain or improve your job skills? Reporting your travel and transportation expense, including the use of your car, could increase your refund even if you don't itemize your deductions.

Or has your increasing income forced you into higher and higher tax brackets? A different method of figuring your tax could save you $50 to $1000 or more.

But you can't claim these and other tax savings on the short form — that's why they call it the short form.

At the TAX CLINIC your return is prepared by an experienced tax consultant or attorney, professionals who know the tax laws and are available year 'round to serve you. Professional tax preparation: it just might be the best investment you'll ever make.

Should we have a funeral and visitation for Grandpa?

He was very old,
maybe he doesn't have any friends left

The choice of a funeral or visitation for the elderly should not be made on false assumptions. It is easy to believe that old people have no friends. Many have spent their last years in a nursing home away from others. Many of their friends may also have preceded them in death. Nevertheless, today there is a larger population of the elderly than there has ever been before, and that population is growing! Many families who have chosen a visitation and traditional funeral have been gratified to meet friends of the deceased who call to pay their respects because they cared about the person. Others come to express support of the family. When an older person dies, a funeral and visitation, gives friends a chance to express their feelings.

Wollaston Camp Fire Girls Donate $70 For Famine Relief

Wollaston Camp Fire Girls from Mrs. Ginie Nickerson's Koala Club recently voted to donate $70 to Famine Relief, a fund supported by the Catholic Church and CARE.

The cause is also supported by entertainers John Amos and Valerie Harper, and the girls donation will help feed children of Somalia and Kenya whose countries are suffering from a three year drought.

The girls earned the money by participating in the South Shore Council's annual candy sale. They also voted to save enough of the money to treat themselves to an ice cream.

Programs In Jeopardy

443 Could Lose Jobs Under School Cuts

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

School closings and the elimination of junior high sports are the most obvious cuts pending in the school budget, but only part of the story.

Less visible cuts include those in school administration, pupil services, building maintenance, art and music instruction and almost every other phase of the system's operation.

Some 443 school employees would lose their jobs or be bumped to lower-paying ones. They range from the five academic coordinators, earning an average of $28,500, who would go back to the teaching ranks, to 50 lunch matrons, earning $1,320 apiece, who would be laid off.

Proposed programs cuts would make it more difficult for the average child to learn to paint, play the violin, learn a foreign language or throw a football.

Most of the proposed cuts, about $7.6 million, have been before the School Committee since Dec. 10. An additional $1.8 million in proposed cuts were made public last Wednesday by a somber School Supt. Lawrence Creedon, who pointedly told the committee that his recommendations were not really recommendations.

"There's nothing in these seven or eight pages (of listed cuts) that I, as chief educational officer of the city, can recommend," Creedon said.

And, when asked by committee member Francis Anselmo to defend one of the proposed cuts, Creedon replied, "I can't, Mr. Anselmo, because I don't support any of this business."

By closing five schools and approving the other cuts in Creedon's Dec. 10 package, the committee cut $7.6 million from its budget for next year. Creedon has told the committee that as much as

Ward 1 Democrats To Caucus

Ward 1 Democrats will caucus Saturday, Feb. 21, at 2 p.m. in the Manet Community Health Center in Houghs Neck to choose 11 delegates to the Democratic issues convention in Springfield April 11.

$4 million more might have to be cut.

Among the cuts proposed by Creedon at the Feb. 11 meeting:

- Eliminating 15 art and music instructors at the elementary and junior high levels, from a total force of 19. An estimated $297,000 would be saved.

- Eliminating eight of the ten physical education instructors at the elementary and junior high levels, for a savings of $166,500.

- Eliminating the Elementary Lab Center program for "gifted" students, located at Lincoln Hancock School. $92,165 would be saved.

- Cutting $40,000 from the $83,000 English as a Second Language program, which services about 110 students. This is not to be confused, Creedon said, with bilingual teaching programs which the Reagan administration has ordered phased out.

- Total elimination of junior high level business education ($20,674). Project Outreach, aimed at preventing dropouts ($27,890), and high school drama programs ($4,755).

- Cutting $40,000 from the $136,000 budget for foreign languages at the junior high level. Students now taking a language would be able to next year, Creedon said, although no language courses would be offered to next year's seventh graders.

- Eliminating all inter-scholastic sports for grades seven, eight, and nine, saving $94,186. The $230,000 varsity and subvarsity high school budget would be left intact.

- Transferring all post-graduate Vo-Tech courses from the regular school budget to the Quincy Junior College revolving account which is now pending before the City Council. This would cut about $450,000 from the school budget.

- Laying off nine custodians, saving $113,000. This is in addition to the nine laid off by the committee Jan. 28, when it approved the first $7.6 million in cuts.

- Laying off the groundskeeper for Veterans' Memorial Stadium ($9,000), a maintenance man ($17,000) and two employees from the school department's business office ($12,000 apiece).

Even if the latest $1.8 million round of cuts are approved, Creedon said, the committee may have to find up to $2 million more in cuts.

Mayor Arthur Tobin has told the committee that the school system's share of the citywide budget cut due to Proposition 2½ would be about $8.5 million.

But, Creedon said, the $1.7 million in negotiated raises for school employees for 1981-82 means that amount will have to be cut out of the budget elsewhere. And a teacher's union suit ordering that $1.4 million in still-unfunded raises for 1979-80 could add that amount to next year's budget also, bringing the total cuts necessary to $11.6 million.

about a proposed elimination of the Elementary Lab Center for gifted students, conducted at the Lincoln Hancock School.

"They are the students we should be most concerned about," said Anselmo, "they are our future leaders of government and industry."

Anselmo contrasted the $92,165 budget for the gifted program with the $3 million spent on the system's 1,400 special needs students.

"I'm not saying I'm opposed to that," said Anselmo. But how can we justify taking opportunities away from our most gifted students?"

"The cut in the gifted program is another one that I have some reservations about," said Kennedy. "But, again, I'm keeping an open mind about that."

"There's also the Outreach program, which has been very successful in preventing dropouts at the junior high level. (Creedon has recommended the elimination of its $27,890 budget.) But it's hard to justify keeping that when we are cutting arts, music and phys ed classes," said Kennedy.

3,631 Innoculated Against Flu At Less Cost

Although spending less money last year, the city still managed to inoculate more people against the flu this year than in 1979-80, announces Mayor Arthur Tobin.

Tobin congratulated the Health Department and Council on Aging for "a job well done."

"We had to approach the process differently this year, relying more heavily on the federal government through the commonwealth to supply the vaccine and on our Health Department through streamlining and efficiency in terms of personnel scheduling, which resulted in a substantial savings to the City of Quincy taxpayers," said Tobin.

A total of 3,631 people received the vaccine. There were four clinics held at the John F. Kennedy Health Center open to the general public which provided 2,940 people with immunization, 448 through nursing homes, and 112 in a final series of clinics at the city's 10 senior citizen housing areas. There were also 131 shut-ins serviced during the month of October.

"Less money was budgeted and spent on the 'flu' immunization program this winter and more people were serviced. It has been a thorough job and well done by the Health Department under the direction of the Public Health Commissioner, Dr. Robert P. McKeogh, in conjunction with the council on Aging and Executive Director, Mrs. Marion Andrews," said Tobin.

Casino Opponent QCA Speaker

Mrs. Carol Oteri of Hull, a member of Group Against Gambling (GAG), will be the guest speaker Wednesday, March 4, at 8 p.m. at a meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association in the Montclair clubhouse.

Mrs. Oteri, a leader in the campaign against casino gambling in Hull, will show movies of the effect casino gambling has had in Atlantic City.

Veterans Council To Meet

The Quincy Veterans Council will meet tonight (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the Houghs Neck Post.

John M. Gillis is commander, and post commander Arthur G. McLean is adjutant.

Tempers Hot At Revolving Accounts Hearing

(Cont'd from Page 2)

However, he added, "since there is a revenue deficit up there, there will be quite probably be a reduction in force. Right now, the method of attrition is being used with a 'no hire, no fire' policy. If that plan is not sufficient, quite probably there will be layoffs this year."

"If the hospital cannot operate on a revolving account, since there will be no appropriation for it, it will close itself. That is not layoffs but a total dissolution of the hospital."

Harrington was called upon to be the chief spokesman for the Tobin administration in presenting the case for the legislative package. He made these points:

"The mayor and the City Council are not going to control the tax rate. The law of the land is Proposition 2½. The tax rate will be whatever the levy limit says it will be and that's $56 million."

"We're not discussing how to save the taxpayers' money when we discuss Proposition 2½. That judgement has already been made. We're only discussing how to use the $56 million that has been given us to run the city."

"This legislative package attempts to address in a very creative way the problems that we have with 2½."

"You have before you a budget that calls for the elimination of 275 positions on the municipal side. Through 'no hire, no fire' 125 of these positions are vacant and only, regrettably, 150 people will have to be laid off."

"The budget is designed with the hopes that this legislative package or a similar proposal will be adopted in conjunction with it will allow this city to operate under Proposition 2½."

Harrington pointed out that creation of a sewer commission with a user charge separate from the tax bill would take $2.5 to $2.9 million off the budget. A sewer user charge has been rejected three times by the City Council.

"When the sewer user charge was brought in before," said Harrington, "we did not have Proposition 2½. We had the ability to bond and borrow for sewer projects. We will not have that for the indefinite future."

"We have an obligation to pay the MDC $2 million on Nov. 20 for last year's water and the hookup to the sewerage system. Under this legislation the Commission would pay that money. Therefore, $2 million would be left in general revenue for other services."

"It is my understanding that $1 million is equal to 80 jobs. If we have the $2 million paid by the commission from the sewer charges then we are not going to have to lay off 160 employees."

Harrington said the commission also would absorb the annual water lien deficit of $250,000, and a similar figure for the sewer system, which translates into 40 more employees.

"Those items alone add up to 200 employees," he said.

"We have a need to build a pumping station so that the developments in downtown can continue," said Harrington. "It needs to be built next year. It's going to cost us a half million dollars."

"With a sewer user charge alone we might be able to build it, if the Reagan Administration doesn't withdraw the 90 percent federal funding, we might be able to build it two or three years from now."

"The key to this is not who appoints people to certain commissions or who gets to review what budget. The key to this is that the city operates on borrowed money."

"We have reached the limit of our borrowing power or damn near it for this year and next year and without the power of unlimited taxation we have to be able to prove to the financial institutions that we can pay our debts."

"If we don't have revenue defined and segregated, such as by a water and sewer commission, to pay our debts the banks are not going to lend us money."

Harrington noted that the only sewer and water commission in the state is one created for the city of Boston by a special act of the legislature.

"Boston is in deep financial trouble," he said, "but its sewer and water commission just sold $40 million worth of revenue bonds and they have committed federal grants for over $300 million worth of projects."

"Owen Eaton (water superintendent) needs $2 million immediately that he can't borrow anywhere in the state because no municipality has sold a bond since 2½ started. All we can do through appropriation is operate the system as best we can."

"Our sewer system is 20 to 40 years beyond its lifespan. We're looking at $50 million to revamp the system. It's not going to come from appropriation because for every $1 million it's 80 people laid off and another cut in services."

Chairman Lydon read the meeting a letter from Sen. Paul D. Harold in which he said he thought it would be "extremely difficult to secure approval of a package which includes provisions for a water and sewer commission at this time."

"Traditionally," he said, "the legislature has been very reluctant to approve revolving accounts of any kind, largely because they are not under state supervision."

"This year in particular the legislature will be hesitant to open the door for allowance of these accounts because of the anticipated large number of cities and towns seeking to avoid the restriction of Proposition 2½."

"If the legislature were to allow such special treatment for Quincy, other municipalities would surely demand equal treatment in abrogation of the legislative policy."

Harold is chairman of the Legislative Committee on Local Affairs, which would be the one to clear such petitions for the legislature.

2 UDAG Projects Threatened By Reagan Budget Cutting

is cut back.

"I will do everything within my power as a member of the House Budget Committee to continue this vital program, whether or not it has the support of the president."

Planning Director Lydon said the elimination of the UDAG program would have no effect on the garage that is under construction in conjunction with Quincy Center Plaza "unless they want to take back the concrete blocks."

There is a possibility, he said, that the Reagan administration might try to rescind the rest of the program for the current fiscal year, which would require a two-thirds vote of the House.

"They are talking now of doing UDAGs through the community development type of approach," said Lydon. "I don't believe that would be in the best interests of Quincy."

"They would increase the annual award and allow greater discretion on the part of the city to include economic development as well as improvement of the housing stock."

Lydon suggested that the Reagan administration might have deliberately leaked word to the mayors that the UDAGs were to be eliminated to pave the way for a cut in the program.

"As the pressure builds," he said,

"they'll promise that they will keep them going but will cut back on the program."

The two Quincy UDAGs now under application include a parking garage over the MBTA tracks at Dimmock St. and another over an MBTA parking area near the North Quincy station.

Two others are under consideration — one in conjunction with the Monarch III office building planned by the O'Connell brothers in State Street South and another at Boston Harbor Marina.

"We were looking for them in the April round," said Lydon. "Now that's questionable."

Tobin: 'Political Rhetoric'

Anselmo Calls Mayor 'Tyrant' On New School Budget

Mayor Arthur Tobin's submission of a $26.6 million school budget, before the School Committee has had a chance to even consider its 1981-82 budget, raised the hackles of some committee members last week.

"He has become a tyrant, a Caesar," said committee member Frank Anselmo, who added that Tobin had "an ungodly amount of gall" for deciding on a school budget without consulting the committee.

"The mayor has made a farce out of our budget sessions," said John Sullivan. "Any action by the committee on these pages (of proposed budget cuts) is a mockery—it's a joke."

"We are elected to administer public education in the city," said Anselmo, "not the mayor, who is seldom here and doesn't know what the devil is going on in the school system and never will.

"He has become so embroiled in political considerations that the day may come when we will consider it a blessing to be rid of him," said Anselmo.

"Let your voice be heard at the right time," he told the several dozen parents and school employees present, "if you want to protect your child and the school system."

Chairman Christopher Kennedy told the committee that Proposition 2½ gave the mayor and the City Council the power to determine the "bottom line" amount of how much is spent on the school system, although only the School Committee may decide how that money is spent.

The school budget drawn up by Tobin is down $8.45 million from this year's $35 million budget.

Tobin, who did not attend last week's committee meeting, wrote off Anselmo's comments as "political rhetoric."

"I respect Mr. Anselmo's outspoken defense of the school system," Tobin said. "As to his personal attack on me, I accept it as part of the political process."

"Him calling me a dictator is nothing new. He lectures me at every meeting," Tobin said.

"I respect Mr. Anselmo's age (83)," Tobin said, "but he has a short memory."

In 1978, when defeated for reelection, Anselmo needed the majority vote of the City Council and School Committee to replace then-committee member Frank McCauley, who resigned to join the council.

"The vote was 8- to 7 and I was the last person to vote and I voted for Mr. Anselmo. And this is the thanks I get," Tobin said.

First Council Candidate

Richard Koch, Jr., Candidate For City Council At-Large

Richard J. Koch, Jr., is an official candidate for the City Council at-large. Koch announced his candidacy at a fund raiser Friday at Morrisette Legion Post, West Quincy. An estimated 300 people attended.

Koch is the first officially announced candidate for the City Council. He ran for the first time in 1979 and was defeated by former Mayor Joseph LaRaia by 197 votes.

In a brief address, Koch said Proposition 2½ has intensified Quincy's already formidable fiscal problems. He urged the City Council to deal responsibly and imaginatively with the challenges of the new state law.

Koch emphasized the importance of good communications between the council and its constituents. He further suggested the need for a new dialogue between city government and residents of Quincy to determine which services should be cut and which should be retained.

Koch promised to meet with as many citizens as possible during the campaign to seek their views on the crucial decisions facing Quincy in the months to come.

Villa Rosa Extension Approved

Owners of Villa Rosa, Inc., were granted permission by the License Board Tuesday to extend the establishment by 12 feet after they reported working with area residents on neighborhood problems.

The board granted extension of the establishment's common victualer-alcoholic license from 701-705 Adams St. to 699, 701, 703, 705 Adams St.

Dora McDonald, one of the establishment's owners, had reported at the Feb. 3 meeting the restaurant would expand into a vacant pizza shop to allow a better interior traffic flow.

Mrs. McDonald said capacity would not be increased by one, but that the additional space would allow the establishment to handle the same amount of people more efficiently.

Area residents at the meeting had brought to the board's attention neighborhood parking and other problems. The matter was continued so that owners of Villa Rosa could discuss the problems with area residents.

At this week's meeting, Nancy Cirillo of Villa Rosa reported meetings had been held with neighbors and area businesses and that they had arrived at corrections to problems.

Mrs. Cirillo told the board Villa Rosa and two other area businesses would share expenses for a police detail for the busy nights of Thursday to Sunday.

Carolyn Reardon of the Lakin Square Neighborhood Association said her group would like a door that would be added in the lounge to be used only as an emergency exit.

Villa Rosa owners agreed to that point, as well as to installing down lighting at the rear of the building to discourage youths from loitering in that area.

John Matthews, owner of an apartment building at 707 Adams St., said he was opposed to the extension unless he could get a written guarantee from Villa Rosa and the Quincy Police that the neighborhood situation would continue to improve.

Police Chief Francis Finn termed Matthew's request "ludicrous".

Finn later added he would assign auxiliary police to patrol the area if possible.

License Board Briefs

The City License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting at City Hall:

- Granted Gilda and Gaetano Cordone a permit to store 885 gallons of a miscellaneous inflammable, above ground, and 24,000 gallons of gas underground, at a gasoline station and car wash at 837-841 Hancock St. The owners were instructed to guard against water from the car wash flowing onto Hancock St. where it could freeze in the winter and present traffic problems.

- Granted Quincy Unit #95 of the American Legion Auxiliary a permit for a poppy drive April 30, May 1, and May 2, (rain dates May 7, 8 and 9), with the stipulation there be no solicitation at intersections.

- Granted a one day all alcoholic license to DOVE to be used in conjunction with a Las Vegas Night Saturday, March 28, 7:30 p.m. to midnight, at the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Hall.

The board also allowed to be withdrawn requests from Pizza Chef, 195 Newport Ave and 33 Temple St., Sub Chef, 661 Hancock St., and Richard Babineau, 522 Sea St., for amusement machine licenses.

A similar request from Peter Kelly of Kelly's Pub & Grub, 27 Billings Rd., was cancelled.

Harold Named To Chair Local Affairs Committee

Sen. Paul D. Harold has been named chairman of the Legislature on Local Affairs Committee, most of them dealing with finances, zoning, political functions and regional projects.

The former chairman of the committee was ex-Sen. William Wall of Lawrence, the veteran legislator who was defeated in the 1980 elections.

Sen. Bulger expressed confidence in Harold's ability to chair the committee, noting that he has been a senator for two years and was a member of the Quincy City Council for three years.

About 60 per cent of the bills passed by the Legislature go through the Local Affairs Committee, most of them dealing with finances, zoning, political functions and regional projects.

The former chairman of the committee was ex-Sen. William Wall of Lawrence, the veteran legislator who was defeated in the 1980 elections.

Sen. Bulger expressed confidence in Harold's ability to chair the committee, noting that he has been a senator for two years and was a member of the Quincy City Council for three years.

Harold said he looks forward to a busy year on the Hill.

"We expect the normal workload to be increased this year," he said, "since we expect a number of requests from cities and towns seeking special exemptions from provisions of Proposition 2½."

Emilio Diotalevi of the Massachusetts Municipal Association praised the appointment of Harold, citing his knowledge of local government and his cooperation in helping to solve municipal problems.

New Courses, New Teachers For Community Education Program

Quincy Public Schools - office of Community Education announces new course offerings at the Lincoln Hancock Community School for its Spring Semester to begin the week of February 23.

According to Mary Jo Riley, coordinator of community schools, eight new courses have been added to the Spring curriculum.

"In planning the Spring semester, the Lincoln Hancock Community School Council has tried to be sensitive to the needs of the community," she said. "We are excited about our course offerings this Spring and the highly talented and qualified individuals who will teach them."

With the addition of these eight courses, the Office of Community Education welcomes eight new members to its staff. All of whom have had solid training in the course topic they will teach.

Patricia Geoghegan, a drawing instructor at the Boston campus of the University of Massachusetts, will teach two courses this spring - Beginning Drawing for adults on Wednesday evenings and Creative Play for children ages 5-7 on Wednesday afternoons. Creative Play is the only afterschool course offered in the city for children ages 5-7.

Roberta Fontaine, a resident of Quincy and a ceramic enthusiast, will teach two ceramics courses at the Lincoln Hancock. She will offer the courses on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7-9 p.m. The Lincoln Hancock Community School is the only school this semester to hold ceramics classes.

A student at the Berklee School of Music studying guitar, Nick Delonas has also studied under noted guitar columnist John Amoral of Musician Magazine. He has also performed professionally, both solo and with groups in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and in New York City. He will teach Introduction to Guitar on Thursday evenings.

Learning About Health Foods, taught by nutrition aide Mrs. Anneli Johnson, is a course designed for the individual who wishes to introduce popular health foods into their diet or just find out what the fuss is all about. Mrs. Johnson has designed the course so that each session will include a tasting party. Learning About Health Foods is offered on Thursday evenings from 7-9 p.m.

Aerobic Dancing is offered in two time slots twice a week. Teaching the morning aerobic course on Wednesdays and Fridays is Mrs. Sandra Cavallo. Mrs. Cavallo, who owns her own dance studio, taught the morning aerobics course last semester. In response to the demand for an evening aerobic dance course, a Monday and Wednesday evening course was added this semester. Mrs. Gail Schlager Marshalka, who has gained experience in the Jackie Sorenson Method of Aerobic Dance at two local health spas, will teach the evening course. Aerobic Dance, performed to music, improves one's cardiovascular capacity, metabolism, flexibility, and muscle tone.

American Red Cross and American Heart Association Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation courses will be available this semester. Jeanne Giagrande, a nursing supervisor who has taught many doctors and nurses the basics of C.P.R., will teach a Saturday morning American Heart Association course. Red Cross trained Nancy Laing will teach the Tuesday evening course. Participants will receive C.P.R. certification at the successful completion of these courses.

Quincy Treasurer Robert Foy will provide participants in his Thursday evening Money Management class with the basics for planning a successful financial future. Money Management is a five-week course.

Mail-in registration deadline for courses is Monday, Feb. 23.

For course information, call the Office of Community Education at 786-8717 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Pot Luck Supper, At Granite Place

Granite Place residents will have a pot luck supper and mini show in the large function room Thursday, Feb. 26, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

North Defeats Quincy For Tourney Berth

A year ago North Quincy's basketball team didn't make the Eastern Mass. Tournament until Suburban League officials ruled Cambridge Ringe and Latin had to forfeit its games because of recruiting charges and using an ineligible player.

North, which finished 13-7, one win short of qualifying for the tournament, was admitted because of Cambridge's forfeits and proceeded to upset Quincy in the first round.

Eddie Miller's Raiders didn't wait this year to qualify and last Friday made it to the tournament with their second win over Quincy, 49-42, clinching the city title at the same time.

North played at Brookline Tuesday and finishes up tonight (Thursday) with an 8 o'clock home game against Brockton. Although the pressure of qualifying for the tournament is off, Miller hopes for two more wins to improve its record to 16-4. Wins in the two games would give North six straight and give it momentum going into the post-season play.

"One of our goals, after we lost to Cambridge, was to win three in a row, come in to the Quincy gym and beat Quincy to qualify," a happy Miller said.

"I thought Paul Gill was the difference down the stretch. He made the right passes and made the key free throws. To me he is like having an assistant coach on the floor." Miller always called Gill his "quarterback."

Gill scored six of his 14 points in the final quarter, including two free throws which gave the Raiders a 45-42 lead with 1:36 left. Quincy, trailing, 41-34, had rallied to take a 42-41 lead.

North's top scorer, Mark Millane, was held to one point in the first half but came back to score 13 in the second half. His basket had put the team ahead, 43-42.

NORTH QUINCY'S Paul Gill tries to go around Quincy's P.J. Fay in last week's game. North won to clinch a tournament berth and the city title.

"I talked to Mark at halftime," Miller said. "He hadn't done much in the first half and I told him, 'you're the guts of this team. I think it's about time you take over and play some basketball.' That's what he did in the second half."

North, trailing, 20-13, after one period, held Quincy to two points in the second period and four in the third to lead, 23-22, at the half and 30-26 going into the final period.

Millane scored all seven Raider points in the third quarter and also contributed on the defensive boards with solid defense.

Millane and Gill had 14 points each to lead the North Quincy offense.

Earlier in the week North defeated Waltham, 53-49, with Paul Mallory, Millane and Chip Bunker scoring 10 points each.

The Raiders trailed, 32-30, after three periods but outscored the Hawks, 23-17, in the final session.

Atlantic Girls Hand Meadows First Loss

The Atlantic Junior High girls' basketball team handed Broad Meadows its first loss, 35-33, last week, to move into a top tie with BM. Each team has a 6-1 record.

Mary Holleran had 14 points and Cheryl Murphy 10 for Atlantic. Chris Donovan scored eight and Karen Cullen seven for Broad Meadows.

The Atlantic Junior varsity also won, 24-20, with Joann Linehan scoring eight points for Atlantic and Nancy McDonald six for BM.

Earlier in the week Broad

Meadows rolled over Point, 59-21, with every BM player joining in the scoring. Cheryl Crispo, Diane Hollar, Joan Agres, Karla Robertson and Mary Perkins were outstanding for the winners.

BM's jayvees won, 22-12, led by Denise Loud and Laurie Anson.

Mixed Emotions Week For Quincy's Amorosino

Last week was one of mixed emotions for Quincy basketball coach Joe Amorosino.

The Presidents gave him his 100th coaching victory, a 78-45 romp over Weymouth North, but Friday North Quincy defeated Quincy for the second time this year, 49-42, to clinch the city title and qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

The loss means that the Presidents had to defeat Weymouth South Tuesday and Brookline tonight (Thursday) in the season's final game to qualify for the tournament for the fifth time in the last six years. The game is at Brookline at 8 o'clock.

Quincy made North battle all the way for the win as it rallied from eight points behind to take a 42-41 lead with 2:01 left in the game.

Most of Quincy's offense came from guards Gary DiNardo, who led all scorers with 16 points, and P.J. Fay, who scored six of his eight points with long jumpers in the final period.

North's strong defense held Quincy's high scorers, Kurt MacDonald and Steve Priscella, to eight and seven points respectively.

"North Quincy is a better team, that's all there is to it," Amorosino admitted. "They made fewer turnovers, outthrust us and beat us to the boards. We just have to go out and win our last two games and qualify for the tournament."

With 2:50 left, Quincy trailed, 41-34, but bounced back with a basket by Fay, a basket off a steal by DiNardo, two free throws by MacDonald and Fay's go-ahead jumper.

The Presidents started fast and led, 20-13, after one period. However, they were held to just one basket by DiNardo in the second period and fell behind, 23-22, at halftime.

In the third period Quincy was held to four points and the Raiders took a 30-26 lead into the final session.

Earlier in the week Quincy had no trouble with Weymouth North to give Amorosino his 100th victory.

Priscella scored 24 points and MacDonald added 23. Both also did some outstanding rebounding.

North Girls Track Champs 2nd Year In Row

The North Quincy girls' track team is the undefeated (8-0) Suburban League champion for the second year in a row and made an outstanding showing in last Friday's Suburban League meet.

The Raiderettes, who rolled over Quincy, 69-12, last week to clinch another league title, finished first or second in eight events in the league meet. This meet is strictly for individual awards and there is no team champion.

Lou Tozzi's team, which also won its second straight state Class B relay title two weeks ago, will try to cap another super season on Feb. 27 and 28 with its second straight state championship.

In the league meet Michelle Millane remained undefeated in the shot put, winning at 39-3, with Caryn Smith third. Deirdre Donovan won the 600 in 1:29.2 with Nancy McCarthy second, and the mile relay team of Mary Kate Kennedy, Karen Lindenfelzer, Donovan and Nancy McCarthy won in 4:08.3, the fastest time in the league this year.

Sheila Barrett was second in the mile, Mary Crehan was second in the 1000, Mary Kate Kennedy was second and Lindenfelzer fourth in the 300, Linda Kennedy was second in the two-mile, Kara Crehan second in the high jump and Maria McGurl third in the hurdles.

In the Quincy meet Tozzi rested nearly all the seniors and used his underclassmen against the winless First Ladies.

"One of our goals at the beginning of the season was to have every girl on our team place," the coach said. "We did it last year and after tonight's performance, we did it again."

Robyn O'Donnell and Deirdre Donovan were the only seniors to compete for the Raiderettes.

"The younger girls have been paying their dues practicing all year long, but sitting out the meets. They got their chance in this meet and really came through for us," Tozzi said. "We got 59 of our 69 points from underclassmen. Everyone made a contribution."

Sophomore Pauline Pappas won the 600 with Donna Stein second and Mary Fitzgerald third and Sophomore Janet Zdzankowski won the 1000 with Andrea Gelsomini second and Joanne Pappas third.

Junior Kara Crehan won the high jump to finish unbeaten in dual meet competition and junior Smith won the shot with Donovan second.

O'Donnell won the mile with Cathy Moriarty second and Teresa Jones third. Corrigan won the two-mile with Regina Nagle second and Ann Gorczyca third and McGurl won the hurdles with Corrigan second.

An all-sophomore relay team of Lisa Reynolds, Sue Orrick, Laura Coughlin and Diane Flynn won.

The only Quincy winners were Darlene Marston in the 50 and Kathy Irvine in the 300, North Freshman Lisa Rodophele won second in the 300.

Friends Plan Fund Raiser For Tony Quintiliani's Family

The Friends of Tony Quintiliani will hold a social May 3 from 4 to 8 p.m. at South Shore Plaza, the proceeds of which will be used to set up a trust fund for the family of the former Quincy High all-scholastic football player.

Tony has been hospitalized for four years following a massive heart attack which left him paralyzed from the neck down and with irreversible brain damage.

Tickets for the social, which will feature dancing, entertainment, refreshments and prizes, are available now at the main office at Quincy High School, the office of Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone, Braintree School Department (Hollis School) and Braintree Town Hall.

Proceeds will be used to aid the 44-year-old Quintiliani's wife Jean and their children, Lee Ann, Larry and Gary, who are of high school age and younger.

Tony was an outstanding athlete and class president at South Junior High in Quincy, was an all-scholastic football player at Quincy High and All-New England while playing at Boston College.

A past Grand Knight of Braintree Council K. of C. and an Army veteran, Quintiliani at the time of his heart attack was principal of South Junior High in Braintree. He previously taught social studies in the Braintree schools and is a former coach of Braintree Pop Warner football.

For the past several weeks a group of his friends have been meeting at Morrisette Legion Post to plan the May 3 social. They come from all walks of life and have known Tony since his days at Quincy High and Boston College.

"Tony was struck down at the height of his career and his many friends are organizing this tribute in recognition of his outstanding contributions to the education of youngsters and his devotion to the ideals of the American way of life," said Richard Mazolla of Braintree, chairman of the committee.

SPORTS FANS!

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Brought To You By ROBERT COLMAN

Do you believe in fate?... Here's a true, tragic basketball story about fate... In 1977, David Furr tried out for the University of Evansville basketball team but he injured an ankle and was dropped from the team... Then he became the team's statistician for home games only... On Dec. 14, all members of the Evansville team were killed in a plane crash on the way to a road game... Furr wasn't on that plane, and you'd say he was lucky to have injured his ankle, and lucky again that the university didn't take him to away games as a statistician... But right after the team's plane crashed, Furr was driving his car near Evansville... The car skidded on a patch of ice, collided with a truck and Furr was killed instantly... It seemed that David Furr's time was up whether he had made that fatal air trip with the Evansville basketball team or not

Although many basketball fans feel that referees' calls decide many games, it's an odd fact that only ONCE in the last 30 years has the team that made the most foul shots in the National Basketball Association also won the NBA title... The only time it's happened was 1966-67 when the 76ers led the league in free throws and also won the championship of the NBA... You'd think it would have happened more often, but it hasn't. Big Week For Raiderettes

This was a big week for the North Quincy girls' basketball team, which was trying to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time.

Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes, who lost for the second time to Quincy last week, faced Brookline Tuesday in their final Suburban League game, hosted Fontbonne Academy yesterday (Wednesday) and winds up today (Thursday) against Sacred Heart of Weymouth at 4 o'clock at the North gym. The North girls had to win all three games to qualify for the tournament.

Last Friday the North girls lost to Quincy, 38-36, in one of the most exciting games ever played between the cross-town rivals. The win gave Quincy the city title as it also defeated North earlier.

North held a 6-5 first period lead but missed five foul shots, which kept it from adding to the lead. The Raiderettes never trailed in the first half but Linda Brennan's 25-foot desperation shot at the buzzer tied it for Quincy, 20-20.

JoAnn Runge had 10 points in the first half for North, with Jackie Thayer, Kim Alberti, Julie Watts and Lauren Apollo also excelling.

The Raiderettes opened up a five-point advantage in the third quarter as Watts had seven points, but Quincy closed it to 30-29 going into the final quarter.

Watts fouled out early in the fourth period, hurting North considerably, and the First Ladies also seemed to become more effective with their press, which North had broken easily earlier.

After being tied at 32, Anne McElaney hit a baseline jumper to put North ahead, 34-32, but it was the last lead the Raiderettes would enjoy. Quincy hit on five of 14 foul shots and took a 38-34 lead with 30 seconds left in the game. McElaney hit her second clutch jumper to close it to two with 20 seconds left. North had the ball twice in the last few seconds but couldn't tie it up.

"I was extremely proud of the way my girls played today," Bregoli said. "Except for a short period in the fourth quarter, I felt we outplayed them. But give Quincy credit, they came back and hung on. Runge and Alberti played exceptional games. We outscored them from the floor but they won it at the foul line."

Earlier in the week North kept its tournament hopes alive with a 38-31 victory over Waltham. North's defense was outstanding and held Waltham scoreless the last four minutes of the game.

North led at the half, 16-13 and held a two-point lead after three periods. Waltham ran off five straight points to take a 31-28 lead but Runge and Watts came up with big plays to give North the lead again. Runge stole the ball for a layup and Watts made a short jumper and added a foul shot. Runge scored again and Tricia Meehan hit three out of four foul shots to secure the victory.

"Our defense won this game for us," Bregoli said. "Alberti, Meehan, Michelle White and Debbie Kiley did an exceptional job on their high scorers, Karen Doucette and Apollo also did well on defense. As usual, Watts and Runge continued to make the big plays for us."

Y Girls Gym Team Wins Season Opener

The Quincy YMCA Girls Class III Gymnastics Team won its season opener at a home meet against the Malden YMCA.

Quincy won with a final score of 829 to Malden's 818.

Taking ribbons for Quincy at the event which drew a large crowd were:

On bars, Julie Killion, first place with a 7.5 score. Diane Rafferty, second place, 7.0. On vault, Julie Killion, first place, 7.4. On beam, Natalie Nigro, second place, 7.3. Patti Novak, third place, 7.0. On floor, Natalie Nigro, second place, 7.2. All around, Julie Killion, second place, 26.5.

North Swimmers Win Suburban League Titles

The North Quincy boys' swim team, which had finished with six straight victories, won the Suburban League swimming and diving championships last Saturday, edging Brockton and Brookline, 255-253. Quincy finished with 36 points.

This was the first championship ever won by a Quincy or North Quincy swim team.

Bill Walker's Raiders won three events, Scott Andrews taking the diving with 305.50 points, Bill Feeney winning the 100 backstroke in 1:27, and the 400 freestyle relay team of John Buckley, Feeney, Tim Burke and Dave Riley winning in 3:43.05.

Other North scorers were the 200-yard medley relay team of Ralph Santosuosso, Bill

Boudreau, Sean O'Brien and Andrews, third, Bill Boudreau second, Feeney fourth and Dave Dindy ninth in the 200 individual medley; Buckley second in the 50 freestyle; Jack Leone second, Mike O'Toole fifth and Paul Chamberlin sixth in the diving; Buckley sixth and O'Brien ninth in the 100 butterfly; Riley fourth and Jim Boudreau ninth in the 100 freestyle.

Also, Burke fifth, Paul Melanson 11th and Bradley Martin 12th in the 500 freestyle; Santosuosso fourth, O'Brien sixth and Dan Johnson 10th in the 100 backstroke; and Bill Boudreau third, Dindy eighth and Jim Boudreau ninth in the 100 breaststroke.

Quincy's Bill Mayo finished ninth in the 200 freestyle, Kevin Goslin was 11th in the 50 freestyle, Mike Rollins 11th in the 100 freestyle, and the Presidents finished fifth in the 400 freestyle relay.

The South Sectional championships will be held at the Lincoln Hancock School pool Friday and Saturday.

Squirt B's Top Braintree

Quincy's Squirt B team topped Braintree, 6-3, last Saturday to capture the District 3 championship and move into the state tournament March 13 in Worcester.

Sunday the team edged Weymouth, 3-2, to run its league record to 21-0-0. Terry Hack, Mark Dwyer and Bobby Kane scored the goals and Hack, Dwyer and Mike Cronin had assists. Mike McClory, Wayne Chambers, Jeff McClory, Kirk MacDonald, Eddie Ryan and Scott Cunningham all played outstanding games.

The North Quincy hockey team ended its season Tuesday with a non-league game against Concord-Carlisle after being involved in two of the best games of the season last week.

Saturday Mike McNiece scored a shorthanded goal with five minutes to give the Raiders a 2-2 tie with Weymouth South. The tie gave North a 6-8-3 overall record and a 5-8-3 Suburban League mark.

Mark Andrews earlier had tied the game at 1-1 with a goal, set up by Robbie McHugh and Tim Joy. Earlier in the week North had been edged by Brockton, 2-1, with sophomore Dean Phillips scoring for the Raiders. Goalie Danny Newcomb, who also starred against Weymouth, had a great night with 28 stops as he and Brockton goalie Dave Caldwell performed superbly.

Twice North skaters hit the post as they turned in a fine team effort. Before the Brockton game last North senior players were presented small trophies.

Newcomb, defenseman Andrews and forward McHugh were named to the Suburban League all-star team which will play Brookline next Tuesday night at 7 at the Watertown rink.

First Ladies Down Raiderettes For City Crown

The Quincy girls' basketball team won the city championship with its second win over North Quincy last Friday and the First Ladies can qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament with a win over Brookline this morning (Thursday) at 11 o'clock in its final regular season game at the Vo-Tech gym.

Ann McCarron hit a short jumper with a minute to play to give Peter Swanson's Quincy team a 38-36 decision over North Quincy. The victory improved Quincy's record to 11-5.

North Quincy, following a basket by Anne McElaney, stole the ball twice in the final 20 seconds, but couldn't score.

Quincy trailed, 6-5, after one period, but Linda Brennan's 25-foot shot at the buzzer pulled the First Ladies even at 20 at halftime.

North opened up a five-point lead in the third period but Nancy MacDonald and Brennan brought Quincy to within one, 30-29, going into the final period.

Trailing, 34-32, Quincy regained the lead as it sank five foul shots and McCarron's jumper clinched things.

MacDonald led Quincy with 12 points and Brennan added 10.

Earlier in the week Quincy defeated Weymouth North, 51-43. McCarron had 18 points and MacDonald 17 to spark the First Ladies, while Mary Kamb scored 11 and Brennan played well, handling

DESPITE the efforts of Quincy's Nancy MacDonald (41) and Mary Kamb (31), North was able to move the ball up in last week's game won by Quincy, 38-36.

Quincy Icemen Close Out With 4-1 Win

Quincy's hockey team defeated Newton North, 4-1, last Saturday to finish 5-6-5.

It marked Coach Bob Sylvia's first losing season in 16 years.

Kevin Craig scored two goals for Quincy and Ken Ryan and Paul Flynn had one each.

"We had a better season than I had expected," Sylvia said. "We were in 10 of the 16 games right down to the wire and the boys did a fine job all season. I couldn't have asked more from them."

Craig and Flynn were named to the Suburban All-Star team which will play Brookline next Tuesday at 7 o'clock at the Watertown Rink.

Braves Down Fitchburg, 6-4

The South Shore Braves hockey team continued to breeze along last Friday when it defeated Fitchburg, 6-4, at the Quincy Youth Arena. Last year the Braves had defeated Fitchburg to win the New England Junior League title.

Danny Maul, Rob O'Sullivan and Scott Harlow had two goals each to beat Fitchburg, while the goal tending of North Quincy's Bob Tierney, Ross Mottau and Art Fitzgerald was again outstanding.

The Braves, who played well both offensively and defensively, will next be home Friday night Feb. 27, at 8 at the Youth Arena.

Chamber Invites Nominations For Annual Leader Awards

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce invites nominations from its members and the general public for its annual Leader Recognition Awards.

Awards will be presented March 13 at the Chamber's annual meeting at the Lantana, Randolph.

According to the awards committee:

"Individuals proposed must have made contributions that have forwarded the South Shore Chamber's objective of building a sense of Community in the region and in providing leadership in matters of regional concerns as it affects the quality of life and economic prosperity."

Categories for the annual awards are not automatically the same each year to allow for a broad range of individual possibilities.

Recipients at the South Shore Chamber's Annual Meeting in 1980 were Polly Logan, "Stateswoman of the Year"; Joseph "J. B." Grossman, "Citizen of the Year"; and John and Gary Blake, "Business Family of the Year".

Chamber members of the Leader Recognition Awards Committee who will make the final decision include: Gerald T.

Reilly, Gerald T. Reilly & Co., Chairman; Peter F. O'Connell, O'Connell Brothers Construction; Thomas Curtis, Curtis Enterprises; Jack Conway, Jack Conway & Co.; Paul MacElhiney, Duncan MacKellar Insurance Agency; John Yunits, Yunits Engineering Co., Inc. and Robert Quinn, South Shore Bank.

Nominations should be sent to Gerald T. Reilly, Chairman, Leader Recognition Awards Committee, South Shore Chamber of Commerce, P.O. Box 488, Quincy, 02269.

Vito Barresi Vice President Massachusetts Realtors

Vito Barresi of North Quincy was recently installed as South Shore Regional Vice President of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors for 1981.

He was installed at ceremonies at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Cambridge.

Barresi is a member of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

Founded in 1924, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors is the parent organization for the 25 local boards in the state and has over 11,000 members.

VITO BARRESI

John Herbert Named To Savings Association Committee

John R. Herbert, president and chairman of the board of Quincy Co-operative Bank, has been appointed to the 1981 Public Relations and Consumer Affairs Committee of the United States League of Savings Associations.

Herbert is a Squantum resident and former editor of the Patriot Ledger and the Boston Herald.

The appointment was announced by Rollin D. Barnard, president of the league and president of Midland Federal Savings and Loan Association, Denver, Colorado.

The U.S. League is the principal trade organization for the savings and loan business and represents over 4,400 associations throughout the country.

Savings and loan associations are the second largest type of financial institution in America and specialize in attracting savings accounts for investment primarily in home mortgage loans.

Stephen Connell Named Accounting Fellow

Eastern Nazarene College Topic For Historical Society

Dr. James R. Cameron will discuss "Eastern Nazarene College in the Decade of the 1970's" at a meeting of the Quincy Historical Society Thursday, Feb. 26, at 7:30 p.m. in the Adams Academy Building.

Dr. Cameron, president of the historical society, wrote the history of Eastern Nazarene College's first 50 years. He will discuss the rejected proposal for Eastern Nazarene to leave Wollaston and other developments in the '70's as reflected at the college today.

Dr. Cameron's association with Eastern Nazarene and with Quincy began as a student and now cover 30 years as a faculty member.

He heads the college's history department.

The meeting is open to the public.

UMass-Boston Radio Coming To Quincy

There's a new radio station coming to Quincy.

It's Radio WUMB, broadcasting at 91.9 on the FM dial from U. Mass, Boston, with a transmitter that is being built on a wedge of land between Routes 3 and 128 in West Quincy.

The station is scheduled to go on the air in June.

Under the license granted recently by the FCC, the station will be picked up in 10 communities, Boston, Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Holbrook, Hull, Milton, Randolph, and Weymouth.

For the past 11 years, WUMB has broadcast only on the UMass-Boston Harbor Campus in Dorchester. It is student-operated but professionally managed in studios on campus.

General Manager Patricia Monteith said the station plans a format that will provide maximum opportunity for debate and discussion of issues important to its listeners.

"It's our intention to create ample opportunity for an open forum of opinions, particularly those of local concern," she said.

"For example, we hope to develop in-depth community reports which highlight key community problems and topics.

"We also plan to feature programs for and about the many ethnic people who live in our listening area, as well as programs about teenagers and the elderly."

Musical programming will lean toward folk music.

Limited Openings For Disney World Trip

The Quincy Recreation Department announces limited openings are still available for its seven day, six night trip to Disney World, Orlando, Fla., May 12 to 18.

The trip is for Quincy residents, their families and friends.

The package includes six nights

Elizabeth Danker Paintings At Crane Library

Mrs. Elizabeth Danker of Weymouth is exhibiting her oil and watercolor paintings this month in the Main Hall Gallery of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

The gallery is open weekdays 1 to 5 p.m.

Mrs. Danker, a graduate of Massachusetts College of Art, is an art teacher in the Weymouth and Braintree public schools.

She has also taught art in Weymouth's Part-Time Program, and has done crafts and recreational therapy with the elderly.

Mrs. Danker recently completed a painting workshop with Zoltan Szabo, mid-west watercolorist.

She has participated in several South Shore art exhibits and has paintings on exhibit at the Falmouth Art Association and the Electrified Chemical Co., Burlington.

Her paintings are also in private collections throughout New England and the mid-west. She is a member of the Norwell Art Association and the Falmouth Art Association.

28 Quincy Scout Patrol Leaders Take Part In Training Conference

Twenty-eight patrol leaders from Quincy Boy Scout Troops took part in a special training conference recently at Boston College with other scouts from the metropolitan area.

The patrol leaders, who are elected by their fellow scouts, were trained on the mechanics of their office. They were also taught some of the skills of good leadership — delegating responsibility, planning, teaching, and communicating effectively.

The Quincy Patrol Leaders are: Ray Welliver, Brian Foley, Doug Ormon, Mark Schotte, and James Leary of Troop 25 of Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

David Walsh, Steve Wallace, Tom Godfrey, Paul Crump, Greg Williams, Peter Walsh, Jerry Mullin, and Timothy Godfrey of Troop 32 of St. Mary's Church; Sean Higgins, Kris Meyer, and Matthew Healy of Troop 27 of Sacred Heart Church.

Walter Burgess, Jr., Jeffrey Cotter, and John Wencek of Troop 6 of Houghs Neck Congregational Church; William Jolly, Thomas Blyth, and Michael Lyons of Troop 19 of First Baptist Church of Wollaston; and Tim Tribucco, Jim Regan, Neil O'Connor, John Sullivan, Gene Andella, and Charles Pitts, Jr., of Troop 5 of St. Boniface's Church.

Robert Newman To Review His Book On Israel

Robert David Newman, author of "Let Them Remember," will review his book about Israel for Jeremiah Lodge B'nai B'rith at a breakfast meeting Sunday, Feb. 22 in American Legion Hall, Randolph.

Newman, president of Lion Liabels Inc. in Quincy, is a former newspaper and magazine editor. He has given Mideast analyses to many organizations, and was guest of Prime Minister Begin in Israel recently.

Houghs Neck Center Library Being Established

The Houghs Neck Community Center wishes to thank area residents who donated books for the center's library.

Though the library is not completely set up as yet, residents are welcome to drop in and browse through the books that have been placed on shelves.

The library is expected to be in full operation when renovations are completed to the Manet Community Health Center.

Those renovations are expected to continue at least through March.

Rummage Sale

At St. Ann's Youth Center

A rummage sale will be held at St. Ann's Youth Center, St. Ann's Rd., opposite Veterans's Memorial Stadium, Thursday, Feb. 26.

Hours of the sale will be 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wearable clothing for the whole family will be offered.

The sale is sponsored by the North Quincy High School Swimming Boosters Club. Proceeds will benefit the boys' and girls' swim teams.

Las Vegas Night At Abp. Williams

Archbishop Williams High School Men's Association is sponsoring a Las Vegas Night Saturday, Feb. 21, from 7 p.m. to midnight in the school gymnasium. Refreshments will be available.

Central Senate Presents Coffee Hour, Concert

Central Junior High School's senate concluded its mid-winter community service project by presenting a coffee hour and concert for residents of Tobin Towers.

The event, held in the function room at the top of Tobin Towers, began with mayor Mark Denneen greeting residents seated at tables set with a Valentine motif.

Coffee, tea and pastries made by students in the school's home economics class were served by representatives Renee Picard, Leslie Hayes, Fred Kiley, Victor diGravio, and Mark Denneen.

Following a concert by a chorus, music teacher Mrs. Marion Clancy directed a sing-along.

The students were cordially received by the group and its hostess, Helen Mahon.

The senate, spearheaded by Denneen, hopes to continue a service oriented program.

Past efforts have included a collection of 500 toys, canned foods and money for distribution at Christmas by the Koch Club.

Denneen addressed each of the school's grades with a mid term talk earlier this month. He announced goals that have been achieved and plans for the future.

Advisors to the senate are principal Vincent Moscardelli and head counselor Mary Catherine Iannoni.

Materials For Learning Disabled Child At Crane Library

A collection of materials for the learning disabled child is on display in the Central Children's Room of the Thomas Crane Public Library as part of a month long focus on special needs.

Mrs. Kenneth M. Kelly, Jr., past president of the Hingham chapter of the National Association of Children with Learning Disabilities, selected and presented the books and filmstrip on behalf of the organization's membership.

The books are for children between the ages of 10 and 15 who have difficulty in reading and comprehension.

An orange sticker has been placed on the back of each book indicating it is a high interest/low reading level book.

The sticker also provides for ease in selection by children and parents.

The filmstrip, "Everyone Has a Song" stars Henry Winkler, who plays the Fonzie in "Happy Days." The upbeat presentation stresses the abilities of special needs children.

All Quincy residents can avail themselves of the materials. Non residents can borrow materials through the Eastern Region inter-library loan program.

Camp Fire Members Cheer Veterans

Quincy members of Camp Fire, recently participated in the annual "No Greater Love" project, a salute to hospitalized veterans on Valentine's Day.

The project is a cooperative effort of the Veteran's Administration and Camp Fire.

Local members made valentines, tray favors, posters, place-mats, bookmarks, wall hangings and mobiles to help brighten the day of 1000 patients at the Brockton Veterans Hospital.

The effort also conveyed to veterans that they are remembered and cared about.

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 19.

AQUARIUS - January 21-February 19

When it comes to advice, you're better at giving than receiving now. Stubborn streak is surfacing and there could be a meeting of the minds where you work.

PISCES - February 20-March 20

Don't dismiss second thoughts about travel plans, especially if they concern your travel companion. Shopping for novelties favored through the week. Recent idea receives go ahead.

ARIES - March 21-April 20

It's easy to go to extreme - to exaggerate, to overestimate, to be rather generous. A recent survey or study could prove startling. Former rival becomes an ally.

TAURUS - April 21-May 22

You're so busy catching up, there's little time for social advancement. May receive a boost in status on the job, thanks to a grateful client. Beware of practical jokers on weekend.

GEMINI - May 23-June 21

It's a tricky time, but this turns into your Valentine's Week. Personal values start to change as you see old situations and relationships from a fresher point of view.

CANCER - June 22-July 22

Background happenings are working in your favor and you have a preview of the good things to come. Financial dispute continues, it may be time to call in an arbitrator.

LEO - July 23-August 22

Good week for talking out problem with favorite confidant. Expect to prosper if your work involves the written word. Healthwise, "everything in moderation" is your best policy.

VIRGO - August 23-September 22

A stalled project is granted the go-ahead, a rival becomes a helper and a cool acquaintance warms up. Unfortunately, some or all of the above could work in reverse!

LIBRA - September 23-October 22

Week's twin themes are romance and finance, you're generally blessed in both areas. Two cautions: don't take anything for granted and be gentle with mechanical gadgetry.

SCORPIO - October 23-November 21

Conveniences prove less than convenient and memory plays unfair games. Otherwise, a positive week with romance in fine form and unhappy financial bulletins coming to an end.

SAGITTARIUS - November 22-December 22

Sour colleague begins to sweeten but don't be too trusting. In fact, don't confide in anyone less than a best friend. Week finds you sharing the limelight.

CAPRICORN - December 23-January 20

Your role is a supporting one - boosting the confidence of a friend, coming to the rescue of an employee or employer. Small financial risk can pay off by Wednesday.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

Friendly, charming and totally unpredictable. Your vivid imagination is an asset and a liability. In personal relationships, a major step forward is possible by May. Creative expression is accentuated over the next 12 months.

BORN THIS WEEK

February 19th, director John Frankenheimer, 20th, actor Sidney Poitier, 21st, singer Nina Simone, 22nd, Sen. Edward Kennedy, 23rd, diarist Samuel Pepys, 24th, actor Abe Vigoda, 25th, singer George Harrison.

QEA Urges Cuts In 'Non-Educational' Areas

Quincy Education Association President JoAnn O'Malley says her union supports cuts of "non-educational items" in the school budget.

High School sports, for example, should be taken out of the budget and placed on a user-fee basis or private sponsorship, Mrs. O'Malley said.

The text of Mrs. O'Malley's statement:

"The Quincy Education Association is deeply concerned with the recommendations made by the Superintendent to the School Committee on February 11.

"The association has strongly urged the School Committee to consider cuts in non-educational items in the budget prior to the cutting of educational programs.

"One of the recommended cuts is the gifted program at the elementary level. To my mind, priorities are being misplaced. How can one keep a high school sports program and cut a program for the gifted? The future of our society lies with the gifted. They will be the leaders.

"The sports program can still be maintained if one has a user fee or possibly if the business community would sponsor a team.

"Another issue which disturbs us greatly is that within the recommendations one finds that close to 450 people will be laid off in the school department. The School Committee is being required to cut their budget by $8.5 million. The city will be cutting $9 to $10 million if the $17 million deficit is accurate. According to figures, there is a possible city layoff of 150 people. Something is wrong someplace.

"When the School Committee voted to close five schools, there were over 500 people in the audience primarily parents, teachers and concerned city councilors. When the Superintendent made his recommended cuts, there were only about 100 people there. No one raised an eyebrow when it was recommended to lay off upwards of 225 classroom teachers.

"If one adds up all of the positions recommended to go, you will find it to be roughly one third of our association will be laid off. This, above all else, will be devastating to the educational process in this city. Teachers teach, but buildings do not.

"Every effort should be made to influence those people who can have an impact on funding. Arguing amongst ourselves as to who is at fault is not going to resolve the issue. The legislators are the only ones who can help our city out and they should be directed to do so.

"Our city has always been a leader especially in the educational area. Will we make it in Massachusetts or will we lose it? The choice is yours."

USS Converse Crewmen Sought For Reunion

Buka, Rabaul, Kavieng and Bougainville are only tiny spots on the map of the vast Pacific to the current generation of Americans.

But to Paul Hurley, Quincy insurance man, they are all too familiar, the scenes of bloody battles and the turning points in the victory over Japan in World War II.

They are places that Hurley and some 100 of his former shipmates on the destroyer USS Converse will re-visit in memory at a reunion scheduled for this summer somewhere on the East Coast.

"We plan to get together as a group for the first time since World War II ended," said Hurley, the decorated former gunnery and executive officer of the Converse, a unit of Destroyer Squadron 23, better known as "The Little Beavers."

He and a committee are still searching for some of their old buddies.

The ship was commissioned on Nov. 20, 1942, in Boston Harbor, Hurley recalled.

"We had a lot of Boston-area kids aboard and we're still trying to locate them," he says. "There was a John Quinn and a Bill McDonald aboard from around here."

Former Converse sailors are requested to get in touch with Hurley at 1245 Hancock St., Quincy, or by calling 773-3345.

Capt. Arleigh Burke, later Chief of Naval Operations, was the squadron commander in those days.

"We've invited Admiral Burke to attend," Hurley said. "And he has advised us that he'll be with us, if his health permits. He's 79. We're hoping, of course."

A book "Destroyer Squadron 23", which was written about the group, which received the Presidential Unit Citation for "extraordinary heroism in action against enemy Japanese forces during the Solomon Island campaign, from Nov. 1, 1943 to Feb. 23, 1944."

The book relates how surprised Hurley was when, as a young lieutenant, Capt. Dewitt C. Hamburger appointed him as the gunnery officer.

"I'm afraid you're putting too much responsibility on us reserves," Hurley told the skipper. "If I make a mistake in a job like that it'll stay with me for the rest of my life."

If Hurley was surprised then, he was shocked a few days later when the captain informed him "from now on, you're the first lieutenant, too."

Gunnery officers and first lieutenants held conflicting jobs because one is concerned with gunnery drills and the other exclusively with chipping paint and general maintenance.

By naming Hurley to both jobs,

Capt. Hamburger reasoned that he wouldn't have to be distracted by two feuding officers vying for the time and energy of the crew members.

Sam Pompei, a retired sports-writer for the Springfield Daily News and now chairman of the reunion, recalls:

"Paul resembled the one-armed paper hanger, cleaning up the ship and training his gunners. But he did both jobs well. Paul wasn't only intelligent but he had the right temperament and was respected by everyone aboard."

The Converse's guns, under Hurley's direction, achieved the incredible salvo of three seconds. A five or six second interval between salvos was considered exceptional among Pacific destroyers, but Hurley had managed to cut that almost in half.

He was awarded the Bronze Star Medal for his efficiency and valor while leading the ship's guns to one victory after another.

At Empress Augusta Bay, the destroyers, in company with four light cruisers, scored a smashing victory, saving the lives of thousands of U.S. Marines on Bougainville.

On another occasion, Hurley directed the Converse guns as Destroyer Squadron 23 wiped out, a force of five heavier warships near Rabaul, sinking four enemy ships and damaging one other.

Sons Of Italy Conclude Successful Year

Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy concluded another successful year in 1980, highlighted by their support of Italian earthquake relief.

Lodge members collected over 70,000 pounds of clothing and almost $25,000 in money to aid the south and east of Naples hit by November's earthquakes.

Lodge membership rose to over 600 during the year.

The Sons also continued their practice of supporting charities and other causes. The lodge annually supports the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon and the March of Dimes, grants scholarships and assists numerous other charities.

A blood bank, annual party for retarded citizens, sports programs, bowling league, family picnic and monthly socials are among the other projects sponsored annually by the Lodge.

Charitable contributions are raised from the lodge's monthly bingo and Las Vegas nights, manned by Sons of Italy members.

to suffer twice in this situation," he said. "Being victimized once was enough."

Defendant Runs From Courtroom, Recaptured

A Randolph defendant in Quincy District Court enjoyed an unscheduled 20 minutes of freedom Tuesday afternoon after bolting from the courtroom.

Ralph P. Richards, 23, of Randolph, was recaptured about 20 minutes later by court officers on Hancock St., about two blocks away. He was held on bail of $1,500 surety or $200 cash for a Feb. 25 hearing.

Court officials said Richards was in the second-floor Second Session courtroom of Judge Lawrence Shubow when he made his break for freedom. Richards had defaulted (failed to appear) for several previous hearings on charges of operating under the influence of a controlled substance. He had pleaded innocent Tuesday.

A complaint was first filed March 9, 1979, by Randolph police.

"The judge was talking to him about bail," said Lt. Francis Mullin of Quincy Police, "and he just bolted and ran out." Courthouse guards gave chase and found Richards about 20 minutes later.

Shui Seto Wins Top Prize In Bryan Post Contest

Shui K. Seto, a student at North Quincy High School who wants to be a doctor, is the citywide winner of a medal and a $500 scholarship in the Bryan VFW Post's Voice of Democracy Program contest.

Contestants from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools submitted scripts on the theme "My Commitment to My Country" and the winners were selected by faculties of the schools.

Seto also won the first prize at North Quincy, a $100 savings bond; second prize, Timothy Allen, a $75 bond; third prize, Steve Cahill, a $50 bond.

Jeffrey F. Moy was the winner of the $100 savings bond first prize at Quincy High School; second prize, Cheryl Magee, a $75 bond; third prize, Deborah Barkhouse, a $50 bond.

There were 65 contestants at Quincy and 225 at North.

The two first prize winners made radio tapes of their scripts at WJDA.

Morrissey Protests Added Gas Charges

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey has criticized sharply a recent decision by the gas companies to pass on the cost of the gas crisis to their customers through fuel adjustment charges.

"In many cases, the consumer is paying more in fuel adjustment charges than the monthly charge total," said Morrissey in a letter to Chairman Doris Pote of the Public Utilities Department.

"It is an outrage to think that gas customers should have to pay for the administrative mistake of the gas company."

Morrissey suggested that the gas companies either foot the bill themselves or hold off on declaring a stock dividend for their shareholders.

"The consumer should not have

What A Difference

BEACH WEATHER? — It was a little too cool for a dip in the ocean, but the Palmer family of Milton was still able to have a picnic at Wollaston Beach last Thursday. Enjoying the spring-like weather are Mrs. Linda Palmer, David, 4; Allyson, 8 and Suzanne, also 4.

Can Live With Amendments But: Tobin Vows Veto If Council Weakens Water-Sewer Proposal

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin said Tuesday that he would veto his own proposal for a Water and Sewer Commission if the City Council "waters it down to the point where it does not do what we want it to do."

But he indicated that he could live with the amendments added to his legislative package Saturday by the Council's Finance Committee — "if that's what it takes."

The object of the Water and Sewer Commission, according to Tobin, is to remove those two divisions from under the Proposition 2½ tax limits and save approximately 200 city jobs.

Midway through Finance Committee hearings on the proposal, it appears that only four councillors are prepared to give it their whole-hearted support. Five are needed for passage.

The opposition on the Council has been critical of the fact that it would play no role in supervising commission finances and that new positions created for the commission would be open to the mayor's patronage.

Most of the amendments that were approved Saturday were brought before the committee by Councillor Francis X. McCauley, one of the leaders of the critical faction on the Council.

The amendments would:

- Change the proposed term of the commissioners from five staggered years to two years coterminous with that of the mayor.

• Strike out that section that would entitle the commissioners to compensation.

• Limit the terms of the contracts that could be offered to commission executives to three years instead of the seven proposed by the mayor.

• Give the mayor and the City Council some control over the appointments and hiring practices of the commission's executive director.

- Give the City Council some

March 2 Deadline For Tax Exemptions

The Board of Assessors announces that Monday, March 2 is the deadline for filing applications for statutory exemptions to the 1980-81 real estate tax.

Applications must be received in the assessors' office at City Hall by 4:30 p.m. Monday. Exemptions are available for widows, the elderly, blind persons and disabled veterans.

The deadline, usually Dec. 15, has been extended this year because of the late tax bills.

Probe 'Drag-Racing' Report

MDC Police Seek 2nd Car In Fatal Crash

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Metropolitan District Police are seeking a still-identified second car that may have been involved in a drag race last Wednesday that killed two Quincy girls.

While MDC engineers were scheduled to meet yesterday (Wednesday) to discuss possible changes in the treacherous section of Quincy Shore Drive, police said Tuesday that speed, not road conditions, caused the accident.

Officer Carl Shuster of the MDC Police Old Colony Division said evidence at the site indicated that the car carrying Bonnie MacMurdo, 15, and Tracy Duclos, 14, may have been travelling over 70 miles an hour.

The driver of the car, Bruce Jordan, 19, of 15 Blake St., Wollaston, was charged with two counts of vehicular homicide and driving to endanger.

He pleaded innocent at Quincy District Court Thursday and released on his own recognizance. The case was continued to April 1.

Police are investigating reports that the car driven by Jordan may have been "drag-racing" with another car, which was not involved in the accident, Shuster said.

MDC engineers were scheduled to hold an "in-house," closed meeting Wednesday to ponder what, if any, improvements could be made on the quarter-mile stretch of Quincy Shore Dr. That area has been the site of five accident deaths in the last 15 years.

"It's always been the position of the MDC that accidents along that road (between Furnace Brook Parkway and Sea St.) are due to driver behavior rather than the road

License Board Continues Lodging House Hearing

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board continued to March 3, a hearing on an unlicensed lodging house at 533-535 Hancock St., the scene of a Feb. 13, two alarm fire that caused $12,000 damage to the building but no serious injuries.

Fire Chief Edward Barry explained to the board there were allegedly two other violations involved in addition to the absence of a license.

Barry said there were no smoke detectors in the building, and a fuel oil truck with 300 gallons of gasoline was parked within 50 feet of the establishment.

Lawrence Mahoney of Quincy, owner of the building, said he didn't realize until now that he was in violation of the law. Mahoney, the father of eight, said the building was used as a lodging house when he bought it in 1969. He also said he hadn't installed smoke detectors in the building because he was afraid they would be triggered every night from cigarette smoke from his five lodgers.

Police Chief Francis Finn said Mahoney could have been ignorant of the law though it would be unusual. He added, however, that a crime had been committed.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald commented there could have been loss of life as a result.

Barry said smoke detectors must be installed immediately especially since there is still one tenant in the building. Finn added the oil truck, as well as a second empty truck, must be removed from the premises within a week.

Mahoney's lawyer, Patrick Sweeney, told the board the building would be renovated possibly as an apartment house but not as a lodging house.

Donnelly Leads Fight Against Gas Decontrol

Cong. Brian J. Donnelly is drafting a resolution to head off a White House move to remove price controls from natural gas and he is lining up fellow congressmen to co-sponsor it.

"The price of gas will double or triple if Reagan gets his way on this one," he said.

The Reagan Administration plans to ask Congress to lift the controls in September. Under current law, the controls will remain until 1985 on gas used for residential heating and cooking.

"Congress should not permit abrupt decontrol unless and until the rest of the President's economic proposals show signs of working to cut the inflation rate," said Donnelly.

"It would be reckless in the extreme to raise the price of natural gas by $50 to $80 billion annually without assurance that the inflationary impact could be cushioned by decreases in other sectors of the economy."

Eranio To Be Named To Nut I. Commission

Sewer Supt. Russell Eranio will be designated as Quincy's representative on a citizens' advisory commission to work with the MDC's Nut Island Facility Planning Project, Mayor Tobin said Tuesday.

The commission will hold its first meeting Wednesday, March 11, at the Trailside Museum in Milton.

Joel Barry Chase, director of the MDC's Sewer Division, said the project, which is expected to take nine months, "basically will determine the future of the Nut Island facility."

Historic District Meeting March 17

The Quincy Historic District Commission will meet on Tuesday, March 17 at 7:30 p.m. in the third-floor planning department conference room.

The commission will discuss new signs for The High Rise, 6 Maple St., and Clifford's Flower Shop, 1229 Hancock St.

'It's Going To Take Time'

Improvements Shown By New Hospital Regime

By TOM HENSHAW

"It takes time," said Michael Kitchen, who has been director of City Hospital for about two months. "It took several years for it to be knocked down like it is and it's going to take time to build it back up."

Already there have been some visible improvements in the 90-year-old hospital since Hospital Corp. of America took over its management and placed Kitchen at the helm.

"We're renovating the emergency room right now," said Kitchen. "We're trying to get it a little brighter and a little more efficient. It should be completed within 30 to 60 days."

"Then we're going to relocate the outpatient department as soon as the State Health Department approves the plans. Our maintenance department is doing all the work."

Cosmetic changes like that are important in upgrading the image of the hospital, which has suffered much in recent years in the eyes of both the patient and the physicians.

Renovations of the emergency room are designed to make it attractive to patients.

"Most people who see the hospital see the emergency room," said Kitchen. "If that's a pleasant area and if they are well cared for there, they figure the rest of the hospital must be good too."

"We have found that we have a competent nursing staff, which is what the patients are exposed to directly. Now it's a matter of sprucing the place up a bit."

Appeals to the physicians, who have an option on where to send their patients, must necessarily go deeper than a new coat of paint.

"Doctors have been saying they can't bring their patients to Quincy City Hospital because we don't have the equipment they need," said the director.

"We are in the process of placing orders under the $2 million bond issue the City Council approved before we got here. The equipment will start arriving in the next 30 days.

"The patients won't see much of the equipment, especially the laboratory equipment but the doctors will see the difference because the results of their tests will come in quicker."

"Right now we send an awful lot of lab work out to commercial laboratories because we don't have the equipment. When we get it we will be able to do 95 per cent of the work."

Kitchen figures that because of the contracts Hospital Corp. of America has with suppliers the hospital will be able to save some $300,000 off the list of equipment compiled by the previous hospital administration.

"Contracts still have to be bid," he said, "but the XYZ Co., which normally might bid $1,000, is going to bid $700 because that's the contract price it has with HCA."

"We think we're going to be able to get $2 million worth of equipment for about $1.7 million, which means there will be another $300,000 to buy additional equipment."

"In about a year we'll have the vast majority of the equipment we need. We could always use more, of course, but in the areas where we are in desperate need we'll be in good shape."

Kitchen and his helpers from the HCA home office in Nashville, Tenn., have also been evaluating the operations of the various hospital departments.

Only the business office has been completed and some changes are in the process of being instituted.

"We have been concentrating on pre-admission practices," said Kitchen, "getting information from elective patients before they come to the hospital so they don't have to sit in the admitting office and fill out papers."

Kitchen said he is hopeful that the hospital will finish the current fiscal year without a deficit.

"The budget that was passed by the City Council and the rates approved by the state were based on about 108,000 patient days this year," he said. "It looks like we're only going to have about 95,000."

"That means anticipated collections are going to be less than expected but anticipated expenses are going to be less, too, so we hope we won't have a deficit."

"But we don't know yet because we're on a cash basis of accounting and it's hard to get a true handle on expenses. Once we get a revolving account for the hospital we'll know better."

Using New Guidelines

License Board Grants Amusement Machine Licenses

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

Amusement machine licenses were issued to two establishments Tuesday according to guidelines approved last week by the City License Board.

Issued licenses were:

- Sportlight Tavern, 1574 Hancock St., one pinball machine.
- Beau's Place, 375 Washington St., one pool table.

Both are to submit to the board floor plans for the machines, and to notify the police of any change in the type of machines.

The request of a third applicant, Reggie's Inc., 7-9 Copeland St., for a pool table license, was continued to March 3, at the request of the applicant.

Supplier of the machines to all three establishments is South Shore Vending, Inc., one of the companies that will be receiving a set of licensing guidelines this week for future reference.

Among the stipulations in the guidelines is the requirement for an advertised public hearing if five or more machines are requested.

The board approved the guidelines 4 to 1 with Police Chief Francis Finn opposing a requirement for probation checks on all applicants and officers and managers of the corporation.

State Energy Grants Available

A new round of matching grants for energy conservation building improvements will be available soon from the State Office of Energy Resources to public and non-profit schools and hospitals.

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey said limited funding may also be available for energy analyses of local government buildings and public care institutions.

Applications may be obtained by calling the Office of Energy Resources at 727-1990. Deadline of applications is March 16.

QUINCY PUBLIC SCHOOLS

ANNUAL PRE-SCHOOL

Registration and Screening

Consistent with the special education act (Chapter 766), the Quincy Public Schools will conduct an Orientation Workshop for parents of three and four year old children in order to identify those with special needs. Where necessary, children will participate in a follow-up Screening Program which will include a parent interview and health, vision, hearing, motor and language screening.

Parents who wish to participate in the Orientation Workshop are encouraged to call

Stay Alive!

BEDROOM DOORS VS. FIRE

A closed door between you and a raging fire could provide enough protection to save your life. It takes fire 10 to 15 minutes to burn through a wooden door. Many of the 10,000 people who die each year in home fires are not actually burned to death, but are overcome by superheated air, smoke and toxic gases. So don't automatically fling open your bedroom door. This may be a fatal impulse.

If you are awakened by fire and the bedroom door is closed, test it before opening. If the panels are hot or smoke is leaking in around the edges - keep it closed and use the window exit. If the door is open and more than a little smoke is present in the room, close it immediately. Get down low - there's usually a layer of relatively smoke-free air about 18 inches off the floor.

Always sleep with the bedroom or hall door closed. It can keep fire out long enough to allow escape or rescue through the window.

Edna Gilmore Honored As Red Cross 'Outstanding Neighbor'

Mrs. Edna M. Gilmore of Quincy, a Red Cross volunteer for 52 years, was honored by the American Red Cross' South Shore chapter as "Outstanding Neighbor Of The Year" at its annual ball Friday.

The ball, which also commemorated the centennial of the American Red Cross, was attended by 425 persons at the Lantana in Randolph.

Mrs. Gilmore, presented the Outstanding Neighbor award by Chapter Chairman John M. Corcoran, was accompanied by her husband, Dr. Robert O. Gilmore, her daughters Mrs. Edna Simonds and Mrs. Mildred IX, their husbands and five of her eight grandchildren.

Corcoran said the board of directors had no problem in making Mrs. Gilmore the unanimous winner of the third annual award. Her leadership in numerous civic and charitable causes, her 52 years of volunteer service with the Red Cross and her 44 years as a member of the board of directors made her an obvious "outstanding neighbor," Corcoran said.

Mayor Arthur Tobin, honorary ball chairman, presented Mrs. Gilmore with a citation for her "tireless work towards making Quincy the quality place it is for people to live."

Daniel C. Pritchard, executive director of the Quincy chapter Red

Cross, read congratulatory telegrams from Sen. Paul Harold and Gilmore family members.

Pritchard also praised Mrs. Gilmore as "a woman of involvement, working with her husband throughout the years, raising her outstanding family and taking the time to serve her community as a volunteer."

In her acceptance speech, Mrs. Gilmore urged all those present to involve themselves in the work of organizations like the Red Cross and thanked them for their support of the organization in the past.

Commenting on the personal satisfaction she gets from volunteer work, she told of the time she was asked by the Red Cross to transport a woman paralyzed from the waist down to a Boston hospital.

MAYOR'S CITATION is presented to Mrs. Gilmore by Mayor Arthur Tobin.

The woman never bemoaned the fact that she could not walk, Mrs. Gilmore said, but simply stated that she had her mental facilities and good health and that God has blessed her.

"When I get tired and think about quitting, I think of this little lady paralyzed who only counted her blessings," said Mrs. Gilmore.

She was also presented flowers by Mrs. Helen Shea, ball chairwoman.

Mrs. Shea, in turn, was presented a citation by Mayor Tobin for her enthusiastic leadership in organizing the ball.

Pritchard announced that the ball was expected to reach its fundraising goal of $10,000. Future fundraisers include Red Cross Night at the Boston Pops, in May and Red Cross Night at the Music Circus this summer.

Viking Association Elects New Directors

The South Shore Viking Association elected a new board of directors to one and two year terms at its recent annual meeting.

New board members are Karl Bilewski, Robert Carlson, Hans Christensen, Arthur Clarke, William Collins, Ralph Erlanson, Robert Foster, Howard Houmiller, Donald Kain, Judith

LeBlanc and Edward Lindstrom. Alternate directors who will serve one year terms are Robert Leister, LaVerne Ragnow and Harold Siltanen.

Re-elected to offices at a subsequent election were Edward Lindstrom, president; Charles Collins, secretary; and Dorothea Lundin, treasurer. Karl Bilewski is the new vice president.

The South Shore Viking Association is a Scandinavian fraternal organization dedicated to establishing and maintaining the social climate and well-being of its members. It also furthers the preservation of Scandinavian customs and traditions.

Koch Club Christmas Charity Fund Reaches $6,385 Mark

The Koch Club Permanent Christmas Charity Fund established in 1978 on the 30th Anniversary of the organization with $5,000. from the events commemorating the three decades of service, has increased to a total of $6,385.23 as of Jan. 30. Announcement was made by Richard J. Koch, executive director and founder of the Koch Club.

The largest series of donations since the 1978 trust was founded was a total of $670 in memorial gifts in memory of the late Paul Barrett, killed in an automobile accident in December of 1980.

The Barrett family designated the Koch Club Permanent Christmas Charity Fund as the choice of gifts in his memory.

Smaller gifts and the interest on the principal accounted for the remaining additional amounts over and above the original grant.

The Koch Club has been engaged in Christmas charitable endeavors for the past 25 years and its active Christmas Charity Committee will continue to provide food and gift assistance to the needy each Holiday Season.

On the 50th anniversary of the Koch Club in 1998, the Permanent Christmas Charity Fund will continue the tradition of the Koch Club with the annual interest accrued from the trust used to assist needy families each Christmas Season.

Those designated to execute the trust and supervise the program annually when the trust is activated in 1998 will be the City Treasurer, Mayor and President of the City Council and their successors.

Persons wishing to contribute to the project can donate by making checks payable to the Koch Club Permanent Christmas Charity Fund, c/o City Treasurer Robert E. Foy, City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Inflation Hits City License, Birth Certificate Fees

Like everything else, the cost of doing business in the City Clerk's office is going up, effective July 1.

The City Council's Ordinance Committee took under advisement last week an order that would raise the price of such things as birth certificates, junk license and other legal documents.

City Clerk John Gillis said the schedule of fees is being adopted by all other communities in the state at the start of the next fiscal year.

Some samples of the new schedule include:

- Correcting errors in a birth record, from $2 to $5.
- Furnishing a certificate of birth, from $2 to $3.
- Furnishing abstract copy of birth record, from $1 to $2.
- Filing certificate of a person.
- Entering delayed record, from $2 to $5.
- Filing certificate of person doing business under a title other than his real name, from $1 to $10.
- Correcting errors in a death record, from $2 to $5.
- Furnishing a death certificate, from $2 to $3.
- Furnishing an abstract copy of death record, from $1 to $2.
- Issuing and recording a junk dealers license, from $50 to $100.

- Issuing and recording a pawnbrokers license, from $50 to $100.

• Issuing and recording licenses for pool halls and bowling alleys, from $25 for the first table or alley and $10 for each additional to $30 for the first and $15 for each additional.

• Issuing marriage certificates, from $2 to $3.

• Furnishing a copy of a marriage record, from $1 to $3.

• Recording power of attorney, from $1 to $5.

• Copying any manuscript or record of a birth, marriage or death, from $2 to $3.

• Receiving and filing an inventory of items to be included in a "closing out" sale, from $1 to $2 per page.

• Recording deed of plot in a public cemetery, from $1 to $5.

• Recording any other documents, $5 for first page, $2 each additional page.

• Voter's card, $2.

The order would also establish an annual taxi license fee of $20 a vehicle; a fee of $10 for signs that hang over a public way; and a charge of $25 for an auctioneers license.

Ruth Gordon To Be QJC Commencement Speaker

Ruth Gordon, Quincy's Ambassador of Goodwill, is coming home in June.

That in itself, of course, is nothing unusual. She has come home many times since 1915 when as a teenager she rode a train out of her native Wollaston headed for New York.

Pinned to her corset for safekeeping was $50 spending money. And in her heart, a dream. She has come home for most of the 12 reunions of her Quincy High School class of 1914 and has made other visits.

This June, she will be coming home for a special reason: she will be the keynote speaker at the Quincy Junior College commencement, Sunday, June 7.

She has accepted an invitation from Dr. Edward Pierce, president of the college. The school will present a scholarship in her honor.

"We are delighted," says Dr. Pierce. "She is such a wonderful and talented person. And she is a product of our very own school system."

Her appearance as commencement speaker is appropriate in another way.

Miss Gordon, who will be 85 this October is a champion of the elderly. She helped lead the fight against forced retirement.

At age 80, she testified in Washington before the House Select Committee on Aging and told the members what she thought about forced retirement.

"It's like slavery. First you're allowed to work. Then you're not. As the great baseball player Satchel Paige once said, 'How old would you be if you didn't know how old you were?'"

Quincy Junior College graduates are all ages and have included grandparents in their 70's. No rocking chairs for them.

And not for Miss Gordon, either.

She's still too busy to give retirement a thought. She's making movies, television appearances and writing.

She's still a teenager at heart, bubbling over with the same energy, spirit and enthusiasm as she had when she was that little girl in Wollaston with the big dream in her heart.

THE QUINCY SONS of Italy have raised and sent $24,000 to Italy for medical supplies for victims of the Italian earthquake.

Quincy Lodge Venerable Mimmo D'Arcangelo said the $24,000 is part of approximately $150,000 raised by the Massachusetts Grand Lodge. The Quincy Lodge's relief fund account is still open and donations are still being accepted, says D'Arcangelo.

Donations may be sent to: Quincy Lodge Sons of Italy, Earthquake Relief Fund, 120 Quarry St., Quincy.

CIGARETTE AND CIGAR smoke annoy you? Rep. Robert Cerasoli is trying to help you. He recently appeared before the Joint Legislative Committee on Health Care in support of his bill that would regulate smoking in public.

"There is continual public pressure for elected officials to deal with the issue of smoking in public places," he said. "My bill is an attempt to modify the existing laws to better protect the general public."

Cerasoli's bill would change present regulations on where smoking should be prohibited and what fines should be levied for any business not upholding the law in designated non-smoking areas.

"For the past several years," he said, "I have been a strong supporter of regulating smoking in public areas."

PARKING VIOLATORS, you might say, are really seeing red in Quincy this week. Meter Maids are handing out bright red rather than the traditional white tickets.

Quincy Quiz

Just one winner in this week's Quincy Quiz.

Robert Leo Eng of 188 Taffrail Rd., Germantown, was the only person to correctly answer all five questions, earning a Quincy Sun T-shirt.

Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers.

One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

Note: some have taken issue with last week's quiz answer citing 1826 as the year in which the nation's first railroad began operation in Quincy.

We quote William Churchill Edwards' "Historic Quincy," published in 1957:

"The Granite Railway was completed on October 7, 1826. On that memorable day, a quantity of stone weighing 16 tons, taken from the ledge belonging to the Bunker Hill Monument Association, and loaded on three wagons, was moved with ease by a single horse to the wharf on the Neponset River."

A contract for transportation of the granite to the site of the Bunker Hill Monument was made on March 27, 1827, according to Edwards.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. What is the name of the city Health Commissioner?
2. In what congressional district is Quincy located?
3. What are the names of the five schools closed by the School Committee Jan. 28.
4. What is the name of the firm recently chosen to provide cable TV service in Quincy?

5. In what section of the city is Sailor's Home Pond located?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz:

1. John Quincy Adams became the sixth president in 1825.
2. The Quincy School is located in North Quincy.
3. The members of the Quincy Housing Authority are Rev. William McCarthy, Edward Graham, Carmine D'Olimpio, Alphonzo Papile and Lolita Harris.
4. The offices of the Park and Recreation Department are located at 100 Southern Artery, the former Nike Site.
5. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon is Quincy's superintendent of schools.

Congratulations Sun And Anti-Drug Crusaders

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Having read many of your articles on drugs and it's related problems, I would like to congratulate The Quincy Sun for the great coverage on this subject.

I would also like to contribute and dedicate the following to the crusaders of this city and especially John ("Butch") Mahoney, Lt. Walter Lynch and officer Don Pearson.

My Poem and Prayer

Many people that are smoking pot
Are not certain whether it's safe or not Regardless what they think or say
I'm sure the answer has got to be nay
Jolly up this coming year
Under a head that's good and clear
And now, I hope and pray, I've made my point
Nobody, but nobody, should smoke a joint Amen

design," said Robert Gibbons, aide to Rep. Thomas Brownell. "But what we're saying is that the road can be altered to modify this driver behavior and cut down on speeding," said Gibbons.

Brownell, who's been asking the MDC for several years to take some steps to slow down drivers on the roadway last week criticized the commission's inaction as contributing to the two deaths.

"We're not engineers," said Gibbons. "But we think there are some things that could be done. Tom (Brownell) has been talking to the MDC about Quincy Shore Drive for at least four years, about lights, reflectors or warning signs.

More recently, Brownell has asked the MDC to consider installing a median strip on the quarter-mile stretch or widen the sidewalks between Sea St. and Furnace Brook Parkway.

Either step, Gibbons said, would cut the roadway from a lane-and-a-half in each direction to one lane in each direction and cut down on potential speeders.

Gibbons said the MDC Board of Commissioners was scheduled to meet Thursday and some "strong recommendation" on the situation, as a result of Wednesday's engineering meeting, may come before them.

approval powers over possible borrowing by the city to pay or refinance the commission's notes.

But a bid by McCauley to give the Council the power to cut the commission's annual budget was defeated by a 5-4 vote, with only Councilors McCauley, Joanne Condon, John J. Lydon Jr. and Joseph J. LaRaia lined up for it.

An amendment proposed by Councilor Daniel G. Raymond was passed giving the Council jurisdiction over future increases in the commission budget.

McCauley called the defeated budget amendment the key one.

"I'm not sure I could vote for the package without my amendment in there," he said.

"It's not my intent to amend the thing to death. I'm just trying to put some changes in there to make it palatable. What I'm trying to do is involve the City Council more.

"As far as I'm concerned it's a better package, much better than it was but I wouldn't want to say I would vote for it even at this point.

"The thing could be difficult if it isn't handled right. All of a sudden you're going to be socking people with large sewer and water bills. People are going to say, 'We didn't vote for 2½ to get this.'"

Tobin said his staff was checking out the amendment that would make the commission's term coterminous with that of the mayor, which would mean a new commission with every change in administration.

"Bond counsel and the banks might have problems with it," he said.

"If you had purchased a Water and Sewer Commission bond I'm sure you would be quite leery of investing in an authority that would change everytime the administration does.

"Nobody's going to put a long term investment in purchasing bonds that could be disrupted every two years."

One of the advantages of an independent Water and Sewer Commission, according to Tobin, is that it could issue revenue bonds outside the city debt service, which comes under Prop. 2½ limits.

"I am still asking all the councilors, if they don't like the proposal before them, to come up with an alternative proposal," said Tobin. "They still haven't."

"The only thing I've seen so far are these amendments by Councilor McCauley. I think he ought to be commended for at least exerting himself to come up with something.

"If these amendments are what it takes, then I can live with them, and I congratulate Councilor McCauley for putting politics aside in the best interests of the city."

Tobin said the five reluctant councilors "have to understand that the enterprise accounts I have proposed are not funded in the 1982 budget. If they have to be then there will be additional layoffs."

Two other enterprise accounts have met mixed reactions. One for the Quincy Junior College was okayed by the Fin Com. One for City Hospital was rejected, but the committee is expected to reconsider.

Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington has calculated that for every $1 million that has to be squeezed into the rigidly controlled tax levy, 80 city employees will lose their jobs.

The 1982 budget sent to the Council by Tobin contains provisions for 275 positions less than the 1981 budget but, through attrition, only 150 employees will be laid off.

"If the councilors are so afraid of political patronage," asked Tobin, "and there isn't that much in the package, then why haven't I filled the 125 vacant positions?"

The Finance Committee was scheduled to resume its hearings tonight (Thursday) at 6:30 p.m. in the Council chamber at City Hall.

Sirens, Whistles Set To Signal Air Raid Warnings In Quincy

The official air raid and blackout warning signals for Quincy — short blasts on whistles and sirens for a period of two minutes — were published in the Patriot Ledger.

The all clear signal consisted of long blasts on whistles and sirens repeated for two minutes.

Whistles were located at the Alfred Hale Rubber Co., the Tubular Rivet and Stud Co., City Hospital, the Granite City Ice Co., Fire Headquarters, and the Fore River Shipyard.

Sirens were placed at the intersections of Sea St. and Samoset Ave., Sea and Palmer Sts., Franklin St. and Independence Ave., Copeland and Cross Sts., and Post Office Square in Squantum.

Meanwhile, members of the Massachusetts Women's Defense School under Capt. Alice Boughtwood practiced evacuating Quincy children to the event of an air raid.

And Sanborn and Damon Co., 1428 Hancock St., was selling blackout equipment: 36-inch blackout shades, 50 cents; wrist flashlights, 98 cents; and blackout paint, $1.50 a gallon.

LAUNCHING POSTPONED

Mrs. Bonnie-Jean Fetrige smashed the traditional bottle of champagne across the bow of the Sheldon Clark but the tanker built at the Fore River Shipyard failed to move down the ways.

Bethlehem Steel Co. officials decided to postpone the actual launching for the first time in the yard's history when winds up to 50 miles an hour made the launch dangerous.

MORE COPS NEEDED

Police Chief John J. Avery told the City Council that he needed 15 additional police officers on the force but at least one councilor indicated that he was against it.

"I for one will not vote for additional policemen," said Councilor Frank N. Orcutt, "until the chief wakes up and stops double parking in the downtown area."

QUINCY 'Y' LOSES

Residents Urged To Return Heart Fund Donations

Quincy residents won't find any Heart Association volunteers knocking on their doors this year. Instead, a direct mail appeal has been sent.

Charles T. Lowe, Division Campaign Chairman of the Southeast, MA. Division of the American Heart Association encourages residents to return the envelope with their donations to their local Heart Association office.

"Remember, February is Heart month, nationwide," said Lowe, "please give generously to the fight against heart disease."

Bethany Members Discuss Church Aims, Purposes

Members and friends of Bethany Congregational Church discussed the aims and purposes of the church at a gathering Sunday following the 10 a.m. service and coffee break.

The discussion in the social hall was led by individuals who had explored the topic at a retreat last month at the Framingham Conference Center.

Following the discussion, Rev. Mr. J. William Arnold passed around a rating sheet listing all the directions suggested by the retreat group. Several directions were added by the group Sunday. Participants were then asked to rate the five most important suggestions.

The group Sunday chose the same five suggestions as had the retreat group. The suggestions were:

- Open ourselves to the spirit of Jesus, to create a deeper loving and caring community.

- Draw up a strong program of church growth and recruitment of new members.

• Involves as many members as possible in the life of the congregation.

- Develop a strong pastoral and lay leadership.

• Formulate a church education program for all age groups, including an improved church school and youth program.

A lunch provided by donations from all who attended was served.

Jean Smart arranged the lunch. Richard Pinel and Donna Zanolli set up the table arrangements.

Serving on the committee were Anita Benson, Cynthia Bain, Helene Crofts, Betty Elias, Barbara Jean Ferguson, Doris Folger, Jean Smart and Penuel Sullivan.

Ron Cashman Elected President Good Shepherd Youth Group

Ron Cashman was recently elected president of the youth group of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, North Quincy.

Also elected were: Robert Dudley, vice president; Leslie

Hayes, secretary; and Elizabeth Dudley, treasurer.

The officers will work with adult advisors from the executive council to make plans and form policy for the group.

Adult advisors for the group are

Pastor Darrell Urban, Fred Cashman, Sr., and Peter Henry, Sr.

The youth group will meet the last Sunday of the month at 3:30 p.m. for fun, fellowship and discussion.

Novena Of Grace At Blessed Sacrament

A Novena of Grace will be conducted at Most Blessed Sacrament Parish, Houghs Neck, beginning Sunday at 7 p.m.

No Mass is scheduled for that service. There will be two services daily at 9 a.m. and 7 p.m. with Holy Mass.

Rev. John W. Caine, A

Vincentian father, will conduct the exercises.

An invitation to make the Novena is extended to all.

Squantum Church Concludes Series On 'Encounters With Jesus'

The sermon series "Encounters With Jesus" concluded Sunday at the First Church of Squantum. The series of eight sermons by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin was on the experiences of people in the Bible who met Jesus.

The final sermon was "On Climbing Down From Your Tree."

Dr. Langevin began by telling the children of the church the story of Zacchaeus. The Youth Choir sang "What a Friend We Have in Jesus." The Chancel Choir sang "Come, All Ye Saints" by George Philipp Telemann.

Joan and Katherine Hansen were greeters. The fellowship hour after the service was hosted by Janet Sumner, Ida VonRiegers and Dorothy Abbe.

The Lenten series of sermons will begin next week at 10:15 a.m., one week before Lent begins.

Teens In Leadership Training Sunday For Quincy Vicariate

Teens in leadership training for the Quincy Vicariate will be held at St. Bernadette's, Randolph, Sunday March 1, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Those planning to attend should bring a lunch. Beverages will be provided by the host parish.

Joyce Siukola, vice chairman of the Archdiocesan Council of Catholic Youth, will direct the day assisted by Bob Costello.

Activities will include:

Two leadership talks by teens of leadership quality, Vicariate Congress dissertation, peer pressure exercise, leadership skills skit, leadership communication exercise and celebration of the liturgy.

Phonic Program Aids St. Joseph Students

A new Phonic Program, in use since last month in the St. Joseph's School, Quincy Point primary and intermediate grades, has enabled first graders in particular to read and write sentences from dictation with perfect spelling.

The program initiated by Mrs. Ronald Spaulding several years ago, was first used at schools in Hawaii, with much success. It teaches students a system of decoding and encoding words, which make it easier to read, write and spell.

The teachers at St. Joseph's School receive instruction in the Phonics Program by participating in a 20 hour training program.

2 Engines Disabled

60 Million Gallon Spill At Nut Island

The heavy rainfall and two disabled engines at the Nut Island Sewerage Treatment Plant caused some 60 million gallons of diluted, partially treated sewage to spill into the outer waters of Quincy Bay over the weekend, the MDC said Tuesday.

There was no danger to public health, said Joel Barry Chase, director of the MDC's Sewer Division.

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, in a joint letter to Gov. Edward J. King and MDC Commissioner Terrence J. Geoghegan, called it "one more example of the inefficiency at Nut Island."

He urged support of his bill that would set up a special commission to investigate the Nut Island plant and "find out once and for all what is needed to run it efficiently."

He also asked Gov. King for a meeting on the problem.

Chase said the situation was completely different from the Christmas Day incident when some 50 million gallons of sewage had to be dumped into the bay for lack of a diesel operator, a deficiency that has since been corrected.

"If there wasn't a rainstorm, it wouldn't have happened," he said. "It was a case of the amount of flow received at the plant exceeding the plant pump capacity."

Chase explained that on Saturday, Sunday and Monday there was 20 million more gallons a day than the pumps could handle in that time.

"The plant normally has four engines available for generating electricity to run the pumps and only two were available at the time," he said. "One was down for a busted bearing. The other had a cooler malfunction."

"That meant there was only enough electricity to operate two pumps to handle an amount of flow that would have required three."

"Each pump is rated about 75 million gallons a day. Two pumps will pump 150 million gallons. The average flow at Nut Island is 112 million gallons a day. So during normal flow two pumps is all that is required."

"When it starts raining and you get up over the 150 million gallons, you have to put on that third pump and it wasn't available."

The third pump was put back on line Monday night. Chase said, when one of the down engines was returned to service.

The spill, he said, consisted of "highly diluted, chlorinated water" that posed no danger to health. It did not, he added, go into Quincy Bay.

"A few years ago," he said, "we did a dye study on the effluent from Nut Island which shows that it actually goes out toward Rainsford Island and Long Island on incoming and outgoing tides. None of it goes into Quincy Bay."

Canton Chariots 30, City Officials 18

But It Was A Lot More Than Just A Game

This is a game in which, truly, the final score wasn't that important.

A team of city officials lost a recent wheelchair basketball game at the North Quincy High gym to the Massachusetts Hospital School Chariots of Canton, 30-18.

But they learned some important lessons about the needs and the abilities of wheelchair students during the game, held as part of Special Needs Awareness Month in Quincy.

The event, sponsored by the Mayor's office, the School Department, Quincy Parents Advisory Council to Special Education, and the Thomas Crane Public Library, was attended by over 300 spectators. The Hospital School brought a 17-member basketball team and 10 cheerleaders, all of whom were confined to wheelchairs. It was the maiden voyage for the new bus that Cong. Brian Donnelly helped get for the Chariots.

Said Mayor Arthur Tobin, honorary coach of the city officials:

CHARLIE ALONGI of the Recreation Department places himself in the path of a hospital school player. Looking on are George Mathieson of the Planning Department (left) and Rep. Michael Morrissey (center).

"This is the type of activity that can only help make people more aware of the special needs child, and is a good example of what the whole month of February has been about. What we've been saying all along is 'look at what these kids are capable of and shouldn't they be a more visible part of our society.'"

Taking the floor to represent the city were Sen. Paul Harold, Rep. Michael Morrissey, City

A Milestone:

4 Quincy, North Teams Qualify For Tourney

For the first time ever, all four Quincy and North Quincy boys' and girls' basketball teams have qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

The first to qualify was the North boys' team, which won its last six games and takes a 16-4 record into the tournament.

The Quincy boys, after losing for the second time to North, had to win its last two games and qualified by winning its final game last week. The Presidents ended 14-6.

The Quincy girls qualified in its last game last week with a 12-5 record, and the North girls, after losing for the second time to Quincy, had to win their last three games and qualified with a win last Thursday in their final game.

Both boys' teams have appeared in numerous tournaments, but it is only the second time for the Quincy girls and the first time ever for the North girls.

The North boys opened tournament play against Braintree (13-5) Tuesday night. If they win, the Raiders will face undefeated Plymouth-Carver (20-0) Saturday at 4 o'clock at Brockton. North was edged by P-C by two points in the finals of the Plymouth Christmas Tourney.

North was out for revenge Tuesday. Braintree eliminated the Raiders last year after North had upset Quincy in the opening game.

Quincy met Barnstable (16-4) last night (Wednesday) and, if it won, will face one of the top-seeded teams, Boston College High (18-2), Saturday at 1 o'clock at Scituate.

The North girls had one of the toughest assignments, meeting Newton North (14-3), runnerup to Cambridge Rindge and Latin in the Suburban League. The Raiderettes, who faced Newton North Tuesday, lost twice to that team in regular season play. If North pulled an upset, it will take on Needham (17-27) today (Thursday) at 4 o'clock at Oliver Ames High in North Easton.

The Quincy girls opened against Marshfield (13-5) Tuesday and, if victorious, will play New Bedford (16-1) tonight at 8 at Middleboro.

North Swimmers 9th In Sectional Championships

The North Quincy boys' swim team, with diving again its strong point, placed ninth in last weekend's South Sectional championships at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

The Raiders' Scott Andrews took second and Jack Leone fourth in the diving.

Others placing for North Quincy were Bill Feeney, eighth in the 100 backstroke, and John Buckley who entered the consolation final heat as an alternate and finished 11th overall in the 50 freestyle. Feeney and Buckley teamed with Bill Boudreau, Dave Riley and place in both relay races.

QUINCY'S BANTAM team lines up to receive their second place trophies in the annual Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament. Quincy lost to Newton in the finals.

CHRIS HURLEY (14) scores for Quincy Bantams in championship game with Newton. Quincy lost the title game, 6-2.

Kiwanis Club Tourney:

Quincy Mites, Bantams Bow In Finals

The eighth annual International Youth Hockey Tournament sponsored by the Quincy Kiwanis Club presented some of the best competition in years last week at the Quincy Youth Arena and attracted record crowds.

Beverly Reinhardt, the rink manager, called it "The best youth hockey tournament around. Several teams have already reserved spots for next year, which says something for our tournament."

Two Quincy teams reached the finals, the Mite team being edged by Plymouth, 4-3, in double overtime, and the Bantam team bowing to Newton, 6-2.

The Mites had lost their opener to Billerica, 1-0, in triple overtime, then defeated Wakefield, 5-4, in overtime; Dracont, 10-1, and Mid-Fairfield, Conn., 6-1, en route to the finals.

Quincy's Bantams had lost their opener to Enfield, Conn., 6-5, then defeated Woburn, 3-1; Wilmington, 8-5, and Woburn again, 9-3, to make the championship game.

Quincy's Squirt team went to the semifinals before losing to Mid-Fairfield, Conn., 3-2. Reading won this division, edging Mid-Fairfield, 3-2.

Quincy had defeated Wilmington, 4-1; Woburn, 4-3, and Brockton, 3-2, to move into the semifinals.

Playing for Quincy were Charles Hughes, Brian Mahoney, Jon Berton, Matt Collins, Bill Connolly, Sean Hunter, Jim Lamparelli, Jeff MacDonald, Paul McGrath, Brian Mosher, Shawn O'Neil, Tom Roberts, Bob Roche, Jay Rodriguez, Paul Scola and Eric Seaman.

Quincy's Pee Wees lost to Scituate, 4-2, in the third round, after defeating West Roxbury, 5-3, and Plymouth, 4-2. Scituate won the title with a 5-4 win over Halifax, N.S.

A PLYMOUTH player just misses scoring on Quincy Mites goalie Jim Tiberio in championship game of the Kiwanis Youth Tournament. Plymouth won title game, 4-3, in double overtime.

Presidents Knew What They Had To Do--

The Quincy boys' basketball team knew what it had to do after losing to North Quincy for the second time.

The Presidents had to win their final two games last week to qualify for the Eastern Mass. tournament for the third year in a row and the fifth time in the last six years.

And Joe Amoroso's team went out and did just that.

Quincy qualified for the tournament with a 72-52 victory last Thursday over Brookline to finish 14-6.

"This was a complete team effort and from the start of the season, coaches and players had worked together and it was not a one-man or two-man show," said a happy Amoroso.

"This was 12 players and three coaches in a classic example of teamwork. We played in a tough league, and I think the intensity we had throughout the season in our practices helped us reach our goal. All members of this team really contributed."

Kurt MacDonald, one of the top scorers in the Suburban League, had a big game at Brookline, lifting the Presidents to a 50-28 lead after three periods with 18 of his 22 points in the middle periods.

Steve Priscella, the only Quincy player to start for three tournament teams, had 16 points (10 in the second half) and 10 rebounds and finished among the top 10 league scorers.

Several other players contributed. Guard Gary DiNardo, who had missed seven games with a rib injury, had eight points and eight assists. Shawn Burnes took down five rebounds, had three steals and four assists to go with his 12 points. Jeff Morrison did a great job coming off the bench.

"Priscella played one of his finest games," said Amoroso. "He hit a couple of very important baskets in the final period when Brookline cut into our lead." (The Warriors had sliced a 22-point lead to nine with a 16-3 surge in the early moments of the finale).

Earlier in the week Quincy had defeated Weymouth South, 67-54, with Priscella scoring 15 points and DiNardo and MacDonald adding 10 each.

North Wins Final 2, Clinches 2nd Spot

The North Quincy boys' basketball team had already clinched an Eastern Mass. Tournament berth but the Raiders didn't let down and won their final two games last week to finish with a 16-4 record and in second place in the Suburban League.

Eddie Miller's North team capped its outstanding season with a 73-62 victory last Thursday over Brockton as four players hit double figures.

North broke the game open in the final period as Mark Millane, the league's No. 4 scorer with a 16-point average, scored 10 of his 19 points.

Paul Mallory scored 13 points, 6-foot-9 Chip Bunker added 12 and Bob Bolster 11.

Earlier in the week North defeated Brookline, 78-38, as Millane scored 27 points. Mallory had 16 points and Paul Gill 12.

"This was just a great season and it was a real team effort," Miller said. "We know Millane would be a great scorer again and we had some good scoring from several others. Mallory and Bolster did well and, of course, Gill controlled our offense."

"He was our quarterback all year long and he was like an assistant coach out there. Bunker really came along well and improved steadily. His rebounding and blocking shots were key factors in our success. We won our last six games and we'll have some momentum going into the tournament."

North finished 11-3 in the league, losing only to undefeated state champion Cambridge twice (the Raiders held Cambridge under 60 points in each game) and to Brockton once. The only other loss was to undefeated Plymouth-Carver by two points in the finals of the Christmas tournament in Plymouth.

Central, Atlantic,
Point, Montclair Win

Action continued in the second round of the Quincy Recreation Department All-City Basketball Championship, Junior High Division, with four games last Saturday.

Last year's defending champion, Central, is still alive after a 46-14 victory over a hustling Broad Meadows team, coached by Mike Cronin. Brian Buckley had his Central team at its peak, with Dave Magnell, Paul Martell and Paul Masters leading the scoring and Deane O'Malley handling the playmaking.

On the Broad Meadows side the scoring was split between Paul Marshall, Dave Britt and Sean Flaherty. Mark Cronin and Sean Aruda worked hard to control the boards, but still took second place to Central's Tim Reardon, who was outstanding all day.

Atlantic coach Paul Bregoli unleashed a powerful offense and a stingy defense as his club defeated Beechwood Knoll, 46-6. Beechwood Knoll coach Bob Evans substituted freely in an effort to slow down the bigger and quicker Atlantic team, but Larry Leonard's hustle and Bob Klingenstein's scoring were not enough. Chris Roberts showed some scoring in spurts, while Ed Bagley's rebounding was a highlight in the losing cause.

Atlantic's high scorers Dennis Cronin, Sean McAlenny and Dave Zuroms, got ball handling help from Tom Connolly with strong rebounding from Andy Curtis and Jim Martin.

The Quincy Point-Wollaston game proved to be the surprise of the day as Wollaston, rumored to be a tough club in pre-tournament talk, was defeated by Point, 37-15. Point, coached by John Franceschini, had balanced scoring from Pete Shaughessey, Dave Kelley and Sean Burns for the wire to wire victory. Wollaston was outscored but not outshouted as Bob Nichols, Mark Viapando and Pat Mulkern led the scorers and Martin Flaherty led the defense with help from Jeff Bouamick and Mike McCormick. Coach Jack Kelly was pleased with the all-around good hustle of his club, which fell behind early and could never get its offense going.

In the final game of the day, Montclair, a finalist for the past two years, continued its winning tradition with a 50-15 victory over Atherton Hough. Coach John Mariano's young club fell to the experienced Montclair team despite the scoring of Joe Conte, Pat Faherty and Bob Zupcoska. Jerry Pratt on the Montclair bench used his whole club as Steve Manning, John Comeau and Bill Bilton led the scoring and John Ennis, directed an early pressing defense. Pete McCarron and Paul Miller of Atherton Hough also played well despite being outmaneuvered by the Montclair experience.

The tournament moves to the semi-final round Saturday at Broad Meadows Junior High School. Central plays Atlantic at 9:30 a.m., while Point meets Montclair at 10:30. Spectators are welcome and admission is free.

The finalists of this year's tournament will play an exhibition game prior to the Boston Celtic-Philadelphia 76ers game Sunday, March 1 at the Boston Garden.

Win Last 3 Must Games

North Girls Pass Test, Land Tourney Berth

Last week was The Week That Was for the North Quincy girls' basketball team.

After losing for the second time to Quincy, the Raiderettes were faced with the task of winning their last three games to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

Paul Bregoli's team reached that objective last Thursday when it walloped Sacred Heart of Weymouth, 53-20, in a non-league game for its third win in as many days to make the tournament for the first time ever with a 14-6 record.

Julie Watts, one of the top scorers in the Suburban League, closed out an outstanding regular season with 12 points and 10 rebounds. Her eight first quarter points paced North to a 16-8 lead.

The Raiderettes' inside passing game allowed Watts, Lauren Apollo and JoAnn Runge to get several layups. Apollo played a fine all-around game with 10 points and seven rebounds and also played excellent defense. Anne McLaney, the team's excellent sixth player, shot well and hit on two long jumpers, scoring six points. Tricia Meehan, who has been playing with a painful groin injury, played well as did Karen Bridges, a 6-foot sophomore who was brought up from the jayvees for the last three games.

The previous day North romped over Fontonne Academy, 71-26, in another non-league game as it displayed its most awesome offense of the year. Every player scored.

North took a 14-8 first quarter lead sparked by Kim Alberti and Meehan, and it exploded for 22 points in the second period.

Runge scored 12 points, Alberti and Debbie Kiley had eight apiece, Apollo seven and Meehan, McLaney and Simone Koch six each. Bridges played her second fine varsity game as she pulled down 13 rebounds in less than a half and also scored three points.

North had started the week with an easy 37-19 victory over Brookline in its final Suburban League game.

Watts and Runge were held scoreless in the first half as Brookline took a 13-11 halftime lead. Only junior Simone Koch's late offensive spark kept the margin from being larger. The Raiderettes exploded in the third period, outscoring Brookline, 20-2, as Runge, Meehan and Alberti led a tight defense by coming up with six steals and converting all into baskets.

Bridges came off the bench in the third period, took down five rebounds, blocked two shots and drew a charging foul. North's defense remained stingy in the final period as Michelle White, Kiley and Maureen McAlenny kept constant pressure on Brookline's guards.

"I'm very happy and proud of this team," first-year coach Bregoli said. "We set a goal the very first time we met. That goal was to make the tournament. It was always in the back of our minds and as we got closer the girls played more confidently. What they have done in 2½ months is amazing. Not only is the first North girls' team to make a tournament, it is the first to have better than a .500 season."

"Everyone contributed to the team's success. The kids who worked hard every day against the first team, girls like Mo McAlenny, Simone Koch, Janet Petkun and Mary Ellen Timmins, were very important to the success of the team."

-- TOM SULLIVAN

First Ladies Win
Tourney Berth

The Quincy girls' basketball team qualified for the Eastern Mass. tournament for the second time when it defeated Milton, 39-24, last week in a non-league game.

The First Ladies made the tournament with a 12-5 record.

This is the first time since the 1972-73 season that the Quincy girls made the post-season event. That year the First Ladies, then coached by Gale Palmer, won the Greater Boston League title with an 11-1 record, but were defeated by a taller Franklin team in the opening round.

Quincy's only loss that year was to North Quincy, which finished second in the league with a 9-3 record. The Raiderettes were coached by Barbara Webster, who later succeeded Palmer as Quincy coach and coached the First Ladies until this season.

Peter Swanson took over as coach this season and led the team to two wins over North Quincy for the city title. He formerly coached at Broad Meadows Junior High.

"I knew there was a lot of potential in this team when I came," he said. "I was familiar with the girls from Broad Meadows and knew they were very dedicated to playing basketball."

Nancy MacDonald was the team's leading scorer and was the number three scorer in the Suburban League with a 17-point average. She and Mary Kamb took care of the boards and Quincy rebounded every opponent this year, even in its five losses.

"Rebounding is one of our stronger points," Swanson said. "We spend a lot of time on boxing out and on defense and it paid off. Although Nancy was our top scorer, we had a balanced attack and everyone is a contributor."

The First Ladies received outstanding performances from Linda Brennan, Maureen Walsh and Ann McCarron. Brennan and Walsh controlled the tempo of each game and were big reasons why Quincy didn't give up more than 40 points in a game.

Quincy took a 19-12 lead at the half in the Milton game, as MacDonald scored eight points. She finished with 14. McCarron had five points and Brennan four in the first half.

Quincy extended its lead to 27-17 in the third period and enjoyed its biggest lead, 36-20, midway in the finale. --TOM SULLIVAN

Rowley Sets Bentley Track Record

Freshman Dan Rowley of North Quincy finished second for the Bentley College track team in the 880 in the Eastern meet with a school-record breaking time of 1:56, just 0.44 seconds off the winning time. Rowley also held the previous record in this event.

QJC Ties For 4th In Playoffs

The Greater Boston Small College Basketball Conference playoffs were concluded last week with powerful Hellenic, as expected, winning the crown with a 109-67 victory over Emerson.

Quincy College finished tied for fourth place but lost out on a playoff berth because it had lost more games against playoff teams than Wentworth. QJC finished with an 8-8 conference record.

Quincy's Ed Richard was named to the all-star team, which will play a team from New Hampshire

Friday night at 7:30 in Nashua. QJC's Jim Holleran was named the first alternate and Coach Brian Buckley was named to coach the all-star team.

Richard became the first recipient of the Conference Coaches Award, given to the player who exemplifies extra effort, dedication, teamwork and sportsmanship.

"Ed is certainly deserving of this award," said Buckley. "He is the most intense player I've ever coached and he inspires others to play as hard as he does."

● St. Ann's Hockey

Ideal, Nobile Tie, Lydon Edges Riley

Quincy Wrestlers Win 3rd Title In Row

By TOM SULLIVAN

It was the same old story last weekend as the Quincy wrestling team won its third successive South Sectional championship at Brockton.

Carmen Mariano's Presidents earlier had won their third straight Suburban League championship with an unbeaten record. They won their seventh straight meet over North Quincy to clinch the title and now have won 26 consecutive league meets.

In the sectionals last weekend Quincy finished first among 16 schools with 204 points to 166 for runnerup Brockton.

Quincy had two champions, John Herald at 157 pounds and Mark Picot at 188, four runnersup, Greg Oriola at 141, Al DiVincentis at 148, Mike Monahan at 169 and Ed Mackey, heavyweight; one third place finisher, Ed Ryan at 128, two fourth place finishers, Al

Costigliola at 108 and Joe Souza at 134, and two who placed sixth, Jerry McSharry at 121 and Paul Silcox at 100.

Herald, Picot, Oriola, DiVincentis, Monahan, Mackey, Ryan, Costigliola and Souza will compete in the Division One state tournament Friday and Saturday at Lowell High.

Quincy had finished its regular season with a 20-1-0 record (8-0 in the league) as it scored three easy victories, 49-0 over Hingham, 46-9 over Foxboro and 47-6 over North Quincy.

Herald finished the regular season with a 20-0 record. Monahan finished at 15-1; Costigliola was 16-3-1, and Jim Silcox finished at 11-0.

"It took a lot of sweat and hard work to get this far," said a happy Mariano, whose teams have a remarkable seven-year record of 105-25-1. "Our success is the product of an entire team of young men working together and supporting each other toward a common goal. If you want to beat one of us, you have to beat all 45.

"I am very proud of the individual wrestlers who performed so well in the tournament, but I am ever so much prouder of our team and program as a whole. What we have done this year, and the accomplishments of future years, reflect a process of development which began with twelve sophomores in 1974 (Quincy's only losing season) and has escalated constantly through a feeling of team worth and mutual respect among our wrestlers."

Steve Joyce's North Quincy wrestlers, handicapped by a small squad, will have Gino Pillard in the state tournament. He finished third at 140 pounds in the sectionals. The Raiders' Chris Butler was sixth at 128 and Lester Gerry fifth at 134.

Racquetball Lessons At YMCA

Racquetball lessons will be offered at the Quincy YMCA to members only Saturday, March 7 and 21 at 10 a.m.

Each lesson involves one-and-a-half hours of classroom lecture and one hour of instruction on the court. Instruction includes discussion of rules, equipment, stance, positioning, forehand, backhand and serve.

Pre-registration is required and must be done at the Pro Shop at the Quincy YMCA. The fee is $8.

For information, call Jeff Johnson at the YMCA, 479-8500.

Dr. Eric Lichter

Completes Cardiac Care Program

Dr. Eric Lichter, a member of the Quincy City Hospital Staff, has completed the cardiac care segment of an intensive continuing education program for emergency physicians at the University of Massachusetts Medical Center, Worcester.

Dr. Lichter, a Boston resident, is among more than 30 physicians from throughout the state who enrolled in the cardiac care class.

Until recently, continuing education programs specifically tailored to emergency physicians were non-existent. UMass Medical Center is offering the first organized, comprehensive continuing education program for emergency physicians to be offered in Massachusetts.

It is intended to keep emergency services physicians abreast of the latest techniques for the delivery of acute care, and to sharpen the highly sophisticated skills necessary to promptly stabilize acutely ill or injured patients.

Big Brothers Needed In Quincy Area

Volunteers are needed in Quincy to serve as a "Big Brother" to fatherless boys.

Over 20 boys in the area are waiting for Big Brothers and under present circumstances many of them will never be assigned.

A few hours a week of attention and concern can make a tremendous impact in the life of a fatherless boy.

For more information, call the Big Brother Association at 583-6498.

SIESTA SLEEP SHOP has officially opened at its new location at 30 School St., Quincy Center. The shop had been located in the Parkingway since 1953.

Siesta Sleep Shop Opens New School St. Location

Siesta Sleep Shops, Inc., announces the official grand opening of its new location at 30 School St., Quincy Center.

The new location, next to St. John's Church, was remodeled from three separate stores.

Siesta had been located in the Parkingway, Quincy Square, since 1953.

Said Steven Glickman, Siesta's president, "For over 26 years we have served the South Shore-Quincy area customers with tremendous success, but our old basement location was no longer adequate for Siesta."

"We worked for several years to finally obtain another location where we could still serve the South Shore customer."

"The new, modern location gives us a store that is much more conducive to our customers, including easier parking and safer use for our evening customers. The store will be open most evenings," said Glickman.

Steve Cronin, manager of the new location, said, "This store will cater to the Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and South Shore customers, with the addition of special delivery services to include set-up of merchandise, removal of old bedding, and especially the arrangements for Saturday deliveries and extended service for senior citizens."

"This Saturday delivery service will make it much easier for the average customer who works every weekday," said Cronin.

Cronin has worked with Siesta since his days at Quincy High School, according to Glickman.

With Siesta for over 15 years, he has completed extensive training courses in the construction and assembly of mattresses and types of brass beds.

"Many items will be available right at the store for customers to take with them," said Cronin. "Most people who buy things today don't want to wait six, four or even two weeks until they can use it, and with most items we carry, the customer rarely has to wait more than a week - even if they want us to deliver it to their home."

The bedding experts at Siesta's Quincy store can give information to customers on the right mattress, box spring combination, according to Cronin.

Each mattress is rated on a scale of three to six - soft, firm, extra firm, etc.

Siesta offers products by manufacturers such as Sealy Posturepedic, Serta Perfect Sleeper and the Bodypedic line of bedding.

There is also a line of Bodypedic Aqua Firm soft-sided waterbeds available in king, queen, full and twin sizes, at discount prices.

The store also has beds and bed frames and storage beds.

"We're specialists in our business," says Cronin, "and we literally know our products inside out. Every member of Siesta Sleep Shops' sales staff has undergone a thorough training program including visits to the major manufacturing plants like Sealy and Serta. Siesta goes to great lengths to please every customer."

Siesta Sleep Shops are at 12 locations including West Bridgewater, Stoughton, Randolph and Dedham.

Quincy And S.S. Board Of Realtors Sponsoring Essay Contest

Tenth, 11th and 12th graders of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hull High Schools are invited to enter an essay contest conducted by the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, board president Eleanor King announces.

"The contest theme is 'What Are My Private Property Rights and How Will They Affect My Future,'" she said, "Entries are limited to 500 words or less."

The contest is being held in preparation for Private Property Week, an annual event sponsored by Realtors and Realtor-Associates nationwide. This year's celebration will be held April 19-25.

The contest is being held on a nationwide basis. Local winning entries will be sent to the National Association of Realtors for final judging.

Three local winners will be selected. First prize will be $100, second prize $50 and third prize, $25. Prizes will be awarded at a breakfast meeting to be held by the Board on Thursday, April 23, in conjunction with National Private Property Week.

The national grand prize winner will receive a trophy and a two-day expense-paid trip (with a parent or guardian) to Washington, D.C. The trip will include visits to the winner's representative and senator, in company with an official of the National Association of Realtors Washington office. The two runners-up will receive trophies and savings bonds.

Rules for the contest are being announced in the schools. Deadline for entries is March 18. Local winners will be announced on April 15.

Eastern Nazarene College Historical Society Topic

"Eastern Nazarene College in the Decade of the 1970's" will be topic at the Quincy Historical Society meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Society's Adams Academy Building.

The meeting is open to the public. Persons with special interest in ENC and its community are invited.

Speaker will be Dr. James R. Cameron, head of the College's Department of History, and president of the Quincy Historical Society.

Dr. Cameron's association with Eastern Nazarene College and Quincy started as a student and now covers 30 years as a member of the faculty. A few years ago he wrote the history of the college's first 50 years.

During the 1970's it was proposed that ENC leave Wollaston. Dr. Cameron will tell how the rejection of this proposal and other developments of the 1970's are reflected in Eastern Nazarene College today and in its community.

'Night Of Mendelssohn' For QSO March 6

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra announces its second concert of the 1980/1981 season will be presented Friday, March 6, at 8 p.m. in the recently remodeled auditorium of the North Quincy High School, Hancock and East Squantum Sts.

Entitled "A Night of Mendelssohn," the program will open with "Midsummer Night's Dream," incidental music composed for William Shakespeare's play. Martina Ferrante of Plymouth and Lewann Semchenko, Quincy, are the soprano soloists. Marshall

Bacherman, also of Quincy, will narrate.

Completing the QSO performance conducted by Robert E. Brown, will be Felix Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 5, The Reformation.

The audience is invited to attend a reception to meet soloists and orchestra members in the cafeteria immediately following the concert. Refreshments will be served.

For tickets and further information, call 471-7075 or 773-1144.

Curtain Call Theatre Holding Try-Outs For 'Applause'

Curtain Call Theatre will hold open try-outs for its spring musical, "Applause," Sunday and Monday, March 1 and 2, at 7:30 p.m. at its Clubhouse, Commercial and Faxon Sts., Braintree.

"Applause" will be performed five nights in May on two consecutive weekends.

The show will be directed by George Stevens of Braintree. Rehearsals will begin in March.

There are three major female roles and many roles for men, singers and dancers.

Everyone is welcome. For further information call Helene Finnick, evenings at 335-2012.

Self Defense Course Begins At YMCA

A four week self defense course for adults was scheduled to begin last night (Wednesday) 7 to 9 p.m. in the Judo Room of the Quincy YMCA, 79 Coddington St.

Conducting the co-ed class is black belt karate instructor

Harold Whalen. For enrollment, which is limited, sign up at the front desk of the "Y".

More information is available by calling Justin Latini at 479-8500.

Ceramics Course

At Lincoln Hancock School

There are still openings in the Thursday night ceramics course offered at Lincoln Hancock Community School, 300 Granite St., during tonight.

The eight-week course, taught by Roberta Fontaine, will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. in the art room at the Water St. level.

Registrations will be accepted right up to the start of class Thursday night. A course fee will be charged. For information, call 786-8717.

CAMELOT, a 12 week session sponsored by Aerobic Dancing, Inc., of Braintree, begins March 9, at 12 South Shore locations including Quincy and Hingham. Aerobic dancing, choreographed by Jacki Sorensen, is a physical fitness program that combines the fun of dancing with the benefits of jogging. Registration is now going on for the classes which meet twice a week. For more information, call 848-8307.

At Strand Theater

Annual Heart Fund Theatre Party Set For March 31

The 12th annual Quincy Heart Fund Theatre Party will be held Tuesday, March 31 at 7:30 p.m. at the Strand Theatre, Chestnut St., Quincy Sq.

The John J. Daniels Memorial Night, named in memory of the co-founder and treasurer of the event for its first five years, will feature a full length movie to be named at a later date and 20 door prizes to be awarded.

Richard J. Koch, Special Events

Chairman of the Quincy Heart Fund for the past 11 years and theatre party coordinator said the price of the tickets would remain at 99 cents each. All proceeds would directly benefit the research, education and CPR programs of the Southeast Massachusetts

Division of the American Heart Association.

The amount received and presented to the American Heart Association from the single event so far has totaled $16,599.00.

Volunteers are needed to sell tickets and assist in planning the theatre party program.

Those wishing to purchase tickets may contact Mr. Koch at 241 Newbury Avenue, North Quincy.

Koch was recently recognized for his dedication to the Quincy Heart Fund during the past decade and was presented a plaque of Merit from State Chairman John Bucyk, former Boston Bruins star.

South Shore Scrabble Club Formed

The newly formed South Shore Scrabble Club invites interested players to attend meetings Thursdays, 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the First Church of Weymouth.

Director Elaine Weldon of Weymouth, said the club is soon to be accredited with the International Scrabble Club. Club members will then be able to participate in Scrabble competitions and championships.

Players should bring their Scrabble boards to the meetings. For more information, call Miss Weldon at 335-8096.

WEEK OF FEBRUARY 26

AQUARIUS — January 21—February 19

An idea that at first seems trivial can influence your thinking in an important way. Joint ventures show problems on Monday but offbeat solutions prove effective.

PISCES — February 20—March 20

Stroke of good luck is in store for a friend. Show business is accented on weekend. Be careful of tendency to shut yourself off from unpleasant views.

ARIES — March 21—April 20

Renewed determination plus a bit of luck help you advance a giant step toward key goal. Watch impulsive streak, it's terribly easy to buy something you don't need at all.

TAURUS — April 21—May 22

Influences favor study and creative achievement. An excellent week for resolving misunderstandings. Through weekend, be ever ready to revise your plans at moment's notice.

GEMINI — May 23—June 21

Days offer unpredictable mix of recreation, business, travel and social introductions. Watch tendency to criticize bluntly. Don't take any romantic risks, especially on weekend.

CANCER — June 22—July 22

Determination is your middle name; you can realize twin goals by Wednesday. Take time out to sign up for courses or purchase tickets before you're too late.

LEO — July 23—August 22

A common interest can bring you in contact with someone from an unusual background. Casual remarks are taken to heart, while your serious comments may be brushed aside.

VIRGO — August 23—September 22

There's no point in hiding your feelings; your face tells all, but don't feel obliged to reveal personal information. Business and pleasure mix beautifully through week.

LIBRA — September 23—October 22

An attractive offer is probably on the level, but learn more about it before accepting. Nip in the bud any problem situation. Things can get out of hand very quickly.

SCORPIO — October 23—November 21

Utter concentration on family matter, especially one concerning older relatives, could lead you to neglect health and diet. Talent for communicating is really shining now.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22—December 22

Your sincere interest in people helps you advance in an organization, but watch tendency to adopt peace at any price policy. It's important to take a stand now.

CAPRICORN — December 23—January 20

Enjoy lovely rapport with an older person. Keep ideas perking, they're excellent, but not quite ready for presentation. Don't postpone any bookkeeping tasks.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You're known to worry too much, to be a little psychic, to be adaptable and fair-minded. Self image is enhanced by springtime thanks to new awareness of inner strengths. Relocation is a strong possibility for September.

BORN THIS WEEK

February 26th, actor Tony Randall, 27th, actress Joanne Woodward, 28th, actress Bernadette Peters, March 1st, actress Dinah Shore, 2nd, singer Karen Carpenter, 3rd, actress Jean Harlow, 4th, actress Paula Prentiss.

LOOK AT WHAT WE HAVE COMING FOR YOU!

These are pictures of the scale model we had built to show our customers how our new main office will look when we have completed the conversion of the former Quincy Motor Company building at 85 Quincy Avenue. Our architectural firm, Donahue Associates, built the model from the plans they have created for the conversion of the Quincy Motors Building.

We shall move into the new quarters, hopefully by October. This will give us a triple drive-in facility, parking for 95 cars, safe deposit boxes and our usual friendly, cooperative service. Our present main office in Quincy Square will become a downtown branch come Fall, and on the basis of personal convenience, you can take your pick of our banking locations in Quincy: downtown or just south of Quincy Square at 85 Quincy Avenue.

Quincy Cooperative's new Main Bank Building (above) will face on Quincy Avenue. At right is the three-bay drive-thru facility. In the photo of the scale model below can be seen part of the large parking area, and the Bank's south facade with entrance to the main banking lobby.

CHESTER BRAGG spends a good part of his time digging clams along the Quincy waterfront. And, he gets angry at what he sees.
(Quincy Sun Photo by Mary O'Keefe)

Chet Bragg: Quincy's Angry Clamdigger

By FRANK MORTIMER
His name is Chester Bragg. He's 60 years old. And he digs clams.

He digs off Germantown. He digs down the Neck.

He digs in summer, when kids are lolling on the seawall, absorbing sunrises and squinting at the white-haired guy with the clamfork.

He digs in winter, when the bay looks like an arctic wasteland and great chunks of ice pile along the beaches like wrecked ships.

He digs when the diggin' is good, and a man can pay the electric bill in one tide. He digs when the flats are dead, and four hours of scratchin' is worth about 20 bucks.

He digs not for exercise, not to earn pocket money, not to have a dozen on the half-shell.

He digs for a living.

And that is why Chester Bragg of 62 Macy St., Houghs Neck, gets so mad at those who manage -- and, he claims, mismanage -- the shellfish harvesting industry.

"There's going to be a little hell raised up there," he said last week, shortly before a meeting of diggers and several city and state regulatory agencies in John Fitzgerald Kennedy Health Center. The informal session was arranged by Bragg, after a personal visit to Philip Coates, director of the state Division of Marine Fisheries.

Bragg has been angry for a long time; and he's not one to stew in silence.

"Diggin' could be a good job if those wardens did what they're supposed to do," he said before the meeting. "They ought to be grabbin' those kids for seed clams," he said, referring to the reportedly large number of youths who take to the mudflats in warmer months. "Those clams would get twice as big and start throwin' out spawn if they'd just let them grow."

At the meeting Bragg charges Shellfish Constable Andy Ayer with failure to control unlicensed and off-limits diggers.

Ayer told the diggers, however, that it's "physically impossible" to patrol Quincy's 27 miles of coastline in one tide, and still count the racks of clams loaded into trucks as the state requires.

John Comeau, a state warden, defended Ayer, saying "for one man the job is impossible -- unless he had a helicopter." Ayer has no deputies.

'A Critical Time'

'High Risk' Plan Underway To Save Junior College

By TOM HENSHAW
and BERNIE O'DONNELL

"I guess the softest way of saying this," said School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, "is to say 'high risk.' The alternative is clear. It's close the junior college. We're trying to give it a shot."

The "high risk" plan to save Quincy Junior College, which is on the road to becoming independent of the city tax levy, is this:

- Add the curriculum of Grades 13 and 14 at the Vo Tech School to the junior college offerings as a "career technical" division in the school.

- Charge a tuition of $1,650 a year for the career technical courses, which are now offered free at the Vo Tech School at a cost of more than $400,000 to the taxpayers.

- Raise tuition in the arts and science division from $660 for Quincy residents and $770 for non-residents to a flat $1,050 for all.

- Make prospective students more aware of the financial aid that is available from the federal government, provided it survives the Reagan Administration's economy axe.

One High School In 1986? Page 11

- Seek financial aid in the form of endowments from the local business community which will avail itself of the services of the career tech graduates.

The deadline for seeing some glimmer of success for the junior college program, says Dr. Creedon, is May 30 when staff members have to know if their services will be required next year.

"We are up against a critical time here," he said. "Between now and May 30 we have to get out there and do a heavy recruiting campaign. We started this week."

"What we have to do is make certain that people who would normally have applied to Quincy Junior College and the Vo Tech School don't go somewhere else because of what they have heard.

"We don't have any sense of that yet but you know how quick it can come up and how devastating it can be if all the wise wizards say Quincy Junior College is going down the drain."

The new plan makes tuition at the junior college significantly higher than those at state-supported community colleges. The tuition at the University of Massachusetts is $800.

Carl R. Deyoso, the school system's director of academic education who has been working on the QJC plan, said the college will need 1,000 academic students and 300 in the career tech courses.

Firefighters Protest Cuts:

'There's Going To Be A Disaster In This City'

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Quincy Firefighters have started a door-to-door petition campaign to protest what they call dangerous cutbacks proposed in their department.

"Fire protection in this city is at a dangerous level now," said George Lamb, president of the Quincy Firefighters Association. "If these cuts go through, there's going to be a disaster in this city, no question about it."

Mayor Arthur Tobin, meanwhile, asked citizens "not to be used by a lot of political rhetoric."

"This is a city of approximately 90,000 people," Tobin said. "Everyone is being asked to sacrifice. Little elementary school children are having their schools closed. Every department, every budget of the city of Quincy is being affected.

"I don't want to see the loss of any firefighters," said the mayor. "But maybe the Firefighters union could indicate where they want the layoffs to come."

According to Lamb, cuts proposed by Tobin would eliminate three engines and one ladder company and leave the department as much as 65 men below its normal staffing.

Eliminated would be Engine B, at fire headquarters; Engine 8 in Germantown and Engine 7 in Squantum, and a still-undermanned ladder company.

"When we go around the city talking to people," Lamb said, "they say this isn't why they voted for Proposition 2½. They don't want public safety cut or diminished."

"They want the fat cut out of city government, they don't want fire protection cut," said firefighters union secretary James Kelly.

But, the department, which is now 12 men below its normal strength, is going to be reduced by another 17 men, Lamb said.

And, if the mayor's proposed Water-Sewer Commission doesn't pass the City Council, Tobin has said that an additional 36 firefighters will be laid off. That would bring the department to 65 men below strength, Lamb said.

"We're not telling the mayor where to make cuts--that's his problem," said Lamb. "But we're asking the people of the city to tell their officials they don't want the department cut."

Firefighters would begin a door-to-door petition campaign on Tuesday evening, Lamb said.

King Here March 14

For 'Special Announcement'

Gov. Edward J. King is planning a visit to Quincy Saturday, March 14, for what Mayor Arthur H. Tobin called "a special announcement."

It is believed that King will announce a state grant of some $750,000 to complete the $3.79 million UDAG parking garage in downtown Quincy.

Tobin said the governor will be at City Hall at 9 a.m. March 14.

Terranova Approved For Housing Post

The City Council Monday night approved Frank Terranova as a commissioner on the Quincy Housing Authority -- but not until Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia got in a few needles at his old foe, Mayor Tobin.

How many candidates did Tobin interview, asked LaRaia, and what was the screening process used?

Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington said there was no definite screening process that he knew of and he was not aware of how many candidates were interviewed.

"The mayor has always supported a screening process in the past," observed LaRaia.

When LaRaia was mayor, the Council insisted that his candidates be put through a screening process and rejected two of them in spite of it.

Tobin Still Has Hopes For Sewer-Water Plan

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin indicated Tuesday that he is still hopeful of getting his Water and Sewer Commission plan through the City Council despite a 5-4 setback by the Finance Committee.

The Council, acting at Tobin's request, left the matter in committee Monday night to give the mayor a chance to muster additional information in support of the controversial plan.

"Basically," Tobin said, "what we plan to do is answer some questions that were raised before the Finance Committee on bonding and financing that would be available to the commission."

"We are pretty positive what we can or can't do but we need more documentation."

But Councillor Joseph J. LaRaia, pressing for a vote on the matter at Monday's Council meeting, said he didn't think Tobin was going to use the time to gather information at all.

"I know the mayor pretty well," he said, "and I'm sure this delay is going to work in his favor for the purposes of further harassment of city employees and the City Council."

"We've taken more than a month discussing this issue. We know what we want to do with our votes tonight. I don't think another minute is going to help the City Council."

Tobin's plan would set up an independent Water and Sewer Commission with what some feel is excessive power in order to take the current Sewer and Water Divisions off the tax levy.

By giving it a separate budget, the Commission would have bonding power that is effectively denied to the city itself under the restrictions imposed by Proposition 2½.

Tobin says that if the Water and Sewer Commission is not approved, then 200 more city employees will lose their jobs.

Meanwhile, the city was prepared to send out layoff notices to nearly 150 employees, effective as of April 1, under terms of Tobin's 1982 budget, which does not include money for water and sewer.

All that was holding up the layoff notices, the mayor said, was a technicality to be ironed out by Joseph McParland, the city's labor negotiator, and union leaders.

Tobin indicated that the information he was preparing for the Council had to do with bonding power of the commission vs. bonding power of a sewer user charge favored by some councillors.

"I don't think a sewer user charge will satisfy the federal sewer funding requirements," he said. "It did before 2½ when we could float a bond for financing. We can't do that now."

Tobin presented plans for a sewer user charge, which will soon be necessary to obtain federal funds, to the Council three times last fall and each time it was rejected.

"This is the fourth proposal I have had before them," he said. "That's it. If they have an alternative let them spell it out."

Tobin said his staff is computing the effects that the failure of his commission plan will have on the budget for 1982 when the cost of the sewer division is restored to it.

"It depends on the actions of the City Council and what alternatives they come in with," he said. "The alternative to that will be additional layoffs."

Councillor LaRaia assailed the Water and Sewer Commission proposal as "the worst bill ever in the city."

"The mayor talks about wanting to help city employees yet he wants to exempt them from Civil Service," he said. "He wants the commissioners to be exempt from the conflict of interest laws."

"He wants to allow an unlimited number of jobs to his friends and unlimited salaries. The kicker is he wants to allow seven-year contracts to the favored few."

"The Patriot Ledger has given you a terrific reason why you should vote for it but they've said very little as to why you should vote against it."

"It is regrettable that the words used by the press are those used by the mayor's office. I wonder who writes the editorials in this city."

Councillor James A. Sheets expressed concern for the future of bonding for improvements to the sewer system, especially in his sections of West and South Quincy.

He noted that the city would have to come up with $500,000 as its share of a $3 to $5 million federal program for those areas which have already been chosen as target sites.

"If we lose those monies we are not going to have this chance again," he said.

"I have heard no proposal from this council. We have talked about a sewer user fee that can supply that money short of bonding. You can't expect sewer users to pay a half million dollars."

"I don't know anyone who is comfortable with a Water and Sewer Commission. It's not my first choice. But no one has come forth with a vehicle that provides for bonding."

"I don't care who comes up with it. I'm not going to see a program worth $3 to $5 million go down the drain because we are not able to resolve what has become a substantial political issue."

GOP City Committee Meeting

John Lakan, potential candidate for governor, will speak at the Republican City Committee meeting March 9 at 8 p.m., at Wollaston Methodist Church.

Ward meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Lakan will explain the politically pivotal position of Quincy in statewide politics, using past electoral statistics. He will also discuss his candidacy.

All interested persons are welcome. Refreshments will be served.

Study Refutes Asbestos Danger For Quincy Point

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

No, there was no "rain of asbestos" from the former Fore River Shipyard that exposed 70 or 80 percent of Quincy Point residents to possible cancer.

But, yes, exposure to asbestos has led to a higher number of cancer deaths among men who actually worked at the shipyard.

Those are the findings of a state Department of Public Health report, released last week, that examined cancer deaths in the city from 1969 to 1978.

The results pleased Rep. Robert Cerasoli and Councillor Daniel Raymond, who say sensational newspaper descriptions of the "rain of asbestos" in two newspapers (not The Sun), have needlessly concerned their neighborhood.

But, Sen. Paul Harold says the report proves nothing, and intends to push another, more in-depth, state-sponsored study.

The asbestos controversy has been lingering since February of 1980, when Dr. Irving Selikoff, a world-renowned expert on the effects of asbestos exposure, spoke at a Harvard University seminar.

Raymond feels that Selikoff's remarks on the dangers of asbestos exposure by shipyard workers became garbled by the two newspapers into statements that the entire Quincy Point community had been endangered before 1972, when asbestos use at the shipyard ended.

"Dr. Selikoff's findings are being translated into things that he never found," said Raymond. "If studies have to be done, they should be done professionally, not in the newspapers and not inflammatory."

As a result of the furor following reports of Selikoff's remarks, Cerasoli, Harold, Braintree state representative Elizabeth Metayer and Quincy Health Commissioner Dr. Robert McKeogh requested the DPH study.

The study analyzed Quincy death certificates filed with the DPH between 1969 and 1978, according to Gerald S. Parker, assistant commissioner of environmental health.

That method included some serious "shortcomings," Parker admitted last week, in a meeting with Quincy City Hospital staff members and local officials.

Death certificates, for example, don't indicate whether the deceased person smoked, which is important in determining the cause of cancer. Also, the study didn't have access to the lifelong residential and employment records of cancer victims, said Parker.

"We have no way of judging these things because the study didn't go into enough depth to handle these 'confounding factors,'" Parker said.

The only way to positively nail down the effect of these "confounding factors" is a door-to-door study of the Quincy Point neighborhood, Parker said.

A similar door-to-door study was recently conducted in Woburn to assess the effect of environmental health hazards there, Parker said. This "very expensive, very time-consuming" study involved a 40-page questionnaire for every resident, Parker said.

"We could have stopped the study after the first phase (where the Quincy study is now) and it would have given the same results," he added.

Parker estimated the cost of a similar study in Quincy Point at $500,000.

The recently concluded DPH study concluded that there is no evidence that persons were exposed to asbestos-related diseases just by living near the shipyard.

It cited the following evidence:

- Quincy cancer death rates were significantly higher among men, but not women. This would indicate that the higher rate of cancer is caused by on-the-job asbestos exposure, which would affect men, and not community-wide exposure, which would affect women and men equally.

- Only seven deaths -- six men and one woman -- were reported to be linked directly to asbestos exposure. None of the seven lived within one mile of the shipyard and three of the six were shipyard workers.

workers.

- Although the city as a whole showed an increase in cancer deaths in 1969-78, the increase occurred mainly among elderly men. This is the population group most likely to have worked at the shipyard during World War II, when employment peaked at around 32,000.

The report concluded, "we have not found evidence that living near the Quincy shipyard has resulted in excess deaths from cancer-related diseases. The observation that a higher proportion of a specific group of lung cancer cases had lived near the shipyard... may simply reflect the fact that people often live near their workplace."

Cerasoli and Raymond were pleased by results which seemed to disprove community-wide exposure to asbestos.

"I'm encouraged by the results," said Cerasoli. "It has found what we knew all along. I don't think any further study is going to find anything more."

"There's never been a study indicating that you can get cancer just from living near a shipyard," said Raymond. "And this study supports what we've been saying all along. I hope this puts the issue to rest."

"I don't think it really proves anything," said Sen. Paul Harold, citing the lack of smoking, employment and residency information in the study. "You can just about discount any percentages they came up with."

Harold said he would seek $40,000 to $50,000 in next year's state budget to fund a more in-depth study of cancer in Quincy. Harold said he hoped the study would use Quincy City Hospital records to analyze all cancer cases in Quincy, not just deaths, and trace former shipyard workers who may have moved out of town.

Dr. Gerald Rosenblatt, QCH chief of medicine, agreed with Harold's criticism of the DPH study.

"It's very vague," he said. "I don't think you can base any conclusions on it at all." Like Harold, he supported further study, using information available at the hospital.

"At this point, there isn't anything to find out," said Cerasoli. "The problem is gone, for all practical purposes."

Requirements Fulfilled License Board Dismisses Complaints Against Lodging House Owner

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board dismissed complaints Tuesday against the owner of an unlicensed lodging house at 553-555 Hancock St., after the owner fulfilled requirements set by the board last week.

Atty. John Corcoran, representing building owner Lawrence Mahoney of Quincy, told the board seven smoke detectors have been installed in the building, an unused truck that had been parked on the premises was sold, and an oil truck also kept on the premises is being parked at Woodward Spring Shop.

Corcoran also told the board

Mahoney plans to convert the building to a two family house.

Fire Chief Edward Barry had brought the matter of the unlicensed lodging house to the board's attention after a two alarm fire there caused $12,000 damage.

Mahoney, father of eight children, told the board last week he had been unaware he was in violation of the law with regard to a license and smoke detector and other requirements.

At this week's meeting, Chief Barry commented the situation seems to have been resolved and that Mahoney is now more knowledgeable of requirements.

Building Inspector Allan MacDonald suggested repairs to the damaged building begin as soon as possible.

Job Workshops For Displaced Homemakers Start March 11

The Women's Center of Quincy Junior College is presenting two series of workshops for displaced homemakers.

Displaced homemakers are people who have worked primarily as homemakers and have been supported by the income of their spouse. Due to death, disability, separation or divorce, the homemaker can no longer depend on the support of the spouse and must seek employment. Some have secured employment but consider themselves under-employed.

The workshops will deal with self-evaluation, life-planning and job search techniques. The group setting will also serve as a support to the participants as they go through the transition from unpaid homemaker to paid worker.

The evening workshops will meet every Wednesday beginning March 11 for eight weeks from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. at Quincy Junior College. The morning workshops will meet Fridays from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. beginning March 13 for eight weeks.

To reserve a place in either series, call Sheila deBettencourt by March 10 at 786-8777, ext. 791 or 397.

Babysitting Course Begins March 10 At H.N. Center

A seven-week babysitting course will be held Tuesdays, at 3 p.m. beginning March 10, at the Houghs Neck Community Center, 1193 Sea St.

The course is open to all male and female junior high students.

The first class will be led by Joan Field, a 4-H club worker. Other course leaders and their subjects will be Anne McFadd, pediatric nurse at the Manet Community Health Center, child care and safety; Lt. Robert Kelley of the Quincy Fire Department, fire safety.

In addition, a nutritionist will lead a class on proper food for young children's snacks and a crafts instructor will lead a class on crafts to keep young children occupied.

The last two classes will be devoted to a toddlers party and a graduation party to which parents will be invited April 21.

Graduates of the course will receive a 4-H certificate stating that they are qualified baby sitters.

The names of those who complete the course will be kept on file at the center for anyone seeking a babysitter.

* The course also qualifies girls for a girl scout badge.

Pre-registration is necessary as class size is limited to 12.

For more information and to register, contact Patricia Riden at the Houghs Neck Community Center or call her at 471-8251.

Susan Kerman Returns From Study In Jerusalem

Susan Kerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kerman, of 18 Lowe St., Quincy Point, has just returned from studying at Brandeis University's Jacob Hiatt Institute in Jerusalem.

A fall-semester, undergraduate program which offers students the opportunity to study Israeli culture, politics, history, and social structure and to complement this study with extensive travel throughout the country.

Established in 1961 under the sponsorship of Brandeis University, the Jacob Hiatt Institute in Jerusalem provides American students with a vigorous academic program geared to individual needs and study trips to various parts of the country. Options for field research and internship placements in the community further individualize this highly popular program.

Miss Kerman is a member of the class of 1982 at Brandeis where she is majoring in psychology.

South Shore Camp Fire Annual Meeting March 9

A South Shore girl who saved her brother's life will receive a special award for courage at the 45th annual meeting of the South Shore Council Camp Fire Monday, March 9, at the Ridder Country Club, Whitman.

Jody Baker, a ninth grade Camp Fire member from Hanover, saved her brother's life in an amusement park accident last summer. She is one of only 11 award recipients throughout the country.

The meeting will begin with a cocktail hour 6 to 7 p.m., followed by a gourmet buffet.

After dinner, a brief business meeting will include installation of new officers and new members of the board of directors of the council.

Tenure and National Camp Fire Awards will then be presented to volunteers who have distinguished themselves in the organization.

Interested and involved business people, community leaders and candy sale achievers will also be recognized.

Retirement Party Held For Marion Mahoney

Mrs. Marion Mahoney of Quincy was guest of honor recently at a coffee hour held upon her retirement from the Quincy Retirement Office where she was employed for 12 years.

The party was given by her co-workers.

Mrs. Mahoney is the widow of the late Mr. John Mahoney who worked for the Quincy School Department.

EMERGENCY CALL FOR HELP

It could be fatally time-consuming to search through a phone book for a number during an emergency. Have them posted in an obvious place near the telephone.

If it's night and the lights won't work or you've been blinded by smoke, dial "operator". I feel for the dial opening just beneath the finger stop and pull around. If you've got a push-button phone know where the "0" is located - now!

Here are major points to cover in an emergency call for help.

1. Tell where it happened. Give your complete address. Repeat it. A brief description of the house will help, especially at night.
2. Tell what happened. Is your house on fire? Is someone bleeding badly? Has someone had a heart attack?
3. Tell who you are. This is important where the emergency is not obvious from the outside, especially in an apartment house. Also, a neighbor is more likely to know your name than your number.

Money Awaiting 582 Residents, Firms

The office of State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane is seeking 582 Quincy residents and firms who have unclaimed money belonging to them.

Statewide, over 53,000 persons are due to receive over $33 million dollars, Crane announces.

Under the state's Unclaimed Money Law, accounts that have been inactive for seven years are turned over to the state, which tries to locate the owners.

Most unclaimed accounts range between $25 and $100, Crane said. However, 348 accounts statewide are worth over $10,000 and the largest is worth over $252,000.

Persons on the list should contact the State Treasurer's office at 523-1042.

The Quincy list, which includes both Quincy persons and accounts in Quincy-based banks, is:

How to claim your money.

If your name appears on the State Treasurer's Unclaimed Money list published in today's newspaper, call or write:

State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane
12th Floor McCormack Building
1 Ashburton Place
Boston, MA 02108

Telephone:
523-1042

Outside Metropolitan Boston:
1-800-632-8027

To facilitate processing your claim, Treasurer Crane urges you to include your name as listed in the newspaper, your address and identification number (if printed in the paper) on all communications.

Unclaimed Money lists will be available at most city and town Treasurers' offices.

Owners of abandoned property need not pay a finder's fee to anyone to claim what is rightfully theirs.

Citizens Of Quincy

Should The City Gamble With Your Life And Property?

The citizens of Quincy have now voted for Proposition 2½, which demands property tax reductions. These same taxpayers are also saying their vote was to cut the fat in City Government, not the bone in public safety.

THESE ARE THE FACTS

The present manning of apparatus in the City of Quincy is below the standards set by the National Fire Protection Association. (NFPA) 1 officer, 4 fire fighters.

The 1974 insurance service organization report on the City of Quincy recommended a 20% increase in the manning of apparatus in this city but instead the city has decreased manpower.

Last year, 1980, the Fire Department lost seven (7) jobs thru attrition, and so far this year there have been five (5) retirements. In this years budget Chief Barry recommended that the present manpower be maintained.

Last year the Firefighters of the City of Quincy gave back to the city monies awarded to them in negotiations and deferred payments on other monies due them which amounted to about one half million dollars.

In the past ten years the number of alarms has increased steadily, also injuries are presently at an all time high which coincides with studies that low manpower contributes to more injuries. Also fire deaths are at an all time high.

The City of Quincy is now in the Midst of the biggest building boom in years, in the past year alone there has been about one million dollars worth of new projects scheduled to begin. This is a time when the Fire Department should be strengthened and not depleted.

STARTING TUESDAY EVENING YOUR FIREFIGHTERS WILL BE GOING DOOR TO DOOR WITH A PETITION FOR YOUR SIGNATURE FOR THE PURPOSE TO ADVISE OUR ELECTED OFFICE-HOLDERS THAT YOU DO NOT WANT CUTS IN YOUR PUBLIC SAFETY.

Bragg is also angry at the diggers who come in for the good tides and disappear when the work is slow.

"What do they care? They tear up the beaches all summer then go back to school or their own jobs as soon as the winter comes. They don't care what size clams they take."

"But they ought to have a license. You pay $50 for a license. You see a guy diggin' beside you without one, it gets you kind of mad."

To a newcomer slogging across the mudflats in leaky boots, Bragg's anger may seem unwarranted. After all, it's public mud.

But to anyone familiar with Bragg's efforts to make clam-digging a more respected and profitable job, his anger may be less puzzling.

"Quincy has the best clams in the world," Bragg says with a pride that could only baffle a leaky booter nursing a sore back.

Bragg is no uncouth laborer toiling in the mud because he doesn't know anything better. He's not big, burly and loud.

Chet Bragg is five feet five inches tall and generally mild-mannered. He doesn't smoke and rarely drinks.

Chet and his wife, Jean, moved to Houghs Neck in 1946 after he returned from the war. He had served in France as a half-track driver in an armored division, and was awarded the Bronze Star.

After the war, he went to work as an interstate truck driver, and dug clams part time with his brother, who owned a shucking house in Dorchester.

"In those days this was open digging," he said, meaning that clams did not require treatment before going to market.

He became a full-time, income tax paying clamdigger in 1971, and says he loves the work.

"You're outside. You don't have to punch a clock. And you're your own boss."

"If you want a day off, you take it."

But, in fact, Bragg works seven days a week, rain or shine. "He never misses a tide," said Ayer.

And when Bragg tried to dig clams on Wollaston Beach in 1971, he found that he does have a boss. The state said Wollaston Beach is contaminated, and the clams can't be dug.

Commercial digging is currently permitted only on a small stretch of the beach from Rice Rd. south and a smaller area from Williams Rd. north. The mile of beach in between has been off-limits to diggers since 1969, when the state Health Department closed it because of high coliform bacteria counts at the mouths of eight storm drains. Pollution was seeping from old sewers into the drains, and washing into Quincy Bay after heavy rainfalls.

Bragg, with the aid of then Mayor Walter J. Hannon, asked the Health Dept in 1972, to test the shellfish as well as the waters at the mouths of the drains.

The Health Department refused, and Chester Bragg's one man seige was on.

In 1972 he illegally dug clams in a closed section of Squantum, informing authorities of his intention. He hoped his arrest would lead to a test case in court. His arrest led only to a $100 fine.

He then hired a lawyer and sued the Public Health Department charging that it had no right to close Wollaston Beach without testing the clams for contamination. His suit charges that the closing was an economic hardship on diggers.

He lost. A Suffolk Superior Court Judge ruled that until discharge of raw sewage through the storm drains was corrected, Public Health did not have to test the shellfish.

Bragg, at the time, said his "last resort" would be an appeal to Governor Francis Sargent. That appeal was rejected.

And so he sought a new "last resort." He reported the sewer problem to the state Department of Natural Resources, Division of Water Pollution Control, pointing out that the bacteria presented a danger to bathers as well as an economic hardship for diggers.

Natural Resources ordered Quincy to trace the source of pollution and correct the problem.

The city replaced hundreds of feet of sewer pipe and put new "sleeves" in other lines in the area. The level of contamination has dropped, according to Peter Harrington, shellfish sanitation director for the state Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering.

The frustrating part for Bragg is that many officials agree that the beach could be opened.

City Health Commissioner Robert P. McKeogh said, "I personally feel it should be opened for winter digging."

"My feeling, however, is that 50 percent of the clams don't even make it to the depuration plant," he added.

Winthrop Wade, Health Department director of environmental affairs said Wollaston beach is loaded with clams. "They're killing each other in there they're so thick," he said. "If I had the ability, I'd open it to winter digging."

Harrington conceded, in a telephone interview, that state contamination standards are very conservative. "But we're stuck with the standards we've developed," he said. "All standards are conservative," he added.

Chet didn't buy that answer 10 years ago. He isn't buying it now. He cites a 1972 Federal Food and Drug Administration study of the Newburyport depuration plant, the facility where clams dug in mildly contaminated areas are submerged for 48 hours in seawater treated with ultraviolet light. The study found that clams twice as contaminated as those presently allowed are effectively cleaned during the process.

Investigators recommended that the state consider relaxing its standards accordingly; but no changes were made.

Chet Bragg still can't sink his fork into what may be the richest clamflats in Quincy Bay.

Tobin: Will He Or Won't He?

Will he or won't he?

That's the big question on Quincy's political scene. He, of course, being Mayor Arthur Tobin. And will he or won't he seek a third term, the question.

Reports keep popping up that Tobin may get an appointment: a judgeship or clerk of courts job. Or, maybe something else.

But sources close to Tobin insist that if Gov. Edward King has called, no one heard the phone ring. However, they say, others have called regarding the rumors.

TOBIN

If Tobin were to be named a judge, it would kind of climax an Horatio Alger-like story. For a poor kid in a family of 10 out of Houghs Neck he has done a little ladder climbing: city councillor, state representative, state senator and mayor of his native city.

At the present time, however, Tobin doesn't have a black robe hanging in his closet. And, to the best of anyone's knowledge, he hasn't even tried one on.

There are days when Tobin looks and talks like a candidate for re-election. Those are the days especially, when the subject matter is projects now underway and projects he hopes to land for Quincy in the future.

Then there are days when you wonder. Those are the days when Proposition 2½ looks like a whirling windmill waiting to decapitate someone's political head.

Who would really want to be mayor in times like this, you can't help ask. You could probably interest more people in juggling sticks of dynamite than sitting in the mayor's hot seat.

Well, will Tobin run? Right now, those around him think he will.

As one of them noted: "You don't see anyone warming up in the bullpen."

PETER O'CONNELL's name is being mentioned as a possible mayoral contender this year, but scratch him from the race.

The young, personable Quincy developer was approached to consider a bid.

But O'Connell said "thanks, but no." He's too busy putting up buildings.

It's highly unlikely he would run against Tobin, anyway.

Would he ever run for mayor?

"Well," he smiles, "maybe someday when I'm not so busy."

Readers Forum

The primary reason for writing this letter is to thank the parents, Library and School Department personnel, the Special Needs Children themselves, and The Quincy Sun for their participation in the month long activities.

The month has now closed, and I think many people have been made more aware of the Special Needs Child and will be more sensitive to their needs and abilities. Having done this, our challenge now is to accept these children and adults into all segments of our community, not with special consideration because they are handicapped, but rather with the same

Declining Enrollment, Prop. 2½ Reason

Creedon Sees One High School By 1986

By TOM HENSHAW

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon sees Quincy as a city with only one high school, possibly as early as 1986.

Declining enrollment and Proposition 2½ are to blame.

"Five years from now," Dr. Creedon told The Quincy Sun in an interview, "the school population will be such that we can consolidate into one high school."

"If Prop 2½ stays in place and no major modifications are made we could be forced to do that whether we want to or not. There just isn't any money."

"If we got into the one high school situation then the obvious choice would be to have the academic high school at North Quincy and a small undergraduate vo tech program at Quincy."

Dr. Creedon said the breaking point between one and two high schools is an enrollment of 1,000 in each, a situation that is expected to prevail by 1985.

"If the community wanted to support two high schools for identification or tradition and all that, fine. But it would be very expensive," he said.

"If 2½ stays in place, I don't see any alternative to consolidation." Unfortunately, said Dr. Creedon, the Vo Tech School and the most recent addition to North Quincy High School were built in the wrong places.

"The Vo Tech School should have been put on an independent site as recommended by Arthur D. Little Co.," he said, "so that it could become the cornerstone of a new comprehensive high school campus.

"If the new North Quincy complex had been built as a separate campus it would have opened up a lot of alternatives to us in our current situation."

"It could have become a junior high school and the Quincy, Parker, Massachusetts Fields and Beechwood Knoll Schools closed and those kids sent to Atlantic Junior."

"If a new North Quincy High School had been built we could have been negotiating with the state to buy the old site for the South Shore Community College and closed the Quincy Junior College."

"Or we could have been dealing with developers to turn the building into part of the State Street South complex or used it as a unique senior citizens apartment house."

"What we did was the worst of all; we added on to the back of the building."

Dr. Creedon promised that new and startling disclosures about the future of the school system will be made at the School Committee meeting March 11.

"North Quincy now has a faculty of 96 classroom teachers," he said. "It will be down to 52. That's a 46 per cent cut. This is all in response to the first year requirements of 2½."

What happens in the second and third years?

"We go out of business," he said. "We have been accused of using scare tactics. These are not scare tactics at all. This is the way it is."

"If Prop 2½ stays in, our budget has to be reduced from $32 million to $20 million effective July 1, and $5 million more the July after that, and $3 to $5 million the year after that."

"That means in two years we are talking about cutting the budget from $33 million to something less than $15 million. We're not in business."

"The high school curriculum is being destroyed. We'll announce that Wednesday. We're stripping it right down, dropping art, music and physical education."

"The North Quincy and Quincy bands will probably be gone in three years. We have no way to teach kids instrumental music in Grades 4, 5 and 6. That's when they get hooked."

Dr. Creedon said the end isn't in sight yet for cuts in the school programs this year.

"Laying off 500 teachers isn't the end," he said. "Closing five schools isn't the end for this year either."

"The School Committee just cut $7.6 million. I have $1.9 million in cuts before them now. If they cut everything I've recommended so far, we will still be short $2.8 million."

"Close more schools, increase teacher-pupil ratio some more, eliminate athletics, that's all that's left."

"If we close five more schools, increase teacher-pupil ratio by five and eliminate varsity and junior varsity athletics, that will save us $1.3 to $1.5 million."

"We'd still be short a million or so. And when we reach that, then we start working on cutting another $5 million for 1982-83 and $3 to $5 million for 1983-84."

City, Fore River Reach Agreement On Assessment Case

Moments before the case was to be heard by the State Appellate Tax Board, the city of Quincy and the Bethlehem Steel Co. reached a settlement that reduced the assessment on the Fore River Shipyard by more than $2 million.

Bethlehem had sought an abatement of $5 million from the assessed valuation of $9.8 million for each of the years 1946 and 1947, a move which, if successful, would have cost the city $300,000 in tax revenue for the two years.

Instead, the company won an abatement to $8.6 million for 1946 and $8.5 million for 1947 and the city agreed that the assessment for 1948 and 1949 would be set at $7.6 million. The settlement cost Quincy $66,300 in tax revenue.

NORTH BEATS QUINCY

Bobby Pettinelli held North Quincy star Sid Cedrone scoreless but the Raiders still wallowed Quincy, 33-22, to run their season's record to 13-20 on the eve of the Tech Tournament. Al Strecker had 16 points for North.

The North Quincy lineup included: Al Strecker, Norm Nelson, Frank Hines, forwards; Tom Finnegan, center; Sid Cedrone, Richie Sullivan, guards.

The Quincy lineup included: Dick Granville, Pete Lura, DiNardo, guards; Ralph Beaton, center; Al Pasquale, Bobby Pettinelli, forwards.

BUDGET TRIMMED

The City Council's Finance Committee chopped $40,460 more from Mayor Charles A. Ross' 1948 budget, bringing it down to $7,601,524, up nearly $700,000 over the previous year.

Included in the latest cuts were $15,000 for improvements at City Hospital and $1,800 for the police new equipment account.

NEW SHOW AT CAPITOL

"The Voice of the Turtle," starring Ronald Reagan, Eleanor Parker, Eve Arden and Wayne Morris, and described as "the hit with 1,000 kisses — and a laugh for everyone," opened at the Capitol Theater.

NEW CONTRACT FOR YARD

The Fore River Shipyard landed a $1.5 million contract for conversion of the SS Panama from wartime to peacetime purposes, the third such job for the Panama Line after SS Ancon and SS Cristobal.

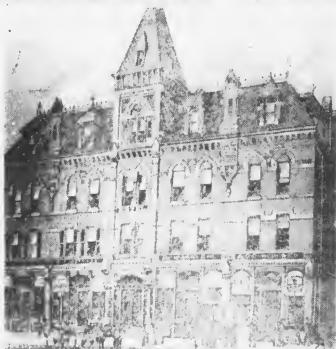

EQUAL PAY RULE

The School Committee placed in effect a new rule, approved by voters at the 1947 election, that would grant equal pay to women teachers in the Quincy school system. Its cost was pegged at $87,000 a year.

Faith Lutheran, Good Shepherd Schedule Union Lenten Services

Faith Lutheran Church and Church of the Good Shepherd will hold union services during Lent on the theme, "You Are My Beloved" Wednesdays, March 11 to April 8, at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Darrell Urban and Rev. James Kimmell together with members of the two congregations will explore what Christ's baptism means to them.

Vespers will be used at all services with a short meditation on the theme following the lesson.

Each minister will preach at his own church.

Schedule of sermons at the services will be:

March 11, "Response," at Good Shepherd Church, 308 West Squantum St.

March 18, "Commitment," at Faith Center, 65 Roberts St.

March 25, "Choices" at Good Shepherd Church.

April 1, "Reaction," at Faith Center.

April 8, "Sacrifice" at Good Shepherd Church.

During Holy Week, each congregation will hold services at its own church.

St. John's To Begin Film Series Sunday

St. John's Adult Education Committee is sponsoring a free film series, "Faith in a Time of Crisis" Sundays at 8 p.m. during Lent beginning this week-end.

The films, to be shown at St. John's School, Phipps St., deal with the faith struggle of a famous person.

The six films make up a series produced by BBC TV and narrated by Malcolm Muggeridge.

The first film is about scientist and philosopher Blaise Pascal. It shows his struggle to preserve the idea of man as a moral person in a world intent on degrading him to the level of a machine.

Subsequent films will be on: Dietrich Bonhoeffer, March 15; Leo Tolstoy, March 22; St. Augustine, March 29; Soren Kierkegaard, April 5; William Blake, April 12.

Refreshments will be served. The series is open to all.

Squantum Church Holds First Lenten Service

The First Church of Squantum held its first Lenten service Sunday, three days before Lent began.

"Our Lenten devotion will focus on the final week of Jesus' Life this year so we needed the extra Sunday to get all of our themes in," explained Rev. Dr. Gene Langevin, Pastor. "Besides, it gave us a little headstart on getting ourselves ready to observe Lent."

Dr. Langevin spoke on, "Behavior Not Quite Fitting," a sermon based on the story of Jesus Cleansing the Temple. The Chancel Choir sang "The Heart Worships" with music by Gustav Holst and words by Alice Buckton.

Stewart and Mary Scott were greeters for the morning. The Fellowship Hour was hosted by Lorraine Josselyn, Renee Johnson and Adelaide Nelson.

The church sponsored its first Lenten program on Ash Wednesday. These programs will be held 6:45 to 8 p.m. alternately on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. The theme will be "What It Means To Be A Christian."

Next Sunday's service begins at 10:15 a.m. It will include the Lord's Supper.

Study Program On Prayer At Sacred Heart School

Fr. Thomas DiLorenzo will present a bible study program on prayer Fridays at 7:45 p.m. during Lent beginning this week at Sacred Heart School, North Quincy.

Only those who feel that they don't really know how to pray, at times are invited to attend.

The series concludes April 10.

'High Risk' Plan Underway To Save QJC

(Cont'd from Page 1)

Dr. Creedon said the career tech courses were switched from the Vo Tech School to the junior college because "it didn't look like we could support the 13th and 14th years."

We had to ask the question: With Prop 2½, could the community spend $400,000 to $500,000 to underwrite the 13th and 14th year programs at the expense of undergraduate programs?" he said. "The answer is no."

He said the Grade 13 and 14 students can afford the $1,650 tuition if they are made aware of the government grants and private scholarship aid that is available to them.

One of the keys to the program is the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant (BEOG), the largest federal scholarship program which offers awards from $200 to $1,050 on the basis of need alone.

"The success of this venture, ironically enough," said Dr. Creedon, "rests with Ronald Reagan. If he pulls out the supports on the BEOG program the junior college is out of business."

A projected budget for the junior college for 1981-82 put together by Deyeso lists $2,432,503 in salaries and expenses and receipts of $2,470,173.

Included in the receipts is a token $25,000 development fund, around which much of the success of the plan will revolve. Development fund is colleges for private donations.

"We have indicated in the projected budget that we are going to pick up a minimum of $25,000," says Deyeso. "Our anticipation is that we will have to go up to $125,000 or $200,000 to make sure the college is solvent."

"This is an effort whereby we go out to business, industry and personal contacts to ask people to continue to support the college by way of endowments or support for the services we offer them."

"If we don't get the support that we anticipate from some of the organizations we service with our graduates then the future of the junior college is going to be very tight."

Deyeso told the School Committee last week that the tuition hikes at the junior college are "all reasonable increase - they're way behind the times."

Not so reasonable may be Deyeso's proposal to increase workload for 49 teachers at QJC. These teachers would teach six courses instead of the usual five, and be paid the part-time rate of $810 for the sixth course.

Quincy Education Association president to Ann O'Malley called that proposal "a clear violation of the contract."

Impact bargaining on the proposal as it effected hours, wages and working conditions of QJC instructors was scheduled to begin this week, Mrs. O'Malley said.

We had an indication from Mr. Deyeso that this was coming," said Mrs. O'Malley. "We also had an indication that teachers at QJC might be asked to give up their 7 per cent raises (for 1981-82) to keep their college going." This has not been proposed by Deyeso.

Creedon told the committee they must take five steps to assure QJC's changeover to a self-supporting institution.

- Approve the revolving fund, already agreed to by school administrators and the city Solicitor's office. (They did.)

- Approve the transfer of the post-graduate vocational courses from Vo Tech to QJC.

- Accept the new tuition rates placed before the committee by Deyeso.

- Approve the increased workload for the 49 instructors.

- Grant school administrators the ability to solicit financial support for some endangered programs. For example, Creedon told the committee, the private firm now managing Quincy City Hospital has donated $130,400 towards the QJC nursing program.

The committee took no action on the last four proposals.

The switch to a revolving account will mean not just a new source of funding, said Deyeso, but "a new era."

"The college is no longer financially protected," Deyeso told the committee. "It shall exist by the dint of its own efforts. It shall have to find and or create markets. It shall have to adjust its organization to reflect these markets and it shall have to strive for excellence in a highly competitive field. The future of the college will depend upon its ability to cater to current community needs and seek supportive funds which speak to community support."

Other Quincy Public School programs now endangered because of Proposition 2½ may end up under the jurisdiction of QJC, Creedon said.

They include adult and community education, Summer-scene and the Lincoln Hancock Community School.

Firefighters: 'There's Going To Be A Disaster In This City'

(Cont'd from Page 1)

In a full-page advertisement in the Quincy Sun this week announcing the drive, the union claimed "the city of Quincy is now in the midst of the biggest building boom in years. In the past year alone there has been about $1 million worth of new projects scheduled to begin. This is a time when the Fire Department should be strengthened and not depleted."

The ad asked, "Citizens of Quincy: should the city gamble with your life and property?"

Tobin commented, "I'm a little perturbed that these union leaders can go up to the city labor negotiator and say they understand the problem, they understand 2½, these are not easy times and they have sympathy for the mayor, and then turn around and take out these newspaper ads just to feather their own nests."

"If the firefighters union were telling the truth, they would tell you that the fire department has taken the least percentage cut of any department in the city," said Tobin.

Low Income Residents Eligible

Quincy CAP Now In Kennedy Oil Program

By BERNIE O'DONNELL
Quincy low-income residents are now eligible for their share of the seven million gallons of home heating oil that Joseph Kennedy says is waiting to be used by his Citizens Energy Program.

Kennedy visited the offices of the Quincy Community Action program Monday to announce the Quincy organization's involvement in Citizens Energy and to iron out details with local oil retailers.

Income eligibility guidelines for the Kennedy oil program are identical to those for the state's energy assistance program, already being administered by Community Action, said Director Rosemary Wahlberg.

Mrs. Wahlberg said that her organization's small size prevented it from taking part in Citizens Energy until now, late in the program's second winter.

"We're just a small CAP," she said. "We just didn't have enough money to process all the applications for this."

According to Kennedy, bureaucratic bottlenecks and paperwork have held up delivery of seven million of the 10 million gallons available in Massachusetts since October.

That oil was sold to the state for 44 cents per gallon by Citizens Energy.

The Kennedy program purchases crude oil in Venezuela at the same price as commercial dealers, refines it and ships it to the United States. The gasoline and residual products are sold to commercial dealers at normal prices, and the profits from those sales are used to roll back prices on the heating oil.

Oil dealers who normally deliver oil to the income-eligible participants are paid 15 cents per gallon for delivery by Citizens Energy.

"There are seven or eight oil companies making over $2 billion a year in profits," Kennedy told about 30 oil dealers at the CAP office in the former St. John's School Monday. "You see Exxon making $5.6 billion, another company making $4 billion, two or three companies making $3 billion. And yet we see the price of home heating oil in Massachusetts going up."

"I know no one in this room is enjoying those profit margins and profit levels, and yet you have to bear the brunt of the anger against the oil companies."

"You are the ones who know that there is just no way some of your customers will be able to pay the bill. So you have to make the choice to pump the oil and keep the little old lady warm, or cut her off. You're not being placed in a very fair position."

Because of the bottlenecks that have prevented the oil's delivery, Kennedy said, the program has been altered somewhat to encourage more oil dealers to take part.

Another problem, he said, was lack of public awareness of the program.

"There are about 441,000 families in the state that are eligible and only 47,000 have signed up," he said. "That means that for every family taking part, ten more are eligible."

Peter Davis Marches In Parade

Peter W. Davis of Quincy, who joined the U.S. Navy just last September, recently marched in the Jan. 20 Presidential Inauguration parade in Washington, D.C.

A Navy Fireman Recruit, Davis was one of 89 sailors from the Orlando, Fla., Naval Training Center chosen to march in the parade.

Davis, 20, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Frank Davis of 148 Spring St. Houghs Neck and a 1978 graduate of Quincy Vo-Tech.

The members of the Inaugural Drill team were selected from the ranks of young sailors who had just completed Recruit Training and were awaiting further training in Orlando. The unit trained for two weeks to prepare themselves for the 1.5-mile march down historic Pennsylvania Avenue from the Capitol to the White House.

Family Services Moves To Cliveden St.

The Family Service Association's (FSA's) South Shore Office has moved from 1159 Hancock St. to One Cliveden St., Quincy Center.

The FSA offers a Family Life Education program (FLE) and therapy groups for adults and young adults. The FLE conducts workshops for the residents of Quincy and surrounding communities. The therapy groups help with problems such as divorce, alcoholism and leaving home.

The cost of counseling and workshops is calculated on a sliding fee scale which considers factors such as family size and income.

For information about FSA's Quincy office, call Elizabeth Kelley at 471-0630.

400 Smoke Detectors Available In Atlantic

The Atlantic Neighborhood Smoke Detector Installation Program announces new income-eligible guidelines effective immediately.

The program has installed over 400 detectors in the Atlantic target area so far. With the new guidelines, there are another 400 detectors available for this area.

A city ordinance requires installation of smoke detectors in every dwelling in the city, effective January 1. Any residential structure in the city not having a proper smoke alarm system at this time is in violation of the ordinance.

This program provides a visit to your home by Atlantic fire station personnel to inspect and determine the number and location of detectors necessary for your home.

Applications for the program are available at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 245 Atlantic St., North Quincy, 773-1380, ext. 328., between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. This application is necessary to determine your eligibility.

Residents will be served on a first-come, first-serve basis.

The income eligibility guidelines are as follows:

Household size of one person, maximum gross income of $14,500; household size of two, $16,500; three, $18,650; four, $20,700; five, $22,000; six, $23,300; seven, $24,600 and eight or over, $25,900.

Shui Seto Of NQHS Wins VFW Oratorical Contest

The city-wide winner of the George F. Bryan Post's Voice of Democracy contest was a North Quincy High senior who came to this country just seven years ago from Hong Kong.

Shui (Henry) Seto of North Quincy won the City Medal and a $500 scholarship in the oratorical contest sponsored annually by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Winners were announced by Arthur McLean, contest chairman.

Other winners, who split $950 in scholarship prizes, are Timothy Allen and Stephen Cahill of North Quincy High School and Deborah Barkhouse, Cheryl Magee and Jeffrey Moy of Quincy High School.

Students wrote and delivered speeches on the topic, "My Commitment To Democracy."

Seto, who didn't know any English when his family moved from Hong Kong to Quincy seven years ago, now speaks perfect English.

He is a member of the tennis team and president of the Science Club and hopes to major in premed next year at either Boston University or Boston College.

Edward Flaherty Completes A. F. Training

Airman Edward G. Flaherty, son of Mrs. Carol A. Flaherty of 175 Beale St., Wollaston, has been assigned to Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, after completing Air Force basic training.

During the six weeks at Lackland Air Force Base, Texas, he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special training in human relations.

In addition, airmen who complete basic training earn credits toward an associate degree in applied science through the Community College of the Air Force.

Flaherty will now receive specialized instruction in the accounting and finance field.

Raiders Move Into Tourney Semi-Finals

North Quincy boys' basketball team won its last six games of the regular season and finished second in the Suburban League.

Coach Ed Miller knew the Raiders would have plenty of momentum going into the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

North continued to fly in the tourney and, with that momentum continuing, it moved into the South Div. I semifinals last night (Wednesday) against a powerful Boston English team.

If the Raiders got by English (16-3) they will play the Boston College High-New Bedford winner for the South championship Saturday at 4 p.m. at Brockton High.

North Quincy advanced to the semifinals when it upset unbeaten Plymouth-Carver (20-0 and one of the top-seeded teams), 54-51, last Saturday.

"This was just an outstanding team effort," a happy Miller said. "The radio station which broadcast the game gives a Most Valuable Player trophy, but the announcers couldn't pick one out and gave it to our entire team."

This was sweet revenge for us. They had beaten us by two points in the finals of their Christmas Tournament, but everyone played with super poise today and our bench came through for us."

Two big plays clinched the win in the final seconds. Chip Bunker, 6-9 center who has come along fast and has been playing superb ball, blocked a Plymouth-Carver shot which would have pulled the Blue Eagles to within one point.

Then, when North, leading, 53-51, was called for traveling, P-C had the ball out of bounds with 11 seconds left but North played tight and the Blue Eagles couldn't find an open man and the ball went out of bounds. Paul Gill, who had 15 points, sank the first shot of a one-and-one and North had the big win.

Mark Millane, North's high scorer, had 14 points and Bunker, who again rebounded well and blocked some key shots, had 10.

"We didn't have an exceptional first half," said Miller. "They were forcing us to take outside shots. But Millane, Gill, Paul Mallory and Rico MacTaggart did an excellent job shooting from the perimeter."

Millane hit on two short jumpers to give North its biggest lead, 45-41, going into the final period.

"We wanted them to go man-toman and we forced them to foul and we made our free throws," Miller said.

"I told them to watch Felton (6-7 Andre, who had 20 points) and told Millane to get in closer and that caused them to foul."

North had opened tournament play by displaying an awesome defense and defeating Braintree, 46-39, avenging last year's defeat when Braintree ousted the Raiders from the tournament.

North's 2-3 zone defense worked to perfection and its zone press also hurt Braintree. The Raiders prevented the Wamps from getting inside and their outside shooting was off.

"We felt our defense would be as strong as ever," said Miller, "but we also expected to get some offense going with it. We just weren't taking any shots in the first half, although we had some pretty good ones to take. We finally had to hold on, even though we had chances to break the game open."

North, dominating the offensive boards, took a 12-9 first period lead. It held Braintree to two points in the second period but scored only six itself for a 18-11 halftime lead.

Sports

Braintree cut the gap to two points in the third period but Bunker scored inside and talented guard Gill, the team's quarterback, scored and fed his mates for other baskets and the Raiders pulled ahead, 36-24, going into the final session.

Gill fouled out with 3:46 to play and the flow of the game changed in a hurry.

"We just wanted to shorten the game when Gill was out," Miller said. "He's the heart of our offense. We wanted (Bob) Bolster to handle the ball at that point."

Bolster scored to give North a 40-31 lead but Braintree then got hot and closed the gap to three points 1:39 left.

The Wamps took a timeout but, in trying to inbound the ball, North's Wes Paul made the defensive play of the game, stepping in front of the inbound man and stealing the ball. Braintree didn't get another field goal.

High scoring Millane was held to four points but Bolster scored 13 and Bunker scored 12 in addition to shining on the boards and blocking several shots. Gill added nine points.

Tozzi: 'Unbelievable Season'

Raiderettes Win 2nd Straight Track Title

By TOM SULLIVAN

The North Quincy girls' track team, with only four seniors, capped off another fantastic season last Friday when it won its second straight state championship at Harvard.

Lou Tozzi's Raiderettes, who shared the title with Needham last year, won with 52 points. Peabody was runnerup with 33 and Falmouth had 26. Forty-eight schools competed in Div. I.

Earlier the North girls had won their second straight state relays championship and their second undefeated Suburban League title in a row.

"This was just an unbelievable season," Tozzi said. "Although only eight girls scored in the state meet, all underclassmen, everyone of our 39 girls contributed. Every girl showed up for the meet, we had a fine cheering section and a lot of parents and friends of the girls were on hand. The spirit was wonderful."

"The girls had a motto, 'Aim for the top,' and I told them to always be motivated and enthusiastic and they certainly were."

North broke three meet records, Nancy McCarthy in the 600, Karen Crehan in the high jump and the mile relay team.

McCarthy, a junior, won in 1:24.8. The old mark had been 1:25.7.

Crehan, also a junior, did 5-6 1/2 in the high jump, bettering the old mark of 5-6 1/4.

The relay team of juniors Karen Lindenfelzer, Deirdre Donovan, McCarthy and Mary Kate Kennedy set a record of 4:00.6. The old mark was 4:02.7.

Junior Michelle Millane completed an undefeated season in the shot put, winning with a toss of 40 feet, 9 1/4 inches.

Two sophomores, Sheila Barrett and Linda Kennedy, broke the school record in the two-mile as Barrett finished fourth in 11:18.1 and Kennedy fifth in 11:19.5. The old record, held by Kennedy, was 11:26.

Donovan received a cruel break in the 600. Leading by 15 yards in the seeded heat, she fell with 10 yards to go and was unable to finish. "This was a real tough break for her as she would have finished at least second and she may have won," Tozzi said.

Mary Kate Kennedy finished third in the 300 in 37.2.

"I want to thank my assistants, George Liset and Bart Petracca, and also the junior high coaches, Ron Adams and Ralph Koelsch" Tozzi said.

NORTH QUINCY girls' track team last week won the state championship for the second year in a row and earlier had won the state relays title for the second straight year. Helping the team to the two titles as well as the second straight Suburban League crown were, front, left to right, Nancy McCarthy, Sheila Barrett, Robyn O'Donnell, Mary Crehan, Deirdre Donovan and Karen Lindenfelzer. Back, Michelle Millane, Linda Kennedy, Mary Kate Kennedy, Kara Krehan and Maria McGurl.

MDA Lucky Total Contest At Olindy's

Olindy's Lanes, operated by John, James and Stephen Mezzetti, will hold its fourth annual Lucky Total Contest for the benefit of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

John Mezzetti will bowl three strings on March 16 and again on March 30. Four bowling balls and a bag will be awarded each time to the person who matches or comes closest to Mezzetti's three-string total. In the event of a tie, the winner will be selected by a drawing. Guesses entered for the first contest will still be eligible for the second contest.

Each guesser will pay 50 cents, which will be donated to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Olindy's has collected more than $1700 in three years to fight muscle-crippling diseases. MDA provides wheelchairs and other orthopedic appliances, clinic visits and special summer camp sessions to people throughout the South Shore.

For further information call Olindy's at 472-3597.

The Atlanta Braves in 1981 will have 2 starting pitchers whose combined ages are 84! ... One of the Braves' starters is Gaylord Perry, who is 42 years old, and another starter is Phil Niekro who is also 42.

Incredibly, aside from the Boston Celtics, only ONE other team in the entire history of the National Basketball Association has ever won the championship of the league in successive years. ... That was the Lakers who did it in 1949 and '50, and again in 1952, '53 and '54. ... You'd think that more teams than the Celtics and Lakers would have won the championship in back-to-back years in the history of the NBA, but no other team ever has.

Here's an interesting statistic from last football season. ... The Pittsburgh Steelers, who used to have the most feared defense and the greatest pass rush in the National Football League, unbelievably finished DEAD LAST in quarterback sacks in the league in 1980. ... The Steelers sacked quarterbacks only 18 times all season, the lowest figure by far in the NFL.

Quincy Wrestlers 3rd In State Tourney

Quincy High's wrestling team, the Suburban League and South Sectional Div. I champions for three years in a row, made another excellent showing last week by placing third in the state tournament in Lowell.

Lowell, as expected, won its fifth state title and Putnam Voke was second. Following Quincy were two other Suburban League teams, Brockton and Waltham.

It was the best finish for Quincy in the states. The Presidents finished fifth last year, sixth the previous two years and eighth the year before that.

"The fact that 100 schools are represented in Division One makes our showing extra special," Coach Carmen Mariano said. "All members of our program can take pride in their accomplishments."

Mark Picot (188 pounds) and Ed Mackey (heavyweight) went to the finals before closing. John Herald (158) finished third and Joe Souza (134) was fourth.

Quincy's season will officially end Saturday in the New England championships at Nashua, N.H.

Track Club Stands Out At R.I. Track Classic

The Quincy Track Club sent 40 athletes to the recent Rhode Island Track Classic, one of the finest indoor age group meets in New England, and the club came home with a number of club records and other fine performances.

In the mile Bart Petracca, former North Quincy High and Cornell star, placed third in the open division with a timing of 4:24.

Matty Werth took third in the elementary boys' division with an excellent time of 5:44.8. Karen Rodgers won the girls' race in 5:46 with Nancy Sullivan third, and Terri Rodgers and Beth Regan were 1-2 in the girls' junior high division.

In the 1000 Petracca was second and Coach Jeff Hennessey placed third.

In the 880 Georgia Traficante and Tracy Coull were 2-3 in the junior high division and Robbie Glynn placed third in the boys' race.

In the 500 Kritine Picarski took third in the open division, and also won the hurdles in 7.3.

Ellen Regan took third in the 600. Denise Santo took second in the 50. Picarski was second in the junior high 50 and Mark Lunnin was third in the elementary 50.

Mike Petta, Gemma Zarembo, Janice Libby and Tracy Wilson also turned in fine performances for the QTC.

First Ladies Surprise New Bedford, 65-55

The Quincy girls' basketball team had to wait until its final game of the year to qualify for the Eastern Mass. Tournament when it defeated Milton in a non-league game.

But Peter Swanson's First Ladies have proven they belong in the tourney and Tuesday met Suburban League rival Newton North in the South Division I semifinals.

Quincy lost twice to Newton, runnerup to Cambridge Rindge and Latin in the Suburban League, during the regular season but the way it has played to win the tournament, Quincy appeared ready for an upset. If the First Ladies did upset Newton, they will play the Weymouth North-Norwood winner Saturday at 1 o'clock at Stonehill College for the South championship. Newton defeated North Quincy, 47-32, and Needham, 63-50, in tournament games.

The Quincy girls provided one of the tourney's upsets last Thursday when it surprised New Bedford, 65-55. New Bedford had been 16-1 going into post-season play and was one of the top-seeded teams.

"We are playing with a lot of confidence," said first-year coach Swanson.

"We're a team of role players. We don't ask our players to do something they can't do. We know we have a strong defense and we have been playing it as well as we have all year."

The continued improvement of key personnel has been another factor in the team's fine tournament showing. Center Mary Kamb scored 18 points against New Bedford, including 14 in the second half, and took down 12 rebounds.

"It was about three weeks ago that Mary started to play with the kind of confidence she showed in this game," Swanson said. "We were playing Cambridge, which has that great player, Medina Dixon. Mary really got up for that game against Dixon and had 18 points and 15 rebounds. From that point, she has shown great progress."

Nancy MacDonald, Quincy's top scorer and the No. 3 scorer in the Suburban League, sat out the second period with foul problems but still managed to score 19 points.

New Bedford took a 17-11 first period lead, but Anne McCarron and Kamb brought the First Ladies to within two, 25-23, at halftime. With MacDonald back and Kamb continuing her outstanding play, Quincy took a 40-38 lead into the final period and then pulled away in the finale.

In its opener Quincy had little trouble defeating Marshfield, 52-36, for the first tournament win ever for a Quincy girls' team.

"We aim to hold opposing teams to 37 points or less in every game," Swanson said. "The only games we lost this season were those in which we didn't reach that goal. Even in the games we lost we didn't give up more than 40."

Quincy came out flying and took a quick 12-2 lead but Marshfield came back to cut the gap to 16-14 after a period. The First Ladies opened things up in the second period and led, 32-20, at the half. They took a big 46-27 lead into the final period.

MacDonald scored 16 points, McCarron 12 and Kamb 11. Kamb also had 10 rebounds.

North Girls Bow To Newton North

The finest season in North Quincy girls' basketball history came to a disappointing end last week when the Raiderettes, in the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the first time, lost to Suburban League runnerup Newton North for the third time, 47-32, in the opening round at Foxboro.

Coach Paul Bregoli's Raiderettes, who had won their last three games to qualify, played inspired ball and outplayed Newton in the first quarter, but several missed layups, which would come back to haunt them later in the game, enabled the winners to take a 10-8 lead. JoAnn Runge hit a jumper and a twisting layup and Julie Watts and Tricia Meehan also scored on layups.

"We could have been up by four points after the first quarter but for the missed layups," Bregoli said. "We were executing well but were just missing the shots."

North had a bad second quarter when it scored only two points, a basket by sophomore center Karen Bridges. Meanwhile, the officials called 15 fouls on North and the Newton girls paraded to the foul line and opened up a 22-10 halftime lead.

Newton extended its lead to 32-16 going into the final period. North cut the lead to 10 but again fouls hurt the Raiderettes' cause.

The officiating was horrendous," Bregoli said.

Watts had nine points, 14 rebounds, three steals and three blocked shots. Runge had 11 points and played an outstanding two-way game and Bridges came into a pressure situation and played well with four points and five rebounds.

Michelle White and Debbie Kiley played well on defense as did Lauren Apollo and Jackie Thayer. Anne McElaney came in and did her usual fine job. Meehan and Kim Albert played well at guard as did Simone Koch and Maureen McAleny. Sophomore Karen Boutilier did well in her brief appearance.

"Our defense played well again," Bregoli said. "We held Newton to its second lowest score of the year and held their outstanding scorers, Donna Yaffe and Debbie Quinn, to 12 and 10 points respectively. They only outscored us from the floor by two baskets but were 17 for 33 from the foul line while we were six for 13."

"I think if we had drawn someone outside our league we would still be in the tournament. But I am very pleased with our season and I am very proud of all the girls. If they have the same fine attitude next year the sky will be the limit. I'm looking forward to next year already. The seniors are a great credit to the team and provided the leadership and drive all season. We will miss them."

Quincy Eliminated By B.C. High But It Was More Than A Rebuilding Year

This was expected to be a rebuilding year for the Quincy High basketball team.

But Joe Amorosino's Presidents didn't look like a rebuilding team as it achieved its goal of qualifying for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the fourth straight year and fifth time in the last six years.

Quincy then won its first tournament game, 46-44, over a tough Barnstable team in overtime.

But last Saturday the season ended on a sour note for the Presidents, as they were outclassed by Boston College High, 67-49, in the second round.

It was not a good day for Quincy as it was only seven for 21 from the foul line, had a shooting percentage of only 31 per cent and had 17 turnovers.

But the major factor in the Eagles' win was holding Quincy scoreless for five minutes and 53 seconds, including the first 49 seconds of the second period.

Quincy was leading, 17-14, at 5:04 of the second period but B.C. High then scored 17 unanswered points and built up a comfortable 31-17 lead and school was out for the Presidents.

During that stretch Hingham's Gerry Corcoran, 6-6 senior center, scored five points, John Miller (23 points) had four and Brian McHugh four. The streak extended twice with less than a minute remaining in the half when junior Brian Reale from North Quincy, stole Quincy passes.

"Throughout this season, this team banded together," said a disappointed Amorosino. "A lot of people said we'd never make the tournament, but we did. They never thought we'd win in the tournament, but we did. It was a very satisfying season and I'm very pleased with what the boys accomplished."

Kurt MacDonald had 14 points for Quincy and Steve Priscella had 12, but only two in the first half. He also had 12 rebounds.

Peter Papile was the hero of Quincy's opening round win over Barnstable. He had missed much of the past month with a knee injury and the flu but the 6-1 junior hit on two clutch free throws and a driving layup in the overtime to give the Presidents the victory.

"Peter likes this gym (Brockton High)," Amorosino said. "He scored 14 points when we played here early in the season, and tonight he looked like he was shooting well in pre-game warmups. I told him we might be in a situation where we could use that shooting."

His two free throws tied the game at 44-44 with 16 seconds left in the overtime and a big defensive play by Gary DiNardo set up the winning basket. On Barnstable's inbound pass DiNardo deflected the ball to Priscella, who saw Papile streaking toward the basket. Priscella passed to Papile, who laid it in with seven seconds left.

Priscella, playing in his 62nd career game and the Presidents' only three-year tournament starter, had a big night with 13 points, 11 rebounds and five assists.

Quincy's defense was at its best as Amorosino, a defensive specialist, used a variety of zones, traps and presses.

Sterling, Beechwood Clash Saturday For Senior Title

Sterling and Beechwood Knoll will meet Saturday at 10 a.m. at Broad Meadows Junior High for the Quincy Recreation Department Senior High basketball championship.

In last week's semifinal games Sterling topped Montclair, 38-33, and Beechwood Knoll squeezed by Snug Harbor, 46-45.

Scott Hanson had 11 points to spark Sterling's win and Chuck Silva had 10 points despite fouling out early in the game. Mark Donahue had eight points for Sterling and Steve Evans had eight for Montclair.

Jerry Pratt's Montclair team held a slim lead most of the game and Bill Barden contributed eight points. Sterling's Tony Chicco and Dave Cheney played well on defense and Ken Gustin had some key rebounds.

The second game was one of the best in the 10-week season as Steve Buckley's Snug Harbor team lost despite 18 points from Jim Paolucci.

Jack Crown had 14 points, Jim Sullivan 10 and Dan Marsters eight for the Beeches. Steve Spencer had nine and Tom Matson and Jan Perez eight each for Snug Harbor.

Benny Skoler's Basket Donated To Historical Society

A 80-year-old basket—symbolic of the late Benny Skoler's rise from immigrant peddler to successful Quincy merchant—is now a part of the Quincy Historical Society.

The basket and other memorabilia of Skoler's career were recently donated to the Historical Society by his sons, David and Sidney Skoler.

"It is a symbol of new beginnings and enterprise of which Quincy and America is justly proud," said Lawrence Yerdon, executive director of the historical society. "Through the years this peddler's basket has been a symbol of success, the American Way—to its owners, and now to us."

Born in the Ukraine section of Russia in 1885, Skoler came to Quincy in 1900, alone, with little money and no knowledge of the language and customs.

He supported himself by buying and selling small items and, when he had saved enough, bought his peddler's basket.

In 1912 he married Gertrude

Grossman, another familiar Quincy name, and in 1919 opened his clothing and dry goods store on Water St., South Quincy.

The store continued operation for 60 years under Skoler and his two sons. Skoler died in 1964.

Also donated were a photograph of Skoler, a photo of Benny and Gertrude Skoler at their wedding and other miscellaneous family papers.

ENC A Capella Choir Concert At Salvation Army

Eastern Nazarene College's A Cappella Choir, directed by Greg Larkin, will appear in concert Sunday, at 10:45 a.m. at The Salvation Army 6 Baxter St., Quincy Point.

The Choir was founded in 1945 by Professor Esther D. Williamson. It has gained a reputation in the Eastern United States and Canada for choral excellence, unique programming, and dynamic spiritual energy.

Featured in 1976 at the Eastern Division Convention of the American Choral Directors Association in Washington, D.C., the choir has also toured Bermuda giving 17 concerts in nine days.

Larkin, a life-member of the ACDA, studied choral music with Lois Wells, Charles Hirt, and Howard Swan while choral director at El Monte High School, Calif.

Admission is free and an offering will be received. For further information, call 472-2345.

Historical Society To Present 'Quincy Remembers'

"Quincy Remembers", a free series of films, lectures, discussions and demonstrations, will be held by the Quincy Historical Society beginning Tuesday, March 17, at 1 p.m. in Adams Academy Building.

Programs will be held the first, third and fifth Tuesday of each month through September.

Topics will range from the history of Quincy to the history of New England and the nation.

The first four programs will be:

"Revolution and Renaissance" March 17, a film about the history and revitalization of Lowell.

"Remembrance of my Sister, Amelia Earhart", March 31, a talk by Mrs. Muriel Earhart Morrissey.

"Dorchester Pottery", April 7, a narrated slide show by Mrs. Doris Oberg.

"A Short History of the Bicycle", April 21, a slide/lecture by William Twombly, with bicycles from the Historical Society's collection.

Visitors of all ages are welcome, particularly senior citizens who can share recollections of subjects discussed.

Refreshments will be served. Participants are also welcome to bring a bag lunch.

For more information, call the society's office at 773-1144.

Police Department Raises $180 For March Of Dimes

The Quincy Police Department recently collected $180.63 through a coin canister drive for the March of Dimes.

Under the direction of Lt. Walter Frazer, coin canisters were distributed in shops, businesses and restaurants throughout the Quincy area in observance of March of Dimes Month in January.

Money raised will provide grants for research in the area of birth defects prevention.

Lions Club Celebrates 40th Anniversary

The Quincy Lions Club honored Ed Denneen, its only active charter member, at the club's 40th anniversary dinner dance recently at the Knights of Columbus Hall, North Quincy.

Denneen is former owner of the old Turner Hardware Store.

Also at the dinner, the Lion's 40 years of service was recognized with citations from Mayor Arthur Tobin and Senator Paul Harold.

The Quincy Lions Club has donated over $40,000 to Mass Eye Research over the years, and has also assisted countless needy through sight related projects.

WEEK OF MARCH 5

AQUARIUS — January 21—February 19

One pressure is removed as another is doubled. What you need now is a change and a rest. Original ideas backfire but familiar ones win you admiration.

PISCES — February 20—March 20

Clearing the air is major task; speak up if others take credit for your work. Bold touches and hold colors are accented. Experiments bring mixed results.

ARIES — March 21—April 20

It's unusually hard to share private moments with your loved one, so cherish them as they come along. Mystery individual reveals some key clues about his personality.

TAURUS — April 21—May 22

A firm stand on controversial matter brings action by Monday. On the other hand, second thoughts about an established friendship should be placed on hold for a while.

GEMINI — May 23—June 21

Thursday—Saturday accent travel, while starting Sunday, most of the excitement is close to home. Writing is effective and colorful, with poetry proving especially successful.

CANCER — June 22—July 22

You're surprisingly practical about money matters, with the result being a modest profit picture at the end of this period. A frank discussion is needed with a sullen acquaintance.

LEO — July 23—August 22

Any cause you take on now will be yours exclusively for some time. An aloof acquaintance needs time alone, so don't press him and don't second guess him.

VIRGO — August 23—September 22

A light touch is your best approach Thursday—Saturday, especially when dealing with opposite sex. Lots of behind the scenes activities, meaning advancement is likely this month.

LIBRA — September 23—October 22

Vital information on project may be subject to change. Slowdown takes place in personal relationship. Financial judgment is especially sharp after Monday.

SCORPIO — October 23—November 21

A sentimental view offering exchanges of sweet nothings and small gifts. A rival might adopt a new tactic now, but remember—don't fight fire with fire.

SAGITTARIUS — November 22—December 22

You're giving up too easily now—put up a fight for what you believe in! Not the week for bending rules; you might get carried away. Friendly rival steps into picture.

CAPRICORN — December 23—January 20

Much of the week is devoted to research, and you might unearth some choice details. Supervisor's gruff exterior coats a gentle nature. Colorwise, gentler shades are your best bet.

BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

You're ruled by Neptune, planet of fantasy and creativity. Innovative thinking can win you important honor by June. You should excel in career, but a greater sense of independence is critical.

BORN THIS WEEK

March 5th, singer Andy Gibb, 6th, actor Rob Reiner; 7th, composer Maurice Ravel; 8th, actress Lynn Redgrave; 9th, novelist Henderson Ludlow; 10th, actor Sam Jaffe; 11th, band leader Lawrence Welk.

Suspect In Wild Chase Arraigned At Hospital

An unusual hospital-room arraignment was held Monday at Quincy City Hospital for James Ferguson of Abington, arrested Friday night after a wild Cohasset-to-Merrymount chase.

Ferguson, is one of two suspects who allegedly robbed a Cohasset Stop & Shop Friday, and took three Cohasset youths hostage and led police from seven towns on a 12-mile ride that ended at 177 Squanto Rd.

He pleaded innocent Monday to charges of armed robbery, three counts of kidnapping, unlawful possession of firearms, assault with intent to murder and several motor vehicle offenses.

Present at the arraignment was Quincy District Court Judge Lawrence Shubow, who continued the case to April 10. Ferguson, who had been under police guard at CCH, was released on bail of $50,000 surety or $3,500 cash. The police guard was removed.

He had suffered two gun shot wounds in the thigh Friday evening and is now in good condition at Quincy City Hospital.

Also arrested Friday was James Sico, 23, of Somerville, charged with armed robbery, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, possession of a controlled substance and possession of burglary tools. He underwent surgery Saturday at Massachusetts General Hospital for gun shot wounds to his right foot.

Sico, arrested in Cohasset shortly after the holdup, was not involved in the chase.

After arresting the pair Friday, police found an estimated $3,000 they believed to have been taken in the robbery.

Ferguson allegedly abducted Chris Pratt, 17, his sister Heidi, 16, and Michael Roman, 15, outside the Cohasset Winter Gardens after the holdup and forced Chris to drive them through Hingham and Weymouth to Merrymount.

The car was finally forced off the road outside the family of John McCarthy. Assisting in the arrest were Quincy patrolmen Robert Quintiliani and Angus McEachern and Hingham policemen Paul Cadigan and Taylor Mills.

The fleeing vehicle was brought to bay after Hingham patrolman Taylor Mills shot out the tire.

Sheets, Lakin Sq. Merchants Meet

Ward 4 Councillor James Sheets has been meeting with residents and merchants to seek solutions for increased traffic, parking violations, vandalism and loitering in the Lakin Square area.

Sheets said the Lakin Square Businessman's Association and the Lakin Square Neighborhood Association are formulating a plan for increased police protection in the area.

Three businesses — Burger King, 7-Eleven and the Villa Rosa, plan to hire a Quincy Police officer at their own expense to patrol the area, Sheets said.

"The business and neighborhood associations are working closely together to make Lakin Square a safer and more pleasant area in which to work, shop and live," Sheets said.

LOOK AT WHAT WE HAVE COMING FOR YOU!

These are pictures of the scale model we had built to show our customers how our new main office will look when we have completed the conversion of the former Quincy Motor Company building at 85 Quincy Avenue. Our architectural firm, Donahue Associates, built the model from the plans they have created for the conversion of the Quincy Motors Building.

We shall move into the new quarters, hopefully by October. This will give us a triple drive-in facility, parking for 95 cars, safe deposit boxes and our usual friendly, cooperative service. Our present main office in Quincy Square will become a downtown branch come Fall, and on the basis of personal convenience, you can take your pick of our banking locations in Quincy: downtown or just south of Quincy Square at 85 Quincy Avenue.

Quincy Cooperative's new Main Bank Building (above) will face on Quincy Avenue. At right is the three-bay drive-thru facility. In the photo of the scale model below can be seen part of the large parking area, and the Bank's south facade with entrance to the main banking lobby.

Assessor Vows:

Revaluation Will Not Cost Elderly Their Homes

By TOM HENSHAW

Elderly homeowners in Quincy need not worry about losing their homes under the financial pressure of revaluation, says Assessor Patricia Ceriani.

Their exemptions, as well as those enjoyed by disabled veterans and the handicapped, will be preserved even if the value goes over the $20,000 and $45,000 limits.

There may be some variation up or down in the total tax bill, said Mrs. Ceriani, but "no elderly person is going to be put out of his or her home in Quincy."

Home owners who have reached their 70th birthdays on July 1 and whose income is less than $7,000 if married or $6,000 if not married are entitled to an exemption of either $500 in taxes or $4,000 in value, whichever is higher.

In calculating their property tax bills, they are allowed to exercise two options.

One excludes the value of the home and sets limits on the whole estate at no more than $17,000 if single and $20,000 if married. This option is used if the home has a high value.

The second option includes the value of the entire estate, including the home, and sets limits of not more than $40,000 if single and $45,000 if married.

The concern of many elderly is that homes that are now undervalued at, say, $10,000 will suddenly be valued at $50,000 under full valuation.

Under option one, they would still be entitled to the exemption.

According to Marion Fantuccio of the Assessor's Office, the exemption is figured like this:

With the current tax rate at $242.60 per thousand, the tax bill for a home valued at $10,000 would be $2,426.

An elderly homeowner would have a choice of deducting a flat $500 from the tax bill, for a $1,926 total, or $4,000 from the valuation which produces a $970 deduction for a total bill of $1,356.

If the home were revalued to $50,000 and the tax rate were pegged at around $40 per thousand (a good guess under revaluation plus Prop 2½), the tax bill would be $2,000.

The elderly homeowner would still have the option of deducting a flat $500, for a $1,500 total, or taking $4,000 from the valuation for a $160 deduction and a $1,840 tax bill.

By switching options, the elderly owner would pay only $144 more under revaluation.

May Affect Tobin's Mayoral Plans

Shea Stepping Down As City Auditor

By TOM HENSHAW

City Auditor Charles L. Shea has announced his retirement, effective Monday, March 16, an apparent casualty of the bitter controversy surrounding the Tobin administration's efforts to stay within the budget limits of Proposition 2½.

"The actions of Mr. Shea will weigh heavily on any decision that I may make in the future," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, an indication that he may be having second thoughts about running for a third term in the city election next fall.

Shea, who is 53 and has held the auditor's post since Dec. 23, 1974, said he is retiring "because I can't stand the hours anymore. I just can't take the 70 to 80 hour weeks anymore."

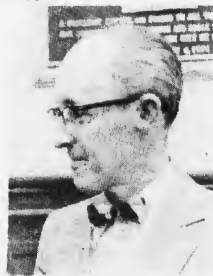

But Tobin indicated that there was more than that to Shea's retirement.

"Mr. Shea has confided to me his total frustration," said the Mayor. "Some things developed in the past 48 hours that were very disturbing to him. I have to respect his feelings. Some day the true reasons will come out."

Tobin said that Shea's plans to retire date back to well before the current controversy erupted over the Mayor's plan to create a Water and Sewer Commission. The plan was rejected by the City Council's Finance Committee after acrimonious debate.

"I have been able to talk him out of retiring during the past several months," said Tobin. Monday, night, however, persuasion failed him.

"Mr. Shea was on the phone with me twice last night," said Tobin Tuesday. "I tried to talk to him like I had in the past. He took something personal last night but I won't say anything about that because he wants to go out non-controversial.

"He said to me, 'I don't know how the hell you put up with it,' and I told him, 'We just happen to be here in some difficult times.' This thing has taken its toll on a lot of people, a lot of department heads and city employees."

Shea, whose political career dates back to 1956 when he began the first of four two-year terms on the City Council and includes tours of duty as State Rep., said he has no idea what he is going to

State DEQE Places Marina Condos On Hold

A plan to build 142 condominium units at Boston Harbor Marina has been placed on hold by the State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE).

Mary Lou Mattola, spokeswoman for the DEQE, said the state officials have found that an order of approval by the Quincy Conservation Commission is "vague in some terms and may be unenforceable."

"This is not a stop work order," she said. "We are simply interrupting the approval process to require more documentation and better plans."

She said the DEQE had some questions about the relation of the buildings to the coastal wetland area, the elevation of the project and plans for shore and flood protection.

"There is no specific deadline," said Mattola. "They can take as long as they want."

Meanwhile, the Squantum Community Association has sent a letter to the MDC charging that Marina Industries, the developer, has violated an agreement under which its trucks can use Quincy Shore Drive.

"We are asking the MDC to rescind its permission," said Mrs. Maureen Mazrimas, president of the SCA.

Under the agreement, she said, only three specifically named vehicles can use Quincy Shore Drive as an access route to the Marina site between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

"An unspecified vehicle has made three trips to the site on Quincy Shore Drive," she said, "and one specified vehicle was seen leaving the site at 8:30 a.m."

Mrs. Mazrimas said one of the unspecified vehicles arrived at the site Tuesday, March 3, while Sterling Wall of the DEQE was making an inspection.

The site was also inspected by Marjorie O'Malley of the Coastal Zone Management unit.

Computer Problem Delays Revaluation

A computer problem at the headquarters of P.R.C. Jacobs in McLean, Va., will delay the revaluation of property in Quincy for at least two months.

Assessor Patricia Ceriani said that impact statements of new valuation, which were scheduled to go out in mid-March, will be sent to homeowners in mid-May under the new schedule.

Allowing a two-month appeal period, said Mrs. Ceriani, the final revaluation figures should be set by the end of June or early in July.

City Dump To Be Closed Saturdays

The city dump will be closed to rubbish disposal, both commercial and residential, on all Saturdays starting April 4, announces Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti.

Ricciuti blamed "the impact of present financial restrictions and future Proposition 2½ limitations."

But, he added, the effect should be negated by the fact that curbside rubbish collections should provide sufficient service to residents so that use of the landfill on Saturdays will not be necessary.

Gov. King Due Saturday With $750,000 For Garage

Gov. Edward J. King will be in Quincy Saturday, probably to bail the city out of a $750,000 shortfall in funds to build a $3.79 million parking garage in Quincy Center.

"The governor has indicated in the past that he is aware of the problems of the municipalities," said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. "Quincy is honored to be one of the first to be addressed."

The garage over the MBTA tracks to Granite St. is being built with a $3.79 million Urban Development Action Grant but delays in the project have escalated the final cost.

Tobin said the public is invited to listen to King's talk in the City Council Chamber at 9 a.m., which will be followed by an informal reception in the conference room in City Hall Annex.

'Definitely Detrimental'

Merchants Petitioning Against Parking Ticket Drive

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Merchants are petitioning for relief from a stepped-up enforcement of parking violations.

The petition, started by Quincy Center Business and Professional Association Vice President Constance Alfisa, is to be presented to Mayor Arthur Tobin. It says, in part, "there have been numerous complaints from our customers about these tickets, causing them to patronize elsewhere."

Mrs. Alfisa, owner of Caesars Lunch and Deli, 16 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center, said the petition drive was begun on her own behalf and not on behalf of the QCBPA.

Edward Lynch, head of the police General Services department, said this week that the city's meter persons are paying more attention to city parking areas, in order to help the department pay for itself through increased parking meter revenue.

"It's definitely detrimental to business," Mrs. Alfisa said. "I think we all feel the same."

I've lost customers over these tickets," she said. "And, not just me, everybody."

"And, you try to hire somebody and they say, why should I come here when I can go to a plaza somewhere and park for free?"

Mrs. Alfisa's petition reads:

"We, the concerned merchants of Quincy Square, who are desperately trying to survive in a depressed economy, are now ranked by another problem. We have all been affected by the recent increased activity in the distribution of parking tickets for meter violations. There have been numerous complaints from our customers about these tickets, causing them to patronize elsewhere."

"We are aware of your efforts in revitalizing Quincy Square and your concern for our success. As this situation has been a problem for us over the years, we realize the solution won't come easy, but we are pleading with you to try to expedite some plan to give us relief."

QCBPA President Bernie Reisberg was out of town and unavailable for comment.

According to Lynch, the city's four meter persons (not meter maids—one of them is male) have been instructed to step up enforcement of meter violations.

The meter persons were transferred into Lynch's department last month from the Traffic Department, with instructions given to begin paying their own way.

"They were always supposed to, anyway," said Lynch, "but now we're trying to do things a little different."

Meter persons have been told to devote more time to ticketing violators in the revenue-raising parking areas and less time watching out for on-street violators, Lynch said.

"We've asked them to concentrate on the meter areas. Before they had spent a lot of time in other areas—double parking, illegal parking areas. We're still covering these, but we're asking them to concentrate on the meter areas," Lynch said.

"We're just enforcing the meters a little stricter, that's all. It's either that or pull them out—If you don't enforce the parking laws, it just encourages people to park illegally," he said.

Increased ticketing has already led to increased meter revenue, he added.

"We were getting $650 a week before we started this," he said. "Right now it's up to $1,700 plus. We expect to go higher."

Lynch didn't know what the department's break-even point was but said at one point the city used to collect about $3,200 in meter revenue each week.

Lynch didn't know how many more tickets were being given out since the new policy began. Meter persons have not been given a specific quota of tickets to issue each day, he said.

The department's annual budget is about $200,000, said Lynch.

The ticketing has not yet led to increased payment of court fines, said City Auditor Charles Shea.

Because parking violators have 21 days to pay their fine and because the city received a monthly report on court payments, any increase because of the month-old policy will not show up for several weeks.

The city normally receives about $130,000 annually from court parking fines, which goes to the city General Fund, Shea said.

To Our South Shore Friends:

In a time of change and growth on the South Shore, we at The Hurley Insurance Agency are proud to announce that we too are growing and have merged with a new insurance partner.

The Niles Insurance Agency of Braintree, led by Jim Worcester and Byron Fink, is now a part of the Hurley team. We feel that with the combined efforts of both staffs and two locations: our 1245 Hancock Street in Quincy or Niles - One Elm Street in Braintree, we can better serve your insurance needs whether it concerns your car, home, business or life insurance. Remember we are Independent Agents and have been serving the South Shore since 1925.

We hope you will take advantage of our expanded service and we thank you for making this growth possible.

Please stop in or call. We believe our staff is one of the best insurance benefits you will find anywhere.

Lobbying Yes, But:

'Back-Room Deal' On School Closings Denied

By BERNIE O'DONNELL

Was it politics or geography that closed the Quincy School?

The question is still being asked. More than a month after closing it and four other schools, School Committee members are still reacting to charges that the substitution of the Quincy for the Pollard Scholl was the result of a "back room deal."

School Committee Vice Chairman Christopher Kennedy last week released a statement on behalf of the committee calling comments attributed to Mayor Arthur Tobin on that topic "deplorable."

According to Kennedy, Tobin had been quoted by the Patriot Ledger twice as saying Councillor Daniel Raymond had influenced the School Committee to close the Quincy School instead of the Pollard, which is located in his Ward 2.

"I am speaking for the other elected members of the Quincy School Committee," Kennedy's statement began. "We find the recent references on two separate occasions by Mayor Tobin to be deplorable when he suggested that city councillors could have or did directly influence the School Committee in its choice of schools to be closed."

At its Jan. 28 meeting, the committee voted to close five schools, based on a recommendation by School Supt. Lawrence Creedon to close the Adams, Beechwood Knoll, Gridley Bryant, Cranch and Pollard Schools.

At that meeting, committee member Frank Anselmo noted that three of those five schools were in the South Quincy-Quincy Point area. Anselmo introduced an amendment to the school closing motion, asking Creedon to substitute a school in another section of the city for the Pollard.

At the committee's Feb. 4 meeting, Creedon recommended that the Quincy School be closed instead of the Pollard. That recommendation was approved 7-0 by the committee, including Tobin.

That revised plan, said member Patricia Toland, "is a fairly equal distribution of the pain of (Proposition) 2½." It closed one school in each of the city's wards except for Ward 1, where two schools closed last year.

Between those two meetings, Raymond reportedly contacted School Committee members, including Tobin, about keeping as many of the Quincy Point schools open as possible.

"The only thing he did was call the mayor and call the members of the School Committee and ask 'do you think it's fair that three schools should be closed in Quincy Point?'" said Tobin.

"I wouldn't call that a deal, I'd call that lobbying," said Tobin,

Mayor ARTHUR TOBIN

CHRISTOPHER KENNEDY

who said his comments were misinterpreted by the Patriot Ledger.

"Maybe people don't believe that, but there was no backroom deal," said Mrs. Toland. "Lobbying is OK but a back-room deal isn't OK." By the time Raymond had contacted the committee members, the decision had already been made to keep the Pollard open, she said.

"I just wish all this talk about back-room deals would stop," she said. "The more we talk about it and the more we try to defend ourselves, the more it puts it in peoples' minds."

Kennedy, who said he issued the statement on behalf of the majority of the committee, seemed willing to let the issue die quietly.

"I don't want to get into a fight about this," Kennedy said.

Clerk Shortage Hits Quincy Court

Quincy District Court, the third busiest in the state, is so badly understaffed that its six assistant clerks are owed 74 weeks of vacation that they have been unable to take.

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli disclosed that statistics in his testimony before the Committee on Judiciary for bills that would add one and three assistant clerks to the court staff.

Cerasoli pointed out that the Cambridge District Court has nine assistant clerks to cover 19 sittings while Quincy has only six to cover 20 sittings.

"The public is not being properly serviced at this court due to the shortage of assistant clerks," he said.

"All the clerks are either in sessions or at hearings, leaving no assistant clerk in the clerk's office for the greater part of the day to answer questions, take oaths on complaints and issue warrants."

Cerasoli noted that the population of the Quincy jurisdiction is 265,000 while Boston's population of 650,000 is divided among eight courts, or 81,250 people each.

"The assistant clerks at Quincy had to carry over 160 days vacation and are due a total of 210 additional days in the current fiscal year," said Cerasoli.

"The total days of vacation owed now stands at 370 days or 74 weeks, and yet it is almost impossible to allow the assistants to take a vacation due to the serious shortages of assistant clerks."

NQHS, Point Junior Students To Observe Women's History

Students at North Quincy High School and Quincy Point Junior High School will observe National Women's History Week, March 8-15, with classroom activities, school displays and film festivals on women's roles.

Their activities which are part of Project Inter-Action will be highlighted in the windows of the South Shore Bank, Quincy Sq., from March 16-30.

At Point Junior High, a team of teachers, counselors and media specialists have planned activities and movies for each day of the week on various themes related to school subjects.

Social studies classes will view a film on Deborah Sampson, a hero of the American Revolution. English classes will see a film of a new fairy tale in which a princess performs marvelous feats. Science classes will look at a film on new options for work and play. All students will be invited to see a film of a fable about sex roles. The media center will have a display of books on women in history, and a school display case will feature posters of famous women and schedule of events.

At North Quincy High School, the team of social studies and home economics teachers is featuring two films which describe women's roles in history to highlight the week.

"We, the American Women" looks at how women's roles have changed throughout American History. "With Babies and Banners" is a recently-made documentary about women workers and the wives of working men who played a heretofore unknown role in a 1937 General Motors strike. Two social studies display cases will feature posters of women of achievements and the stamps which the United States has issued commemorating these women.

During the following two weeks, the students work, posters, books and schedules of the school events will be featured in the display windows of the South Shore Bank in downtown Quincy as "Students Celebrating Women's History Week."

The events are sponsored by Project Inter-Action, a joint project of the Quincy Public Schools and The NETWORK, Inc., which is one of five national demonstration sites to promote women's equal equity in schools, sponsored by the Department of Education.

Topic For Women South 'The Hiring Process'

"The Hiring Process" will be the topic at a meeting of Women

South, Tuesday, March 17, at the Neighborhood Club, Quincy.

A 5:30 p.m. social hour will precede the 6:30 p.m. dinner meeting.

Marnie Reed, account executive with Management Recruiters, Boston, will discuss hiring with emphasis on interviews from the point of view of both the prospective employer and the would-be employee.

Women South, the business and professional women's network organization meets the third Tuesday of each month.

'Divorce' Topic For Women's Workshop

"Divorce Means the Need for Financial and Emotional Support" will be the topic of the next workshop sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women.

Scheduled for Wednesday March 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room at the new City Hall, the program will feature representatives from various agencies which help people to deal with divorce.

"Painful and ambivalent feelings as well as significant changes in financial situations are not uncommon in divorces said Mrs. Deborah Ormon, Chairwoman of The Mayor's Commission. It is important that people receive guidance and advice to help make the necessary adjustments when their social pattern has been disrupted. This program is designed to help people find out what resources are available to deal with divorce.

A representative from the Social Services Department will present a summary of its work which includes protective services, especially for children, individual counseling, court assistance and crisis intervention. Representatives from the Protestant Social Service Bureau will explain their counseling programs for both children and parents, the availability of support groups and some of the major issues in a divorce.

Availability of benefits such as medical expenses, food stamps, and financial assistance will be explored by a representative of the Welfare Department. Kathleen McCormick will host the meeting.

The program is free and open to the public and is the last in the monthly series offered by the Mayor's Commission.

A day long program of workshops will be held April 25 at the Lincoln Hancock School.

Sherry's License Transfer Approved By Board

By NANCY McLAUGHLIN

The City License Board approved the transfer Tuesday of the common victualer-all alcoholic license for Sherry's, 579 Southern Artery, to Brian A. Leonard of Hingham.

The license transfer had been held up recently due to a temporary restraining order by Peter Prasinos, a member of the corporation which had been running the establishment.

That injunction was removed Feb. 19.

Prasinos told the board at this week's meeting he still had questions about the purchase and sale agreement. Acting board chairman Police Chief Francis Finn told Prasinos that was not a License Board matter.

According to Atty. Robert J. Barrett, Sherry's should be reopening with Leonard as full time manager in about two weeks.

Leonard also runs two other establishments in Boston and Marshfield.

After recessing for a brief executive session to discuss financial matters, the board voted for the license transfer.

A 2 a.m. closing was approved for a six month probationary period. Pledge of the company's stock was also approved.

Raymondi Urges Delay In South Quincy MBTA Opening

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi wants the MBTA to hold the opening of the Quincy Adams station until the access ramps from the Southeast Expressway are ready too.

Raymondi called the attention of the City Council to the potential traffic problems in South Quincy if the station and its 2,000 car garage are open to the public and the ramps are not.

The completion of the ramps, he said, could be delayed for as long as two years because of problems with state and federal funding.

The Council passed a resolution urging that the Quincy Adams station not be opened until the ramps are completed unless "there is convincing proof that the traffic flow will be manageable."

Unfair Labor Charge Filed On New Layoffs

The City Hospital, Library and Public Employees Union has filed an unfair labor practice charge on the latest round of city layoffs, scheduled to take effect April 1.

Union director John Keefe says the city is violating an arbitrator's ruling that layoffs must be on the basis of seniority city-wide, and not based on seniority within each department.

"The mayor's attitude is 'damn the law and damn the contract. I'll do it my way,'" said Keefe, who said the charge was filed Monday with the state Labor Relations Commission.

State arbitrator mark Grossman ruled in January that city employees laid off in June, 1980 should have been chosen on the basis of seniority city-wide, and not chosen by department.

Instead of following the method dictated by Grossman, Keefe said Tuesday, Mayor Arthur Tobin has repeated the earlier procedure in determining layoffs to be effective April 1.

"The mayor is picking and choosing who will be laid off," Keefe said.

City Labor Negotiator Joseph McParland said the city is appealing Grossman's earlier decision.

"We have, essentially, gone by department and job title," McParland said. "What Mr. Keefe would have us do is start at the bottom of the seniority list citywide and layoff people until we have cut the needed amount. That's just unrealistic."

That method would cut deeply into some departments and not touch others, McParland said, and lead to "chaos." It also would provide greater protection to long-term provisional employees than to some permanent employees, he said.

Keefe said that the city has not reinstated the employees laid off last June, as ordered by Grossman, and negotiated the new layoffs.

"That's not so," said McParland. He cited a Feb. 10 meeting with the librarians group represented by Keefe and a Feb. 28 meeting with the rest of Keefe's union.

"We told them, in essence, that the negotiations were at an impasse," said McParland. "We told them that we would be sending out layoff notices but that the city would be more than willing to meet with them in the future."

"According to Tobin, about 120 pink slips have been sent out for the April 1 round of layoffs, with more to come. That total will increase if the mayor's Water-Sewer Commission doesn't pass the City Council, Tobin claimed.

Tobin said it hurt him to send out the formal layoff notices, many of which went to friends and long-time acquaintances.

"I wanted to send something a little more personal, but I was advised by the law office that I can't," Tobin said.

McCauley Urges Layoffs Include Political Jobs

City Councillor Francis X. McCauley has urged that "political appointees and a proportionate number of high-salaried administrative personnel" be included in layoffs of city employees.

McCauley, a candidate for mayor, noted that some 150 municipal workers are currently being laid off and indications are that about 100 more from City Hospital may soon join them.

In letters to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and Hospital Director Michael Kitchen, McCauley pointed out that the layoffs effective April 1 are the result of budget and revenue shortfalls in fiscal 1981.

"They are not the result of the failure of the City Council Finance Committee to approve enterprise accounts for the hospital and the Sewer and Water Department," he said.

The immediate cause of the layoffs, he said, "is the unrealistic forecasting of revenues from excise taxes and the hospital by the Tobin administration."

McCauley said all layoffs should be in strict compliance with collective bargaining laws so that the city does not find itself in costly lawsuits brought by city employee unions.

That Old Rumor Mill

Gov. Edward King is coming to Quincy Saturday morning for what Mayor Arthur Tobin refers to as "a special announcement."

No, it is not to announce he is appointing Tobin to a judgeship.

King is expected to announce the state is granting Quincy $750,000 to complete the $3.79 million UDAG parking garage in Quincy Sq.

But the rumors continue to fly.

And, another rumor has added more fuel to the rumor mill.

Quincy District Court sources think Special Justice Lewis L. Whitman is in line for an appointment to the Superior Court bench which would leave a vacancy on Chestnut St.

Will Mayor Tobin be named to fill that black robe?

RYAN

Then there's another report circulating the Quincy courthouse. Long-time court clerk Dennis F. Ryan, according to that report, will soon be retiring.

Will Mayor Tobin be named to fill that post?

Tobin himself isn't too happy with all the rumors because he didn't start them and certainly doesn't want anyone, including King, to think he's trying to plant seeds in his own behalf.

The mayor has never indicated that he would accept an appointment if one were offered him although it would seem a difficult honor to turn down.

There may not be anything to all the speculation but it is bound to continue.

If there is nothing to them the rumors will probably continue to fly until Tobin officially announces his candidacy for a third term.

The fact that King turns up in Quincy as frequently as he does at Tobin's invitation to march in a Christmas parade, help break ground for new office buildings and visit on a Saturday morning, you know they aren't strangers. That makes for speculation, too.

Meanwhile, stay tuned in.

A FAMILIAR FIGURE will soon be missing from the City Hall scene. Sgt. Joseph Nichols is calling it a career at the end of the month after 39 years on the force. Joe joined the department Nov. 19, 1942 as a reserve patrolman.

KING

He has been assigned to City Hall and the City Council meetings since July, 1974 when he succeeded William Carullo.

He has no big retirement plans. He will continue to live in Quincy Point and take an occasional trip to visit relatives around the country.

SENATOR PAUL HAROLD travelled to Pittsfield last week to attend a testimonial for former Republican Senator John Fitzpatrick of Stockbridge, once a Quincy resident.

Harold presented Fitzpatrick with an honorary Quincy citizenship citation from Mayor Tobin who also served with Fitzpatrick in the Senate. He also gave him a City Council resolution.

Fitzpatrick formerly lived on Dimmock St. His family owned the downtown Hancock St. building once occupied by the Lincoln stores and now the location of Singer Sewing Machine and the state employment security office.

Although he has stepped down from the Senate, Fitzpatrick will remain active in two family businesses: he is proprietor of the famed Red Lion Inn in Stockbridge and with his wife manages Country Curtains store which recently opened its third outlet in Braintree.

THAT OPEN CITY Council seat isn't luring

Councillor Joanne Condon. She's going to run for a third term in Ward 6. And she'll kick off that campaign Tuesday, March 24 with a 7 to 9 p.m. reception at the Neighborhood Club. Tickets are $35 each and may be obtained by calling Mrs. Bernadette O'Brien at 328-3172.

OLD FRIEND Clarence Edwards, former city health inspector, and active in senior citizens circles, is a patient at Quincy City Hospital. He was admitted last week with a heart condition but is now out of the intensive care unit and "satisfactory."

OBSERVATION via Win Bettinson in the Quincy Kiwanis Club newsletter: "The average family's ambition is to make as much money as they're spending."

Quincy Quiz

There are no winners this week in the Quincy Quiz.

No one correctly answered all five questions in last week's quiz. Each week two Quincy Sun T-shirts and two Quincy Sun bumper stickers are offered as prizes in the Quincy Quiz.

The first two readers (one a mail subscriber) to submit to the Sun office in writing the correct answers to the week's five questions receive T-shirts. The next two receive bumper stickers. One person in each home is eligible to compete in any one week and no person is eligible to win more than three T-shirts.

This week's Quincy Quiz:

1. In what year were classes first held at Quincy Junior College?
2. In what section of the city is Maypole Park located?
3. What body of water was formerly known as Mt. Wollaston River?
4. What is the name of the executive secretary to the Conservation Commission?
5. What well-known building is located at 79 Coddington St.?

Answers to last week's Quincy Quiz.

1. Newbury Ave. is located in North Quincy.
2. The City Solicitor is Robert F. Fleming.
3. The General Dynamics Shipyard is located at 97 East Howard St.
4. The town of Quincy was incorporated in 1792.
5. Francis W. Parker was Quincy's first superintendent of schools.

Harold Measure Would Extend Asbestos Claims

The Legislative Committee on Commerce and Labor has heard testimony on a bill that would expand the rights of shipyard workers who file claims for asbestos-related injuries under the Workers' Compensation Act.

Sen. Paul D. Harold's bill would raise the statute of limitations so workers and former workers would be able to file claims within three years of the discovery and diagnosis of an asbestos injury rather than within a limited time after exposure to the asbestos.

"This bill is necessary because of the lengthy latency period of asbestos injuries, which are sometime not discovered for many years after actual exposure," Harold said.

The National Asbestos Foundation estimates that there are 100,000 retired shipyard workers in the Greater Boston area, whose rights would be protected by this legislation, he said.

Bradlee To Speak At U.N. Council Meeting

Globe staff reporter Benjamin Bradlee will discuss "The Soviet Invasion of Afghanistan" at a meeting of the United Nations Council of the South Shore Thursday, March 12.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the parish hall of the Church of the Presidents, Quincy Square.

A catered dinner will precede the meeting at 6:30 p.m. Reservations can be made by calling Mrs. Eleanor Bertrand, 479-4793, Mrs. Viola Ellis, 773-5019 or Rachel Grover, 472-2334. There is a reduced price for students.

The meeting is part of a series on world affairs sponsored by the South Shore Council.

Bradlee, 32, reported on the Soviet invasion when it began. After all foreign correspondents were ordered to leave the country, he reported from Peshawar in Pakistan for another three weeks.

Whitwell St. Tow Zone Studied

The Traffic Commission is studying the feasibility of designating a portion of Whitwell St., near the new parking lot a "no parking - tow zone" area.

The restriction would extend 200 feet towards Adams St. on both sides of the street from the entrance to the parking lot.

The busts of Mount Rushmore can be seen from 60 miles away.

do in retirement.

"I have some plans for him," said Tobin.

Although technically the auditor is an employee of the City Council, Shea has long been a close confidante of Tobin and has many times served as spokesman for the administration on matters of city finance.

"I replaced Charlie Shea when he went from the State House to the State Research Bureau," said Tobin. "He endorsed me as his successor in the House and he told me he was happy I replaced him because we had similar political philosophies.

"The strain of recent days has had its effect on Mr. Shea and me, particularly in sending out the notices to people who are being laid off. It is contrary to our political philosophy to see fine city employees and their families put through this.

"It is hard to sit as appointing authority and sign your name to a notice laying someone off. Neither of us are enjoying it. It has been wearing very heavily on him.

"It is equally frustrating to me that certain members of the City Council just do not want to listen. Their actions are destroying this city."

Council President Leo J. Kelly called Shea's retirement a big loss to the city.

"I don't know where we can find people who are willing to put in the hours of dedicated work like Charlie Shea," said Kelly. "I know he has been thinking about this for quite a while. His family, his wife and his two boys, have been talking to him about it."

Tobin said Shea is "one of the most knowledgeable men that I know about state and municipal government. My job was a lot easier because Charlie Shea was with me as auditor."

Revaluation Will Not Cost Elderly Their Homes

"But whether they are able to pay their taxes or not," said Mrs. Ceriani, "no elderly person is going to be put out of his or her home in Quincy."

There is a tax deferral clause in the state tax laws under which persons over 65 with incomes under $20,000 can defer any or all of their tax payments.

A lien is then placed against the property and the back taxes plus interest are paid when the home is sold or otherwise transferred to other owners.

Taxes can be deferred up to 50 percent of the value of the home.

And, for real hardship cases, there is a clause in the state tax statutes under which the assessors, at their sole discretion, can abate some or all of the taxes in real hardship cases.

This has been done in cases where the homeowner absolutely cannot pay the tax bill and there is little or no hope of paying it in the immediate future.

"I want to emphasize this," said Mrs. Ceriani, "no elderly person is going to be put out of his or her home in Quincy."

Fight For Multibank Goes To Stockholders

The long and acrimonious fight for control of Multibank, the billion dollar bank holding company that includes the South Shore Bank, is scheduled to reach a climax today (Thursday) at a special stockholders' meeting.

Abraham D. Gosman, a Weston millionaire, is seeking to topple Chairman and President David B. Lynch by adding 15 directors pledged to his interests to the current board of 12 members at today's meeting at 2 p.m. in the Colonnade Hotel in Boston.

If the Gosman group is successful, it is reported that the Rev. Pedro Baharian, chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, will become president of the $367 million South Shore Bank, the largest in the Multibank group.

The latest development in the bitter struggle found Gosman filing a $4.7 million libel suit against Multibank directors for using "unfair and deceptive acts and practices by misrepresenting and defaming" him in letters to stockholders.

Multibank also has a complaint filed against Gosman charging that his group "willfully and unlawfully withheld from Multibank shareholders and the investing public material information concerning persons soliciting proxies."

The Gosman group is unhappy with the dividend policies of Multibank under Lynch, which it claims is the result of an unaggressive management team that is running the seven member banks scattered around Massachusetts.

Multibank alleges that if Gosman is successful in gaining control of the company he plans to sell off Multibank subsidiaries as the first step toward an ultimate merger with the United States Trust Co.

The Gosman group has an impressive list of director-nominees, including former U.S. Sen. Edward W. Brooke, ex-Boston Mayor John F. Collins, and former undersecretary of the Air Force Antonio Handler Chaves.

Also Gosman himself, who owns nursing homes; Richard W. Kazmaier Jr., former Princeton football All-American and Wellesley sporting goods man; Vernon Alden, chairman of the Massachusetts Development Council; Vincent P. Dunn, former New Hampshire State Banking Commissioner.

Philip L. Lowe, former chief executive officer of IIT-Sheraton; Leo Dunn, senior partner in Barron & Stadfeld, attorneys; Walter M. Johnson III, vice president of Abacus Group, mortgage financing; Frank S. Waterman, president of J. S. Waterman, funeral service.

James F. Stone, president of Cornerstone Management Co.; Robert W. Grant, president of the National Fire Protection Association; Edward I. Masterman, senior partner in Carrigill & Masterman, attorneys; and Stuart W. Pratt, senior vice president, Hunneman Co., real estate.

In addition to South Shore, Multibank's member banks include: Duffee Attleboro Bank, Bristol County; Falmouth National Bank, Barnstable County; First Agricultural Bank, Berkshire County; Mechanics Bank, Worcester County; Northampton National Bank, Hampshire County; Security National Bank, Hampden County.

Multibank subsidiaries include Multibank Financial Co. Realty Trust of Quincy, Multibank Service Corp. of Auburn, and Multibank International of Quincy.

Shipyard Local Elects Members To Company Union

The Industrial Union at the Fore River Shipyard, employing a new strategy of infiltration, elected six of its members to the company union, the 21-member employees' representative body.

"The Industrial Union will fight to give the men real representation and real collective bargaining, something they haven't had for years," said a union local spokesman.

Elected were Jeremiah Mitchell, the local president; James Hardie, the secretary; James Sinclair, the financial secretary; and William Westland, James McLean and John Hicks.

MCGRATH TESTIFIES

Former Mayor Thomas J. McGrath testified before the Legislative Committee on Civil Service against a bill that would place the city engineer of Quincy under the Civil Service system.

"This bill would make the city engineer a minor mayor," he said. Rep. Arthur I. Burgess (R-Quincy), who filed the bill, suggested that the issue be placed on the ballot in November as a referendum and let the people vote on it.

PYNNY STARS

Edith Pynny was the big star as the Quincy High School girls basketball team defeated the girls from North Quincy, 29-22, in the season's windup game.

Wilder C. Goodwin, 88, Former Foundry Partner

Funeral services were held Monday for Wilder C. Goodwin of Quincy, retired engineer and former partner of the Foundry Fabricated Steel Products Company.

Mr. Goodwin, 88, died March 5 at Quincy City Hospital after a brief illness.

Born in Annapolis Valley, Nova Scotia and educated in Nova Scotia, he also lived in Needham before moving to Quincy 52 years ago.

He was a 50-year member of the Roosevelt-Manet Lodge AF & AM, Quincy and the Wollaston Baptist Church.

He was a World War II veteran of the Canadian Army.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary (Gambin) Goodwin; two daughters, Mrs. Donald (Greta)

Gilmore of North Weymouth and Mrs. Donald (Alice) Collins of Barre, Vt.; a sister, Mrs. Edgar Beaver of Abington; two brothers, Lawrence Goodwin and Inglis Goodwin of Nova Scotia; and four granddaughters.

Funeral services were conducted at the Deware Brothers Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston. Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery.

Karl A. Kleimola, 86 Retired Boiler Fireman

A retired stationary boiler fireman for Old Colony Crushed Stone Co., he had been a member of the International Union of Operating Engineers.

Husband of the late Mrs. Lena (Antti) Kleimola, he is survived by a son, William Kleimola of Walpole, 10 grandchildren and nine great grandchildren. He was also the father of the late Mr. Frederick Kleimola of Quincy.

Rev. Keija Aho, pastor of West Congregational Church, will officiate at the funeral service. Burial will be in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

Visiting hours were scheduled for 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the funeral home.

Morning Of Recollection At St. John's

Columban Father John Dunn will be the speaker at a morning of recollection to be held by St. John's Holy Name Society, Saturday, March 21.

A Mass will be celebrated by Father William McCarthy, pastor of St. John's, at 8:30 a.m. Breakfast will follow in the rectory hall.

Fr. Dunn was ordained a Columban father in 1940. He served during World War II in England, where he ministered to American soldiers.

He also served as missionary in China after the war. Following three years in that country, he was forced out by the communist uprising.

Fr. Dunn was then transferred to the Philippines for the next 16 years. Because of threatened blindness, he was transferred back to the United States.

Over the past few years he has been involved in the Cursillo and Charismatic movements.

All men of the parish are welcome to attend the event. Tickets can be obtained from Alfred Saluti, Fred Fostello, Aldo Saluti, Joe Ciccolo, Ed Grilli and Tony Quintilian.

St. Ann's School Announces Free Milk Policy

St. Ann's School, Wollaston, announces a free milk policy for school children unable to pay the full price of milk in schools or institutions.

Under the Special Milk Program, children from families whose income is at or below certain levels are eligible for free milk. Criteria for eligibility is according to the following family size and maximum gross income: one member, $5,700; two $7,220; three, $8,750; four, $10,270; five, $11,800; six, $13,320; seven, $14,851; eight, $16,370; each additional family member.

Children whose parents or guardians become unemployed are eligible for free milk during that period, providing the loss of income to the family during unemployment brings them within eligibility criteria.

Applications are available from Sister Georgianna Berry, principal, St. Ann School, 1 St. Ann Rd., Wollaston.

Lutheran Church Women Hunger Luncheon

Members and friends of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd are invited to attend the Lutheran Church Women's annual Hunger Luncheon

Sunday, March 22, following the 10:30 a.m. worship service. Homemade soup and hot French bread will be served. All proceeds will be donated to the World Hunger Appeal.

Tickets can be purchased from Flo Whiting or Randi Richards.

THE 1981 BRIDE...

The light of love shines forth at weddings

Traditions old and new evoke excitement

So many traditions, so much fuss, such excitement! As we enter into the '80s, there are as many "somethings old" as there are "somethings new" about the attitudes and ceremonies which surround the matrimonial contract.

Individual attitudes, of course, do vary, but there is a general trend in the United States today towards a traditional — even old-fashioned — approach to marriage.

Time-honored customs, which have been handed down from the Victorian age and earlier, serve as guidelines for most young couples as they prepare to establish a life together.

From such charming customs as a young man's asking a young woman's father for her hand in marriage to the new bride's tossing the bouquet before leaving the reception, today's wedding practices have distinct similarities to those of the past.

In the weeks—even months—that precede the wedding, both the bride's and the groom's families become absorbed in planning for the wedding.

Wedding attire, flowers for the church and reception, food and drink are ordered; vows are composed, invitations are written; travel reservations are made, and even the champagne with which the newlyweds will be toasted is chosen.

In fact, weddings hold such importance in modern-day society that an estimated 26 million couples will wed in this decade, according to Barbara Tober, Editor-in-Chief of Bride's magazine. This number would seem to indicate that weddings have never been more popular.

A clear break has been made with the past, however, as it is no longer the popular attitude among women that they must "yield" to the man who chooses to "take" them as lawfully-wedded wives.

Today's bride chooses instead to enter into a partnership with a man, sharing equally with him the responsibilities, duties and pleasures of the marriage.

A contemporary bride enjoys a considerably better position than did her Victorian counterpart. "More than 90 percent of all new brides continue to work after the wedding," notes Mrs. Tober.

The bride can expect her new husband to share in the household chores, just as she expects to augment their joint income with her salary.

It would be no more surprising for him to whip up a chocolate mousse than it would be for her to repair a leaky faucet. Or, when the time comes, for him to get up for the 3 A.M. feeding than it would be for her to do so. Equality has arrived in marriage.

The average age of American brides is 22 years, with women from urban areas being slightly older. Today's bride is four years older than the typical Victorian bride, whose average age was 18 years at the time of her wedding.

Being older, today's bride has more often than not established her own career, with goals and aspirations her Victorian sisters could not have imagined. She has set a life course for herself which does not necessarily hinge upon whether or not she marries.

When she walks down that aisle, dressed in the long white gown reminiscent of the Victorian era, today's bride can be assured of her independence as she is satisfied with her decision to enter into one of the oldest and most beautiful of all human associations.

CHARM in an all-over Chantilly-type lace gown with fitted bodice and simulated pear and sequin-trimmed sweetheart neckline. Graceful skirt has deep flounce at hem. Long, sheer sleeves have fitted lace cuff and appliqued detail. Worn with a chapel-length mantilla trimmed with matching lace on headpiece and veil.

A MODERN TRADITION, THE BRIDAL SHOWER

When an excited group of bridesmaids-to-be get together to have a shower, the least likely place to find them is in the bathroom.

They are more likely to be in one of their homes, preparing to surprise a lucky bride-to-be with a shower of gifts.

Bridal showers are meant to get the soon-to-be-wed woman off to a good start. Whether the shower adds to her trousseau, her linen closet or her kitchen cabinets, it is often one of the gayest parties to precede the wedding reception.

Showers are usually well-kept secrets, as half of the fun comes in surprising the bride. They may be small gatherings or all-out parties, depending on what the hostess decides.

A shower may occur at any time of day. Be it a brunch, an afternoon tea, an evening dinner or after-hours coffee and cake, the key is to plan it when the bride will least suspect it.

The shower is usually given by a member of the bridal party, a relative or a close friend. It is not considered proper for a member of the bride's immediate family to give the shower.

Shower gifts need not be extravagant or expensive. Rather, they should be helpful household necessities or other such items. The hostess may choose to give a theme to the shower—equipping the kitchen, filling the linen closet, armfuls of appliances, aids for the gardener—which helps make the gift selection easier.

Consult with professional photographer for beautiful photos of your wedding day

When you and a professional photographer plan your wedding photography session well in advance of the occasion, you can be sure your portraits and candid prints will capture all the emotion, excitement and sentiment of the nuptial celebration.

Begin to look for a professional photographer about six months before your wedding date; it's important to get an early start if the ceremony takes place during the peak times of year—May-June, August or November-December.

To find a studio that offers personalized bridal service, ask recently married friends for recommendations.

As soon as you compile a list of three or four candidates, make an appointment to visit each studio. Ask the staff to show you a sample of the wedding portraits the photographer made during the last year.

Professionals often have bridal consultants who handle many of the details and organizational work so the photographer can concentrate on producing a variety of fine quality images.

graphy includes three distinct occasions for a professional's service.

The first phase, engagement photographs, are usually made in the studio. The prints are sent to a hometown newspaper with your formal announcement. You can also mount the prints in a frame and give them to your fiancé or loved ones as a keepsake.

To prepare for this sitting, ask the studio for advice on choosing clothes, makeup and hairstyle. Stylists usually recommend solid-colored garments that complement facial features, since busy prints or loud patterns may detract from your appearance.

As a general rule, select makeup that gives you a natural look. Try to avoid heavy applications of rouge or dark eyeliner. A light touch of lipstick highlights your lips and helps them stand out.

The studio can also prepare a written announcement and send the notice to the publication. These extra services save you time and let you concentrate on more important details.

The second phase is your bridal portraiture. Professionals recommend you schedule this sitting days before the actual wedding. This way, the photographs of you in your bridal gown can be made in a suitable location—the studio, in your home, or outdoors.

You may prefer to have the session at the house of worship where the actual ceremony will occur. The extra care spent organizing this sitting will produce photographs you, your spouse and your family will cherish long after the wedding day has passed.

The final set of photographs are made on your wedding day. A week or two before the nuptials, schedule a meeting with the photographer for a final discussion about the wedding and reception.

Before the meeting, prepare a list of photographs you feel are the most important. The professional can review your suggestions and offer advice about additional ones.

The final session can reassure you that the photographer will record each portion of the day's activities and photograph important friends and relatives. And, you and your family will know the type of wedding coverage the studio has agreed to provide.

At the end of the meeting, the photographer may ask for the name of a person from each family to serve as a "wedding contact." These individuals can introduce the professional to special guests, relatives, friends, loved ones and honored guests who should be photographed.

Once the plans are set, leave the rest to the professional who has spent years mastering special lighting and camera techniques.

A pro has the skill to produce a wide range of images that capture all the emotions and moods—love, happiness, romance, togetherness and spontaneous joy—that occur during the wedding celebration.

When you return from your honeymoon, a complete set of color proofs will be ready so you can select all the images you want. To be sure you are getting the finest quality prints, ask for Kodak paper.

From this wealth of pictures you will have a vast choice for all your needs—large prints to decorate your new home, smaller views from the wedding album and selected framed photographs for parents and other special people.

SPECIAL FOODS ADD TO A GALA WEDDING CELEBRATION

All rites of passage, of which marriage is perhaps the most important, are traditionally accompanied by fanfare—to share our most special moments with loved ones is to make them that much more special.

To partake of a piece of wedding cake, to toast the bride and groom with a glass of champagne, itself the most festive of beverages—what wedding would be complete without those moments? Eating, in fact, is and has always been as much a part of celebration as celebration is a part of life.

Floods of food

The multiplicity of courses offered at a formal wedding reception today pales when compared with the elaborate menus that were prepared for Edwardian and Victorian weddings.

For instance, guests at one turn of the century wedding (as cited in Elizabeth Laverack's With This Ring, published by Elm Tree Books) were served: Consomme or oysters, lobster salad, salmon mayonnaise, sole in aspic, roast turkey stuffed with truffles, pheasant paté, braised York ham, roast pheasant, tongue, chicken, eggs in aspic, strawberries and cream, Charlotte russe, assorted pastries, water ices and coffee.

Whew! And, to think, that was all for breakfast! Till the end of the 19th century, weddings were solemnized no later than noon and the meal that greeted the wedding guests upon the conclusion of the ceremony went under the name of breakfast.

Of course, at the center of the wedding reception was the wedding cake. Not only did it physically dominate the buffet, but it was fraught with importance far exceeding that of an ordinary dessert.

Yesterday's customs In the Victorian era, an unmarried woman would probably retain a sliver of the wedding cake which had been previously put through the wedding ring. The piece of cake would be secreted under her pillow for three nights' running. Hopefully, the young woman would be granted a vision of the man she would eventually marry. If no such vision appeared, a single life would be hers.

Another Victorian custom recounted in With This Ring was to hurl a plate of crumbs from the wedding cake out of an upper story window while the bride got out of her carriage. If the plate remained whole, it was an unlucky sign; however, if it broke into pieces it was a good omen.

The central position of the wedding cake goes back to antiquity. In ancient Rome, a wheat cake was broken over the head of the bride. The crumbs which fell to the ground would be consumed by the wedding guests for good luck.

The importance of these wheat cakes may have much to do with the fact that wheat, which springs from the earth, is a symbol of fertility. The breaking of the cake, made of wheat, may have been done to ensure an easy breaking of the bride's maidenhead, and to ease the birth of her first child.

There is very likely a connection between this antique superstition, which is still observed in certain isolated parts of Scotland and Iceland, and the fuss that we make today over the ritual of the cutting of the cake, which is done in tandem by bride and groom, with everyone watching, and with the photographer-in-attendance busily immortalizing the event. What better way to celebrate the beginning of a new life . . . together!

The joys of marriage are the heaven on earth.
Life's paradise, great princess,
the soul's quiet,
Sinews of concord, earthly immortality,
Eternity of pleasures; no restoratives
Like to a constant woman.

Getting your first kitchen together

A man's home may still be his castle, but the kitchen is no longer strictly a woman's domain.

This is particularly true of newlyweds. Surveys indicate that 95 percent of today's brides plan to work after marriage. With both partners holding down jobs, it's highly likely that they'll learn to cope in the kitchen together.

No doubt that's why so many future brides and grooms are walking down the aisles of housewares departments, deciding jointly on the kitchen equipment they'll soon be working with.

And, they are finding a range of attractive and affordable merchandise to suit their busy lifestyle, simplify meal preparation and clean-up, and make the time spent in the kitchen pleasurable.

Today's housewares are modern marvels. New storage systems make even minuscule kitchens workable; multi-purpose electrics such as skillets can convert to slow cookers; self-cleaning toaster ovens and a wide array of cookware, bake-ware and small electric appliances with thick "SilverStone" non-stick surfaces make scouring as obsolete as iceboxes.

When selecting equipment for their first kitchen, couples should start with the essentials, and that means cookware. Keep in mind that there's more to saucepans and skillets than meets the eye. Performance and convenience are every bit as important as appearance.

What should you look for when choosing cookware? As with most things, it pays to opt for quality. If the budget is tight, start with a few good basic pieces and fill in as needs and culinary skills increase.

Good cooking demands pots and pans that conduct heat evenly and cook without hot spots. They should be well balanced and have flat and level bottoms for best heat distribution. All of these features can be found in heavyweight metal cookware, available in either a bright polished finish or clad in colorful porcelain enamel.

Check handles. They should be sturdy and easy to grip; covers should fit snugly to hold in the heat. And cookware should be made in one piece, without seams or crevices, so it can be cleaned easily.

Consider upkeep. There's little time these days for polishing pots and pans to keep the exteriors shiny.

And soaking and scouring interiors, too, can be time consuming and messy. Which is why so many manufacturers are making quality cookware with "SilverStone" surfaces that require just a quick wipe-out in hot sudsy water to come clean.

This durable non-stick has another plus for fitness-conscious young couples: it permits cooking with little or no fats.

Following is a handy chart of the basic items needed for "getting it together" in your first kitchen.

FIRST KITCHEN BASICS

7 or 8 inch frypan	• For omelets, crepes...
10 or 12 inch frypan	• For panfrying chicken, beef, fish...
1 or 1½ quart saucepan, 2 or 2½ quart saucepan	• For vegetables, canned soups, hard cooked eggs, sauces...
5 or 6 quart pot/Dutch oven	• For stews, fricassees, spaghetti...
Bake and roast pan	• For meat loaves, roasts, lasagna...
Electric frypan	• For braised, fried, sauteed dishes, portable and great for entertaining
Coffee pot	• Electric or top-of-range
Tea kettle	• For boiling water for tea, instant coffee, cocoa
Knives	• For paring, slicing, carving, but never cut in cookware
Wooden spoons	• For stirring—metal scratches cookware surfaces
Plastic spatulas	• To preserve non-stick cooking surfaces
Pair of tongs	• For turning meat, chicken—never use a fork, it lets the juices run out
Vegetable peeler	• For carrots, potatoes

There are, of course, many other items that a young couple will covet for their new home—a blender, food processor, slow cooker, toaster oven, corn popper, loaf pan, cookie sheets and muffin pans with "SilverStone"—all useful and handy to have. These make great gifts for family and friends to give newlyweds, so register those you want with the bridal registry at your favorite store, along with your china and silver patterns.

Preserve flowers as mementos

If yours is a traditional wedding—or even if it's not—chances are that you are a romantic at heart. And, one of the most romantic and traditional ways to remember your special day is by preserving flowers from your wedding bouquet.

To make decorative mementos of fresh flowers, advises the American Florists Marketing Council, cover them with a drying agent for at least a week until the petals feel crisp, but not brittle.

Borax, cornmeal or even kitty litter will serve as a drying agent, but the quickest and most effective drying agent is silica gel, available at most florists.

Dried flowers can be mounted on wood, placed inside a clear lucite box and tightly sealed, or arranged in a bell jar. Or, they can be pressed, arranged on velvet, and then encased in a picture frame.

Flowers should be dried within a day or two of the wedding in order for them to retain their color and shape. Since you'll probably be on your honeymoon, have your mother or a member of your wedding party start the drying process for you.

Marriage is popular because it combines the maximum of temptation with the maximum of opportunity.

—George Bernard Shaw

Many honeymooners opt for a resort vacation, for very good reason. Traditionally, a week or two of soaking up the sun, relaxing and getting accustomed to spending a great deal of time together has been the perfect recipe for getting a marriage off to a fine start.

Whether you opt for a trip to the Caribbean, or a weekend at a nearby resort, make sure it's the time of your life.

• Bring evening clothes with you, so you can do the town in style.

• Make sure to take an ample amount of sunscreen with you. Do be certain that the sunscreen you choose is one that is formulated for your skin type. Opt for maximum protection if you are fair-eyed and fair-skinned. There's no sense spending your honeymoon in discomfort.

• You'll probably be spending the better part of your time in a bathing suit, so why not bring two or three? Also, remember to pack a cover—a snazzy caftan or a terry robe—for when you've had your quota of sun for the day. That way, you won't have to languish in the shade.

• Don't forget protection for your nose, lips and eyelids. You may find preparations that are specially formulated for the sensitive areas of your face.

Enjoy! It's a period of time you'll want to reminisce about for the rest of your life.

Honeymooning abroad? Be sure to arrange for passports early

If you and your fiancé are planning a honeymoon abroad, you will need to do some extra planning and pre-nuptial appointment-making to be sure that you don't spend your first hours of bliss trapped in a customs office for insufficient documentation!

You should apply for your passports at least two months before your departure, in order to allow extra time for processing.

Because the bride is not legally a "Mrs." until the wedding (assuming, of course, that she is not a "Ms." who has decided not to take her husband's name), you will more than likely be traveling with separate passports, hers under her maiden name, and you will need to carry with you your certified marriage license.

When you return from your trip your passports may be revised to show your marital status.

To apply for a passport, you need either a birth certificate, naturalization certificate or a former passport.

You will also need another proof of identification carrying your photograph or description and signature (a driver's license, for example).

The passport office requires two additional photos of you taken within the last 6 months, 2" by 3", on a plain light background (snapshots or photos taken in coin-operated photo booths will not do—best to have professional passport pictures made.).

Your passport will take two to three weeks to process, and is good for five years. Bon voyage!

Personalizing the wedding ceremony

The marriage vows which are exchanged by countless couples today, "... for richer, for poorer, for better, for worse, in sickness and in health..." derive from the vows exchanged by our Anglo-Saxon forefathers.

In earlier times, a bride was taken "... for fairer, for fouler, for better, for worse," and promised to be "buxom and bony" to her future husband (from With This Ring by Elizabeth Laverack, Elm Tree Books, London).

It was customary for the bride's father to present his new son-in-law with one of his daughter's shoes as a token of authority. Ms. Laverack points out. The bride was then made to feel the transfer by a blow on the head with the shoe.

It was also the custom for the new husband to keep the shoe above his side of the marriage bed, as a constant reminder to the wife of her husband's authority.

Women have come a long way since those times. No longer must a wife make a vow to "love, honor and obey" during the marriage ceremony. In fact, more and more couples are personalizing their wedding ceremony by writing their own vows or by borrowing from tradition and creating an individualized ceremony along traditional lines.

Once the date has been set and the arrangements for the church or temple have been made, it is time to start thinking about the type of ceremony you and your fiancé wish to have.

Will you keep to the time-honored ceremony and vows? Or will you add your own touches? Bride's magazine gives the following pointers to assist the undecided couple:

WEDDING COSTS: WHO PAYS FOR WHAT?

Woe to the father of six daughters when it comes time to marry them off. For, it is traditionally the bride's family who foots the bill for the bulk of the wedding expenses.

Although it is not unusual for the groom's family to share in the cost of the reception, it is most often assumed that the bride's family is responsible for the cost of the wedding ceremony and trimmings.

As pointed out in Bride's magazine, wedding costs are customarily divided as follows.

The bride or her family usually pays for:

- Invitations, announcements and enclosure cards;
- Bride's wedding dress, veil and trousseau;
- Bouquets for wedding party;
- Flowers for church and reception;
- Engagement and wedding photographs;
- Fees for church, sexton, organist;
- Transportation of bridal party to church and reception;
- Entire reception, including food, beverages, music, decorations and professional services;
- Groom's wedding ring and wedding gift;
- Gifts for bride's attendants;
- Hotel accommodations for bridesmaids from out of town.

The groom or his family usually pays for:

- Bride's engagement and wedding rings;
- Marriage license;
- Clergy member's or ceremony official's fee;
- Bride's bouquet;
- Boutonnieres for men of wedding party;
- Flowers for mothers and grandmothers;
- Bride's wedding gift;
- Gifts for the best man and ushers;
- Hotel accommodations for ushers from out of town;
- Complete wedding trip.

• Talk to your clergy member. He or she will tell you which parts of the ceremony are required by your religion, and which parts of the ceremony you are free to change.

• Study the traditional ceremony. You can rewrite it in your own words, choose to disregard certain elements of it (for example, Bride's points out that individually-minded couples might flinch at the idea of "two becoming one"), or decide which of the quaint customs you wish to include.

• Look for natural points in the ceremony where you can add your own touches. Appropriate points would be in the procession, the giving-away of the bride, the vows, the ring ceremony, the prayers, the kiss and the recessional.

• Look for ways to involve your family and friends. You might choose to walk down the aisle with both of your parents. Maybe a sister or brother could read an opening prayer. Or, the four parents could light a marriage candle from two tapers to symbolize your union.

Whether you opt to abide by tradition, or choose to personalize your wedding, it's your day—and there will never be another day just like it!

Be sure gown suits your figure

Are you tall and thin? Short and bosomy? Of medium height with a long torso? Broad-shouldered? A bit thick in the middle?

Whatever your figure type, there's a wedding dress for you. There are also wedding dresses which are not for you, as pointed out in the Bride's Wedding Planner.

Here are a few tips from the experts you should remember when shopping for your wedding dress:

• If you're short, shop for dresses with neat seams or lace appliques that run lengthwise. Consider empire, princess or A-line dresses with small collars and cuffs and a trim neckline.

• If you're tall, look for dresses with a trim that wraps all around, wide belts, wide collars and cuffs, raglan or butterfly sleeves, low necklines—both front and back—and flared or tiered skirts.

• If you're full-figured, choose a carefully-fitted princess line or loosely-shaped style that just skims the body. Don't try fabrics that cling. Do go for slender sleeves, V- or U-shaped necklines, and graceful skirts with fullness at the front and sides.

• If you're thick in the middle, aim for the slimming effect of a lifted bodice and A-line skirt. Avoid thick sashes and tight waists.

• If you're broad-shouldered, look for dresses with set-in sleeves, low Vs or high covered necks. Avoid puffed or leg o' mutton sleeves, broad collars or halter tops.

• If you're narrow-shouldered, you can wear a cape or capelet, a bare neckline, or one that is widely curved. Accent shoulders with sleeves that gather at the top.

• If you're bosomy, stick to V-, U-shaped or high necklines. Avoid cinched waists, empire cuts that come up high under the bust, and clingy jerseys.

• If you're wide at the hips, let an A-line or gently flared skirt skim them. Balance by choosing a broad collar and puffy sleeves.

GEORGE Stone JEWELRY CO.

Quality Jewelers for over 25 years

When it comes to diamonds, if you know your onions, you'll learn your carats!

You've got the right girl, your plans are made—all you really need now is the ring.

And choosing that special ring is very important, notes the Jewelry Industry Council, pointing out that today's young couple spends between $750 and $1,000 on the engagement ring.

Such an expenditure deserves very careful consideration. Since the average young man is no gemological expert, it makes good sense to get as much professional help in choosing a diamond as possible. The Council advocates "if you don't know diamonds, know your jeweler."

Your family jeweler will be more than happy to point out the four important aspects that determine the value of a diamond—the "four C's," as they are called. These include:

- Cut: Refers to the shape of the diamond. This includes the popular round or "brilliant" cut; the rectangular emerald cut; the boat-shaped marquise; the oval, pear and heart shape.

The skill and precision of the stone's faceting, polishing and proportioning are important. Only a precisely cut diamond can trap and concentrate light for maximum refractive fire.

- Color: Thought by some to be the most important determinant of diamond value. The ideal diamond is crystal clear. Most diamonds are lightly tinged with yellow or brown. A bit of color detracts from a diamond's value, but seldom diminishes the stone's lovely sparkle.

- Clarity: Refers to the internal quality of the stone. Ninety-nine percent of diamonds over half a carat show some internal imperfection or inclusion when viewed under a 10-power magnification.

A tiny white bubble, cloudy areas, nicks, cracks or a carbon spot are common inclusions. As with a slight coloring, inclusions lessen a diamond's value, but seldom detract from its beauty.

- Carat: The measure of diamond weight. One carat equals a mere 200 milligrams or 1/142nd of an ounce. Even Elizabeth Taylor's spectacular 69½-carat diamond weighs slightly less than half an ounce, the same as an airmail letter. A carat is divided into 100 points; thus, a half carat stone weighs 50 points.

The Council adds a fifth, and perhaps most important "C" of all: confidence in your jeweler. Deal with a reputable jeweler who will discuss frankly how the diamond you have chosen measures up.

But, be confident—after all, you've chosen the right gem of a girl!

Guidelines for selecting your wedding cake

The cutting of the cake is a traditional feature of the wedding reception. Family and friends take special notice of the beauty in this symbol of union.

When everyone takes a bite of your wedding cake, they are sharing in the joy of the occasion. You will want your cake to be attractive to look at as well as satisfying to the palate.

Start shopping the bakeries as soon as you set the date. Consider professional bakers and friends of the family as well.

A home-made cake can be just as delicious as one purchased from a store.

Consider the cake offered in your caterer's reception package. It's often cheaper and more convenient than shopping for one on your own.

Take into account the time of year of your wedding, remembering that the temperature will influence the freshness upon delivery.

Order the cake three months in advance, specifying to the baker how many people it must serve.

Get all the details on the receipt—size, colors, flavors and designs, to make sure you get the cake you ordered.

Call and confirm everything two days ahead of your wedding day.

Champagne Tip

Champagne can be kept at home four to six years, lying on its side in a dark cool place away from drafts, as you would any fine wine. Stored longer, Champagne might deteriorate and lose its effervescence.

Showers of wedding flowers

A wedding without flowers? Perish the thought! Wedding flowers go hand-in-hand with white dresses, tiered cakes and champagne toasts to future happiness.

Flowers set the stage for wedding ceremonies and receptions alike. From the trail of rose petals dropped by a pint-sized flower girl to the bridal bouquet caught by an unmarried bridesmaid, flowers are an integral part of the wedding celebration. So have they been for centuries.

In ancient Roman times, brides carried bunches of herbs—a combination of garlic, chives, bay leaves, rosemary and other strong herbs—to help drive away evil spirits and ensure a lifetime of marital bliss.

In later times, brides carried a bouquet of orange blossoms, symbolic of fertility. And, centuries ago in England, an anxious groom would know that his bride-to-be had arrived at the church when her maid of honor presented him with a flower from the bridal bouquet to wear in his lapel.

Today's bride, unlike the brides of times gone by, can have any flower she desires—whether it's in season or not. Of course, flowers which are out of season will be more costly, but may well be worth the extra expense if a bride has her heart set on heather in July.

Planning the flower arrangements and bouquets is possibly one of the most pleasurable of all wedding preparations. If you select a reputable florist, your floral arrangements should be hassle-free.

Meet with your florist at least a month in advance of the wedding, if not sooner. Discuss with him or her the color scheme you want to use. Take along swatches of material from the bridesmaids' dresses—it will make coordinating their bouquets foolproof.

FLOWERS HAVE LONG BEEN PART OF THE wedding ceremony, from ancient Roman times to the present.

Next, decide upon the mood you want to set with the flowers. Is the wedding to be formal and traditional, or will it be a light-hearted break from tradition? The florist will suggest various floral arrangements to key into the mood of your choosing.

A conscientious florist will want to visit your church or temple, as well as the reception hall, to get a feel for their design and determine the best possible floral arrangements.

Sweet-smelling settings

Otherwise, supply the florist with floor plans and descriptions of the settings—this will eliminate the guesswork from your planning, and assure you a sweet-smelling setting for your wedding ceremony.

Housekeeping shortcuts keep newlyweds happy

Newlyweds find many ways to enjoy themselves—but housework is not usually one of them.

Here are some time-saving tips that will leave you free to pay more attention to each other:

- Cook a quicker burger by poking a hole in the middle while shaping. The center will cook fast and, when the burger is done, the hole will be gone.
- Split stems of asparagus and broccoli lengthwise; they'll cook more evenly and twice as fast.

- Type often-used recipes and cooking tips on index cards and attach to the inside of a kitchen cabinet door for quick reference.

- Make living room cleaning more efficient by dusting first, vacuuming last.

- Avoid lint on clothes by putting a yard of nylon netting into the dryer to act as lint catcher.

What's in a name? For a woman, plenty!

Remember those infatuated days of girlhood when, pen in hand, you would dreamily write the name of your most recent beau with a neatly-penned "Mrs." preceding it?

What little girl does not dream of the day when she will become, for example, Mrs. Michael Evans? Well, it just might be that little girls of the '80s no longer think along these lines.

It is no longer the exceptional woman who, once she's married, decides to keep her maiden name. This is a trend which has become increasingly common among American women in recent years.

Women are more assertive these days. And, with more than 50 percent of American women in the work force, it is frequently more practical from a professional point of view to keep the maiden name.

This is not to say that all women are retaining their maiden names. A married woman has several options, as was pointed out recently in Bride's magazine.

Taking the husband's name is by far the most popular choice among married women. If you are Janet Grayson, for example, you will probably become Mrs. Michael Evans or, more commonly, Mrs. Janet Evans. (Strict etiquette would have held you to Mrs. Michael Evans in former times; today, however, Mrs. Janet Evans is quite acceptable.)

If you like your maiden name, and for whatever reasons, decide you want to keep it, by all means do so. Becoming "Mrs. His-Name" is custom, not law, Bride's points out, except in Hawaii, where a woman is legally required to take her husband's name.

You may choose to lead a dual existence: one as Ms. Janet Grayson (most likely for professional purposes), the other as Mrs. Janet Evans. Both names are legally recognized, as long as you carry dual identification.

A popular solution to the identity dilemma is hyphenate both names, in this case becoming Mr. and Mrs. Grayson-Evans. This does not necessitate a couple's going through legal proceedings.

An important consideration for the newly-married woman, Bride's points out, is to establish credit in her own name.

Use one name—either Janet Grayson or Janet Grayson Evans—in all your financial dealings. Have your own bank and charge accounts, and expect to be treated as an individual. If you do open any kind of joint account, insist that creditors keep separate files on both you and your husband.

GIVE A GIFT THAT SHOWS YOU CARE

A wedding is a special occasion—a time to give a gift that sends your best wishes to the newly married couple as they embark on their journey through life, together.

A unique present, something that will not be duplicated over and over again, will be appreciated by the newlyweds and show them that time and effort was taken to choose something extra special for them.

If possible, find out the color and decorating preferences of the couple and select a wall hanging or painting that complements their taste.

Give a planter or hanging basket in an interesting macrame weave, made from various types of ropes and cords. Fill the basket with a plant or a bouquet of flowers.

Cap Outstanding Season

8 Quincy Wrestlers On Suburban All Star Team

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy High wrestling team capped another outstanding season when eight of its members were named to the Suburban League all-star team.

Selected to the first team were John Herald at 158 pounds, Mike Monahan at 169 and Mark Picot at 187.

Ed Ryan at 128, Al DiVincents at 148 and heavyweight Ed Mackey were named to the second team and Jerry McSharry at 122 and Joe Souza at 134 received honorable mention.

The Presidents this year won their third straight league title with an 8-0 record and finished at 20-1-0 overall, losing only to state champion Lowell, and winning their third successive South Sectional Div. 1 championship.

Since wrestling was resumed at Quincy in 1974, Carmen Mariano's teams have compiled an amazing 105-26-1 record in regular season competition.

Herald paced the Presidents with a 20-0-0 record and 99 team points.

The other point scorers were Picot, 17-1-0 (89 points); Al Costiglia, 16-3-1 (83); Mackey, 14-3-0 (81); Monahan, 14-1-0 (64); Joe Madden, 12-7-0 (63); Souza, 13-2-1 (60); Jim Silcox, 11-0-0 (53); DiVincents, 11-0-0 (53), and Paul Silcox, 9-5-1 (49).

Also, McSharry, 9-2-1 (38); Mike Miller, 7-0-0 (35); Glen Oriola, 6-6-0 (31); Ryan, 7-5-0 (27); Greg Oriola, 6-4-0 (25); Mario Venturilli, 3-3-0 (18); Shaun Wynn, 2-3-0 (12); Kevin McCormack, 2-0-0 (9); Joe McClelland, 2-0-0 (9); John Madden, 2-2-0 (6); Darrin DeCoste, 1-1-0 (6); Bill Rollins, 1-2-0 (4); Bill Marston, 1-6-0 (3); John Carvello, 1-0-0 (3), and Jamie Gravalese, 1-1-0 (3).

Raiders Run Out Of Upsets

North Quincy's basketball team provided one of the upsets of the Eastern Mass. Tournament when it handed Plymouth-Carver its only loss of the season after opening with a victory over Braintree.

However, the Raiders were unable to pull a similar upset in the Div. I South semifinals last week when Boston English, showing extreme quickness, eliminated Eddie Miller's North team, 63-49.

English then was edged by Boston College High, 62-60, last Saturday in the division finals.

After falling behind, 28-14, at the half, Miller kept the Raiders on the floor to work on a few things.

"I never held the team out on the court at halftime before," said Miller. "But we felt we had to work on something that we were missing in the first half. We wanted to get the ball inside to Bunker (6-9 Chip) and we weren't doing it."

"Our shooting percentage was low due to their outstanding defensive play and their outside shooting was outstanding. They have one of the quickest team I've seen. You can't let a team like that get ahead of you, but that is what we did."

English was hot from the outside in the first half as Jesse Coleman went six-for-six from the floor. He had 25 points with nine-for-12 from the floor and seven-for-eight from the foul line.

English led, 16-6, after a period and 28-14 at halftime.

North cut the lead to 10 with 3:31 left in the third period. The Raiders kept feeding Bunker, who had plenty of shots but most of them wouldn't drop. Paul Gill had two early baskets and Mark Millane added two to cut the gap to 10.

"I really thought we had our chance then," Miller said. "We had fought back and were blocking their shots."

But Coleman got hot again and English took a 39-28 advantage into the final quarter.

Here Coleman went to the foul line four times and hit for seven points.

Midway in the finale English started to play a four-corners offense and up time while looking for only the high-percentage shots. North was forced to foul and Gill fouled out. The talented senior guard, Miller's "quarter-back", received a rousing ovation. "The thing that hurts most about losing is the fact it's the end of three years with the seniors," Miller said.

"In three years some of these seniors never missed a practice. Once Millane came to practice even though it was obvious he was sick and I had to send him home."

Bunker, Millane and Gill had 12 points each for the Raiders.

THE TAX CLINIC CHALLENGE

Bring us your completed tax return. We'll review it FREE.

If we can't find a way to save you money, there'll be NO FEE for this service.

And if we do save you money, you pay just our regular, reasonable fee.

Our fee is not based on how much we save you, but only on the complexity of your return--so the simpler your return, the lower the fee.

HOW CAN WE MAKE THIS UNPRECEDENTED OFFER?

It's simple. The tax laws are incredibly complicated, the forms amazingly intricate, and the instructions confusing and incomplete. At THE TAX CLINIC your return will be reviewed by an experienced tax consultant or attorney who know the tax laws inside and out. We take the time to work with you to legitimately minimize your tax. And our entire staff is available year-round to serve you.

● It doesn't matter who prepared your return--yourself, a friend, an amateur or professional. Our challenge still stands.

● If you've already mailed your return, no problem. We'll still be able to save you money, by filing an amended return.

● No appointment is necessary. But you must hurry. This special offer expires Sunday, March 29, 1981.

Bow To Newton North

Inexperience Tells On First Ladies

The Cinderella season for the Quincy girls basketball team came to an end last week when the First Ladies lost to Newton North for the third time this year, 58-51, in the Eastern Mass. Tournament Div. I South semifinals.

Peter Swanson's Quincy girls, who had to wait until the final game to qualify for the tournament for the first time since the 1972-73 season, had proven they belonged with victories over Marshfield and New Bedford, but, in the end, it was their tournament inexperience which proved their downfall.

Newton North, which had finished second to Cambridge Rindge and Latin in the Suburban League, won the division title last Saturday with a win over Weymouth North. In its first tournament game it has eliminated North Quincy.

Quincy had trailed the Tigers by as many as 11 points but, with three minutes left in the game, rallied to within two, 51-49.

At that point inexperience put in an appearance as Newton went on to score seven free throws, while the First Ladies couldn't get the ball to go in for them.

"This wasn't really a seven-point game, said first-year coach Swanson. "We tried to play good defense and let the offense come as it may. We took away Newton's offense a lot more in the second half, but they made their foul shots. They've been in the tournament before, while this was the first for our girls, and they did what they had to do. We couldn't make our shots at the end, and that's just a lack of tournament experience."

Newton only had one more field goal than Quincy, 22-21, but hit on 14 foul shots to nine for Quincy.

Newton used its experience and a lot of height to run up a 32-25 lead at the half. Debbie Quinn (18 points) was able to get inside consistently in the first half to score 10 points, while Donna Yaffee and Sandy Smith each picked up six, mostly from under the hoop.

Newton started fast and threatened to blow the Quincy girls out, but the first Ladies came back and trailed by only an 18-15 count after one period.

"I was a little upset with our defense in the first half," Swanson said. "We have to play well on defense if we are going to win. They just got inside too much, and we gave them too many easy shots."
